FAIR TODAY AND PROBABLY TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1796 1925

NORWICH, CONN., THURSDAY, DEC. 17, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Thursday, Dec. 17, 1925

THE WEATHER

Conditions

Pressure has remained quite low over the Canadian maritime provinces and it is relatively low over the Atlantic states. The temperature has risen in New England.

There will be considerable cloudiness Thursday over the states east of the Mississippi river, but precipitation probably will be confined to the lower lake region and the Atlantic states from Virginia southward. Fair weather will prevail almost generally Friday in the Washington forecast district. The temperature will be somewhat lower Thursday or Thursday night in the north Atlantic states and will not change materially on Friday east of the Mississippi river.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh west and northwest and fair weather Thursday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh possibly strong northwest and north and overcast weather Thursday; local rains over south portion.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Generally fair Thursday and Friday not much change in temperature.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Wednesday:

7 a. m.	25	30.09
12 m.	36	30.00
6 p. m.	34	30.00

Highest 40, lowest 25.

Comparisons

Predictions for Wednesday: Rain or snow, slowly rising temperature.

Wednesday's weather: Light snow in early morning, followed by fair and some warmer, northwest wind.

TAFTVILLE

For the first time this season, the Shetucket river above the Ponemah mills dam was covered with a coating of ice Wednesday.

Robert B. Schmidt, president of the Christian Endeavor society of the Taftville Congregational church, has been elected treasurer of the Norwich Christian Endeavor union.

Moses Plante has resigned his position with the paint department of the Ponemah mills.

Examinations are in progress at the Wequonnoc school.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Taftville Congregational church was held Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors. The president, Miss Gertrude M. Young presided at the business meeting, at the close of which refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed by the members present.

The junior choir of the Taftville Congregational church which is to sing Christmas carols at the annual church school service, held a rehearsal Wednesday afternoon under the direction of Miss Blossie M. Meyer.

CHILDREN HAVE MASQUERADE AT WAUREGAN HOTEL

One of the prettiest events of the Christmas festivities was a masquerade given by Mrs. Edward Andrews Wednesday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel for her children's private dancing classes. 86 children attending. The costumes were beautiful and varied, making a pretty picture as the children danced their numbers amidst gay streamers and confetti. There was a prettily decorated tree on which was a gift for each child. During intermission ice cream and wafers were served. A cotillion in which red scarfs were used as favors was next given, the scarfs being used in the closing march, when arches were made under which the children passed. There were beautiful gifts from the class for Mrs. Andrews and an arm bouquet for Miss Mabel Taft.

BARBERS TO ORGANIZE HERE THIS EVENING

The barbers of eastern Connecticut will meet this (Thursday) evening at the Wauregan hotel to organize for the protection against the new ruling regarding hairdressers and beauty parlors. This is the first local action to be taken in the eastern part of the state although there have been several state meetings in New Haven at which the situation has been freely discussed. The meeting will be addressed by Anthony Melino, international vice president of the J. B. I. U. of A., John J. Eagan, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, of Bridgeport, and several others prominently connected with the master barbers' association in the state.

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY NAMES NEW EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The directors of the New London County Agricultural society at a meeting Wednesday morning adopted a recommendation that the executive committee change the county fair dates from the middle of September back to the three days beginning Labor Day next September. For years Labor Day has been the opening day of the fair held annually in this city but this year the fair was held during the middle of the month. The directors are of the opinion that it is advisable to change the fair dates back to Labor Day and the two following days.

Three meetings were held Wednesday morning in the town hall. With about 30 present the first meeting was called to order at 10.30 o'clock by President Charles P. Bushnell.

This meeting was for the purpose of hearing and acting upon the report of the special committee on finances, A. W. Lillibridge, John R. Bowman, Jr., and R. B. S. Washburn. The committee recommended that $3,500 be borrowed to pay the floating debt and that a second mortgage be given to protect the six men who had given their names as personal guarantors for the loan. With the aid of the society's bills have been paid and there is a balance of $525.21. The report of the treasurer, Albert J. Bailey, was heard and accepted. Edwin V. Ross was elected a director of the society vice Gilbert S. Raymond, resigned, Mr. Raymond having been appointed secretary.

Following this meeting, which was an adjourned annual meeting, there was a special meeting at which Treasurer Albert J. Bailey was authorized to sign and execute the second mortgage.

The directors then held a meeting at which a new by-law was adopted fixing the number of members on the executive committee at 10. Previously there have been fourteen on the committee. The executive committee was named as follows:

President, Charles P. Bushnell, Norwich; vice president, Simon Brewster, Jewett City; treasurer, Albert J. Bailey, Norwich; secretary, Gilbert S. Raymond, Norwich; Arthur E. Shedd, Preston; Alexander Jordan, Norwich; Elisha L. Waterman, Lebanon; A. W. Lillibridge, Norwich; J. Lawrence Raymond, Lyme; C. D. Greenman, Norwich.

TWO LOCAL DRIVERS ON SUSPENDED LIST

The weekly list of Conecticut operators whose licenses have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are twenty-seven names on the list. The cases of two have been appealed. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivres operating motor vehicles. The following is the list:

Harry Bartlett, East Hartford; Charles W. Bombo, Newington; Glover N. Brooks, Stamford; James B. Casey, Norwich; Jacob Comendik, Bridgeport; James M. Cronin, Middletown; William Dragon, Wagehouse Point; Frank Fitzmaurice, Norwalk; William H. Gray, New Britain; George A. Hodgdon, New Haven; John A. Kotsay, New Haven; Gerald McClelland, Bristol; Frank McIntyre, Cromwell; Edward P. McNulty, Waterbury; Cecil B. Nettleton, Bridgeport; Dominic Papagna, Hartford; Guerrino Paradisi, Bridgeport; Arthur Richburg, Wigsted; James Ryan; Waldemar Rydquist, New Britain; Fred W. Stokes, New Haven; James Telford, New London; John Tiernan, West Haven; Nicholas Tully, Derby; John P. Walukas, Waterbury; John J. White, Stamford; John Wisneske, Norwich.

BIBLE CLASS FOR MEN AT Y. M. C. A.

The usual good attendance was present at the men's weekly Bible study class at the local Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening; several visitors were welcomed.

The general theme was "Temptation," and the scripture was the story of the temptation of Jesus by Satan. Among other points brought in the discussion were the following: John the Baptist was baptising in the Jordan, and when Jesus appeared for baptism, John felt unworthy to baptize Him, but by request of Jesus he did so. John was one of the most humble men of history; when his followers told him that Jesus was winning away his disciples, John said, "He must increase, but I must decrease." Most men resent another taking away their popularity, but not so with John. It is very significant that immediately after Jesus was baptized, Satan tempted him.

"The devil is satisfied with a man when he is following him, but immediately when one turns right about face, to live for God then his great battle begins, and the tempter uses every opportunity to turn him back to his old ways, and Satan is past master in salesmanship so to speak. On account of the interest in the discussion time would not permit the taking of any but the first temptation, and the point made in this connection was that Satan waited until Jesus was well nigh exhausted with hunger and then suggested that he turn the stones into bread, whereupon Jesus replied, "Man shall not live by bread alone?" There are some things more important than bread, and to do the will of God is vastly more important. Jesus thwarted every attempt of Satan to lead him away from the path of right. One of the finest compliments that any person ever received was when the Father said at the time of Jesus' baptism: "This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased." The ambition of every man should be to please God.

BURLINGHAM NOW FIRST IN COLONIAL PINOCHLE

George Burlingham, the West Side grocery man, came into his own Tuesday evening in the Colonial Club's pinochle play and by hard consistent playing passed several of the so called stars and landed in first place in the standing to date. The "Jinx" continues with Percy Harwood who dropped four more places in the standing which is as follows:

Burlingham, 23,870; Drake, 23,240; E. Crowell, 22,825; Lillibridge, 22,615; Gee, 22,520; Huntington, 22,170; Higgins, 22,105; Harwood, 22,020; Thompson, 21,945; Griffith, 21,130; Gifford, 21,095; Allen, 20,955; McNaught, 20,695; Cochran, 20,685; Washburn, 20,425; Young Crowell, 18,600.

DEATH OF VAN R. WHEELER A LOSS TO CAMPGROUND

Norwich visitors to Willimantic Campground regretted to learn of the death of Van R. Wheeler, 80, at his home in Providence, R. I., last week Tuesday, and his burial Friday. Mr. Wheeler was the oldest and the most efficient member of the camp ground executive committee. He had been an active member of the association for about a half century and held the office of treasurer for years. It will be hard to find one to take his place who will have the interest and ability to do the work he did. There are two members of the original committee left, Rev. F. C. Baker, of North Grosvenordale, and F. H. Bushnell, of Norwich Town.

ANOTHER HEARING HELD ON NIANTIC DAMAGE CASE

Another hearing in the case of Walter L. Brockett of New Haven against Clarence Brockett and Rosina Brockett of Niantic, the damages of which aggregate $94,000 was held at the county court house at New London Wednesday before Attorney Charles L. Smiddy of New London, a committee appointed by the superior court to hear the evidence.

The plaintiff claims from his brother Clarence and the latter's wife, Rosina Brockett, $24,000, while the defendants have entered a counter claim for $70,000.

The suit centers around property at Giants Neck, East Lyme, where, in 1910, the brothers developed land. Attorneys Arthur M. Brown and Charles F. Roberts represented the plaintiff and Attorney Frank L. McGuire appeared for the defendant.

Walter D. Brockett was on the stand Wednesday and testified regarding a number of checks, ranging in amounts from $15 to $50, made over to Capt. Nelson Vars, who in 1910, was skipper of a lighter owned by the plaintiff and which the witness testified, was used on return trips from New Haven to Giants Neck, to transport material to be used in the construction of the buildings. The plaintiff testified that these checks were pars of the amount of money which he advanced when the development was under way by agreement with the defendant.

Attorney McGuire objected to the admission of the checks without more evidence to show exactly what the material was and also further particulars, in view of the fact that the boat was the property of the plaintiff and that Captain Vars was in his employ.

The court ruled that the checks be admitted and Attorney Roberts maintained that later more detailed testimony would be introduced. Exceptions were entered in the admission of each check.

COLCHESTER MAN SUFFERS FROM SEVERE BURNS

Louis Slapkin, 25, of Colchester, lies in a critical condition at his home there as a result of burns received from an explosion of a gasoline stove Tuesday night.

Slapkin was attending the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias and was engaged in preparing coffee for the refreshments in an ante-room when his screams attracted the attention of other members who found him enveloped in a sheet of flame. Coats and wraps were thrown around him and he was given medical attention by Dr. E. J. Howland and taken home. Dr. Howland gave his condition as serious.

An investigation disclosed that Slapkin was pumping air into the gas stove when, in some unknown manner, the stove exploded and ignited.

Slapkin is widely known in Colchester, where he is engaged as an electrician. He is married. He attracted nation-wide attention a few years ago when, in an old automobile, he made a trip to California and back.

Y. M. C. A. MAKES PLANS FOR STATE CONVENTION

It was decided at the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. state leaders' club, held in Meriden last Saturday, to hold the annual leaders' conference in New London some time next year probably in the latter part of March. The meeting of the state leaders was attended by the presidents of the 17 associations of the state and all seemed pleased with the selection of New London as the city for the annual exhibition, conference and banquet. Upon acceptance of the invitation which was read by Edgar Demarais, president of the New London Y. M. C. A. leaders' corps, the presidents voted to have the conference last two days instead of one, as is the usual case. The conference will start on some Saturday in March, to be decided later, and will continue over Sunday.

JOHN DODGE TAKEN TO CAMBRIDGE HOSPITAL

On Wednesday afternoon, John Dodge, 15 year old son of Mrs. Hannah Dodge and the late Ozias Dodge, was taken to the Peter Bent Brigham hospital, in Cambridge, Mass., and it was stated that his condition is considered as quite satisfactory and that he stands a good chance for recovery.

His skull, which was fractured when he was knocked from his bicycle by the automobile, driven by Thomas J. Driscoll, of 45 Uncas street, was trephined by Dr. Harroux, assistant to Dr. Harry Cushing, in charge of the Brigham training hospital at Cambridge.

PRIZES ARE AWARDED TO ESSAY WINNERS

Members of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce distributed the prizes to the winners in the grammar schools in the city, on Wednesday, each prize winner reading the article which won the prize, at the time of the presentation. The contest was conducted under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

Prize winners were John Tingley, Broadway school, first; Olive Rathbone, Elizabeth Street school, second; Sophie Cinikoski, Greeneville school, third.

HUGH CAMPBELL IS 83 YEARS OLD TODAY

Hugh Campbell, formerly a well known Philadelphia druggist, today (Thursday) celebrates his eighty-third birthday. For more than nine years he has filled the position of druggist at Uncas-On-Thames, where his son, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell is superintendent.

Mr. Campbell was born in Philadelphia, December 17, 1842. In 1866 he was graduated from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, and has been in the drug business since that time.

He is a member of the United Congregational church, the Meridian Sun Lodge, No. 158 and the Royal Arcanum.

HUGH CAMPBELL

Mr. Campbell is enjoying the best of health, and rarely misses a day at his work. His daily visits to the wards, where he distributes the morning mail, are a source of great pleasure to the patients. His lovable disposition and bright smile have endeared him to everyone, and all join in wishing him a happy birthday and many more of them.

FINAL SESSION OF SCOUT LEADERS' COURSE

The final session of the scout leaders course was held at scout headquarters Wednesday evening. The meeting opened with scout songs after which Scout Executive F. A. Benton gave a summary of the salient points of the course paying a tribute to the loyal group of leaders who had faithful attended the course and carried on to the end.

Scout Master Cyrus Woodman read a poem by Edgar Guest, "The Scout Master." In the absence of Rev. E. C. Dunbar who was to have spoken on the topic of games, Scout Executive Benton took over this part of the programme. Each scout master was given a new list of games with explanations to add to the variety of those now in use at the troop meetings.

The psychology of games was touched upon, the value of them for purposes of concentration, attention, instruction, physical training, good fun and good health being emphasized. Circle games, line games, opposed line games, games of skill, of strength, nature study and the like were spoken of in the scout executive's talk. Games teach the youth cooperation, he said. Games teach fair play for he is well thought of who plays the game fair. Through life we are taught to "play the game." Roosevelt said, "Don't flinch, don't foul and hit the line hard."

National headquarters accepted and approved the course of the local council and accorded it grade B. Training course certificates were awarded the following for study and regular attendance during the nine sessions, just ended:

John Labenski, Irving Manning, Earl Taggart, Walter Haun, Alexander Warakawski, Thomas Baldwin, Jr. Thomas Baldwin, Jr.

A fine certificate from the department of education, Boy Scouts of America, countersigned by the chairman of the training committee, Charles A. Hagberg, and Scout Executive Benton, was awarded to each of the above. Many other leaders attended the sessions but did not receive certificates. They include Edward Preston, Robert Schmidt, Harold Frink, John Keeley, Forrest Lewis ,DeForrest Parsons, Leo Strom, Bill Stavrou, Reginald Laubin, Benjamin Tuber and Sam Dombroski. The average attendance was 10.

Certificates for the completion of the patrol leaders' course held last May at scout headquarters were presented by Executive Benton to Robert Schmidt, A. S. M., Troop No. 3, Taftville; Thomas Baldwin, A. S. M., Troop No. 12, Norwich; William Stavrou, A. S. M., Troop No. 22, Norwich; Donald Royce, Troop No. 9, Norwich; Leodore Phanauf, Troop No. 4, Taftville; Irving Manning, Troop No. 20, Norwich.

The meeting closed with "taps" sounded by Bugler Baldwin. The men completing the course will be placed as officials in new troops to be formed soon.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS TREE

Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, president, presided over the session of Mercier Assembly, No. 13, C. L. of C., held on Tuesday evening, when two new applications for membership were received.

Treasurer Miss Mary A. McGrohan read her annual report, showing the assembly to be in excellent financial condition.

Miss Eleanor Donovan, chairman of the Christmas entertainment committee reported progress, stating that the Christmas tree would be held on the afternoon of December 27th, at 3.30 o'clock, at the state armory, when presents would be distributed to needy and deserving children of this city. Each child is to receive an invitation to the party. The report of the president, Mrs. McVeigh, covered the work of the assembly during the past year and was most pleasing to the members.

It was announced that the degree team and choir are to meet later in the month for preparation for the installation, to take place on January 3; also that the assembly had been most fortunate in securing Miss Eleanor Gallivan, of Boston, who is to stage a playlet at the Community house during the month of January.

Mrs. McNerney was named chairman of the ticket committee for this affair and has the assistance of the following members in disposing of the tickets: Mrs. James J. Dutton, Margaret Daley, Elizabeth Barry, Mrs. Ella Bowe, Catherine Buckley, Mrs. James Casey, Marie Desmond, Eleanor Donovan, Geraldine Enos, Helen Flynn, Irene Gallivan, Mary Hammill, Kitty Hanrahan, Alice Hoar, Frances Kingberger, Catherine Hallahan, Mazie Maloney, Mary J. Murphy, Nellie McCarthy, Nora McCrohan, Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, Lillian O'Brien, Rosana Peloquin, Maude Quinley, Annie Stanton, Mrs. Roderick Sullivan, Anna Welsh and Agnes White.

After the business meeting refreshments of cake and coffee were served by the social committee with Miss Loretta Ward, chairman.

NORWICH ESTATES AMONG LIST OF PENALIZED

The estates of several prominent Connecticut people who died within the past two years are shown by the report of State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers, to have been penalized by the state for failure to pay certain taxes during the lifetimes of the descendents. Among these are the estates of two associate justices of the supreme court of errors, a judge of superior court, a high sheriff, a former state senator, a former representative and a murdered clergyman.

This penalty tax was laid against approximately 1,040 estates of persons who failed to pay the required tax on bonds, notes and other choses in action, commonly called intangibles. The penalties ranged from $1.50 to $24,408.93, the latter amount representing the William G. Rockefeller estate, and the total for all published is $226,947.41.

Among the estates penalized are: Former State Senator John Ash, Pomfret, $12; Justice Lucien F. Burpee, West Hartford, $87.08; Charles M. Fenner, Putnam, $437.79; George H. Fitts, Ashford, $525; Frank W. Gordon, Woodstock, $1,410.20; Grace Brooks Hill, Old Saybrook, $933.25; Daniel Holbrook, Windham, $1,416.25; Justice John P. Kellogg, Waterbury, $118.15; Lora E. Learned, New London, $690.26; John McWilliams, Norwich, $452.36; Charles H. Osgood, Norwich, $457.94; Williamina Porter, New London, $775.24; Frank B. VanBrunt, Brooklyn, $920.19; Ellen E. Waite, Oneco, $485.37; Josephine Thurston, Norwich, $287.12; Charles O. Treat, Manchester, $238.11; Thomas B. Waller, New London, $254.51; Judge James H. Webb, Hamden, $166.90.

The state requires the payment of a tax on bank deposits in excess of $500. Taxes on such and on bonds, notes or other choses in action are payable to the state or to the town in which the owner lives.

Option remains with the owners to pay to the state treasurer a tax of 2 cent. on the face value of such intangibles to cover a period of five years or to be taxed in the towns in which they live at the prevailing municipal tax rate. The tax is easily overlooked, usually unintentionally by people who are careful to meet their public obligations, but invariably the failure to pay shows in the inventory of the estate after death, in which case the state imposes the penalty tax of 2 per cent. a year on the appraised inventory value of the property for five years next preceding the date of death.

In several sessions of the legislature the tax on intangibles has been attacked as an unwarranted inconvenience which results in injustice to many people who have not the slightest intention to evade it but, nevertheless unwittingly overlook it. The names of those who do are, under the law, published by the state treasury department in its annual report, which is widely distributed.

Winter Butchering

AMERICAN THERMOS GIRLS HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

With over 200 present the girls employed in the offices of the American Thermos Bottle company, held a delightful Christmas party and dance Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows' hall. The hall was very prettily decorated with the seasonable colors. Thumm's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing which lasted until midnight. Refreshments were served during the evening.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the evening comprised Miss Frances Kelly, Miss Marie Desmond, Miss Elizabeth Sullivan, Miss Loretta Gadie, Miss Louise D. Lessard, Miss Sadie Mopsik, Miss Catherine Lee, and Miss Geraldine Spaulding.

HOPE REBEKAH LODGE ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

At its annual meeting Wednesday evening at Odd Fellows' building, Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., elected officers for the coming year. The lodge also held a roll call, 90 members responding to their names. The officers elected are as follows: Mrs. Mabel Wheeler, noble grand; Mrs. Alice Brayman, vice grand; Mrs. Ada Revell, secretary; Miss Mary Wals, financial secretary, and Mrs. Ivy Peckham, treasurer. Mrs. Ella Stapleton, the retiring noble grand, presided at the meeting.

At the next meeting the officers will be installed, the installation being preceded by a supper to be served at 6:30 o'clock.

NORWICH TOWN

The W. I. T's, an organized class of young men of the First Congregational Sunday school, Miss Jessie E. Hyde, leader, met Tuesday evening at Miss Hyde's home on Washington street. A very enjoyable Christmas party was given by the young men, when they entertained their girl friends. There were eighteen present. Each young man brought two gifts, which were arranged on a large Christmas tree in the front parlor and distributed at the close of the evening's programme, which consisted of various interesting games. One of these was a doughnut stunt, which also revealed a fortune. Those who entered into the game, while blindfolded, secured a number and when the gifts from the Christmas tree were distributed they were chosen according to the numbers on the doughnuts.

A special feature of the evening, was the birthday anniversary of one of the class members, Elton Odgers. For him an attractively decorated birthday cake adorned the table; on the cake was a tiny Christmas tree and red and green candles. The table on either side was decorated with tall red candles and napkins with emblems of Yuletide. During the evening the members with Miss Hyde, served ice-cream small decorated cakes, fancy wafers and candy.

The pleasant affair was in charge of the W. I. T's, social committee, Elton Odgers, George Durr and Marcus Grady.

COMMUNITY TREE PLANS ARE GOING FORWARD

The second rehearsal for men's voices preparatory to the Christmas Tree celebration on Norwich Town Green Christmas eve, under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association, is to be held Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the First Congregational chapel. A desire is expressed by the committee in charge of the music for a much greater response from the men in the community, especially for the hymn "Watchman Tell Us of the Night," which is to be by an antiphonal chorus in the first part of the programme.

Joseph C. Worth very ably led in the singing Sunday, and he is expected he will also have charge of the rehearsal next Sunday. The community singing on the green, the night of the celebration will also be conducted by Mr. Worth, who is enthusiastic in his efforts to assist.

John M. Swahn is to be present and with three others, with the aid of horns will accompany the community chorus.

Walter T. Camp, president of the Rural association and Rev. Gurdon E. Bailey general chairman of the programme committee, are working to keep this annual affair up to its high standard of the past two years, the idea having originated with this association in 1923.

Robert Bolsson is treasurer of the fund which is solicited each year, to defray expenses. Herbert L. Yerrington is the chairman on lighting the tree, which will have a large number of colored electric lights as in preceding years. There will be a number of smaller trees arranged temporarily around the large tree which was set out by the tree committee of the association as a lasting marker for this event, from year to year.

Mrs. Emma Wette and Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Wette, have returned to their home on East Town street, following several days' stay in Hartford.

Mrs. Sarah Kennedy of New London was a guest Sunday at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wette.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Peck of Otrobando avenue, had as callers Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hanney of Waterford.

The officiating clergyman at the Sheltering Arms service Sunday afternoon, will be Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, Norwich, accompanied by that church choir.

Mr. and Mrs. David M. Dean of Town street, have received word of the death of Mr. Dean's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edward Dean of Old Lyme, Tuesday, December 15th, following a long illness. Mrs. Burton Robbins (Melissa Dean) of Providence, formerly of Norwich Town, is a daughter.

COL. MITCHELL GUILTY ON ALL EIGHT COUNTS GETS SUSPENSION OF FIVE YEARS FROM ARMY

Convicted by General Courtmartial of Having Broken Discipline by His Attacks on Aviation Policies—Court Pronounces That the Sentence Had Been Made "Lenient" in Consideration of Colonel Mitchell's War Record—Pending Approval of the Sentence by President Coolidge the Air Officer Will Remain Technically Under Arrest.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—(AP)—A verdict of guilty on all specifications and general charge coupled with a sentence of suspension for five years from "rank, command and duty" in the army, was found tonight against Colonel William Mitchell by the courtmartial which has been conducting his trial for insurbordination since October 28.

The "military record of the accused during the World war," probably saved him from a more severe sentence. That was indicated by the court when it announced that the finding "is thus lenient."

Major General Robert L. Howze, president of the court, and the nine other members closed the court at 3:40 o'clock his afternoon for findings. At precisely 6:34, or two hours and fifty-four minutes later, the sentence and verdict were announced in these words:

"The court upon secret written ballots, two-thirds of the members present at the time the vote was taken concurring in each finding of guilt, finds the accused guilty of all specifications of the charge, upon secret written ballots.

"The court sentences the accused to be suspended from rank, command and duty, with forfeiture of pay and allowances for five years.

"The court is thus lenient because of the military record of the accused during the World war, two-thirds of the members who were present at the time the vote was taken concurring."

Colonel Mitchell, standing as the decision was announced, with Mrs. Mitchell at his side, smiled.

Adjournment of the trial automatically transferred the Mitchell case from the old brick building near the capital to the war department. There it will be forwarded by the adjutant general of the army to the board of review in the judge advocate general's office to be checked for inaccuracies. Later the board will pass it on to Secretary Davis, who, in turn will submit the voluminous trial record to President Coolidge for final review and approval.

Meanwhile, Colonel Mitchell remains in the status of an officer under technical ar est, since the court's verdict can only be made effective by President Coolidge's endorsement. In view of this situation and the flat refusal of the accused to comment publicly concerning his future plans until after the president has taken final action, there was some belief on the part of the colonel's closest friends that he would quietly await the outcome, and if that failed to relieve him from the five years' suspension, he might offer the president his resignation from the army.

The general charge on which the court based its finding of guilt was that Colonel Mitchell had violated the 96th article of war "to the prejudice of good order and military discipline." The eight specifications set out in the appended charge sheets were founded on particular charges against the war and navy departments made by the air officer in his published statements of September 5 and 8. These accused the two departments of "incompetency, criminal negligence and almost treasonable" administration of the national defense, and "disgraceful administration of aeronautics."

COMMITTEE REVENUE BILL GOING THROUGH HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—(AP)—Repeal or reduction of most of the excise and occupational taxes, as written into the revenue bill by the ways and means committee, were approved today by the house.

A determined effort to wipe out entirely the automobile passenger car tax, which the bill cuts from from 5 to 3 per cent., was rejected 188 to 85.

With virtually every rate schedule in the bill having been approved and all amendments to the measure mowed down by two to one majorities in almost every instance, managers of the non-partisan measure announced tonight they would ask the house to pass it finally tomorrow.

The bill thus will be passed, with its provisions for a $325,000,000 cut in the federal taxes next year intact as prepared by the ways and means committee.

The tax reduction provisions which received approval today were:

Reduction of the automobile passenger car tax from five to 3 per cent.

Repeal of the levies on automobile trucks, tires, parts and accessories.

Repeal of the excise taxes on jewelry, cameras, and lenses, photographic films and plates, firmarms and ammunition, smokers' articles, coin-operated machines, Mah Jong sets, and works of art.

Repeal of the gift tax.

Repeal of the levies on brokers, bowling alleys, pool and billiard tables, shooting galleries and riding academies, automobiles for hire, tobacco manufactures, users of yachts and motor boats.

Repeal of the stamp taxes on deeds and conveyances.

Reduction of all cigar levies.

Repeal of the admission taxes applying to the spoken drama.

A STATE OF SIEGE IN THE ANTHRACITE STRIKE

PHIADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The anthracite strike has developed into a state of siege, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, tonight told the Philadelphia real estate board. He added that the operators and "the financial interests behind them" were prepared to pay a billion dollars to crush the Mine Workers' Union, and that, the miners had no other alternative than to accept the challenge to a finish fight.

The miners' leader made no reference in his address to the move to bring about a settlement of the controversy made by executives of anthracite communities at a meeting with Governor Pinchot yesterday in Harrisburg. Neither was there any intimation today from the operators as to their attitude on the latest peace proposals. The governor today appointed a committee of the mayors and burgesses to invite the two sides to resume negotiations at the point where they were broken off last August.

This committee is expected to convey to the operators and miners the text of the resolution adopted at the Harrisburg meeting, calling for a resumption of negotiations in Scranton next Wednesday or at a time or place more convenient.

CHARGED WITH PLOTTING ASSASSINATION OF STRESEMANN

BERLIN, Dec. 17—(AP)—Karl Kaltdorff and Werner Lorenz today were formally charged with plotting the assassination of Foreign Minister Stresemann.

The men, alleged to be connected with a German fascist organization, were arrested yesterday on information from a third party whose services they had solicited as an accomplice.

Governmental circles minimize the incident, pointing out that investigation has shown that both men have been confined to insane asylums.

Kaltdorff, the authorities say, planned to wait in an automobile with Lorenz before the foreign office until Dr. Stresemann left his car, and then drive alongside and shoot him.

They needed another man to drive the car. When that man was approached he informed the police. One of the prisoners is declared to have written a letter in which he stated: "The pig Stresemann must be killed."

STANDS BY CONFESSION AS PAID INCENDIARIST

BRIDGEPORT, De. 17—(AP)—Abraham "Whitey" Friedman, life-long pal of "Kid Dropper" Kaplan, assassin and gangster, and who confessed he was a paid incendiarist, helping to fire the Xeluso company factory in Bethel, was examined at the hands of Attorney Homer S. Cummings for many hours in criminal superior court today.

Friedman was re-questioned with scrupulous care on every point of the sensational testimony he gave on Wednesday, recounting his alleged meetings with Charles Frost Larchmont, who is on trial for arson and whom he accuses of hiring him for $5,000 to set the fire; and precisely what he did on his way to Bethel on April 2, and what occurred in and about the trunk company factory, up to the time of the fire.

There was some confusion concerning the time he and his accomplices left the factory after the fire had been started. Friedman said he believed the flames of the lighted candles he had set were eating their way into a prearranged and gasoline-saturated pile of junk, and that he left the factory about 6:30 o'clock to hurry at once back to New York. He was informed there are some persons who saw him about the place 20 or 25 minutes after that time. That may have been so he conceded, but he was unable to explain the difference in time concerned.

MRS. RUDOLPH VALENTINO FILES SUIT FOR A DIVORCE

PARIS, Dec. 17—(AP)—Mrs. Rudolph Valentino has filed a petition for divorce against the moving picture star whose real name is Rodolfo Guglielmi, but Valentino today seemed unperturbed by the news that the proceedings had finally reached official form in Paris. He nonchalantly refused to reply to inquirers who had divided his identity although he was cited under the name of Guglielmi.

Valentino dined at a fashionable hotel this evening and after that left with friends to explore the diverting quarters of the capital.

Valentino's wife's name as given in the petition is DeWolff, and it was set forth that the couple were married at Crown Point, Indiana, March 15, 1923.

The petition having been filed through French lawyers, the proceedings will follow the simple and expeditious course which is usual when there is no opposition. That is to say, the judge will summon the two parties to appear before him in his private office to enable him to effect a reconciliation, if possible. If that fails, by the non-appearance of one or both, or for other reasons, and the grounds of the petition—which in this case are understood to be desertion—are not contested, he will proceed automatically to pronounce the decree in due time.

The whole proceedings will take from six weeks to two months. The address given by Valentino, Rue Joubert, is that of his sister, which it is supposed he chose as his residence, as required by law, to avoid having to keep a suite at a hotel.

2,000 CASUALTIES IN BATTLE IN YANGTSUN DISTRICT

LONDON, Dec. 17—(AP)—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Tientsin dated Wednesday night, says:

"The greatest surprise of the campaign came today with definite news that Marshal Chang Tso-Lin's allies had defeated Feng Yu-Hsiang's troops in the region of Teghow, 160 miles south of Peking.

"Chang Tsung-Chang, son of Chang Tso-Lin, is now on the way to Machang with the object of relieving Tientsin.

"It is reported that 3,000 men were killed or wounder in a week-end battle in the Yangtsun district."

Politics Discord [illegible] in Germany

President Hindenburg's Plan For a Coalition Government Blocked by Radicals.

BERLIN, Dec. 17—(AP)—President Von Hindenburg's efforts to establish a truce among the German political parties by the formation of a coalition government extending from the socialists to the peoples' party have foundered upon the refusal of the radicals to identify themselves with a cabinet which includes Dr. Stresemann's people's party.

Resuming his negotiations with the Reichstag leaders today, Dr. Erich Koch, who had been chosen for the chancellorship, was informed by Herman Mueller, the socialists' leader, that his party could not join in the proposed governmental bloc because of the unaccommodating attitude of the people's party toward the socialist's program of social and economic reforms.

Dr. Koch immediately notified President Von Hindenburg of his inability to form the desired ministry.

As the Reichstag recessed for the holidays today until January 12, the president is expected temporarily to discontinue his quest for a parliamentary leader to renew the parleys for the "big coalition." Political leaders believe that in the fact of the socialist opposition, the president will be obliged to reappoint Chancellor Luther as the head of a minority cabinet representing the democrats, centrists, peoples' party, Bavarian peo-

WEALTHY MAN'S SON RE-ENTERS PENIENTIARY

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Dec. 17—(AP)—Ira D. Perry, Jr., son of a wealthy manufacturer, and whose release on parole a few weeks ago after he had been sentenced to life imprisonment for murder caused a sensation, today surrendered to re-enter a penitentiary

Perry who had gone to Iowa after his release, surrendered when his father, wealthy inventor of an automobile lock, had completed the arrangements for giving his son back into custody because the elder Perry feared the young man would be killed by officers hunting him.

Perry's release on parole caused a sensation when it became known a few days ago. He was sent to Joliet prison for life in 1924 after confessing participation in a large number of robberies and the murder of a Chicago jeweler. He was identified as one of the killers and agreed to plead guilty if the death sentence was waived. At the time he was just out of high schol.

In June of this year Governor Small signed an order changing the charge against Perry from murder to manslaughter and he was paroled October 31. Local authorities claimed they knew nothing of the release until a few days ago. When the fact became generally known there was spirited protest not only from county authorities but fro mvarious organizations and the affair has started a movement for revision of the state's parole laws.

DOUBT DEBRIS IS THAT OF CAPT. JAMES' AIRPLANE

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Attorneys for relatives of Captian Mansell R. James, who disappeared six years ago while flying from Boston to Atlantic City, today expressed doubt that the debris of an airplane reported seen near Tryingham, Mass., was that of the Canadian flyer's machine.

In a statement the legal firm of Beekham, Bogue, Clark and Griscom, which conducted an investigation to determine Capt. James' fate, said that through information given by 20 persons, Capt. James' plane was traced from Tyringham Valley to Bethany, Conn., where further trace was lost.

Capt. James, the attorneys said, wore an Italian wrist watch on his left wrist and an identification disc on his right. His plane a Sopwith Camel, had the Royal Air Force insignia on the fuslage and the number F-5235 on the rudder.

Warren Campbell, who found the wreckage, said he will go to Tyringham tomorrow to lead a searching party. He did not look for the pilot's body near the wreckage, he said, because he was lost and anxious to find his hunting companions.

DEATH OF THE OLDEST HORSE IN THE WORLD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Old Bill, 57, said to be the oldest horse in the world, dropped dead today on the farm of his owner, John C. Jonder. He was buried behing the barn which was his stable for the past 20 years.

Old Bill, until last Sunday, was in harness and doing the usual farm horse's labor. He appeared strong and was seldom ill.

The equine Methuselah, who traveled the highways long before there were automobiles, achieved an age record that surpassed that of Old Clover, the race horse that died in May, 1924, at the age of 53. Old Bill's owner received many offers to display him at circuses but declined.

CHARTER FOR BANK IN WEST HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Dec. 17—(AP)—The West Hartford Bank and Trust company was granted a charter today by the state banking commission to do a banking business in West Hartford. The bank will begin with a capitalization of $100,000 and a surplus of a like amount. In a second decision made today, the banking commission denied the application of the West Hartford Trust company for a similar charter on the ground that public convenience and necessity does not demand the establishments of two banks in West Hartford.

Italy Ratifies War Debt Agreement

Deputies Approved by Acclamation the Settlement Made in Washington.

ROME, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies this evening approved by acclamation the Washington agreement for the settlement of Italy's war debt to the United States.

Count Volpi, minister of finance, who headed the Italian debt funding mission to Washington, said that the debt to the United States was undisputed; it was represented by certificates signed by the men in power during the war, containing precise figures with interest.

"We could only arrange with the creditors," said Count Volpi, "that Italy receive the same treatment as England—a reduction in interest and the distribution of the principal over sixty-two years."

Count Volpi explained that Italy's war debts to the United States and Great Britain represented only one-fourth of the expenses Italy sustained from 1915 to 1919 thus Italy supported with her own forces three-fourths of the expenses.

The minister concluded by emphatically denying the existence of any secret accord. The only accord was that presented to the chamber, which permitted "America and Italy to proceed separately, or united. If necessary, for the conquest of our future life."

THREE BANKS IN DENVER CLOSED THEIR DOORS

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 17—(AP)—Three Denver banks—The Drovers' National bank, the Broadway National bank and the North Denver bank, the latter a state institution, closed their doors today. The deposits of the three banks aggregated approximately $4,400,000—the Broadway National with $2,088,683; the Drovers' National, $1100,000, and the North Denver bank $258,000.

Frozen assets in livestock loans and an impairment of capital were the reasons indicated by national bank examiners for the closing of the two national banks, while state bank examiners, who took charge of the North Denver bank, would not make public any reason for its closing.

Gordon F. Hollis is president of the two national banks, while Mrs. Marguerite Hollis, his wife, was named president of the North Denver bank last year, succeeding her husband, who previously had been the institution's head.

L. E. Roberts, chief national bank examiner for the tenth federal reserve district, took the two national banks under charge and Grant R. McPerson, state bank commissioner, was in charge of the North Denver institution tonight.

DOWAGER QUEEN MARGARITA HAS DOUBLE PNEUMONIA

BORDIGHERA, Italy, Dec. 17—(AP)—Dowager Queen Margerita, mother of King Victor Emmanuel is suffering from plural pneumonia in the right lung. The official bulletin issued this evening, thus describes her condition; but adds that the pneumonia process so far is relatively mild. Her temperature fluctuates between 101.8 and 102.2, with pulse 90 to 100 and "respiration often painful, owing to pleural pain."

This bulletin was signed by Doctors Pascorolo, Quirico and Odello. Professor Pascorolo declared before his departure for Turin that probably grave complications could be avoided and that therefore the danger seemed to be over.

The dowager queen has completed the first week of her illness, when the development of serious symptoms is usually looked for the fact that Professor Pescorolo had returned to his home is considered a favorable sign.

CONTROVERSY OVER OPEN GAMBLING IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—Mayor-Elect Walker's charges that open gambling had existed in New York since the mayoralty elertion were made the subject of a telegraphic battle today between Mayor Hylan and Mr. Walker.

Mayor Hylan upon hearing of the charges that his administration had become lax since he lost out at the polls in the primary contest with the Walker-Smith-Tammany forces, at once sent a telegram to Mr. Walker demanding the names of gamblers and the addresses of their establishments, and promised to have them closed immediately.

To this Mr. Walker replied that information as to the existence of gambling houses had already been furnished the police department. Mayor Hylan telegraphed in answer that Police Commissioner Enright had informed him that "no information or list of wide open gambling houses in this city" had been filed with him.

FRENCH SENATE APPROVES THE GOVT'S SYRIAN POLICY

PARIS, Dec. 17—(AP)—The senate gave a vote of confidence tonight of the government's Syrian policy. It adopted a resolution by a show of hands, in which it is declared that the upper house trusts the government to exercise full publicity in Syrian events.

Throughout the session General Sarrail, former high commissioner in Syria, was scathingly attacked for his conduct in that post. He sat in the galleries during the course of the debate, but gave no sign of being concerned.

Premier Briand, promised to do all possible to hasten the coming of the day when France would no longer be obliger to keep large forces in far off countries like Morocco and Syria, but, he added, "it is impossible to leave Syria now, for it would cause a massacre tomorrow."

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The world court fight was begun in the senate.

The house made rapid progress on the tax bill.

Colonel Mitchell was found guilty, with the penalty fixed at five years suspension.

Extension of the rural mail delivery service was approved by President Coolidge.

Senator Blease of South Carolina, asked for an investigation of the uses of embassy liquors.

BITTER FIGHT IN SENATE FORECAST ON WORLD COURT

Senator Borah, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Will Lead the Opposition—He Will Have the Support of Remants of the Irreconcilable Group and a Number of New Senators on the Republican Side—Senator Swanson, Democrat, Opened the Debate in Favor of U. S. Entry Into the Court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—(AP)—The world court issue finally was brought before the senate today, with immediate indications that the long and bitter league of nations fight is to be renewed.

The chief point of controversy is whether adhesion to the court means affiliation with the league, and the forces in the senate are arrayed in much the same fashion they were during the months of struggle over the covenant.

Leadership of the forces for adhesion again has fallen to a democrat, Senator Swanson of Virginia, the author of the resolution of ratification with the reservations recommended by President Harding when he submitted the court proposal in February 1923, and since approved by President Coolidge, who also has urged senate action.

Standing in the forefront of those opposing the court is Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, who was prominent among the league irreconcilables. Supporting him are the remnants on that group and a number of new senators on the republican side.

Debate was opened today by Senator Swanson with a prepared address requiring nearly three hours for delivery. He reviewed the genesis of the court and contended that it was wholly independent of the league, operating under its own statute. Crowded galleries, in which women predominated, followed his speech closely and gave some applause as he concluded.

If the spectators had hoped for interchanges of debate, they were disappointed. At his request, Senator Swanson was not interrupted and when he had concluded, it developed that no senator desired to question him or to answer him at the moment.

Senator Borah announced, however, that he would have extended remarks to make, but that owing to a slight cold he could not proceed at this time. Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, gave notice that he would deliver tomorrow the first of three installments of an argument for adhesion to the court.

Besides Senator Borah, Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, is prepared to conduct a strenuous fight against ratification. They will be joined by Senators Johnson, republican, California; Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, and a number of others.

The court issue may form the subject matter of the maiden senate speech of Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, whose father was one of the league irreconcilables. The young senator said today he expected to address the senate on the court.

While quoting the statute of the court and his own reservations to support his argument that the United States in adhering to the protocol would not become affiliated with the league, Senator Swanson brought in the league question early in his address. That part of his remarks became the subject of much private discussion among republicans in the cloakrooms and the corridors.

The Virginian senator, ranking democrat on the foreign relations committee, said the statesmen who wrote the treaty of Versailles had furnished two means to restrain war, the league of nations covenant and the world court.

"The world is indebted for the new methods to the vision, genius, persistence and courage of Woodrow Wilson," he declared, adding that since the United States had decided to join the league discussion of it at this time would be "ill timed," Senator Swanson said:

"In passing, I cannot refrain from giving expression to my own individual views and say that the league of nations today is the most potential factor in the world making for peace and betterment, that it is gaining daily in influence and power. And that the day will ultimately come when the United States will desire and be compelled to become a member."

Besides the five reservations proposed in his resolution of ratification, Senator Swanson told the senate he would not be adverse to adding a declaration regarding the Monroe Doctrine similar to that in The Hague convention. "If it will bring relief and composure to troubled minds and souls."

The speaker asserted, however, that he did not regard such a declaration as necessary. Holding that this country could not have the slightest embarrassment affecting the Monroe Doctrine by adherence to the world court.

In concluding his address, Senator Swanson urged the senate not to be misled by the "flattering appeal" for an American court.

"It is this court or none," he declared, adding that the nations signatory to the protocol of the world court are pleased with it beyond measure and contemplate making to it no amendments, no modifications."

ENLISTED AS PRIVATE; NOW MAJOR GENERAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Brig. General Preston Brown, who enlisted in the United States army as a private in 1894, took the oath of office today at Fort Hamilton as major general assigned to command the First Corps Area with headquparters at Boston.

The ceremony in the presence of Mrs. Brown and a group of army officers and their wives, took place in the room where 28 years before General Brown, then a corporal, was sworn as a second lieutenant.

After the ceremony General Brown was accorded the honors of a major general by a 13-gun salute from a guard of honor. The 16th Infantry band escorted the General and Mrs. Brown to their automobile as they left for Boston, where General Brown will begin his new tour of duty.

General Brown was born in Lexington, Ky., on January 2, 1872, and was graduated from Yale university in 1893 with a degree of Bachelor of Arts. Two years after his graduating he enlisted as a private in the regular army, beginning his services on September 1, 1894. He served one "hitch" as an enlisted man, being honorably discharged as a corporal on March 26, 1897. The following day he was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry.

General Brown then went through all of the various ranks. During the World war he was chief of staff of the Second Division at Verdun, Chateau-Thierry, Soissons and St. Mihiel, from April to September, 1918.

A PERSISTENT ROMEO BECOMES THREATENING

WATERBURY, Dec. 17—(AP)—Forty-eight hours grace and then horrible notoriety in the morning newspapers for both himself and her as a result of unnamed but darkly intimated deeds.

This was the ultimatum extended to Miss Hazel Osborn, 20 year old employe of the Waterbury Clock company, by Fred Dunneman, 22, late of Bayonne, N. J. But the girl notified the police of the threats of her unwanted Romeo, and Lieutenant Timothy J. Hickey of the detective department arrested him tonight on a warrant charging breach of the peace and carrying concealed weapons.

Miss Osborn told the police she was frankly afraid of her desperate Romeo. The youth, she said, had pursued her after whatever affection she might have had for him had died. About a week ago, Dunneman drank a small amount of poison.

EMBARGO ON SHIPMENTS INTO AND OUT OF FLORIDA

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Dec. 17—(AP)—With the exception of foodstuffs, an absolute embargo has been placed by the American Railway Express company on all express shipments into Florida, and a similar ban is declared on all outward bound shipments of citrus fruit and fish it was announced today.

Notice of the embargo was contained in a telegram received today from the American Express company superintendent at Jacksonville, W. Buckner, to the Daytona Beach agent, making the embargo effective December 7.

The order is state-wide and will remain in effect until further notice.

ACCUSATIONS AGAINST BRIDGEPORT POLICEMEN

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 17—(AP)—While the nine policemen whom his wife accuser of unbecoming conduct hovered nervously out in the corridor, Joseph Slosek, former storekeeper at 1334 Seaview avenue, pleaded guilty as a third offender against the liquor laws before Judge Frederick Huxford in the criminal court of common pleas today. He was sentenced to jail for six months and fined $100 with costs.

Arrested the first time, Slosek disappeared from the state and forfeited a bond of $1500. He was re-arrested on a common pleas court bench warrant the night of his return to Bridgeport to his wife, State Prosecutor Lorin W Willis said today, telephoning police to come and get him as he was beating her.

"It will be a merrier Christmas for all concerned," Mr. Willis said, "if he is separated from his family and sent to jail."

A jury was especially empanelled to hear the Slosek case. Prosecutor Willis subpoenaed the nine patrolmor against whom written charges were made by Mrs. Slosek to Superintendent of Police Patrick J. Flanagan, of drinking liquor in her home and sleeping there when they should be patrolling their beats. They included Joseph Brigel, Thomas Meehan, John Lynch Thomas Gill, John Griffin, Danie Lynch, Peter Lalley, John Fox and Special Policeman Thomas Lynch.

The charges as preferred by Mrs. Slosek were presented to the board of police commissioners, who referred the matter back to Superintendent Flanagan. None of the men was suspended from duty nor arraigned on formal charges, but Superintendent Flanagan announced a shake-up of the department which has affected virtually every officer and man on regular precinct duty.

COUNSEL FOR CHAPMAN TO MEET IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Dec. 17—(AP)—Counsel for Gerald Chapman will meet at the office of Freedman and Freedman late tomorrow to plan the bandit's appeal to the United States district court for the southern district of New York on the decision of Federal Judge Edwin S Thomas denying Chapman's petition for a writ of habeas corpus so that he might escape hanging on March 3 for the murder of a New Britain policeman. His writ invokes a federal sentence of 25 years.

Those who will take part in the conference are: Joseph M. Freedman, of Hartford, Ray M. Wiley, of Springfield, Mass., Charles W. Murphy, of Danbury, and Judge Frederick J. Groehl, of New York, according to Mr. Freedman.

"CHICAGO ANNIE" HAS BEEN SENTENCED TO AUBURN PRISON

Mrs. Alexina Laforce, 56, died at Norwich State hospital at an early hour Thursday morning. She was born in Lanoraie, Canada, in 1869, a daughter of Gilbert and Marie Manville Vernait. She had been a resident of Willimantic for the past twenty years and is survived by two children, Mrs. Louis Beaudette, of this city, and Joseph Laforce, of Jewett City; also by five sisters and two brothers. She was a devout member of St. Mary's parish. Her home was at 968 Main street, Willimantic.

Mrs. Lena L. McCabe, 34, wife of George B. McCabe, died at the home of her mother, Mrs. Joseph Labby, of 51 Jackson street, late Wednesday, after a brief illness with pneumonia. She had come from Rochester, N. Y., where her husband is employed by a construction company and had planned to remain here for the holidays, when her husband would join her and their little daughter. Last Friday she was taken ill and later was removed to St. Joseph's hospital, where death took place. She was born in Putnam October 30, 1891, a daughter of Joseph and Delia Frederick Labby. Besides her husband she leaves her daughter, Lurlyn; her mother, and two sisters, Mrs. Henry A. Belair, Jr., of Willimantic, and Mrs. W. H. Johnson, of Edgartown, Mass.

George H. Shafer, chairman of the educational department committee of the Y. M. C. A., reported at the meeting of the board of directors held Wednesday evening that arrangements were completed for two public educational courses, one in salesmanship and the other in public speaking. E. O'Brien, of Ansonia, will conduct the first and Norman Cauley, professor at Harvard university, who has conducted similar courses in the Lynn and Worcester, Mass., associations, will be in charge of the other. The membership committee announced that the present enrollment in the Y was 629 and that the various activities of the association are being more widely patronized than for some time. The physical department reported the purchasing of a new hair dryer for the use of the women's and girls' classes. It was also stated that the swimming pool had been examined in the past two months by the state department of health and the water declared excellent. Stanley J. Sumner was elected to membership by the board.

Ruth Gertrude, infant daughter of Arthur and Ruth Mildred Weeks Warner, of 401 Ash street, died at the home of her parents Wednesday afternoon. The child was born in this city October 24, last.

Edward McDonald and Henry Bergin, of Fall River, Mass., who had to be carted to police headquarters in an express wagon from the Stone Row due to their helplessly intoxicated condition, pleaded guilty, in police court Thursday morning. The men had been drinking denatured alcohol, which was diluted just enough to prevent loss of sight or life. Judge Foss fined each $15 and costs amounting to $23.15 which they were unable to pay and they were taken to the county jail at Brooklyn.

The Willimantic Exchange club held its meeting and luncheon at a local tea room Wednesday evening, with President Clarence E. Simonds in charge. William P. Jordan was a guest of the club. The talk of the evening was one of gripping experiences during the Boer war in South Africa with the British volunteers, which were interestingly described by George W. Fraser, who was connected with the volunteers. He dwelt to some extent on the habits and customs of the people of Africa and the general conditions existing in that section during the conflict.

Myrille M. Case, installing and instituting state department officer, will install the newly elected officers of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps on the evening of January 6, it was announced at the regular meeting of the corps, held Wednesday evening with the president, Mrs. Lena Tripp, in charge. The entertainment committee is arranging for a New Year's tree party to be held at the close of the meeting.

A committee to conduct a survey with regard to establishing temporary Masonic headquarters, was appointed at the meeting of Eastern Star lodge, No. 44, A. F. and A. M., held Wednesday evening. The quarters of the Masonic bodies were gutted by fire in the blaze at the Windham National Bank building early Tuesday morning.

Frank Juchta, employed by Brown Brothers, in Mansfield, suffered a painful cut to his right foot, late Wednesday afternoon, when an axe which he was using in chopping wodo in a lot in Mansfield slipped, cutting through the shoe and causing a severe gash in the flesh. Kuchta walked about two miles to this city. An automobile gave him a ride from Park Spring to St. Joseph's hospital, where the injury was treated.

The foundation walls of the new Willimantic Community hotel are now completed and the laying of the brick walls will be started next Monday. The building will be five stories high.

Brief Local Notes

The final details of the annual Welfare Bureau Christmas tree celebration which is open to all children in the town, are being completed. The affair will be held Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the town hall.

Richard Shea, student at Yale university, will arrive today (Friday)

Russell Hinman and Homer Sumner, students at Worcester academy, came Thursday to their homes here for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Stutz returned to New York Thursday, after a visit at the homes of Mrs. S. Ballon and Mrs. Carl Israel.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Kenny and son, William, were Hartford visitors Thursday.

Barton and Alvord Clark, of Montreal, and Norman Hills, of East Hampton, were guests of Mr. and Mrs P. S. Hills, of The Ridges, Wednesday afternoon.

WINDHAM

The 225th anniversary of the Congregational church closed Sunday evening at the C. E. service, the thought for the meeting being "Looking Backward and Looking Forward." The leader was Deacon H. C. Lathrop who told of many interesting things which had taken place since he united with the church in 1870 at the age of 10, speaking of the various ministers and their work. Mrs. F. E. Guild paid tribute to the ministers' wives she had known since coming here to live during Rev. F. H. Means' pastorate. The Forward Look was given by Eden Cook. Rev. J. G. Graham spoke briefly on both phases and read interesting extracts from old church records. The church was filled at both the Thursday evening and Sunday morning services a large number coming from nearby towns.

Mrs. E. H. Hiscox of Jewett City was the guest of her aunt Mrs. Julia Arnold Sunday and attended the 225th anniversary service. The beautiful chrysanthemums on the communion table were given by Mrs. Hiscox in memory of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Swift, former members of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Barstow of Plainfield attended service here Sunday morning and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cassius Barstow.

The three act comedy "Nothing But the Truth" was excellently given by the Windham Players before a crowded house in the school auditorium Friday evening. All the parts were well acted, that of John Huzydo as E. M. Ralston being especially good. The director was Mrs. Albert Lonnichsen and the settings were designed by Mrs. Dorothy Brown. The members of the cast were: Marion Healey, Elsie Olson, Ruth Abelard, John Hoyle, Royal Slate of South Windham and Mrs. L. P. Oehring, Eleanor Shennan, Margaret Cook, Eden Cook, John Huzydo, Carl Josephson.

Mrs. John F. Woods went to New York Sunday afternoon.

Earle Potter was on the honor list of the Windham High school for the last marking period having 80 or more in 4 subjects.

The leader appointed for the C. E. meeting Sunday is C. A. Keeney.

Mrs. Henry Bingham is to leave for Florida soon after the holidays.

After leaving un-paid bills and bad checks in Norwich at the time they appeared at the Nemrod Grotto circus in this city, recently, the score or more freaks, including such oddities as the Rubber Skin Man, the 703 pound girl, Ko-Ko the Bird Girl and the Female Question Mark (half woman and half beast), finally got into trouble at Hartford where attachments were served on the circus equipment. It is known that at least one local bank got a bad check, said to have been signed by Mrs. Eva Stone, believed to be the owner of the show. It is also reported that a number of bills were left unpaid when the show moved from Norwich.

The freaks have been exhibiting themselves at a show held this week in Hartford, by the Grotto of that city. Things began to break bad for them in Hartford and after a fund had been raised by members of the Hartford Grotto late Wednesday night, the freaks departed from that city before sunrise Thursday morning.

The freaks, employes of the Stone Company, Inc., believed to be of Boston, were on display at Foot Guard hall, Hartford, from December 11 to December 16, and comprised the Freak City which had been contracted for with the Stone company by a committee of Syrin Grotto.

The freaks had not been in Hartford very long, however, before disquieting news began to arrive from Schenectady, New York, and from Norwich, where the freaks had recently appeared. Indignant people in those two towns were claiming that the freaks had left bills unpaid and had passed worthless checks. Deputy Sheriff Francis P. Pallotti served ten or a dozen attachments of the canvass tents that housed the freaks in the Hartford armory, and the freaks themselves garnished the money taken in at the door—what little was taken in.

Then other things began to happen. Mrs. Eva Stone, of Framingham, Mass., believed by the freaks to be owner of the show, became ill, according to Sheriff Pallotti, and had to be taken back to Framingham by her booking agent, Mr. Graves. "The attachments were too much for her," the sheriff explained. "She was staying at the Bond Annex, and before the freaks knew it she had gone." The attachments, he says, were for a total of $1,000 or $1,500.

E. E. Goff was left in charge of the show, and the freaks, believing he had bought it out, began storming him for money. Goff disclaimed ownership of the show, saying he had simply been left in charge by Mrs. Stone.

"Tuesday evening after the show," says Sheriff Pallotti, "there began to be trouble. The freaks wanted money, and began storming Goff for it. I headed them off and restored peace, but we had a lot of trouble with the fat girl. She fainted."

By arrangements the Hartford Grotto committee had with the Stone company, the company and the Grotto were to go fifty-fifty on the proceeds of the entertainment. If, on the other hand, the show was a failure, the company was to stand the loss. Only about $150 was taken in, according to Sidney Clarke, treasurer of the Grotto, and this did not begin to meet expenses. No exact figure of the receipts has yet been determined, Mr. Clark added.

Wednesday night, with the show over and no one to pay the freaks, members of the Grotto went out and raised among themselves money enough to pay carfare home for the freaks and keep them in funds for a short time.

"This was pure charity on our part," explains Fred Runbaken, the Grotto committee's lawyer. "There was no one to pay these people, they said they were broke, and we didn't want them stranded. So, at 1:30, we went out and scraped together enough money to send them home. It probably cost us several hundred dollars. I haven't been able to find out yet who owns the show. I expect an attorney up from New London, and Mr. Graves the New York booking agent, to come up here. They want to get back the equipment attached, if they can."

Parish School Vacation

The fall term of St. Patrick's school is to close Wednesday of next week, the winter term opening Monday, Jan. 4th. On Wednesday the 450 or more pupils will have their usual Christmas festival, provided annually by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May.

TITCOMB URGES EXTENDED FORESTRY PROGRAMME

Pollution is only a secondary cause of the disappearance of cold water fishes from New England rivers and streams, John W. Titcomb, state superintendent of fish and game, said at the New England forestry meeting at Springfield. "The salmon," he said, "could not return to such streams as the Connecticut and Merrimac if the waters were purified from their present polluted conditions. Deforestation has so changed physical conditions that the waters are not congenial to them."

Superintendent Titcomb made a strong appeal for extended forestry programmes in each state as an aid in the maintenance of the wild life of forests and streams. "Every person through whose land a trout stream flows," he said, "should consider not only his personal convenience, but the value of the stream to his neighbors, and realize that if he deprives the stream of the natural fringe of shade, he is adversely affecting the productive value of the stream on his neighbor's land as well as reducing its normal volume of flow."

"From a wild life viewpoint one of the serious calamities of the present day is the tendency to over-orderliness or misguided effort in clearing up the fringe of trees in pastures and meadows along the banks of streams and along the walls and fences. This fringe along the stream bank as well as along the fences and walks is about the last hope of some species of song and insectivorous birds as shelters and nesting places.

"This doctrine will not be pleasing reading to some of the leading farmers of New England, but if they want to hear the songs of the birds, including the quail, or if they wish the services of these birds in destroying insect pests, they must furnish covers for such birds."

Superintendent Titcomb referred to the provision which has been made in this state for the acquisition of tracts of wild lands administered jointly by the forest and park commission and the game commission, with the general idea that the forester will reforest waste lands and the game commission will operate game refuges, with free shooting grounds around them.

Outlining the manner in which the joint commission will operate he said that instead of reforesting an entire tract it may be best to leave a portion of the waste lands to natural growth of food-producing shrubbery, berry bushes, grape vines, and the like, and such trees as start from natural seed on such lands.

"When a forest is mature," he said, "discriminate lumbering whereby mature trees are removed should be encouraged. It is the old, mature forest, ready to harvest by the lumberman, which is most barren of animal life. Our duty is to take advantage of the knowledge gained by experience and view from all angles the economic value of reforesting our unproductive lands."

PLANS TO ORGANIZE COUNTY HEALTH ASS'N

The board of governors of the Public Health association of Connecticut met recently in the New Haven office of Professor C. E. A. Winslow, of Yale university, president of the association. Plans for the next meeting of the association to be held at Bridgeport, Feb. 24, 1926, were discussed and it was arranged to have a talk on scarlet fever prevention by a prominent authority. One other address on a subject of major importance will also be included in the program.

At the request of Health Officer Pennell, of New London, and County Health Officer Hibbard R. Norman, of Norwich, the board of governors voted to hold the May meeting of the association in New London. At this meeting the board of governors plans to have Miss Goodrich, an authority on public health nursing, talk on that subject and adopt the suggestion of Dr. Millard K. Knowlton, of the state department of health in organizing a clinic for health officers.

County Health Officer Hibbard R. Norman plans to organize a New London County Public Health association at the May meeting, to be affiliated with the state association. Any person interested in public health work will be eligible for membership and need not necessarily be a worker.

Those attending the meeting were: Dr. C. P. Botsford health officer of Hartford; Dr. William Hall Coon, health officer of Bridgeport; Dr. John L. Rice, health officer of New Haven; Dr. Lawrence E. Poole, health officer of Fairfield; Hibbard R. Norman, Esq., New London county health officer; Millard Knowlton, M. D., director Bureau of Preventable Diseases; Miss Harriet Leek, director of the Hartford Visiting Nurses association; Dr. B. N. Pennell, health officer of New London.

Guests At Providence.

Mrs. Elizabeth Morris, Mrs. Frank Ayer and two daughters, Mrs. M. J. Anderson and Miss Alice Ayer all of Norwich, were guests Wednesday of Mrs. Ayer's aunt, Mrs. Katherine Wells, at her home in Providence.

THE MITCHELL VERDICT

Considering the length of the hearing it took but a comparatively short time for the general court martial that heard the Mitchell case to reach a verdict of guilty on all charges. The verdict is what was expected and it is difficult to see how it could have been otherwise in view of the conduct of Colonel Mitchell.

Colonel Mitchell has been a firebrand. He has been determined to have his own way and persisted in this to such an extent that he cast all discipline to the winds. He was of course aware of the example that he was setting to others and he could not have mistaken the effect which such conduct would be certain to have upon others in the future. His opinions were fixed. They had been expressed, his ideas were known and because they have not been subscribed to by others he hit upon the idea of jumping over the traces, indulging in a lot of wild talk and accusations and expecting that public sentiment thus aroused would result in an endorsement of his views and conduct.

It was a case of grandstand playing which failed and which deserved to fail. It could not fail to be prejudicial to good order and military discipline. Any department of the national defense would be in a beautiful position if every other officer resorted to similar methods.

What Colonel Mitchell did in this particular instance is simply characteristic of the man if we can judge from the letter of Secretary Weeks to the president in which he set forth the reasons for refusing to recommend Mitchell for reappointment as assistant chief of the army air service. When Secretary Weeks wrote that Mitchell's "whole course had been so lawless, so contrary to the building up of an efficient organization, so lacking in team work, so indicative of a desire for publicity at the expense of everyone with whom he is associated, that his actions make him unfit for a high administrative position" he disclosed the weakness of the man which has been emphasized time and again during the court martial.

That he has a brilliant war record and is an efficient flier has never been questioned but to the former he may attribute the fact that the court martial was no more severe in the sentence imposed. During the whole affair Colonel Mitchell has made a very poor impression.

COAL SETTLEMENT PLANS

From sentiment which has been expressed in Pennsylvania and from the attitude of the legislators in Luzerne county, in that state, the prospects are not what can be considered rosy for the special session of the legislature called for next month at which it is expected to deal with a number of questions, including the coal strike. The anthracite monopoly exists within the Keystone state and that commonwealth may well deal with it, but there appears to be little prospect that it will get anywhere even though a start is made. In the first place Pennsylvania has a number of laws which make it impossible for only certain ones to mine coal in that state, and it has a law which imposes a tax on the commodity. So far as known there is no intention of making any changes in these laws so that coal can be supplied to those who want it and at a lower price. There is a howl at the price charged by the operators and because they put it up when they are obliged to pay higher wages, but the governor of the state thinks nothing about the added price that comes from the state tax.

When the legislators of Luzerne county put forth a proposition for a settlement of the coal strike, it is noticed that the operators indicate their willingness to accept it, but the miners will have nothing to do with it. The miners consider that they face a handicap under such a plan, while the operators take the same view of the Pinchot plan, and as far as the public is concerned it faces a handicap under any plan which shuts the door to all possibility of the price of coal going down.

If there is unrestricted arbitration it is as fair for one as the other. But that is what the miners have been barking at since last August. With the legislators of one of the biggest coal counties in Pennsylvania favoring the resumption of mining and resort to arbitration, it remains to be seen whether that is going to be the sentiment of the legislature when it gets down to business. That doesn't support he Pinchot plan but the governor and the legislature are far from being synonymous.

THE MOSUL DECISION

By the ruling of the council of the league of nations Mosul has been awarded to Irak and Irak is under the mandate of Great Britain, so that control of this disputed territory is placed by the league under British direction for the next quarter of a century.

If that was all that was needed to settle this matter it would be fine. Unfortunately it is not. Turkey is not satisfied and it has known that it was not going to be for some time. Turkey would have been pleased at nothing short of having Mosul placed under its jurisdiction, and yet its attitude and its conduct have never been conducive to such a decision, while the facts in the matter have been found to be against Turkey by those who investigated the situation for the league.

In its decision the league council stipulated htat an economic understanding should be arranged between Turkey and Irak opens the way for diplomacy to be given a chance to relieve the situation, if such a thing is possible. Turkey is of course sore and Turkey is never a good loser. What its next move will be remains to be seen but there is no reason to expect that it will take the decision philosophically. Turkey doesn't do things that way. Rather is there reason for anticipating that it will make things as unpleasant as possible.

The tales that are being told about the atrocities caused by Turkey are simply repetition of what has occurred before. They certainly could not be expected to serve as information favorable to the Turks, and there was no expectation that they would. For that reason it is quite evident that the decision will not end the controversy and there will be deep concern to learn just what progress can be accomplished through the treaty which is expected to be arranged. Can the British offer terms that will cause the Turks to forget and forgive, and live in growing respect for the league of nations forevermore?

NEEDIEST CASES AT HOME

At this season of the year, in the larger cities especially, appeals are made in behalf of the 50, 75 or 100 neediest cases. These have been carefully investigated and are unquestionably worthy. They bear the endorsement of trustworthy organizations and the chance for extending help and relief is unquestionably genuine.

The appeals for such cases are in numerous instances getting responses from beyond the limits of those communities, even though, as expressed in one instance, it is felt that each city should expect to take care of its own.

There are the needy and the neediest cases to be found in every city. There may or may not be public appeals made in their behalf. They may receive some aid, and probably do, but the idea of seeking out and expending the helping hand where it is needed, and where it is known such aid is needed whether it happens to be sought for or not, is a most commendable one.

There is, of course, no better time of the year in which to provide such help, whether it is a matter of temporary relief or whether circumstances make it advisable to keep families together or to provide assistance that will extend for months or a year.

Norwich has its organizations which are in position to deal with these neediest cases, and they will welcome such assistance as the people of this city or town may provide for making the season and the coming year more cheerful for the worthy and the unfortunate. There should be a general desire to thus display the Christmas spirit.

BINGHAM'S AVIATION BILL

What is particularly pleasing to Connecticut is the prompt manner in which the bill presented by Senator Bingham to encourage commercial aviation has been approved by the senate. Senator Bingham is an aviator himself and served in Europe during the war in that line of work. He was selected as a member of the president's air board because of his qualification in that particular direction and as the result of his understanding of the situation and a recognition of the fact that this country is backward in commercial aviation he has draughted a bill that is expected to relieve the situation through government assistance.

That the senate has faith in it is disclosed by the quick action. That, to say the least, is complimentary to a new senator, but it of course shows a recognition of the need of action in this direction and the approval is to be regarded as an expression by the upper house of congress that a move is being made in the right direction to provide for, licensing pilots, inspecting equipment, establishing and maintaining routes and furnishing the facilities that are necessary to successful flying.

Connecticut is proud of the fact that its senator has started this ball rolling, and it is one that the house should be eager to push along.

EDITORIAL NOTES

With December half gone interest increases as to just how severe the winter is going to be.

The man on the corner says: There's a long distance between saying and doing even at Christmas time.

It seemed to be possible to get plenty of officials to refute the claims and statements made by Colonel Mitchell.

Satisfactory as the winter has been thus far, it will be possible to pass better judgment on the predictions next March.

The speed shown by the senate in passing the Bingham aviation bill is a distinct compliment to Connecticut's junior senator.

With the coming of colder weather don't let the attractions of thin ice lure you into being a subject for the obituary column.

In recognizing LaFollette as a republican, the republicans in the senate have gone more than half way for peace. But does a leopard ever change its spots?

Action on the tax bill in the house indicates that the most of the members of that body recognize the soundness of the measure, and the desire of the people.

New York's coal commissioner is confident that New York will eventually discard anthracite and save $20,000,000. It could be done all right but would New Yorkers be satisfied with such a small saving?

INGRAINED PESSIMIST

"The deep apple pie with cream that they serve here is extra good," advised the man who was writing out the order. "If you've never had it—"

"I never shall have it," gloomily prophesied the stout gentleman who has been taken to this particular restaurant for the first time. "There is not the slightest use in your putting down 'Two deep apple pies with cream' on the slip, because after we have thought about it gloatingly all through the main and caloric and proteidic part of our dinner the abstracted waitress will drop over to our table and while she looks with keen interest on the new fall hat in the corner will chant 'thedeepappiepieisalgonewehave cupcustardandcornstarchpudding'— I'll bet you a thousand dollars!

"All through my life I have chased the special dishes at all the new restaurants and invariably I miss even the tail feathers when I grab! They have just served the last piece to the man over at that table or the cook has died or something.

"My friends come to see me and look aggravatingly well fed and happy, and they say have I had dinner at the Noodle? Oh, I must by all means go to the Noodle, where they make a specialty of waffles and creamed chicken. Or else it is the Sapphire Den, where they prepare a sauce to serve with the broiled steak that wipes out all memories of your former life and larder.

"Or perhaps they are singing glory songs about the restaurant that has opened in the barn back of the old Goof place, where they have a chef who concocts a salad that is a lyrical triumph.

"Well, if I start out at meantime to enjoy one of these culinary triumphs I strew destruction all over the place. The cook has an accident and burns up the creamed chicken or the waffle iron has broken just before I came in. Or else burglars stole all the steaks from the icebox or the salad stuff wasn't shipped in as usual, and, being temperamental, they cannot use material from the grocery store around the corner. Yes, they have no bananas today, but wouldn't I like a nice pork chop and fried potatoes and gummy cornstarch pudding with hair-oil sauce?

"So long as I stay away from these places business runs along all right and they are popular according to schedule. Customers looking as though they had just eaten the canary, with a dish of peaches and cream thrown in, pour from the front entrances through the mobs waiting to enter. Their supplies roll up on time and the cook stays happy and healthy. But the minute I round the corner of the block disaster descends.

"Suppose I hit New York and one of the boys says he's going to take me to the best little restaurant that was ever invented, where we can get a dish of lobster calculated to make the rest of life a desert waste. Do you know what happens? There is a lobster strike at a quarter to 6 o'clock, and they are very sorry, but they can fix us up a nice little dinner of canned salmon and cornstarch pudding.

"It even goes farther. Let me look over an ordinary menu and pick out plain everyday things and they are always out of 'em! There has been a tremendous run, it seems, on lamb chops and peas or doughnuts or cornbread! It suffices for me to think of certain articles of food and immediately everybody wants 'em. I have learned that it is best for me to pick out what I want and write it down and then grab the waiter and say hurry me up some ham and eggs before the jinx can catch up with me. I should very much like deep apple pie with cream, but it is no use to think about it—"

"They've got plenty of it!" triumphantly related the other man, who had beckoned to the waiter a minute previously. "She's bringing it!"

"Huh?" stuttered the startled guest in great bewilderment. "You mean apple pie is their specialty and they've got plenty of applepie? I'll bet you a dollar when we taste it we'll find the cook has used salt for sugar or it's burned on the bottom! I never had anything like this happen to me in all my life!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George B. McClellan, who has been elected vice-president of the American Academy in Rome, is a former mayor of New York City, who is now a member of the faculty of Princeton University, where he went when his political career closed. He is the son of the famous commander of the federal forces early in the war between the states. Prof. McClellan was born in Saxony, while his parents were traveling in Europe, and received his education at Princeton. He first turned to journalism for a vocation, and then to law. He entered New York City politics under the patronage and sponsorship of Tammany, and gained election first to the board of aldermen, in 1893, and then to congress, in 1895. In 1903 he was elected to the mayoralty, and held office for six years. In the late war he was commissioned a major in the regular army and saw service with the ordnance department.

From Small Beginnings

William Shield, Master of Royal Music

William Shield, who became Master of the Royal Music, which means that he was one of the most highly honored musical composers in England in the first part of the Nineteenth Century, lost his father and was thrown upon a very heartless world. It looked as if the music he loved would never be for him. He was not quite 10 years old, and every means was brought to turn him away from music into the drudgery of work for which he had no liking. "But I want to sing. I want to play the violin," he protested. "What have you got to do with singing?" came the rough answer. "Do something useful. You'll not be pampered any more." The boy could do no more than he was told, and he worked, but he kept on trying to sing, and he found kind-hearted people who taught him more about singing and who showed him how to play the violin whose music he loved. "You do play well, boy," said one of these, as he patted the lad on the head. "It is a pleasure to show you, for you fairly glow when you play." Still, the boy gained no great fame. He learned to sing and to play, but he found only an obscure place in an orchestra. There, much like the American poet, Sidney Lanier, in a later time, he remained utterly hidden for years, simply playing the best he could and unknown beyond his immediate circle.

Nevertheless, he kept on trying. He now wished to compose music. He was a failure; he knew it, his friends knew it, but he kept on trying. When he died in 1329, at the age of 81, he was buried in Westminster Abbey, because people said "He was the greatest musician we have had for years." Out of his love of music he had at last composed pieces that are really great—compositions that sing with the gladness of life, compositions that are rich with thought, melodies and songs that took the popular favor and made life brighter for many. Does it pay to try? Success is the result of effort.

Stories That Recall Others

Pigs That Speak French

Sometime ago a French girl visited in the country. She heard two of the boys quarreling and asked one of them the cause of the trouble. One of them replied: "Well, you see, it's about old man T's pigs. I was telling Bud those pigs are French, and he said the are not."

The French girl, rather puzzled, inquired: "What makes you think Mr. T's pigs are French?"

"Well," answered the boy, "because from morning till night those pigs grunt out 'oui, oui.'"

What's In a Label?

It was standing on the sidewalk close to a building near a side street. Hurrying pedestrians caught sight of it and smiled. Some chuckled reminiscently and turned back to look at it as they had passed. It was a bottle labeled "Old Kentucky Rye Whiskey."

"They certainly are getting bold, said an old lady aloud. "Leaving their empty bottles right on the sidewalk." Visions of a "party" at which the old time spirits predominated came to a dozen passersby. One young man, braver than the rest, walked past the turned around nd looked about cautiously and then stooped down and picked up the bottle. He sniffed at it, set it down with a smile and then hurried on. The empty bottle continued to be the object of wonder and merriment of the pedestrians.

Presently a painter stepped around the corner of the building and casually picked up the bottle. "Bout out of turpentine," he mused.

ENGINEERING FEAT ENDS INDIAN TRADITION

ALBUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Engineering wizardry of the white man has blasted an Indian tradition of three hundred years' standing at the Pueblo of Isleta, near here.

Since the year the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth, the body of Juan de Padilla, martyred Franciscan padre, has risen annually to the earthen surface of the Catholic chapel in the pueblo plaza where it was buried beneath the altar, tradition runs.

Two years ago the United States Indian Service constructed an irrigation ditch through the plaza and since there have been no further risings of the body.

The body is in a remarkable state of preservation, resembling a mummy with long, dark whiskers, Indians who have seen it said.

Slain by Indians in 1580, half a century after he remained behind when Coronado's expedition returned to Mexico, Father Padilla's body was removed from the distant Grand Quivira, according to tradition, and was placed beneath the altar of the Isleta church.

The white man explained it as a natural phenomenon but the Indian always regarded it as an unearthly act.

MAYFAIR WANTS VERMONT TURKEYS FOR CHRISTMAS

LONDON, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Vermont turkeys are just becoming known to London and everybody in Mayfair now wants to have one for Christmas. A large flock of these birds intended for the Thanksgiving dinners which were postponed because of the death of Queen Mother Alexandra, were sold in London and were found to be such delicacies that hundreds of the birds have been ordered for Christmas.

SCOTLAND YARD DISAPPROVES. LONDON NECKLACE FASHION

LONDON, DEC. 17, (AP)—Scotland Yard has entered the realm of fashion to voice a protest.

The cause is the new fad women have of wearing pearl and diamond necklaces with strings down the back. As a "help yourself" idea of displaying precious stones, the detectives said it was sure to make more work for them.

Petain Adds Another Title

PARIS, Dec. 17. (AP)—The new curator of the Conde Museum of Chantilly, an office carrying an income of 4,000 francs, is Henri Philippe Benoni Omer Joseph Petrain, Marshal of France, vice-president of the Superior War Council (and so Commander-in-Chief of French forces in time of war.) the Savior of Verdun and probable conquerer of Abd-el-Krim.

Wet leaders in Congress are considering a proposal for hearings before a joint senate and house committee on various pending proposals for modification of the Volstead act.

FUNERALS

Capt. James E. Kennington

The funeral of Capt. James E. Kennington, 73, retired five years ago after 43 years' service in the Worcester fire department, and who died Monday, was held Wednesday afternoon from undertakers parlors in Worcester. Rev. Dr. Vincent Tomlinson conducted the service and burial took place in Hope cemetery.

At the time of his retirement from active duty he was captain of Ladder 5, at the Providence-street station of the fire department. He was a member of the Worcester aerie, F. O. E., and of the Firemen's Relief association.

He was born in Hopkinton, but has been a resident of Worcester since his early childhood. He leaves four sons, James E., and Charles H., of Newark; Harold J., and Henry J.; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Whiting, and six grandchildren, Mary and William children of Harold J. Kennington, and Jane, Nan, and Charles, Jr., children of Charles H. Kennington.

There are also two cousins, Adam J. Gernhardt, of this city, and Mrs. Joseph D. Pheiffer, of Franklin.

Charles H. Stoddard

Funeral services for Charles H. Stoddard were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the late home at 116 High street, many relatives and friends attending. The floral tributes were most attractive.

The service was conducted by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church who also read the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Winifred Stoddard, Seymour Stoddard and Charles Appley, of New London, J. D. Falvey, John Falvey and J. C. Delaney, of this city. Arrangements were by Charles A. Gager.

CLARENCE G. SHOLES BACK FROM TRIP TO FLORIDA

Clarence G. Sholes, of this city, has returned after a two weeks' trip to Florida, where he inspected the real estate situation. He returned north on the S. S. Krooniand. The weather in Miami, he says, is like our June weather. With reference to the building activity, Mr. Shoals said that within five years Miami will be a wonderful city.

Lots are selling high and are in great demand on the causeway, going to the beach. From 5,000 to 8,000 pass over the road every hour. While at Miami Mr. Sholes saw W. F. Hill and family, former Norwich residents.

Mr. Sholes made the trip south by automobile with J. O. Johnson, who is locating in Miami. They made the trip down in 5 1-2 days, covering 1,725 miles of roads, most of which are good.

MONSTER ANTI-CHRISTIAN DEMONSTRATION IN CANTON

CANTON, China, Dec. 17—(AP)—A monster anti-Christian demonstration was arranged for today, all student organizations participating. It is believed the demonstration was arranged with the intention of prolonging the anti-foreign strike, which it had been hoped would be settled before Christmas.

TELEPHONE EMPLOYEES PRESENT FAREWELL GIFTS TO J. N. WEYMOUTH

Farewell gifts for Manager Joseph N. Weymouth, who is soon to be transfered from the local telephone exchange to the New Haven offices of the S. N. E. Telephone company, and the presentation of a 20 year service button to Daniel J. Coughlin, of the repair department at the local exchange, featured the Christmas social and dance held Thursday evening by Norwich Tri-Functional Council of Telephone Employees. The event took place at Odd Fellows' hall with over 150 present. Over 150 gifts were distributed from a handsomely decorated Christmas tree, Gus Tabor acting in the capacity of Santa Claus.

R. H. Gray, district superintendent, of New London, presented Mr. Weymouth a gold watch in behalf of the commercial employes, after which Henry A. Lord, local wire chief, in behalf of the Norwich Exchange employes, presented Mr. Weymouth a handsome traveling bag.

In presenting the bag Mr. Lord said: During the period of years that Joe has been our exchange manager no reflection may be cast upon his administrative ability with our company or in any public project in which he has been interested. Naturally of a courteous disposition he has at all times met one in a most courteous manner which made one feel he had started the day right.

As a worker for the organization which he represents and as a worker in community and civic affairs he gave of his time unsparingly. During the period of his residence in Norwich he has gathered unto himself a legion of friends, both is the business and social worlds, who will regret his coming departure.

However, such is the order of things. Regardless of our regrets at Joe's departure we feel that he has chosen the proper path, following amidlon's laws, as Joe most naturally has done, means to him only success. We will, however, from time to time, expect to hear of, and rejoice with him in, his success in his new line of duty.

Now, Joe, representing and speaking for our own little colony of telephone people, it is my pleasure to present you this gift, which in itself is a token, only to a very small degree, of the regard and esteem in which you are held.

Mr. Lord then presented to Daniel J. Coughlin, repairman connected with the Norwich Exchange, a 20 year service button. In presenting the button to Mr. Coughlin, Mr. Lord said:

It was in 1886, to be more exact, December 6, 1886, that Daniel Joseph Coughlin, more familiarly known as "Dan," became a factor in our world affairs. I am sorry to say that I have no information pertaining to his young boyhood days. I am left to presume that he led the usual life of a young American boy with its ups and downs. Upon attaining his majority Dan most naturally began to look around for a position which he would deem satisfactory for his life's work. After deliberation he very wisely decided that the telephone job was about the right thing.

He finally registered as a bona-fide repairman in our plant department. Adequately equipped with a knowledge for the care of our aerial lines and sub-stations, from that period up to the present Dan's job has been to care for our subscribers located in the rural districts. During this time, Dan, through his courtesy and kindliness, has become to these people not only the telephone repair man, but a friend they highly regard.

In summing up I am convinced that Dan has not only done well those things assigned to him, day by day, but has also done a 100 per cent public relationship job. Now, Dan, it is my pleasure at this time to present you with an insignia, indicative of your 20 years of thorough and efficient service with our organization.

In connection with this presentation I wish to convey to you the sincere congratulations of all your associates, and last, but not least, I wish to extend to you the congratulations of Mr. R. P. Collins, our general equipment superintendent, who desires me to express his keen appreciation of your accession into the 20 year class.

Now, Dan, as a final word, I feel confident that you will continue in the future, as in the past, to sow those seeds of loyalty to your company, courtesy and public relation, with your associates and the public whom you serve.

During the evening Miss Gormand entertained with a pleasing recitation. Dainty refreshments were served by the committee in charge and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing, music being furnished by the Roamer's orchestra.

Guests present included T. J. Frazier, Hartford; E. L. Beebe, New London; R. H. Gray, New London; J. Frazier, Willimantic, A. L. Weatherhead, Willimantic, Miss Ruth Weatherhead, Willimantic, Miss Florence Curtis, Willimantic, Thomas Sando, Hartford, Francis J. McForty, Jr., New London, E. C. Ford of New London and Miss Ruth Newberry, New London.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the evening comprised Norman Schaffer, chairman, Edwin Trevena, Miss Alice Hoar, Fred D. Woods, Misses Mary Dunn, Margaret O'Connell, Anna Caffery, Lena Leahy, Anna Murphy, Gladys Williamson, Henry S. O'Brien, John Walsh, William R. Balcolm and Miss Josephine Murphy.

EAST ENDERS SECURE ELKS HALL FOR PARTY

Owing to the fact that the East Side community party is getting to be such a big affair it has been found necessary to find a much larger hall in which to hold it. The party was originally slated to be held at the Bishop's school but rather than turn away many of the people who plan to attend it the committee in charge finally decided that the best thing to do would be to get a much larger hall. Through the kindness of the Elks the party will be held at their home on Tuesday, Dec. 22 at 7 p. m. instead of the Bishop school.

Invitations sent out last Monday announced the party to be held at the school house and no doubt many will be disappointed when informed of the change but no doubt after being acquainted with what the committee is up against everyone will agree that it is a wise move.

When the party was first talked of a few weeks ago it was expected that it would be a success but no one ever suspected that the enthusiasm of the East Siders would make it such a big thing that it would be found necessary to find a larger hall. Not only are the East Siders doing everything possible to make it a success but many people from other parts of the city are offering assistance.

The collecting stations established in the stores of William Disco, Michael Marr, Preston Public Market, William E. Stanley, David Lyons and La Poe Bros. have been beseiged during the last few days by many, all anxious to do their part toward making the kiddies happy. It is expected that by Saturday night there will be enough presents collected for the children.

Not only has the party got the children all worked up but it seems that everyone on the other side of the bridge has got the Christmas spirit and the elders are getting more of a kick out of the party than the youngsters.

For the benefit of those East Siders who did not receive invitations announcement is made that they are welcome and that if they were missed it was not intentionally. Again it is requested that any children not attending the Bishop's school and living on the East Side must hand in their names at the Duwell club so that arrangements can be made to take care of them.

The entertainment committee has practically completed a very elaborate programme which will feature Thumm's orchestra, four acts of vaudeville, and also recitations and singing by the children of the school. Following the entertainment Santa Claus will distribute presents, fruit and candy to each and every child.

WOMAN SUES ESTATE TO COLLECT FOR HER SERVICES

The United States Trust company of Hartford, adm. d. b. n., of the estate of John S. Palmer, late of Stonington, is named defendant in a $2,000 damage action brought by Mary Wilcox, known as Mrs. Noyes B. Wilcox of Stonington. John S. Palmer, died Jan. 27, 1925, and the United States Trust company was appointed administrator d. b. n., of his estate March 16, 1925.

The plaintiff alleges that she furnished board, lodging, care and attention to the late Mr. Palmer from November 3, 1924 to January 27, 1925, for which he promised to pay what the services were reasonably worth. This amount, the plaintiff sets as $1,345. Her claim was disallowed by the administrators. She now seeks $2,000 damages.

MASTER BARBERS ORGANIZE AT MEETING HERE

Master barbers of all cities and towns of New London county, including Norwich and towns north, Windham county and Westerly, in Washington county, Rhode Island, met at the Wauregan House, Thursday night and organized a master barbers' organization, affiliated with the state organization.

Forty-three boss barbers joined the organization when the call was made to sign up and over 25 more are to sign up as soon as notice of the organizing reaches them, leaving about 25 other boss barbers to be approached later to complete the organization of every boss barber in the towns mentioned, thus making the Norwich organization one of the strongest in the entire state.

Officers of the newly formed organization were elected as follows: President, W. D. Abendrough, Norwich; vice president, R. Ross Turnage, Norwich; recording secretary, Leon Trudeau, Norwich; secretary, Edward Kirby, Norwich; treasurer, Joseph Norman, Norwich; trustees, Eli Lague, Jewett City; Joseph Gagnon, Willimantic; Frank Deneault, Norwich.

Previous to the organization of the boss barbers, John O. Eno, vice president of the New London Master Barbers' association spoke briefly and introduced John J. Egan, of Bridgeport, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, the speaker of the evening.

Secretary Egan at the outset of his address said that organized labor had been responsible for many laws written on the statute books of the state, among them being the compensation law, which was passed only after organized labor had fought for it in three legislatures. This law, he said, results in millions of dollars being paid to workmen or their families, which otherwise would never be paid.

Speaking of the barber situation, he said that if the barbers had been at Hartford to watch the work of the beauty parlor people, the present bills would never have been passed. These people, he said, are strongly organized and are trying to prevent a barber from doing anything except cutting men's hair and are trying to write the barbers' license bill off the laws of the state, or amend it in a way which will be for their benefit.

Beauty parlor owners wanted the entire commission but when the bill was presented the state federation of labor had one condition made, which reads in part, "Providing this act does not affect any persons holding barber's licenses, etc." The words "not affect" are the ones which hold the key to the situation. Beauty parlor commissioners have ruled that barber shops must have separate entrances. That affects business of licensed barbers, it affects the Barbers' License law. A remark has been made that saloons have been put out of business and now the beauty parlors will put the barber shops out of business as far as cutting hair of women and children is concerned. This has been tried in another state and ruled unconstitutional and it is the same in this state.

At the meeting in New Haven barbers were told to ignore the ruling and advised to go ahead. The law is what we obey and the commission ruling is not a law. The attorney general of this state has been asked to make a ruling and I am satisfied that it would favor the barbers. The matter is now coming before the court and he probably wants the court to rule on the case.

The beauty parlor commission has no jurisdiction over the barber shop. Their ruling has not yet gone into effect and it will be modified. Do not conflict the ruling with the law.

Over 1,000 beauty parlors are organized in this state, with a capital investment of over $1,500,000 and they have a national organization in Chicago, with paid attorneys and advisers. They will not stop until they get control of the cutting of hair, and all other work for women and children. They charge high rates for their work and are seeking to control the number of parlors to be licensed in the state, thus enabling them to hold up prices.

Master barbers must organize to protect themselves against this attack and have the bill so amended as to give them jurisdiction over women and children, leave it to them to choose whom they shall patronize, not do it by law. Both master barbers and journeymen should be there to wage this fight.

Beauty parlors are organized and are at work, already having laid the foundation for their attack. You should start now to lay your foundation and protect yourselves. They claim the barber shop is not a decent place, not respectable or clean and no woman or child should go to them. Many beauty parlors have been found to be immoral places and this has led to the commission being appointed to control them.

They allege that in barber shops men look at the women, pass remarks, swear or smoke. Let's leave it to the judgment of the women where they shall go, allow no law to control them.

If organization is good for builders, newspapers, hotels, transportation companies, medical men and lawyers, it should be good for master barbers. Every boss barber has something in common with the journeyman for he works along side him at the business, must do so in order to make a living. We must have publicity in order to show the public our side of the question. Newspapers have not published the miners' side of the strike, and if they did the feeling of the public would be different. An article written for the press telling the miners' story was given newspapers and to the Associated Press but if it was used it escaped my knowledge.

All boss barbers should organize, should unionize. The evolution in the barber's business is taking place. You stand to lose a share of your business. Are you going to stand idle and see it taken from you. Organize and go to Hartford and protect your interests, and when you become a part of the state federation of labor we will also be able to help you.

At the conclusion of his talk several people had questions to ask, after which the organization of the Norwich Master Barber's association took place.

HIGH SCHOOL PERMITS TO BE RETROACTIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 18.—A bitter three-cornered discussion on the question of payment of tuition fees at the high school, which implicated the school committees of the towns of Mansfield and Windham and the Mansfield tax payers, was fought out to a decisive step Thursday evening, when a substantial delegation of mothers and fathers of Mansfield pupils attending Windham High school met the school committee at the poultry building at Storrs and demanded action on the matter. The trouble has been brewing for some time and indications are that more developments are forthcoming although the representatives of citizens felt that the first issue had been a victorious one for them.

Three years ago the Mansfield school board, of which William F. Kirkpatrick is secretary, inaugurated what they believed to be a new accuracy system by making it compulsory that each year every child entering Windham High school or another high school should first secure a written permit issued by the school board by application. In September 1924 several of the children, most of them upper class men, went partly through the month of September before the permit question was taken up. They were notified to secure these by Principal Egbert A. Case, but when returned by the Mansfield school board, the permits were dated as of Oct. 1. In July, 1925, when the bill for tuition was sent, about $300 was deducted from the amount paid by Mansfields, this sum representing the amount of tuition for September for the children who had no permits.

Lest the local school should suffer in like manner this year, Principal Case gave the matter closer attention during the last fall term and found that out of 75 Mansfield pupils 12 did not have the required permit. Mr. Case had sent out a letter to the parents of these students in which he stated that although much grieved he would be forced to deputize the education of the students, the Mansfield board would have to guarantee the full year's tuition before the children could resume their studies presumably after the close of the fall term.

Then the parents of the 12 youngsters who had no permit went on the war path. All claimed that they did not know about the permit and others felt that these permits were merely for children entering school as freshmen. They convened in a room at the poultry building as early as 7 o'clock Thursday night and waited patiently until about 9:30 when the committee came out of executive session. T. Arthur Barrows, chairman pro-tem, replacing Mrs. F. O. Vincent recently resigned, was in charge of the meeting. Other committee men present were Secretary Kirkpatrick, Paul Benson, Hibbard Parker, Mrs. Robert Stearns, Mrs. Fish, Edward Slater, and James W. Greene, School Supervisor A. Wilson Greer was also present.

Morgan R. St. John moved that the applications to attend Windham High school, which had been overlooked by parents, be made retroactive and effective as of Sept. 9, the opening day of the school, thereby giving assurance of his full year tuition guarantee to the school and of a full year attendance for the student. Arthur R. Merrill, connected with the extension department at C. A. C. in seconding Mr. St. John's motion, accused the board of lack of spine and of being a one man board. Secretary Kirkpatrick reported with an explanation of the plan of issuing permits, stating that it was adopted three years ago to help maintain an accurate account of tuition and transportation expenses, to avoid paying the tuition of children whose parents or guardians did not actually reside in Mansfield and to avoid paying a one year tuition of $100 for students who leave school shortly after entering.

Shortly after 10:30 a member of the committee moved that that body retire and return with a verdict. At 10:50 o'clock Supervisor Greer, acting as a foreman of the committee, returned to the parents and announced that the board had moved to make all belated permits already received retroactive and effective as of September 9. This action satisfied all present, but F. W. Parter of Mansfield Center who has two sons at the high school, one a junior and who had failed to secure a permit. After a warm argument in which Mr. Parter openly expressed his views on the matter the board announced it would adjourn until Tuesday night when Mr. Prater's case will be taken up. Other parents who were heard on the subject and pleaded their children be kept at the school, regardless of the cost, included Mrs. Merton Andrews, Mrs. A. E. Wilkinson, Miss Gertrude Hughes, and E. E. Doe. Paul Benson appeared as a strong supporter of the committee's standpoint.

It takes a genius to compel himself to like the disagreeable tasks he has to perform.

KID KAPLAN'S TITLE IS AT STAKE IN TONIGHT'S BOUT WITH HERMAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—The seventh renewal of the Louis (Kid) Kaplan-Babe Herman ring feud, involving the world's featherweight championship, will be fought at the new Madison Square Garden tomorrow night with prospects that they will stage one of the closest of their many battles. It will be a 15-round affair for a decision for Kaplan's 126-pound crown.

The official attendance in the opening show in the garden last week when Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney fought their light heavyweight championship match, was 18,500 and Promoter Tex Rickard expects tomorrow night's mark to equal this record. Three thousand tickets have been purchased by Connecticut admirers of the champion.

Kaplan, the Merdien, Conn., "Buzz Saw," and Herman, rugged product of the Pacific coast, have met on 6 previous occasions, each having won a decision while four of the engagements have been draws. At their last meeting in Waterbury, Conn., last August Kaplan saved his title by a draw verdict although a majority of ringside critics believed Herman had outpointed the champion, whose unsatisfactory showing was laid to illness prior to the bout.

Both boxers completed their training yesterday, Kaplan at Meriden and Herman in a New York gymnasium. In their final weighing in, both seated within the featherweight limit. The official weighing in will be held by the state athletic commission tomorrow afternoon.

Wagers on the fight today were mostly on an even money basis as a result of good reports on Kaplan's condition. Heretofore Herman had been a slight favorite.

In the ten round semi-final, "Honeyboy" Finnegan of Boston will meet Bobby Garcia of Camp Holzbird, Md., Finnegan, who has been under suspension by the New York and Pennsylvania commissions, was reinstated especially for this match.

KAPLAN DECLARES HE IS IN BEST OF CONDITION

MERIDEN, Dec. 17—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, who defends his featherweight title tomorrow night against Babe Herman at the new Madison Square Garden, New York, went through a light workout this afternoon. The scales showed him still at the 125 1-5 pound mark, plus all the indications he will be the Kaplan of old.

The champion left Meriden tonight accompanied by his manager and trainer, Denny McMahon and Eddie Ford, who is on the card in the opener bout.

Before his departure, Kaplan gave the following message:

"I am in good shape and very strong. It won't be my fault if I lose for I'll be out there in the ring to defend what has been mine since last January. I am going to try hard to win and equally as hard to land a knockout blow."

His manager, McMahon, also said a few words in regard to the match. "I am leaving here confident of victory," stated the manager-trainer. "The Kid has worked hard and we hope to make it decisive. We will have no alibis for a defeat, but we aren't going to lose."

TRYING TO LAND SERVICE GAME FOR CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 17—(AP)—Financial leaders assured a gathering of American Legion members today that Chicago would raise $100,000 if necessary to bring the next Army-Navy football game here.

"It is time the east found out the middle west exists," said General Abel Davis, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company. He and Colonel William G. Edens, vice president of the Central Trust Company said Chicago would pay what might be required to bring the teams here.

"The new secretary of war is a westerner," said Colonel Edens, "and I promised Senator William B. McKinley to take the matter up with the commandant at West Point. Representative Edward Hull of Peoria is circulating a round robin in the house."

ROLLINS PAYS TRIBUTE TO GREAT BALLPLAYERS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17—(AP)—Eddie Collins, manager of the Chicago White Sox, turned orator at a Poor Richard club luncheon today, revealed to the members what a star second baseman thinks of other great ball players, and paid a tribute to Ty Cobb.

"Like any other business, baseball has its advertisers," said Collins. "They are the colorful personalities, like the easy-going Rube Waddell; the admirable Christy Mathewson, the graceful Larry Lajoie and the awkward Hans Wagner.

"Each of these men contributed greatly to the growth of the game. They possessed color, and they brought people to the ball park. The greatest of all in my mind, is Ty Cobb."

HARVARD DOWNS GREEN IN BASKETBALL GAME

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 17—(AP)—Harvard defeated Dartmouth 36 to 32 at basketball in an intercollegiate league contest here tonight. At the end of the first half the teams were tied with 14 points each.

The lineup:

Harvard (36)		Dartmouth (32)
Smith, lf		Dey, lf
Leekley, rf		Gordon, rf
Rauh, c		Whittaker, c
Coombs, lg		McFadden, lg
Malick, rg		Langdell, rg

Goals from floor: Smith 7; Leekley 4; Langdell 2; McFadden 2; Whittaker 2; Rauh, Malick, Coombs, Dey, Gordon.

Goals from fouls, Smith 8; Leekley 3; Coombs 2; Gordon 2; Whittaker 1; Malick, Langdell, Dey.

MANCHESTER BRINGS STRONG TEAM TO BALTIC TONIGHT

The Manchester Five will be the strongest that city can produce in the game tonight at St. Jean's hall in Baltic when the Baltic Five and the Manchester teams clash. Manchester has a team that has been attracting considerable attention during the early season and expects to continue in its winning ways. Baltic on the other hand has yet to be defeated and expects that their string of victories will be unbroken at the end of tonight's encounter.

The Baltic Bantams and the Taftville Celtics will clash in the preliminary game and there is no love lost between these two aggregations.

WESLEYAN PREPARING FOR GAME WITH COLUMBIA

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Coach Dale W. Lash of the Wesleyan University basketball team is working hard to develop more endurance in his men and to improve their shooting and passing for the game with Columbia university in New York Saturday.

Wesleyan defeated Clark University in its opening game, 43-19, but lost to Yale Tuesday, 31-18. To date Columbia has won two games and lost its other game to the Navy by only one point.

The lineup Saturday is expected to see Captain Umpleby and D. M. Jack in forward positions, W. W. Phillips and S. G. Lee as guards and E. F. Woolston as center.

PETROLLE GETS DECISION OVER STEVE SMITH

HARTFORD, Dec. 17—(AP)—Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N. D., was given the referee's decision over Steve Smith, of Bridgeport here tonight after a gruelling twelve round bout before the Atlas A. C.

In the semi-final, Billy (Pop) Humphries won easily from Teddy Watson in the semi-final.

Schaefer Leads Hoppe

BOSTON, Dec.17—(AP)—Jake Schaefer, former world's 18.2 balkline billiard champion, led Willie Hoppe, also a former world's champion, by 362 points tonight at the end of the sixth block of their 3,200 point contest.

TROPHIES AWARDED TO PROMINENT COLLEGE ATHLETES

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17—(AP)—Dartmouth college, Georgetown university and Charles P. Flournoy of Tulane university, were awarded trophies tonight by the directors of the Veteran Athletes of Philadelphia for outstanding performances on the gridiron and track this year.

Dartmouth was voted the football champions of the east and will receive the Joseph H. Jolley trophy; the Georgetown track team, which created a world record in the two mile relay races at the Pennsylvania relay carnival last April, will receive the Judge Samuel E. Shull trophy, and Flournoy was declared to be the most valuable football player to his team in the country, and will receive the Veteran Athletes' cup.

In announcing their selection of Flournoy as the most valuable player the Veteran Athletes said he had scored more points than any other player in America. "His wonderful running, extraordinary punting, his average for the season being fifty yards, his drop kicking and deadly defensive work," said the Veterans' announcement, "combine all the requisites of the greatest player as evidenced by his total of 120 points, 18 more than Tryon of Colgate, the eastern leader."

NEVERS TO GET $25,000 FOR PLAYING 5 GAMES

SANTA ROSA, Calif., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Ernie Nevers, captain and fullback of the 1925 Stanford university team, has signed a contract to play professional football with a Jacksonville, Fla., eleven, his attorney here has announced.

The original agreement as received from the Florida city was deposited in a bank yesterday bearing Nevers' signature.

The attorney said the $25,000 to be paid Nevers for five gridiron appearances has not been placed to his credit.

EXPLOITATION OF ABILITY IS BIG MENACE TO THE ATHLETE OF TODAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—Exploitation, in the opinion of athletic authorities who have scanned closely the waning year's evidence, is the chief menace confronting the athlete who catches the public eye in the current high pressure era of sports.

Paavo Nurmi and Red Grange, whose performances rank among the greatest of 1925, are pointed to as the leading victims of a feverish haste to capitalize their spectacular talents.

Nurmi, a sensation from his first race on indoor tracks, was rushed from city to city in response to the great demand for his running exhibitions. In three successive nights he competed in New York, Chicago and then here again. Even as rugged a constitution as that of the phantom Finn was unable to stand such a pace and he finally broke down in one of his biggest races in Madison Square Garden.

There is a parallel to this in Grange's performance in football, where the tax on stamina and endurance is much greater than that in running. Where Nurmi kept up his whirlwind stride for nearly three months without let-up, however, Grange reached the limit in about three weeks. Worn out by competition in five eastern cities in six days, the galloping ghost of the gridiron suffered injuries at Pittsburgh which have forced him to quit playing for some time.

While the exploitation of Nurmi and Grange has been along parallel lines, the cases of the individuals are as far apart as the poles. Grange undertook his strenuous work as a full-fledged professional, seeking a fortune in a campaign which already has gained astonishing results, while Nurmi competed as an amateur for clubs and promoters who leaped the major share of the financial harvest from popular interest in the Finnish marvel.

Nurmi, whose vogue last winter was almost as great as that of Grange now, turned down professional offers and contracts which, if accepted, would have netted him close to $250,000.

While Grange and Ernie Nevers of Stanford, who is ready to sign a $25,000 "pro" contract, are the leading all-American stars to decide on leaving college ranks, others on the 1925 all-star list compiled by The Associated Press have rejected overtures from professional promoters. These include Ed Weir, Nebraska tackle; George Wilson, University of Washington, halfback, who turned down a $3,000 offer; Swede Oberlander, Dartmouth ace, and his teammates, Mike Tully, end, who changed his mind after deciding to accept a "pro" contract. Eddie Tryon of Colgate also turned a deaf ear to several bids for his services.

Of last year's all-American galaxy, which also included Grange, the "pro" game has acquired Harry Stuhldreher, Notre Dame quarterback; Charley Berry, end of LaFayette, who starred this year on the Pottsville, Pa., eleven, and Ed McGinley, guard of Pennsylvania. Ed. Garbisch of the Army, 1924 all-American centre, has resigned his commission to play football on the Pacific coast.

Unbeaten gridiron outfits will battle for post-season laurels for the second straight year in the far west when the University of Alabama, the champions of the Southern Conference, meet the University of Washington, Pacific coast titleholders, in the tournament of roses contest New Year's day at Pasadena in the game there last January 1 Notre Dame's champion "four horsemen" rode to triumph over Stanford in one of the most thrilling intersectional encounters on record.

In eight "tournament" games at Pasadena since 1916, the Far West's defending forces have come off victoriously four times and the invaders twice, while two contests ended in ties.

The record follows:

1916—Washington State 14, Brown 0.

1917—University of Oregon 14, Pennsylvania 0.

1920—Harvard 7, University of Oregon 6.

1921—California 28, Ohio State 0.

1922—California 0, Washington and Jefferson 0.

1923—Southern California 14, Penn State 3.

1924—Naval Academy 14, University of Washington 14.

1925—Notre Dame 27, Stanford 10.

JEWETT CITY FIVE WINS EASY VICTORY OVER COLCHESTER TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 17—Jewett City Five romped to an easy victory over the Colchester Five here tonight winning by a score of 52 to 35. The game was fast and there were many thrills although at no time was the Jewett City team in danger of losing the contest. The work of the two forwards for Jewett City stood out prominently especially Bub Benjamin who caged nine baskets from the floor and one from the foul line for a total of 19 points. Mondi Normandin also played a brilliant game in the other forward berth.

Harry Mills, who has starred on many basketball floors in the state, was invincible and played true to his stellar form. The lean center dropped the ball through the hoop 8 times from different angles and also caged 4 fouls giving him a total point score of 20. For the Colchester team Pickett and Haggerty were the high point men.

Next Wednesday night the Jewett City team will clash with the Taftville basketball team in the second game of the season with this club.

In the preliminary game the Plaited Tops won an easy victory over the Jewett City Speedboys, 35 to 9. The summary:

YANKS STARS NOT TO GO TO HOT SPRINGS

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—The New York Yankees have decided not to send Babe Ruth and other high-priced stars on its roster to Hot Springs, Ark., next year to take what has been described in baseball parlance as the "boiling out process," prior to regular spring training.

Failure of the plan to materially improve the condition of the players last year, particularly in the case of Ruth, who was stricken later with influenza and was lost to the team in the early part of the season, influenced the club to abandon the training schedule at Hot Springs.

Arriving in New York today from his farm in Sudbury, Mass., Ruth indicated he probably would not require next spring as strenuous a conditioning program as he has been compelled to adopt in former years. He immediately signed for a course of indoor training at a local gymnasium and indulged in a game of handball.

Ruth said he felt better than at any time since he joined the Yankees, and attributed it to the fact that he has been playing golf daily. He estimated his weight at 226 pounds.

PLAINFIELD WILL CLASH WITH FALL RIVER TONIGHT

Tonight at the Plainfield Community house in Plainfield the Plainfield Basketball team will clash with the Kerr Mills team of Fall River. This is the second meeting between these two clubs this season, Plainfield winning by a score of 38 to 33. Chief among the stars of the Fall River team is Scotty Higgins, former star of the Willimantic Emeralds.

The Plainfield team will use the regular lineup with Normandin, Dissinger, Norris, Benson, Bissell and Thornton. In the preliminary game the Pittsfield Buddies will engage the Plainfield High school team in the first game of the season for the high school.

Nutmegs vs. Valiants

This evening at the Armory the Nutmegs basketball team will play its second game of the season when the the fast Valiants five is met. The game is scheduled to begin at 7.30 sharp.

For the Valiants Jim Shea will jump center while either Capt. P. Labenski, Mackoski, Cimikoski, or B. Labenski will play the forward positions with Viviano and Mingo at guards. With this aggregation of court luminaries the Valiants present a formidable lineup.

For the Nutmegs the lineup will be chosen from the following: Segal, Bergeron, Tombari, Burdick, Kelly, Burnes, Williams, Murphy and Couture. These men should be able to give a good account of themselves against all comers as they have about everything that goes to make up a championship quintet.

Rosie Ball Becomes Official

CINCINNATI, Dec. 17—(AP)—President August Hermann, of the Cincinnati Reds, said that club owners of the National league have instructed President John Heydler of New York, to give official notice to umpires in that circuit that the use of rosin by the pitchers on new balls will be permitted next season.

BATTLING SIKI TO BE GIVEN CHRISTIAN BURIAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—"Battling" Siki born a Mohammedan and reared a slave in far off Senegal, will be given a Christian burial from a negro funeral parlor in New York's Harlem tomorrow.

The huge bronze body of the fighter, stricken by two bullets from a murderer's revolver yesterday, today lay in an undertaking establishment while his widow and two Sengalese friends searched "speak-easies" for his slayer.

Although his friends had tried to persuade the widow to bury him as a Mohammedan, she said that he had lived as a Christian and would be buried as one.

The services will be conducted by the Rev. A. Clayton Powell, pastor of the Amyssinian Baptist church.

MICKEY WALKER COMES OUT OF WOODS TRAINING

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, welterweight champion of the world, emerged last night from the woods of North Cape Breton where he has been swinging the axe for two weeks with the pulpwood cutters of the Oxford Paper company, getting into shape for his forthcoming bout with Tommy Milligan.

Walker spent last night at Murray Bay. He will go to Sydney today to referee a charity boxing bout. Friday night he will act in a similar capacity at a Christmas fund show at Halifax. He will leave for his home in New Jersey on Saturday.

ALABAMA TO TAKE TWENTY-TWO TO COAST

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Twenty two players will be taken to the Pacific coast by the university of Alabama to participate in the game against the university of Washington on New Year's day at the tournament of roses at Pasadena.

Wallace Wade, for three years head coach and athletic director at Alabama, today signed a five year contract to continue his work. His salary is said to be around $10,000 a year.

Springfield College Baseball Slate

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 17—(AP)—Twenty games were included in the baseball schedule for 1926 of Springfield college, announced tonight. Games with Tufts, Dartmouth, Wesleyan, Boston college, and the Army are included.

DECLARES THAT AMERICAN GIRLS HAVE FLAT FEET

BELFAST, Dec. 17.—(AP)—American girls are flatfooted—at least those who played hockey against the Irish girls' team which has just returned from a successful American tour, according to Miss McKisack of Belfast, one of the members.

The American hockeyists didn't use their toes in running, she says, with the consequence that the Irish team, which is not considered fleet of foot at home, simply ran away from them.

Basketball Challenge

The Battery B basketball team would like games with any fast team in this section either at home or away. The Battery have a squad that ranks with the best in these parts and would like to book all first-class teams for games. For arrangements write Basketball Manager at the Armory.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

New York's professional hockey players complained as they left for Pittsburgh Thursday that the heat in Madison Square Garden Tuesday night prevented their best efforts. A new system of ice-making at the Garden leaves the arena so warm that the spectators throw off their overcoats.

The New York Giants, a professional football team, played to 274,500 persons this fall.

A professional football circuit in the east is planned for another year to include New York, Rochester, Providence, Buffalo, Brooklyn, Atlantic City, Washington, Newark, Boston, Hartford and Wilkes-Barre.

Joe Moore, international amateur speed skating champion, has gone to Saranac Lake, N. Y., to prepare for the winter title quests.

Ducky Pond, who swam through gridiron mud to two victories for Yale over Harvard, is now going to take the high dive. His fiancee is Miss Anna L. Cadoret of his home town.

R. L. Von Bernuth, former St. Nicholas club star, has been elected president of the new Eastern Hockey league, which includes two clubs from Boston and three from New York. It is an amateur organization.

Just how much money the Big Ten makes in athletics and what it does with it will soon be published. The report is being compiled by Major John L. Griffith, conference athletic commissioner, who thinks it will set at rest the popular beliefs that some coaches get fabulous salaries.

A fortnight golfing tour of the south having been a success, Chicago golfers plan another jaunt to extend thirty days. The party will leave January 23, playing in French Lick, Ind., Cave City, Ky., Georgia, Florida, the Carolinas, Virginia and Washington, D. C.

Marriage isn't a failure any more often than single blessedness is.

Peter Has a Disappointment

Disappointment is our lot
Rather oftener than not.
—Peter Rabbit.

It is true. Life is made up more or less of disappointments. Very often they are a good thing, a fine thing for us. But usually we do not find that out until afterward.

Peter Rabbit, snug and safe in a hollow log over where Paddy the Beaver and his family were cutting their supply of food for the winter, was wondering where Reddy Fox was. It was Reddy's scent that had sent Peter scurrying to the old log, and now, because he didn't know just where Reddy was, Peter didn't dare come out. He hoped that Reddy didn't know he was over there, but of this he held little hope for he knew that if he could smell Reddy the latter must have heard him thump a warning just before he ran for the hollow log.

Peter knew that the Beavers had heeded his warning for he had heard them plunge into the water. He felt proud of the way in which he had proved himself a good watchman. It wasn't until some time had passed that he heard the Beavers at work again. He was just getting ready to join them to keep watch again when he overheard Paddy saying something about lost time all because of a false alarm. Not until then did Peter recall that Reddy Rox was not one of those of whom Paddy and his family were afraid. Instead of saving those Beavers, that alarm had delayed their work and had quite upset Paddy's temper. So Peter decided to keep out of sight. It was just as well, for presently he heard Reddy Fox and knew that Reddy was still about.

The truth is Reddy was as interested as Peter had been in watching the Beaver family work. He admired those great cutting teeth of Paddy's as they snipped off a half-inch limb at a single bite. He admired the way in which Paddy trimmed the limbs from that tree, all but the small ones at the top and he wondered what Paddy would do with that long trunk. But he didn't have to wonder long. Paddy began cutting out chips from a place about five or six feet from the larger end and presently had cut a way through. Then he dragged this log into the water. One of the young Beavers who had been cutting a smaller tree had a log ready at the same time. With the big ends foremost Paddy and the young Beaver started off in the water. Each swam beside his log, having hold of it with his teeth. Reddy Fox couldn't see just how they did this, but guessed that perhaps each found a little twig or stump where a limb had been cut off. Anyway, off they swam with their logs, steering them around clumps of willows and alders, and heading in the general direction of the new dam. Reddy started around the edge of the pond. He wanted to see what would be done when those Beavers reached the dam.

Peter Rabbit saw Reddy Fox start off and he knew just where Reddy was going. That is, he guessed where Reddy was going. He guessed it from the way in which Reddy had watched Paddy and the Young Beaver start off and then had hurriedly trotted away along the edge of the pond toward the dam. Peter wanted to go, too. My, how he wanted to go! But he didn't dare go. Of course not. It would have been the most foolish thing possible. So he remained where he was and watched Mrs. Paddy and the other young Beaver start off, each with a log. He wanted to see what they would do with those logs. He wanted to know if they were to go down to the old pond and the food pile there, or if a new food pile was to be started in this pond in the deep water near the dam. There were several things he wanted to know, and he didn't dare go. Instead of being thankful that he had discovered Reddy Fox in time Peter was so disappointed that he quite forgot he had anything to be thankful for. Disappointed folk are apt to be just that way.

CONN. PAID $36,951,000 IN TAXES TO U. S.

David H. Blair commissioner on internal revenue, in his annual report points out that Connecticut for the year ended June 30, 1925, paid $26,365,000 in incomes taxes $10,385,000 in miscellaneous taxes, or a total of $36,951,000 and he gives much hitherto unpublished information relative to tobacco and the taxes levied upon it.

He also points out that Connecticut is one of the important tobacco growing states of the union, while others outstrip it in tobacco manufactures with which this report is more particularly concerned. Receipts from tobacco taxes during the fiscal year 1925, including taxes on domestic and imported manufactures, manufactures' special taxes, and taxes on domestic and imported cigarette papers and tubes in packages, books, or sets, were the greatest in the history of the internal revenue service and exceeded the total internal revenue collections from all sources for any year prior to 1914. Mr. Blair says total collections from this source were $345,247,210, an increase of $19,608,279 or 6.02 per cent. compared with the preceding year. Such collections represent 13.36 per cent. of the total internal revenue receipts from all sources, compared with 11.65 per cent. for 1924.

A. AND P. EMPLOYES TO BE INSURED

Local employes of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company have received announcement from New York that their lives will be insured by the company, commencing on the last day of the year. They are covered under one of the largest group life insurance policies ever issued, and every employe from the youngest clerk to the highest officer in the corporation is included. The amount of insurance for each individual ranges from $300 to $5,000, depending on his position and the number of years of service with the company.

The employes are also given an opportunity to purchase additional insurance at a low cost under the plan.

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners' association of New Jersey voted that they would show no pictures of Red Grange until they have gone into the details of the motion picture contract which he recently signed.

WESTERLY

NORWICH-WESTERLY RAILS NOW COMPLETELY REMOVED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 17—The old ties and rails of the Norwich and Westerly Electric road which were torn out on Railroad avenue during the installation of sewer main drains there a number of weeks ago and since that time have remained in the gutter, have at last been taken away. With the use of an acetylene torch the long twisted rails as they were yanked out by the steam shovel were cut in two for junk. Thursday the last vestige of the unsightly heaps was carted away and the full width of the highway has become available for traffic.

SYLVESTRE CASE TRIED BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 17—Trial of the Guiseppe Sylvestre case, alleged case of carnal knowledge of female child under the age of consent, continued in the Superior court Thursday before Judge Copotosto and a jury and was conducted as on Wednesday, behind closed doors. At 11:00 o'clock, when court opened Sheriff Fred T. Mc[illegible] ordered all persons, not newspapermen, witnesses, lawyers, officers or jurymen, to leave the courtroom and stay away.

Before the court session was resumed with the complaining witness Emma Fanny on the witness stand, where she was all day Wednesday, Judge Copotosto stated that next Monday he would have to go to Bristol, R. I., for the October session of Superior court for Providence and Bristol counties, on the 23rd and the 24th he said the statute gave the court a legal holiday, which, as it was found that the Sylvestre case would perhaps go for another day, would involve letting the spare jurors back for Tuesday of next week. He added that he was going to give them the intervening time to go out to do shopping. "Come back on the 28th," he said to the spare jurors, "just for that week, when the civil cases to follow will be called, all civil cases being set down for the 25th, after that week all cases not disposed of will be continued over to the next term."

In opening, Judge Watts asked Miss Handy if, in the trial before Judge Turano in the Third District court, she had not gone up to the judge and in a tone so that no one else in the court room could hear had given him the names of at least seven men with whom she had been out and if among them was not the name of Frank Costanza, an old man. "What she told the district court is absolutely immaterial, take the jury out," said the judge, as Judge Watts wanted to argue a motion. When the jury had retired, Judge Watts stated that the man named was around 75 or 80 years of age and a man incapable of doing such things as alleged, and with reference to former chastity of the complaining witness, it did bear upon her veracity if she had such hallucinations. For the purpose of getting the questions on the record, Judge Watts asked the witness if she had not had relations with Joseph Serio, but the court sustained objections of Attorney Jackvony and the witness was not required to answer. It was agreed that the summer as referred to in the case meant the period between June 21st and Sept. 21st, 1925, when disorderly acts were said to have occurred.

Dr. Frances A. Kenyon, M. D. of Woodville, R. I. the next witness, testified to conditions found on examination.

Thursday afternoon at the adjournment of superior court, the evidence was all in. Friday morning both lawyers will make their pleas. The judge will charge the jury and they will retire to determine a verdict.

The state rested its case at 11:22 this morning and the defense opened at 11:30 when Judge Watts said that the defense would prove that complainant told conflicting stories and that the defendant did not know her and had not kept company with her.

Sylvestre took the stand in his own defense; he stated that he was 34 years old and that he lived on Stillman avenue. At that time he resided at 14 Race street, Pawcatuck. His testimony was given through an interpreter, Joseph A. Guarino, at first and then when he corrected the interpreter, he gave the testimony himself.

June 21 1925, he was employed in the tea yard and he worked at the Ninigret mills when he knew Miss Handy. After that he was employed on the farm of Tony Alfiere, between North Stonington and Old Mystic, from Aug. to Oct. 6. He made a general denial of the charge made against him.

The Christmas observance by Narragansett commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar, John A. Hogg, commander, will be held in the commandery asylum on High street Friday morning, Dec. 25th. The sir knights will assemble for the purpose of participating in Christmas greetings to the grand master, Most Eminent Sir George William Vickery and in accordance with the request of Right Eminent Sir Clarence M. Dunbar, of Providence, grand commander of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The observance will be similar to that of past years and the arrangements are in charge of a committee consisting of Past Commander Samuel Gerrish, chairman, Generalissimo Arthur J. Card, Senior Warden David Lowry, Junior Warden Francis E. Johnson and Sir Knight Olcott Hills. Announcement has been made that Narragansett commandery will attend in a body the 100 anniversary celebration of Springfield Commandery, No. 6, K. T., in Springfield, Mass., Saturday, June 26th, next year. The annual inspection of the commandery will come next year at a special conclave Wednesday evening, March 10th, and will be conducted by Division Commander Eminent Sir Charles E. Marshall, of Melrose, Mass.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Booth, widow of John Booth, who died on Dec. 15th at the home of her daughter the wife of Dr. Earle Duffy, in Taunton, Mass., were held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at local funeral parlors. The service was read by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, the bearers being John Sutcliffe, James Dawson, Clarence Maxwell, Irving Cox and Thomas Clarkson, all of Westerly. For a number of years before going to Taunton Mrs. Booth was a resident of Clarkville and one of the founders of the Clarkville chapel.

The front chimney of the house at 6 Maxwell street, owned by James Reale and occupied by him and Mrs. Lula Rochette on the second floor was on fire from top to bottom, and was the cause of an alarm being turned in about 9:15 Thursday morning from Box No. 66, Oak and Maxwell streets. The hose wagon of the Rhode Island Ones and the Alert Hook and Ladder truck responded. The contents of several chemical tanks were turned into the chimney from the roof before the fire was extinguished. The fire fighting was directed by Assistant Engineer Columbus J. Passetti.

The Christmas observance of the Auxiliary of Amos P. Chapman camp, Sons of Veterans, Mrs. Albert F. Lawton, commander, will be held this (Friday) evening in Vets hall, Pawcatuck.

ROUGING FINGER TIPS A FAD IN FASHIONABLE CASINO SET

MONTE CARLO, Dec. 17—(AP)—Rouging the fingers around the extreme edges of the nails is a fashion borrowed from the East that is gaining women's favor.

On a beautifully manicured hand this touch of color is most effective. It has been resorted to by a great many players in the Casino, whose hands are always within view of the other devotees at the tables. The fingers must be "touched up" rather frequently or they become streaked and take on a sort of washed-out appearance.

NOANK

One local woman who started out to do her Christmas shopping hurried to catch a trolley car and got to New London ahead of the early ones. While in a store she bought something and reached for her pocketbook to pay, but found that she had left her money home. She had to give it up until another day.

TOMBSTONE USED AS BILLBOARD TO ADVERISE FRENCH OMELET

DIJON, France, Dec. 17—(AP)—The tombstone marking the grave of his father in one of the local cemeteries is the novel advertising bill board imagined by a restaurant keeper to celebrate the excellence of the dish which is the specialty of his eating house. It reads:

Here lies
PIERRE MERCIER, Innkeeper,
1843-1903
Inventor of the celebrated Mercier omelet.
His Son
in the same business on Dole street, possesses the unique recipe of the famous Mercier omelet.

Every game of chance is a sure thing, but a man usually bets the wrong way.

DANIELSON

FIRE IN STOCKHOUSE OF THE CONNECTICUT MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 17—Hundreds of residents of the borough were awakened about 4.30 Thursday morning by the din created jointly by the fire alarm siren and the siren on the Connecticut mills, where a fire in the big stockhouse on the easterly side of the plant and parallel to the railroad was threatening grave damage to the big manufacturing plant.

The fire was discovered by a watchman as he was making his rounds. The blaze had started outside the stockhouse, near the northerly end, and was gaining headway rapidly when discovered. The automatic sprinkler system with which the stockhouse is equipped serviced promptly and efficiently and the fire department also poured quantities of water into the threatened structure. The fire itself did no great amount of damage and such loss as was sustained was chiefly from water. Probably $5,000 will cover the total loss, but this cannot be accurately determined until quantities of yarn that received a wetting are dried out and its condition thereafter determined.

There is no definite knowledge as to the cause of the fire. As it originated outside the stockhouse, it is possible that it was caused by a spark from some source or other or a carelessly disposed of lighted match or cigarette.

Responding to the alarm gave the firemen a cold and disagreeable trip, but they regard that as all in the line of duty. Though the majority of the people of the borough were awakened by the alarms turned in, only a comparatively small crowd got up enthusiasm sufficient to go out to the fire.

Mrs. Charles B. Hutchins, retiring matron of Danielson chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, entertained her associate officers of the chapter at her home on Franklin street Wednesday evening. There were fifteen guests. An evening of rare enjoyment was spent in singing, in guessing games and in introducing stunts. The hostess served chicken salad, ice cream, cake and punch. Just before the department of the guests, Mrs. Ella Chase, matron-elect, presented Mrs. Hutchins, on behalf of the officers a steak carving set. The presentation came as a surprise to Mrs. Hutchins, who responded graciously. Words of good will and cheer from the guests made the evening one of real delight for Mrs. Hutchins.

BOROUGH WAS WATERLESS DUE TO AN ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 17—For a time during Thursday, Danielson was the driest town in New England. Even those who confine their drinking to aking water were cut off from a supply. All of this was because a water main in the supply line coming down through Elmville from the reservoirs in East Killingly was broken open, at a point not distant from the police barracks on North Main street, by a dynamite being used in connection with certain road building operations. Loss of the water in large areas of the borough was particularly inconvenient to those who use the hose. The office of the Crystal Water company was kept busy explaining to anxious inquirers the nature of the difficulty. Every possible bit of speed that could be was applied to the repair job, and the usual supply of water was available in all parts of the borough before 2 p. m.

In connection with the trade-at-home campaign that is now getting so much attention in many towns, Danielson is also the business home of a man who is boosting New England made goods, that its industries may be helped, for in helping them he is helping those who buy of him to live in a region where prosperity must reign.

Grass fires in December are unusual in this section, but one raged Thursday afternoon along the railroad right of way between Danielson and Elmville, requiring considerable effort to bring it under control. It is held that there is danger just now of grass and forest fires all through this section of the country.

Mrs. W. W. Woodward, who remains active and has a lively interest in all current events, observed her eighty-third birthday at her home on Broad street Wednesday.

Incident to the preparations for running a new telephone cable through Academy street, limbs were being cut from over-hanging trees along the northerly side of the street during Thursday.

Another one-way sign was put up at the Main street end of Center street during Thursday. Very few drivers are violating the new traffic regulation.

After a visit in Florida, at Havana and Miami, Howard A. Elliott arrived in New York on Wednesday on S. S. Kroonland. He will spend a few days in New York before returning to take up his duties on January 1 as chief special deputy commissioner of domestic animals.

Christmas shoppers are speeding up their activities. This was evident on Thursday, when store forces were kept busy with the holiday trade.

A delegation of master and journeymen barbers from Danielson was at Norwich Thursday evening to attend a conference of eastern Connecticut barbers to consider a new ruling relative to hairdressers and beauty parlors.

North Sterling reports that a large, pure white owl was seen near W. R. Spooner's recently. Owls of this species are seldom seen in this section of the country

Owners of radio receiving sets tell of the excellent quality of reception they get by running the ground wire down into the water of a well and keeping it there by attaching a weight.

Killingly High school's basketball team opens its season tonight (Friday) with the Mechanicsville Boys' club team.

George P. Hampden of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

Miss Katherine D. Aylward was in New London Thursday on a business trip.

The grand chef de Gare and grand correspondent of the Forty and Eight are expected to attend a meeting of the organization in the American Legion rooms here Sunday. This meeting will bring legion members to Danielson from a number of surrounding towns.

There are numbers of cases of pneumonia in this and surrounding towns.

Upwards of 1,300 telephones are listed in the Danielson division of the S. N. E. Telephone company.

A hearing is scheduled in the probate court for today (Friday) relative to the will of the late Mrs. Henry M. Danielson of North Main street.

While it can hardly rate as a Christmas gift, there is an obligation of paying Attorney Louis A. Wolsard personal tax assessments before the close of the month.

In view of the fact that carol singers are to go about the borough Christmas eve many people will light their homes brilliantly just before the midnight hour.

A state highway crew was engaged Thursday in repairing gouged out places in the Main street paving along the trolley rails and made a good job of it. This street is subjected to very heavy traffic and is bound to show wear and tear from time to time.

Very few households in Danielson are using soft coal for heating as yet, but there are some. A few maintain use of it for home heaters and are getting excellent results.

No eastern Connecticut town is more fortunate industrially this Christmas time than Killingly. Its manufacturing plants are busy and some of them are operating day and night.

To observers, the volume of business on the coach line of the Connecticut company through Danielson appears approximately the same as that moved by the trolley line before service was suspended.

Christmas wreaths and other decorative greens of the season have made their appearance on numbers of homes throughout the borough, the pretty custom promising to be more generally observed here than ever before.

Christmas musical and concert programs by the churches of Danielson are practically ready for presentation. There will be Christmas music at some of the churches in Danielson Sunday next.

It is held by many that the increased facilities of Killingly High school after the new additions are completed during the coming year will tend to increase attendance, for the attraction of attending the school will be greater.

A daily increase is noted in the fund to provide Christmas cheer for needy families in Danielson. Liberal giving to this fund or even small donations from everyone will allow those in charge of the good work to bring great happiness to deserving people.

With a minimum temperature of 8 above zero in some parts of the town in the early morning, Thursday was the coldest of the season.

JEWETT CITY

DOG LAWS VIOLATED— RESIDENTS PROTESTING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 17. — Loud complaints are heard concerning the number of dogs allowed to roam at large, make a business of killing pet cats, and destroy lawns and gardens. Several cases have been reported, where dogs which do not belong in the vicinity come in pairs, fours, or five or six every day. One man last summer had just made a new lawn, when dogs came and dug it up. In one back yard in the upper part of the town three dogs literally pulled a cat apart. This week, on Palmer avenue, a pet cat was killed by dogs, while sitting on the piazza of her home.

The Public Acts of this state published this year contains eleven pages of laws governing owners of dogs Sections 29 and 32 say that any owner or keeper of any dog who shall allow such dog to roam at large upon the land of another, and not within reasonable call or control of the owner or keeper, or who shall allow such dog to roam at large in any public highway not adjoining the premises of the owner, or keeper, and not attended or within the reasonable call or control of such owner or keeper or his agent, shall be fined, not more than twenty-five dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both.

HAMILTON WILCOX DIES IN HOUSE WHERE HE WAS BORN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 17.—Hamilton Wilcox, 80, died at his home in Voluntown early Thursday morning. He was born in the house where he died, and has always lived in the same house. He was the son of Miner and Alice Letson Wilcox. Mr. Wilcox married Emma Tanner fifty-two years ago; she survives him. He was a democrat in politics, and had served as selectman in his town.

Readers of New York papers noticed the account of a freighter ramming into the Cranford, a crowded ferry boat in the Hudson river Tuesday, and the panic which ensued, which caused serious injury to people and loss of their valuables. Howard Campbell, who lives in Bayonne, N. J., was a passenger on the ferry boat. He wrote his father, Fred S. Campbell, concerning the accident, that the freighter struck the boat not ten feet from where he stood. He said he did not suppose men would so lose their heads. He saw one man who had on three life preservers, and was trying to get another. The paper stated that the injuries to the women were caused by the panic-stricken men.

Mrs. Thomas Gray of this place and Mrs. Clarence Mell and son, Harold, of Lisbon, were in Providence, Wednesday, to attend the funeral of Clarence Griswold. He was the son of Edwin and Eva Foster Griswold. He was thirty years of age, and leaves his wife and eight months' old son. He also leaves a brother, Edwin. The cause of his death was appendicitis. Both the parents are well known in Lisbon and Jewett City, where they formerly lived.

Sunday afternoon at Bethel, at two o'clock the Jewett City Methodist choir is to sing anthems and carols in connection with the regular service. In Voluntown at 3.15 at the Methodist church there will be a special Christmas service. A story and song service, "Like the Wise Men," will be given by the Jewett City choir. The story will be read by Miss Christine Burdick, of Boston university.

PUTNAM

MACHINERY SALE HELD AT PUTNAM MFG. CO. PLANT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 17—The auction sale of machinery, shafting, pulleys, etc., of the Putnam Manufacturing company, held here yesterday, was attended by a large number of textile men, and dealers in used machinery. The amount of the sales, it is said, will aggregate $25,000. Many of the larger machines were of an old type, some of them obsolete, but at the price paid they could not have been other than bargains to the purchasers. In many instances the amount was not one tenth of the original cost price. There were also other bargains, for instance, one lot of shafting, pulleys and hangers went for $8, that would probably cost $500 to replace.

The mills and other real estate of the Putnam Mfg. company were sold about a year ago to the Edward Bloom Silk company of New London and New Jersey. The plant had not been in operation for two years prior to that but for half a century the owners had been manufacturers of cotton fabrics. A large part of the machines, especially those of a modern type were disposed of at the time, and others during the year. As rapidly as they were dismantled and shipped, silk working machines were installed in their place. The Bloom company has been very anxious to utilize all the floor space of the buildings and it finally became necessary for the Putnam Mfg. Co. to offer what equipment remained at auction, regardless of the price that might be realized.

The sale was conducted by the H. G. and H. J. Gross company of Providence. Among the purchasers were the American Waste and Metal Co., of Norwich, E. F. Jealous of Webster, MacGordon, Norwich; Horodite Co., North Brighton, Mass.; Quidnick-Windham Co., Willimantic; Sherman Textile Co Worcester, Pawtucket Mill Supply Co Pawtucket; Fraser & Blackway, Fall River, Mass.

MANAGER HENRY S. LYON GIVEN HANDSOME WATCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 17—At the meeting of the local council of the employes of the Southern New England Telephone Co., last evening at Odd Fellows' hall, Manager Henry S. Lyon, who is to be transferred to Norwich January first, was given a beautiful gold watch and chain. The Putnam district comprises the exchanges of Putnam, Danielson and Moosup, and nearly every employe of the company in the three towns was in attendance, including the guests, a few officials from other districts, there were eighty-five at the gathering.

The presentation address was made by R. H. Gray, commercial superintendent of the New London district. His remarks were highly laudatory of Mr Lyon and his views were evidently shared by everyone who heard him. The council includes the employes of the plant, the traffic and the commercial departments and it was evidently their desire to give Mr. Lyon a substantial and lasting testimonial of the esteem in which they hold him.

The watch is a very fine one. Attached to it was a chain that in beauty and value is worthy of the watch

In accepting the gift Mr. Lyon said that he could not fully express how much he appreciated it and what a source of satisfaction it would always mean to him. It was certainly gratifying he said, to realize that he had such friends. "What degree of success in my work I may have achieved here," he continued, "is largely due to the loyalty and co-operation of the members of this council." He declared that no one in his position could have asked for a finer spirit of devotion to the company's interest than had been exhibited by those who had worked for him and with him during the period he has lived in Putnam.

Mrs. Lyon has been very ill and could not attend the affair but the members of the council sent her a bouquet of Miss Ernestine Sherman was given a twenty-year service button. In presenting it, A. L. Osborn, traffic superintendent of the New London district, paid high tribute to her loyalty to the company, to her tact and her thoughtfulness, that were appreciated by her employers as well as by her associate workers. She was also given a very beautiful bouquet.

A fine collation was served by a committee, under the direction of Miss Mary Smith and Miss Sherman. Among the guests was Ralph Booth of Waterbury, who is to succeed Mr. Lyon as manager of the Putnam district. He is married and has one child, a year and a half old girl. He will move here as soon as he can find a suitable residence

Jessamine Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star held its annual roll call and installment last night at the Masonic Temple. A turkey supper preceded the exercises. The attendance was large, more than ninety per cent of the members being present. Mrs. Isabelle H. Tefft, past matron assisted by Mrs Mary L. Kenyon past matron as marshall installed the following officers: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Lena M. Whipple; worthy patron, James H. McCulloch; associate matron, Mrs. Susan W Burt; secretary, Miss Emma M. Roberts; treasurer, Miss Annie C. Levitt; marshall, Mrs. Hattie K. Watson; chaplain, Mrs. Mary L. Kenyon; organist, Mrs. Emma D. Phillips; conductress, Mrs. Grace Bruce; assistant conductress, Mrs. Sophia Metcalf. Adah, Mrs. N. B. Burton; Esther, Miss Pauline Sandstrom; Ruth, Mrs Mahala C. Whiting; Martha, Mrs. Nellie D. Bates; electra, Mrs. Isabella R. Tefft; warder, Mrs. Bertha H. Green; sentinel, Charles Whiting.

The supper menu follows:

Roast Turkey with dressing Gravy
Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potato Mashed Turnips

COUNTRYWIDE INTEREST IN POMFRET NATIVITY PLAY

PUTNAM, Dec. 17—Pomfret's beautiful Christmas play of "The Holy Night," is to be given, as for the last fourteen years, in Pomfret hall Sunday evening next, at 8 o'clock.

This is essentially a celebration of Christmas eve, but because that night is dedicated to the church and home, it is timed annually for the Sunday evening before Christmas.

There is no admission to the play which is open to everyone. If all cannot get into the hall for the first performance, a place will be provided for their reception, and a second performance will follow.

As far as is possible, the roles are taken each year by those who created them. Warren W. Averill has taken the part of the patriarch king of the Orient since the first presentation of the play, while the Master Shepherd, a role of equal dignity and solemnity was created by J. Fred Ash. Frank Chandler has for many years—more than half the period of the play—portrayed the great King and Leader of the People of the East, while Leonard Watson has for an equal time represented a youthful king full of vision and prophetic insight. Mr. Watson is unable to be here this year and his part will be taken by Robert Arnold.

Every year requests come from all over the country and from distant countries—for permission to give this play of the Holy Night, and requests for the text. Most plays are copyrighted, and a royalty must be paid for permission to reproduce them. Such a plan would defeat the end in view here, which is to have as many communities as possible present these scenes at Christmas. The text used is the text of the Gospel of the Nativity—nothing more, nor less. The carol singing that leads up to the play is for everyone, and it is expected that all present will join in this.

PLANNING CHRISTMAS CHEER FOR MEN AT SUBMARINE BASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 17—At the New London base there are 350 men in the naval service, some of whom are ill in the hospital, and others who have no families. Lieut. Parker in command, has called attention to this fact, so Putnam citizens who wish to contribute articles of food, such as cookies, oranges, etc. are being advised that they will be more than welcome. Mrs. Leon S. Walker and Mrs. Clara Richardson are to be at the community room at the Savings bank, Tuesday morning December 21, from 9 to 10 o'clock to receive any such donations

At the last meeting of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., it was voted to pay the annual quotas of 40 cents per member to the Oliver Ellsworth home and 25 cents per member for the support of the Manual for Immigrants, now published in some fifteen languages.

Then followed a discussion as to whether the future work of the chapter might not well be directed toward the building of a public library in Putnam. It was unanimously voted that the chapter favor such an effort and that the regent appoint a committee of which she be the chairman, to consider the matter. Mrs. Elvira Barber, regent, appointed the following committee: Mrs. A. Newton Ballard, Mrs Mary Bishop, Mrs. Byron D. Bugbee, Mrs. George S. Bradley, Mrs. J. Richard Carpenter, Mrs. Ethel Kent Champlin, Mrs. Annie C. Child, Miss Emma J. Kinney Mrs. E. L. Kelley Miss Constance Russell, Mrs. George A. Rawley, Mrs. Charles L. Torrey, Mrs. William E. Wheaton, Mrs. S. M Wheelock, Mrs. Helen Willey and the chairman of the finance committee. An entertaining program followed Miss Thyra Walker, accompanied by Mrs. Samuel Ricli, sang three selections.

Dr. Denlinger of the Chair of History, Connecticut Agricultural college, spoke on "Building a Finer America. Dr. Denlinger expressed his faith that, in spite of the materialism so evident in America, which is today the most successful and most restless of peoples, there are certain things that give promise of a great future. These he summed up by saying that America is fundamentally Christian in ethics; that as a people we still believe in equality in the sence that every human spirit is priceless and in the liberty of each man to be what he is and of

THE PRESENT GENERATION AND THRIFT.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

If you want to write something which will "take," as the saying is, just write something smooth and syrupy defense of the present young generation. Assert, unhesitatingly and dogmatically, that all you talk about its lower standards is wrong, that it is every whit as modest and every whit as sturdy and every whit as trustable as any of the generations that have gone before it. Say that it is the biggest possible type; add for good red-hot denunciation of the "bigotry" and "narrow-mindedness" and youth-forgetting "hypocrisy" of the "old fossils" who presume to criticize, and you'll find that three people out of five will remark, more or less enthusiastically: "Guess he's about right, after all."

Nor, if your conscience will allow you to adopt that tone, will your use of it do any special harm. For the excellent reason that your opinions, favorable or unfavorable, won't have the slightest influence upon the conduct or character of the aforesaid younger generation. Youth is in the saddle and is riding the world. Whether to the obtainment of the purse or to a nasty fall opinions may, indeed, vary. But that won't make any difference to the horse or his jockey. They will run and ride exactly the same, whether you and I approve or disapprove. Which is why I say that it won't be of any real importance whether you are shocked or stimulated, and whether you yell "Whoa!" or "'Sboy!"

When the Niagara river is gathering its waters for their roaring plunge over the falls, they aren't going to slow down and turn back up-stream just because you stand on the back and shout expostulations or remonstrances or warnings to them. You will be just as effective and do just as much good if you keep your mouth shut and accept the cataract as you will if you try to stop it. Which stand you take, whether on the brink of a waterfall or of a human catastrophe, must depend wholly on your own judgment and conscience.

If you want to win applause and be considered a first class sort of feller, with a big heart at bottom and a "real human" way with you, then say nice things about modesty of the modern flapper, or the purity of the modern "petting party," or the intrinsic honesty of the pay-roll snatcher or the jewelry-store "bandit." There is small danger you'll go too far to please the majority.

But, dismissing that phase of the subject, if you've any shred of conscience left, or any small modicum of common sense remaining, or any remembrance abiding with you of what once was, you cannot possibly assert or permit others to assert without contradiction that the younger generation has any really workable conception of what is meant by "thrift." You might as well pretend that you could read your newspaper in the thick of the woods on a moonless and starless midnight. The one pretense would be no more manifestly and staringly untrue than the other.

In the last few years I've experimented a bit, in my country way, to try and find out the actual attitude of the youth of my acquaintance towards this matter of thrift.

And I've yet to find a single one who has even a mental comprehension of what thrift is. A few think it means going without what you really need, now, in order to have something you may want some other time. A few others think it means being greedy and piggish. Some think it means having a fresh-painted house and a tidily kept front yard, and fences everywhere in apple-pie order. But the big majority think that to be thrifty means to be a "tight-wad."

And, naturally, the idea is repellent, not to say abhorrent.

I don't happen, at this minute, to recall the dictionary definition of thrift. Nor do I care enough about it to look it up. For I know,—as you also do, if you'll only let your think-stuff do its proper work,—what thrift implies and consists of.

It is the economic use of available means for worthy and desirable ends.

It is the doing without what you just banker after in order to have what you really need.

It is making hay while the sun shines and putting that hay under cover where it will be of some service when the sun doesn't shine and the ground is three feet under snow.

It is preparing on fair days for the rainy days which come into every life.

It is making the present serve the future, as that future's needs are prefigured by the past.

It is self-control, as opposed to self-indulgence.

It is standing on your own legs, and holding your own head up on the end of your own backbone, instead of slithering sloppily along like a spineless jelly-fish.

And, if those are not all desirable and worthy characteristics, then what would be?

But the on-coming generation wants none of them. It wants what it wants when it wants it and because it wants it. That's as far and as deep as it goes.

The gratification of the passing whim, the making the most of the fleeting moment, the gathering of rosebuds instead of the digging of potatoes, the worship of today and the damning of tomorrow,—these are the noticeable and outstanding traits which every casual observer must see,—but which I mustn't mention if he doesn't want to be called a milgrable pessimist.

And nobody loves a pessimist, any more than a fat man.

Just at present, it is automobiles and radios which are soaking up what ought to be national savings. To be without a car and a "garage" is to be wholly out of the swim: to be without a radio is to be out of the world.

Among my own strictly rural and immediate neighbors are four families which rely entirely upon daily wages of the husband and father for their support. Three of them have automobiles. And every one has a radio set. One of the men has just passed my house, shivering in the December wind, without an overcoat. You see, he can't afford one: he has to buy gas for the auto. In at least two of the houses all the bread and cake they eat is bought from the baker; the wives are so constantly engaged with the radio that they can't find time to bake bread. Also, the daughters must have sheer silk hose and the boys $2 neckties.

The Australian commissioner to the United States sadly reports that woolgrowing in Australia has been given near a knock-out blow by the drop in the demand from this country, which used to be its best customer. One of the biggest men in the clothing-trade reports that it is being cut into so seriously as to endanger its existence. People who used to buy good woolen garments and pay for them are now buying cheap shoddy or going without, in order to keep up the payments on their radios and autos, bought on the instalment plan. In fact he says that many dealers are finding themselves compelled to sell suits and overcoats on that instalment plan, or not at all.

Now, I'm not kicking about autos or radios. An auto is a mighty nice thing to have,—when it isn't at the garage for repairs. And for those who like that sort of thing, why, the radio is the sort of thing they like.

But I must insist, mildly and deferentially of course, that nourishing food in adequate supply and warm clothing in adequate amount are just a leetle more important during a long, cold winter, than radioed jazz and idle spells in snow-bound garages. And that sensible thrift would assure food and clothes before it blew in on radios and buss-wagons.

At about this point, some one who has been reading statistics chips in with a query whether I've noticed the increase in savings bank deposits lately. Doesn't that indicate thrift? Well, I've just at hand a certified statement of the wages paid in the building trades in New York city for 1925. Stone masons got $13 a day; painters $10.60; slate roofers $12; electrical workers, house-smiths, lathers, steam fitters and tile layers $15.50 each; plasterers, bricklayers, engineers, stone setters and marble cutters $12 each; plumbers $11, and so on. Few of the men engaged in those occupations are youngsters. Most of them are men old enough to retain something of the spirit which governed wage-earners in the days when they were learning their trades. It is no wonder that such men, receiving such wages, remembering the harder work and smaller pay of their youth, should save something. What would be more informative, if it were possibly available, would be knowledge of how many of these savings bank increases should be credited to the younger generation.

Some antiquarian down in Richmond, Va., unearthed the other day a letter dated 1846, written by his great uncle to his grandfather. The writer was a Virginian who had moved to Indiana to engage in farming. He reported that farming conditions out there were "good," and that farmers were "happy and laying up money." They could get five cents a pound for butter, and sixteen cents a bushel for potatoes, and $2 to $2.50 a hundred for beef and pork. They could also get from $8 to $10 for best milk cows, and f-i-f-t-y c-e-n-t-s a bushel for wheat! Think of that! They were happy as clams at high water, and felt themselves just rolling in wealth.

It all depends on the way you look at things, and the way you go at things. A man doesn't need big wages to be thrifty. Nor is he a "tight-wad" because he chooses to use them judiciously rather than scatter them extravagantly.

If the producers and workers of to-day used their comparatively large incomes with a fraction of the thrift shown, say, by those Indiana farmers of 1846, savings-bank deposits would show not merely an increase, but a skyrocketing soaring to almost unimaginable heights.

The fullness of the pond depends a good deal less on how much water runs into it at the upper end than how much seeps out of it at the dam.

A very small brook, give it time enough, will fill a sizable pond, if none of the water is wasted by a leaky dam.

And that's just all thrift is,—the saving of the water to run the mill, rather than the letting it waste to make a trout-brook.

One trouble with too many of the younger generation is that they don't seem to care a hoot what happens to the pond so long as the dam doesn't interfere with their fishing.

As if fishing were the be-all and end-all of existence!

FIRE DESTROYS AN OLD NEW ENGLAND LANDMARK

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Dec. 17—(AP)—An old New England land mark around which clustered history and tradition reaching back 256 years was destroyed today when fire wiped out the old Skiff house, later known as Hollyholm, at Chilmark. The loss is estimated at half a million dollars. With the building, which was the property of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Eustis, formerly of Brookline, were destroyed heirlooms, old furniture, jewelry and silverware, much of which cannot be replaced.

The house was of Dutch Colonial design, was of substantial pine construction and had 16 rooms. It was one of the oldest houses on the island and was known as a show place. Around it centered many tales of pirates and buried treasure.

The stockholders of the Curtis Publishing company of Philadelphia approved an increase in the preferred stock from 200,000 shares to 900,000 shares of no par value, and the proportionate distribution of 700,000 shares of the new preferred to common stockholders.

ADVERTISE

What would please you most at Christmas?
What do you expect to get?
Is there anything you've longed for
That you haven't got as yet?
Would you like an automobile,
Or a seven-tube radio?
Make your mind up what would please you,
And let everybody know.

Do your Christmas hinting early,
And make out a little list
Of the things you'd like, to make it
More unlikely you'll be missed.
Christmas now is fast approaching,
Everyone will tell you so,
Make your mind up what your wants are,
And let everybody know.

Don't be bashful, don't be timid;
If you want a thing, speak out.
There's a chance that you may get it,
Even though there is some doubt.
Now the old year is departing,
And the days will swiftly go.
Think what you would like for Christmas,
And let everybody know!

"I meant that she had grown too big for them and they will have to be thrown away," was the reply.

"Well, then, mamma," continued Ralph, "how long will it be before I outgrow your slippers?"—Chicago News.

WORLD'S RECORD FOR HOURS OF FLYING IN ONE YEAR

BOSTON, Dec. 17—(AP)—Establishing what is believed to be the world's record for hours of flying in one year, Lieut. Reginald D. Thomas, officer commanding the U. S. naval reserve air station at Squantum, today completed his 1925 total of 70 hours 30 minutes official flying time. A flight which ended at 12:50 o'clock today when Lieut. Thomas brought his plane down on Dorchester Bay was the final item on the aviator's program.

At an average sped of 68 to 70 miles an hour, Lieut. Thomas this year had rolled up a mileage of 98,000 or four times the circuit of the globe. The record has been made without injury to plane or personnel and all the flying was done while carrying student pilots or other officers as part of the naval flying duty.

William Sarzeneky, 33, of Wallingford was injured when the automobile truck he was driving was struck by a New Haven railroad train at the Parker street crossing.

225,760 CAR LOADINGS OF BITUMINUS COAL LAST WEEK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—(AP)—Bituminous coal loadings at the mines for the week ending December 5 were the highest since the week of December 4, 1920, th American Railway association announced tonight, placing the total at 225,760 cars. This, it said, was an increase of 32,568 over the same week last year, and 47,727 above the same week in 1923.

Loadings of anthracite from stock piles, storage and washeries during the ten weeks, the association said, totalled 57,403 cars of which 3,509 were loaded during the last week.

U. S. ATT'Y BUCKNER'S PROHIBITION VIEWS

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—The prohibition law should be strictly enforced or repealed or modified, United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner, declared today in a luncheon address to the Aldine club.

"I believe if prohibition is to be enforced," he added, "it is up to the government to organize and enforce it."

Mr. Buckner earlier had cited figures showing that deaths from alcohol poisoning in New York city had increased from 87 in 1918, to 511 for the first 11 months of 1925. Prohibition liquor, he said, was solely responsible for the startling increase in fatalities.

Mr. Buckner began his talk on "prohibition liquor," by telling his audience that the real rum row has moved from the sea to the lofts and office buildings of New York city, which, he said, was another way of saying that the great bulk of liquor consumed in the United States is manufactured within the country, and not imported. The source of this manufacture, he said, was denatured alcohol which was diverted from legitimate, industrial channels to the bootegs pools. The failure of bootleggers to extract all of the poison with which grain alcohol is diluted in the process of denaturing, he said, accounted for the increase in the number of alcoholic poisonings. Ninety-nine per cent. of the cases of alcoholic poisoning during the past two years, Mr. Buckner asserted, were due to poison still remaining in liquor made from denatured alcohol, which the bootleggers had failed to remove.

Turning to prospective steps toward remedying this situation, Mr. Buckner said that Federal Prohibition Administrator Lincoln C. Andrews had come to realize that the prohibition problem in this country, "is not rum row and naval battles off the coast, but is the stopping of the tidal wave of poisoned alcohol from officially controlled plants and official permittes into the bootleg trade." As a result, he said, federal inspection at denaturing plants—"which means officially supervised poisoning plants," had been improved and the amount of alcohol distributed by such plants had been reduced by 50 per cent. He said that at least 40 million gallons of poison alcohol had gone into the bootleg trade within the last year.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Buckner, "the scrapping of General Andrews of the huge administrative pyramid in Washington has been one of the greatest services which he has rendered."

POPE TO RESUME IN 1926 THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

ROME, De. 17—(AP)—The Tribuna says the pope has decided to resume in 1926 the ecumenical council interrupted by the fall of the temporal power in 1870. The reunion of all Christian churches will be discussed, the paper adds, and the opinions will be asked of the bishops gathered from all over the world as the best way to solve the vexed Coman question, namely, the status of the pontiff in Rome and his relations with the Italian government.

SAFETY EDUCATION COURSE PLANNED FOR THE SCHOOLS

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 17—There is a project in al the public schools in the town of Plainfield, to start a course in safety education. Probably the course will be given in the High school, to its students. The proposed plan was discussed at a recent meeting held at the Lawton Inn following a luncheon. Those present were: John L. Chapman superintendent of schools, and the four principals, Cecil L. Butler, of Plainfield, Abbie L. Medbury, Central Village, I. R. Libby, Wauregan and William H. Bailey of Moosup. Miss Isabelle Stevenson, supervising field secretary of the National Safety council, was at the meeting and offered a number of suggestions.

A very interesting programme was carried out at the social and entertainment given by the O. J. S. society Wednesday evening. The programme included: Selections by the Ukelele Quartet of young ladies from the M. E. church, Moosup, Miss Alice Salisbury, Miss Arline Main, Madge Briggs, and Eleanor Bridge. Mrs. Augusta Nolan gave several piano numbers, and Mrs. Lotta R. Dodge readings. The young ladies of the ukelele quartet, wore quaint costumes which won enthusiastic applause. There were a good number present, who bought freely at the sale booths. Mrs. Ernest Plassman and Mrs. Lyman Lisner had charge of the candy table, Miss Florence Wibberly and Miss Mary Baldwin were at the ice cream table, and Mrs. Everett Dawley and Mrs. Winfred Gardner were in charge of the hot dogs, coffee, and cake counter. Miss Ruth Higginbotham sung, accompanied by Miss Eva Higginbotham at the piano. Mrs. Arthur Moffitt, the former president was in charge. A good amount was realized for the Congregational church.

UNION

At the meeting of Mashapaug Lake Grange, held Wednesday evening, Dec. 16, Ernest E. Tucker, of Rockville, farm bureau agent for Tolland county, was the guest of the evening. His address on "What Our Grange Can Do for the Community" was very interesting and brought out practical points that should prove helpful.

County Agent and Mrs. E. E. Tucker of Rockville were guests at the parsonage Wednesday evening.

L. M. Reed had three of his flock of sheep badly bitten by dogs last week.

The schools are closing today (Friday) for the Christmas vacation.

The pupils of the schools are preparing public exercises for the Christmas Eve program to be held at the church in connection with the Christmas tree. It is rumored that Santa Claus has been out this week getting his pack filled ready to trim the tree. The church is nearly always well filled on Christmas Eve.

Mrs. H. A. Coolidge started for Ann Arbor, Mich., Thursday afternoon, taking the train at Springfield, Mass. She will be the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Firestone, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Coolidge moved from Somers to Newington this week.

L. M. Reed was the guest of relatives in Worcester, Mass., last week, also visited Boston, Cambridge, Lexington and Concord.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Moore and son, Charles Moore, of Worcester, Mass., were at their summer home at Mashapaug for the week end.

Raymond C. Barrows was in Springfield, Mass, last week, attending the meeting of Devon breeders.

John and Charles Thompson of Charlton, Mass, were at the Thompson home at Mashapaug last week. Saturday they went over the line to participate in Massachusetts' open season, and captured a deer.

Holcomb R. Howard, Adelbert Agard and William Clayton are on jury duty at Rockville this week.

Lloyd Eaton of Connecticut Agricultural college spent the week end with his uncle and cousin at the Eaton home, Mashapaug.

Mrs. Ada Yeaw who has spent several months with her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Barrows, went to Marion, Ohio, last week. She will be with her daughter, Mrs. F. C. Hunter, in Marion, and with her son, Leon Yeaw, in Cleveland, for the winter.

Misses Esther and Irene Moore spent the week end with their aunt, Mrs. D. B. Williams, in Worcester.

CRAWFORD NOTCH NAMED FOR A NATIVE OF UNION

There was a good attendance at the last meeting of the Union Parent-Teacher association. The lecture on New England, illustrated by lantern slides was much enjoyed. When the pictures of the White Mountain region were shown, Mrs. H. R. Howard, who read the lecture, called attention to the fact that Abel Crawford, for whom Crawford Notch was named, was one of Union's sons. He lived where George Thayer does, before leaving Union for New Hampshire. There were many Crawford's in Union.

NEW LONDON DISCOVERS TWO CASES OF PASSING OF WORTHLESS CHECKS

NEW LONDON, Dec. 17—Fred A. Wilson, chief petty officer, United States Coast Guard stationed at the state pier, was today declared by the military authorities to be a deserter. Wilson is wanted not only by the military authorities, but by the civil authorities, for he is accused of having negotiated at least two fraudulent checks here within a month. One of the checks was passed on Morris Malove, Bank street jeweler for $53 and the other was tendered Charles Minof, proprietor of the Star garage and was for $400 as part payment for an Overland sedan. The automobile has since been returned to the garage by a friend of Wilson, who stated that he left the chief petty officer in New York and returned the car to the garage at the request of Wilson.

Chester H. Daley, a sailor, stationed at the local United States Coast Guard, local section base, No. 4, whom the police have sought for a number of weeks, to answer charges of negotiating worthless checks, it was revealed today is a prisoner at the New London county jail, being detained on a court martial charge of desertion. Daley, who is a member of the crew of the destroyer Erickson, is alleged to have negotiated a worthless check in the sum of $50 on Gregory Pappas, proprietor of the Sea Food restaurant, Bank street. The police of Providence also hold a warrant for Daley's arrest charging him with passing worthless checks in that city. This afternoon Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky issued a warrant for Daley's arrest and as soon as officers at the state pier are advised to do so, Daley will be delivered to the local authorities.

A committee of New London lodge of Elks is soliciting contributions from members of the order for providing Christmas cheer for the needy poor of the city. The lodge has made a yearly custom of giving to the children and to the deserving adults who would be without aid except for this charity.

Thrift week is to be inaugurated in this city after the Christmas holiday with the idea of inducing people to save something for times of need. The idea is a good one, but it is as old as the hills about the city. The Christmas clubs of late years have brought to the shiftless and the thoughtless money that they would not otherwise have to draw upon during the holidays and it has been the nucleus of many a later bank account.

O'Leary's hotel and restaurant, corner of Green and Golden street, was threatened with serious damage by fire shortly after 9 o'clock this morning when a lively blaze started in the kitchen. While one of the chefs was handling a large container of grease the inflammable liquid became ignited and caused a volume of flame to envelop a section of the kitchen. So threatening did the flames become than an alarm was sent in from Box 313. With the arrival of the department the fire was quickly extinguished and without serious damage resulting.

Miss Isabelle Palmer, of Tiverton, R. I.; Lava Mantani, Jewett City; Mrs. Kenneth Clinton and infant son, Hamburg; William Beach, 62 Colman street; Mrs. James Wheeler and infant son, Gales Ferry, and Mrs. Thomas Tannock, Fort Wright, Fishers Island, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Mrs. Beth Clemons, assistant town clerk, is confined to her home on Blackhall street, by a severe cold.

Another case of scarlet fever developed here today when Ruth Shepard, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher Shepard, 858 Bank street became ill.

Harry Elionsky, a youth residing in the southern part of the city and a former student at Bulkeley High school, was taken into custody this forenoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with the theft of a pair of shoes, valued at $7.50, the property of a student at the high school. Elionsky sold the shoes later to an acquaintance for $1. Elionsky was recently expelled from the school.

There were but a couple of cases before the police court this morning. Both accused men having been found intoxicated. The accused are Patrick Brady, a bargeman who was in an eating place known as The Teapot, a resort for sailors. He was found about 2.30 yesterday afternoon when he came from the place and was arrested. He has been before the court four times during the year so he was penalized with a fine of $5 today. He was without funds, so went to jail. James Moran, a stranger, was in the court on the 2nd of October last and upon his representations then, judgment was suspended. He was not so leniently treated today He is in jail now.

The funeral of Harry M. Rankin, formerly United States steamboat inspector here, whose death occurred at a New Haven hospital, was held here this afternoon. A prayer service was conducted at 3 o'clock at Mr. Rankin's home, 80 Lincoln avenue by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. At 3:30 o'clock public services were held at Brainard Masonic lodge, conducted by Worshipful Master Charles F. Potter and Chaplain J. Romeyn Danforth. Members of the lodge acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of O. P. Robinson, 234 Ocean avenue, to be returned to the owner, the license having been suspended several weeks ago.

The rush of mail for Christmas has begun here and carriers are burdened with the weight of packages, letters etc. Beside the tracks of the trolley road this evening there is more than a ton of mail in sacks, besides a quantity of parcels that would have been considered a wonder, some score of years ago.

Small stores continue to crop up in all sections of the city. How they are made to pay is something of a mystery to all but those who have the task in hand.

Seekers after automobile licenses are making sure that they receive certificates that will entitle them to drive cars after the new year sets in, for activity is apparent about the office of the motor vehicle department in the Turello block on Lower Bank street. Edivently those who are this early seeking their licenses do not mean to be caught driving on the 1st day of January without the authority required by the state. Usually the autoists wait until their licenses have expired and then they have to stand in line for hours at a time, before they can be served.

There is an unusual number of sailors in the ships at this port at present and they are to be seen everywhere. They paydays make business for merchants, for the boys spend all the money they receive.

Showing how little frost there is in the ground on the 17th of December, a trench, is open for the laying of pipe on Montauk avenue. That verifies the statement often made that the climate is changing in this section. Years ago the sewer department of the city had a rule that no trenches were opened after the 1st of December. Now there is considerable work of that character in progress.

Christmas trees are abundant and of fine quality and scores of stores have them for sale. The trees come chiefly from Maine.

John Brower, a character well known to the police, was arrested this evening when he was found down and out, at the corner of Golden and Union streets, Patrolmen Edward Riordan and John Clifford taking Brewer into custody.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bull and Miss Priscilla Hunt of Mystic, have moved to New London for the winter, having taken an apartment in the Ye Faire Harbour, 11 Broad street.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Brown, 73 Broad street, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen D. Brown, to Davis Adams Uebelacher, of Hackensack, N. J. The wedding, it is understood, will take place next spring.

Herbert and Harold O'Neill, Peroia, Ill., are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert O'Neill 131 Broad street.

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Taylor, of Quaker Hill, have left for Florida, where they will remain until late spring.

BALTIC RUNAWAY GIRL WAS TAKEN BACK HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 17—Blanche Trudeau, 20, of 59 River street, Baltic, was taken into custody this forenoon by Patrolman Clarence Martin when the officer found the girl on State street and ascertained from her that she had run away from home. She was later taken home by a state police officer from Groton barracks.

LOUIS BURNETT DROPS DEAD AS HE SAVES WORKMAN'S LIFE

NEW LONDON, Dec. 17—After having saved the life of a fellow worker, late yesterday Louis Burnett, 42, married and residing with his wife and six children at 27 Walbach street, dropped dead of heart disease when the heart was over-taxed by the strenuous work performed by Burnett in saving Joseph McFee.

Burnett and McFee were engaged unloading a carload of coke for use of the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company, Pequot avenue, the car being on a side-track in the rear of the company's plant. McFee was in the car, a gondola, and as some of the coke was refoved from the car, a quantity of the fuel on all four sides started to leave the sides and roll to where McFee was at work, shovelling. In an instant McFee was overwhelmed by the fuel, his head even being out of sight. Burnett observed McFee's predicament. Climbing into the car and then shoveling vigorously in his endeavor to remove the fuel from about McFee's body and head, Burnett finally was successful. His fellow worker being rescued, Burnett dropped his shovel and falling backward and uttering a "good-bye," he dropped dead on the coke. McFee summoned assistance and the body of Burnett was transferred to the office of the Babcock company and a physician summoned in the hopes that Burnett might still be alive. On the arrival of a physician it was determined that Burnett had expired as he collapsed.

TWO OTHER ARRESTS MADE IN GOLDEN ST. SCANDAL

NEW LONDON, Dec. 17—As was anticipated arrests were made today in connection with the confessions made by Hazel Mara, 26 Woodbridge street, and Dorothy Armstrong, 144 Howard street, who were recently apprehended, following their alleged immoral conduct and who are now inmates of state institutions. Mrs. Mary Peterson, alias Maude Pleant, proprietress of the rooming house, 24 Golden street, and Eldephone Tarras, were taken into custody. The Peterson woman is charged with having knowledge as to the "conduct to the delinquency of a minor female," and Tarras is held as a material witness. The Peterson woman was liberated in bail of $500 for her appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Louis Elfenbein qualifying as surety on her bond, but Tarras was compelled to occupy a cell to await the taking of his testimony because he was unable to obtain a surety on his bond of an amount equal to that of the Peterson woman.

The Golden street rooming house is the place the Mara girl was seen to enter in company with a sailor, following the statement that she had made to her mother that she was planning to attend a motion picture performance. The mother followed the couple to the place and then lodged complaint with the police.

The arrests in this case have not been concluded, it is believed, for throughout today Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh, together with Policewoman Jane Cassidy interrogated several witnesses including a negro woman, and two other women, both white, one a girl of about 18, who has been under the surveillance of the police for a long time. Neither was police for a long time. Neither were held, however, although their statements were taken by the investigators.

RUMOR FRANK L. M'GUIRE MAY BE DIRECTOR OF LAW

NEW LONDON, Dec. 17—The city council is to elect a successor to Charles B. Whittlesey as director of law at the meeting Monday evening next. Thomas E. Troland, Arthur Keefe and Frank L. McGuire may be the candidates from whom the council will select its legal advisor. Messrs Troland and Keefe have been candidates since the resignation of Mr. Whittlesey was sent to the council, but it is understood that Mr. McGuire has been approached by friends who have urged him to become a candidate and that he has practically consented to allow the use of his name. Mr. McGuire has served the city as its law advisor and won the esteem and confidence of the members of the council. In the event that he is earnestly seeking the office he will get a support that has not been foreseen by the other candidates. Mr. Troland was a candidate when Mr. Whittlesey was chosen and lacked only a single vote then of selection. But the conditions that prevailed then do not now exist. Mr. McGuire made a determined resistance in suits that were brought against the city for damage by persons who fell on icy sidewalks and he was very successful in averting the payment of damages by the city for alleged neglect. He took the view of the matter that the city could not insure the life and limbs of persons who used the sidewalks and held that when the city had endeavored to remove dangerous conditions it had done all that could be done. He represented to court and jury that the users of the walks were bound to exercise reasonable care when they went abroad. He defended successfully a case that was brought for damages because of a fall on a State street walk from which it was shown the snow had been removed a few hours before the alleged accident happened and under which sidewalk there had been placed heat to keep the walk from becoming dangerous to pedestrians. Mr. McGuire's record in the office will be in his favor, in the event that he becomes a candidate for the place again.

Miss Olga Cook, prima donna of "The Student Prince," was secretly married yesterday to G. Keith Line, riding academy owner in Chicago. She plans to abandon the stage in three weeks and spend the winter in Florida with her husband.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Louis K. Liggett Stores

Total sales in the 335 stores of the Louis K. Liggett Company, subsidiary of the United Drug Company of Boston for the month of November were $3,648,527 as against $3,071,513 in the corresponding month of 1924. An increase of $577,014 or 18.78 per cent. Of this increase $286,539 or 9.76 per cent was in comparative stores.

The entire business in each one of its subdivisions, namely—Prescriptions, medicines, rubber goods, toilet goods, candy, cigar and soda showed increases of from 10 to 20 per cent.

The sales do not reflect to any extent the recent expansion policy on the western coast.

This is all virgin territory to the Liggett Company as expansion heretofore has been confined east of the Rocky mountains.

A complete organization as well as warehouses have been established to go after this western business in an aggresive manner. Stores to the number of 21 are now in operation in Oakland, Hollywood, Glendale, Alameda and Berkley, California; Portland, Oregon and Spokane, Washington.

Palace Theatre

There is a show at the Palace today that no one should miss. Rin Tin Tin the dog hero is here in Tracked in the Snow Country and he thrilled every man, woman and child in the audience last night. Rin Tin Tin proved that he was in a class by himself. Some of the most thrilling scenes ever seen on the screen, one in particular with Mitchell Lewis that is a hair raiser. Rin Tin Tin plays the role of a wolf dog born of a race of man killers. The story tells how he tracks the murderer of his master. He becomes imprisoned in a mine but with a sensational leap he frees himself pursuing the villian across the frozen river pushing him back again and again into the frozen waters to his final death.

Five good acts of Paramount vaudeville featuring the Carlton revenue. Three girls and two boys who introduce some very clever dances and songs. Friend and Watkins in The Immigrant is a funny bit of comedy that keeps the audience laughing. A comedy bar act George and Letty Mitchell in songs and dances. Scott McKee a clever boy on the banjo make up the rest of the bill.

Sunday the management announces they will offer Recompense that was postponed recently on account of some objections that was raised by persons who read the story. The picture has been personally reviewed and while it is daring it is splendidly acted and will offend no one. Robert Keable the author of Simon Call Peter is the author and Marie Prevost and Monte Blue play the star roles. Simon Call Peter is the story that every producer looked at with covetous eyes but could not afford to take a chance with it. But Recompense is a continuation, picks up the characters with all the fire and animation that made the former book the talk of two continents, and Beaumont who directed the picture has handled it with real artistry so that none of the original intention is lost.

Broadway Theater

The phrase, the greatest Swanson picture ever made, has been used before. Not without truth. But if ever a picture merited that phrase, it's The Coast of Folly. Only this time it ought to be printed in bold italics, for that's just what it is—The Greatest Swanson Picture Ever Made—and it opens Sunday at the Broadway on a double feature bill.

It's a story of frivolous, fashionable, money-drunk Palm Beach. Of a beautiful girl (played by Gloria Swanson) who is swallowed up in the dangerous undercurrent and dashed upon the shoals of scandal. How she fights back and finally finds the harbor of love and happiness is absorbingly told without a second's let-down of suspense.

Not only is this Gloria's greatest acting role—her first big dual role in which she plays two distinct characters—but also her greatest fashion role in which she displays the latest in beach and ballroom styles. Gorgeous doesn't half describe them.

Tonight at the Broadway is Prize Night. Free gifts will be given away, but you'll get more than your share when you see the perfect Keith Vaudeville program of five acts, each a distinct hit, and a splendid photoplay The Virgin which is a comedy drama with a very select cast.

Breed Theater

"Jiggers Skinny, here comes the cop!"

That was the cry that went up as a blue-coated figure stalked into one of the class rooms of the Holy Name Parochial school in New York one day during the filming of The Making of O'Malley, the First National picture to be shown at the Breed theater Friday and Saturday.

But the traditional awe of the mischievous child for the policeman gave way before shouts of jubilant greeting as the youngsters recognized in the wearer of the uniform one of their favorite film stars—Milton Sills.

Sills spent two days at the school filming scenes for the picture. Rev. Joseph A. Kerwin, head of the school, and Brother Walter, the principal, turned the schoolroom and 750 of the children over to Earl Hudson, who supervised the production.

In one of the scenes Sills is called to make a speech to a schoolroom full of youngsters. He is a New York policeman, unaccustomed to speaking, and of course, meets with difficulty in getting started. After a lot of false starts and sputtering he finally shouts: "I'm Officer Jim. I'm here to see you get protection. Now, all of you be good boys and girls and mind your teacher."

Of course, that wasn't what he wanted to say.

When Sills started his speech the youngsters howled with joy. Every time he stopped to gulp they shouted until they could be heard in the street. Director Lambert Hillyer and his assistants labored for almost an hour before they could quiet the mob long enough to film the scene.

EXPERT'S OPINION ON THE EFFECTS OF THE "MOVIES"

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Frequent and indiscriminate "going to the movies" undoubtedly has its effect in weakening the development of the normal mind, according to Dr. Sanger Brown, 2nd, chairman of the state commission on mental defectives, who today gave the Associated Press his views on the results on the mass mind of the ever-growing attraction of "the movies."

"Moving pictures are undoubtedly the easiest conceivable manner of registering impressions upon the mind," said the specialist. "To go and sit for hours upon end watching a procession of visual images that are poured into the brain, certainly is the equivalent of bringing up a spoon-fed mind. The exercise that a mind gets in making its own associations—for instance, summing up in own visual images to illustrate stories read in books—is lost, and with this loss of exercise come probably a lessening in the power of the mind to make these associations. I should say that continual attendance at the movies might make just the difference in a normal individual between a good mind and a very mediocre one, or an average mind and a poor one.

"I believe children lose a great deal if they are permitted to form their early impressions from the screen, rather than from their own observations of the world and the people around them, or from their own powers of imagination. The type of screen dramas, so much in vogue today, the "high life" stories, would seem to me a particularly bad influence in setting false standards. The high powered cars, the luxurious homes, the costly clothes and jewels shown in films all tend to emphasize the importance of these things in the minds of those who haven't got them.

"So far I am thinking of the effect of continual attendance at the movie on the normal mind, when we begin to consider the effect on the abnormal mind, the consequences may be far more serious. It seems quite possible that some of the otherwise inexplicable crimes of the mentally weak have been committed as a result of things suggested on the screen. Slap-stick comedies, as well as detective thrillers featuring the commission of crimes, may have their effect in suggesting similar deeds to the individual unable to discriminate between right and wrong, the comedian of the film knocks a man out with a length of "lead pipe" the audience laughs, the weak-minded spectator among them. We could hardly wonder if he went out afterwards and felled his pal with a similar blow, "just because he had the notion to." Suggestion is something that must be guarded against in the case of weak-minded citizens, and there can be no stronger suggestion than that of the actual protography of humans shown on the screen."

MAY REVISE WESTMINSTER CONFESSION OF FAITH

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—Prompt revision of the Westminster confession of faith has been requested by nearly 100 "young ministers" assert that "one of the chief causes of unrest within our church is the wide difference of opinion in the church regarding the exact meaning of subscription to the confession of faith," and state that they can see little hope for peace in the church so long as this confusion of mind exists.

"We believe that the first and most necessary step toward securing and maintaining the peace, purity and progress of our church is immediate coordination and revision of the terms of subscription to the Westminster confession as will make unmistakably explicit that it is not a final and pertest of Orthodoxy," the letter stated.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF CHRISTMAS DIVIDENDS AND BONUSES

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—Christmas dividends and bonuses announced in the financial district today reached a total of more than $5,000,000.

Heading the list with a $3 extra dividend on common shares was the American Can company. A fifty per cent stock dividend with an exchange of six new shares for one of the old certificates when the present par value of the stock is reduced from $100 to $25, was proposed, the directors announcing their intention of paying a $2 annual dividend on the new stock.

Other companies announcing extra dividends on common stock were: the Industrial Acceptance corporation, 1; the Richmond Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, $5; Syracuse Washing Machine Corporation, $1; the Mutual Bank, five per cent; the Brooklyn Trust company, three per cent; St. Joseph Lead company, $1, payable in quarterly installments of 25 cents; MacAndrews and Forbes company, five per cent, the General Fire Proofing company, 70 cents a share and Hamilton-Brown Shoe company, two per cent.

The Title Guarantee and Trust company announced it would divide $1,200,000 among its employes, the largest bonus ever given their workers. The disbursement range from 16 to 47 per cent of the yearly salary of the employes and officers, based on the length of service. Other firms announcing Christmas bonuses to employes today were: the Mutual Bank, ten per cent of yearly salary to employes and officers and the Fulton Trust company, 10 per cent to employes and officers.

DUELLISTS RECONCILED WITHOUT SHEDDING BLOOD

PARIS, Dec. 17—(AP)—The latest Paris "affair of honor," in which Francois Richepin, grandson of Jean Richepin, the Academician, and Pierre Brisson, dramatic critic of The Temps, were the principals, ended on the field of combat today without the shedding of blood and without the duellists becoming reconciled.

Brisson fired two shots in the air, while Richepin stood stolidly as a target to defend his mother's historic honor. Richepin himself did not fire.

The duel followed an attack made on Brisson in the lobby of the Odeon theatre, Richepin taking exception to a criticism of the performance of his mother, Mme. Cora Laparcerie, in the principal role of a new piece written by her husband, Jacques Richepin.

Maytag Gyrofoam Washer

for Men

IF EVER there were a man's choice in a good practical gift for his wife —or mother—it's the Maytag Gyrafoam Washer.

On every point on which he would ask for proof,—why the Gyrafoam is the quickest,—why it is most thorough,—why it is the most careful washing principle in the world today—the proof is immediately evident in a demonstration.

A few minutes' demonstration at our show rooms TODAY, will show you an astonishing revelation in clothes-washing—a tubful of dry clothes washed in 3 to 7 minutes. Its washing method is so thorough and careful that it not only eliminates the hand rubbing of cuffs, wristbands and collars, but adds materially to the life of even the most delicate pieces.

Consider these nine outstanding features and you'll appreciate why it's the most-wished-for gift at home. Drop in. We'll show you the Washer.

1 Washes faster.
2 Washes cleaner.
3 Largest hourly capacity in the world.
4 Most compact washer made—takes floor space only 25 inches square.
5 Cast aluminum tub—can't warp, rot, swell, split or corrode.
6 Easily adjusted to your height.
7 Clothes can be put in or taken out with the washer running
8 Tub cleans itself.
9 All metal wringer. Self adjusting. Instant tension release.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks firm: Industrials recapture speculative interest.

Bonds steady: Rail issues in demand.

Foreign exchanges mixed: French francs lower.

Cotton steady: Large cables.

Sugar lower: Weak cables.

Coffee easy: Poor spot demand.

Chicago

Wheat lower: Disappointing cables.

Corn easy: Continued good weather.

Cattle easy: Heavy steers in liberal supply.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Confused price movements characterized today's stock market. Short covering operations brought about sharp rallies in a number of industrials, particularly in the motor group, while some of the recently strong spots in the rails dropped back on profit taking. Total sales fell just short of 2,000,000 shares.

The recovery in the industrials was influenced by easier money rates, a series of favorable dividend developments including the long-awaited split up of American Can, the apparent absence of any extensive forced liquidation as a result of recent decline and publication of re-assuring statements on business conditions.

Commodity markets were reactionary, wheat cotton and sugar prices all losing ground. French francs rejected slightly.

American Can opened at 253 advanced to 256 and then broke to 252 on the traditional "selling on the good news." The stock later snapped back to 259 but sold off again to 253 1-2 at the close. United States Steel common closed one half lower at 136 1-2 and Crucible, whose directors increased the dividend yesterday, closed only fractionally higher at 91 1-2.

Motors recovered some on the ground lost earlier in the week. Chrysler rallied from a low of 192 to 199 7-8 and then eased to 198 1-4 for a net gain of 6 1-2 on the day. Hudson and Mack truck each showed net gains of about 8 points at 99 1-2 and 312 1-2 respectively. Stewart Warner scored an extreme gain of over four points at 85 1-4, a new high for 1925. On reports of a substantial increase in radio business in the last quarter of the year. General Motors, (Fisher Body, Murray Body, Dupont, Nash, Pierce-Arrow preferred, Spicer Manufacturing and Stromberg Carburetor were 2 to 6 points higher.

Trading in the railroad shares showed a marked contraction in volume although Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Lehigh Valley and Wabash preferred A mounted to new peak prices for the year. Good buying also was noted in Lackawanna and Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred. Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio, Rock Island, Great Northern preferred and reading lost a point or so.

Specialties in which favorable dividend or merger developments are reported to be pending were bid up in spirited fashion. New peak prices were recorded by Burns Brothers A, Columbia Carbon, Continental Insurance, Matteson Alkali and Weber and Heilbroner.

Bullish operators also were resumed in a number of oil shares, Associated moving up over two points to a new top at 46 1-8. Pacific Oil and General Petroleum also advanced a point on reports of large current earnings.

Call money renewed at 4 3-4 per cent, holding at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

French francs turned heavy on a subsidence of short covering by professional speculators, demand bills on Paris dropping 3 1-2 points to 3.83 1-2 cents. Demand sterling held firm at $4.84 3-4. Polish sloty broke 25 points to 10 cents and the other European rates moved within narrow and irregular limits.

TAFTVILLE

Unusually long freight trains, many of the cars loaded with Christmas trees, pass daily through the village.

Castle Perilous, K. O. K. A., met Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. The officers of the conclave were: King, Forrest Heinrich; herald, Frank Moore; sentinel, Edwin Troeger; seneschal, Curtis Hedler. Conclaves will now be suspended until after the holidays. Attention was called to the annual provincial conclave which is to be held on February 22nd, 1926, in some city near Boston. It is not known whether the local castle will be able to send a delegation or not to the provincial conclave, but if not, it has been suggested that the opening of the provincial meeting be celebrated with a special ceremonial at the local castle.

Fire department No. 3, is to be commended for the manner in which they fought the fire when the barn of Edmund Proulx on Hunters avenue was destroyed by fire Wednesday evening. The prompt answer to the alarm and the way the situation was met kept the flames from spreading in this locality which is very closely built. At times the house and garage were threatened, being within only a few feet of the blaze, but there being little or no wind and plenty of water, this was prevented.

Providence papers have repruduced this week an autographed photograph of Lilli Lehmann, the world-renowned singer and instructor of opera aspirants. The photo was sent from Germany by Mme. Lehmann, to a native of Windham, Dr. Jules Jordan, of Providence.

It was inscribed: "To Dr. Jules Jordan, the great master and artist with many greetings from his admirer, Lilli Lehmann." The photograph was sent from Grunewald.

In a letter accompanying the portrait, Mme. Lehmann reported the successful progress of Lucia Chagnon, a promising young singer of Arctic, R. I. pupil of Dr. Jordan, by whose advice she is now in Berlin studying with the German teacher of operatic roles.

Dr. Jordan, who recently noted his 70th birthday, comes of a musical family His twin brother, Julian Jordan wrote the famous ballad, "The Song Which Reached My Heart." Dr. Jules Jordan has been a prolific writer of cantatas, carols, light operas and successful songs. One of the most famous of his sacred composition is his setting of Ave Maria, which is sung in Roman Catholic churches throughout the country. That he should win such praise from a distinguished musician like Lilli Lehmann has greatly pleased the musical world of Providence, where he was conductor of the famous Arion Club for more than forty years. Dr. Jordan's home is No. 258 Waterman street, Providence.

AUTOPSY PERFORMED ON BODY OF MAN EXHUMED FROM LOCAL CEMETERY

On orders of Coronor Arthur G. Bill, Danielson, coroner for Windham county, an autopsy was performed in this city Thursday afternoon on the body of Guiseppe Distefano, 27, who was found dead in the rear of a Meadow street house, Willimantic, early in the morning of November 26th, the day set for his wedding. Wednesday the body which had been buried in St. Joseph's cemetery, this city, was exhumed and taken to the undertaking rooms of Cummings and Ring, where Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve of this city performed the autopsy at 2.30 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Present at the autopsy were County Detective William E. Jackson of Windham county and Lieut. Frank McLean of the Willimantic police department. Dr. Gildersleeve declined to make any statement as to the result of the autopsy. He stated that he had not yet forwarded his report on the autopsy to Coroner Bill.

County Detective William E. Jackson stated Thursday night that he was not at liberty to give out any information regarding the result of the autopsy.

Coroner Bill, from his home in Danielson, said that he had ordered the body exhumed and the autopsy and performed in order to ascertain how many bullet wounds the body showed. Asked if he had any suspicion of foul play, Coroner Bill said he had "no more than at the time the body was found." The coroner stated that he was awaiting the report of Dr. Gildersleeve which had not reached him.

Reticence on the part of various officials connected with the case to give out the result of the autopsy serves to indicate that the autopsy was warranted. After the autopsy the body was reburied.

Distefano died from a bullet wound and his body was found on the day he was to have been married to Miss Rosa Guarniere of Willimantic. She had not seen him since October 30, when he attended a miscellaneous shower held in her honor. At the time the body was discovered the theory was advanced by relatives and friends that he had been murdered, although they could advance no motive for the shooting.

No reason could be given for the man's disappearance October 30th. Relatives and friends expressed a belief that he had been kidnapped. Following preliminary investigations by Coroner Bill and Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason, of Willimantic, the body was brought to this city by local relatives and buried in St. Joseph's cemetery.

SUPLUICKI BOY'S BODY RECOVERED FROM RIVER

The body of Frank Supluicki, 15, of South street, Thamesville, was recovered from the Thames river, Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock, by Ernest Colburn, of Hunters avenue, Taftville, employed in erecting a building near the Thamesville plant of the American Woolen company.

Mr. Colburn noticed some object floating in the water about half way across the river, between the American Woolen plant and the American Thermos Bottle Co., and later discovered that it was the body of a human being. Securing a rowboat, Mr. Colburn went out to the body and finally managed to attach a rope to the body and tow it to the shore. The father of the Supluicki boy was summoned and identified it as that of his son.

Chief George Linton, of the Norwich police department, was notified of the finding of the body and sent Officer Charles Smith to the scene. News of the discovery of the body spread quickly and several hundred people went onto the river bank, but they were kept at a distance by Officer Smith who feared injury might befall them should they crowd onto the bank.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve was notified and the identification of the body was made in his presence. The body was badly discolored and was clothed in dark trousers, a black sweater and a pair of shoes.

The Supluicki boy was drowned November 13th when a boat, in which he was riding with other young people, capsized in the Thames river, not far from where the body was found. Efforts made at that time to locate the body proved unsuccessful. Other members of the company in the rowboat escaped with a wetting although there were several narrow escapes from drowning.

The Supluicki boy was employed at the American Thermos Bottle company and was considered an efficient employe. He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Stephen and John and two sisters, all of this city.

SHERMAN STREET BOY BROKE THROUGH ICE

After breaking through the thin ice about in the middle of the Yantic river, at a point near the Canada bridge, the 12-year old son of Edward and Maryanna Marak, of 54 Sherman street, narrowly escaped drowning, being hauled back to shore after a long fight in the icy water, when neighbors secured a clothesline and threw it out to him, dragging him to shore.

The boy was near the island, just north of Canada bridge, when the ice gave way and he fell into the water, in the deep channel. He tried to fight his way to shore and the ice continued to give way under him for a distance of about 40 feet. No rope being handy a call was sent to the Central fire station and Squad A and Chief H. L. Stanton rushed to the river. Before the apparatus arrived with the ropes neighbors had managed to secure clothes lines and William Coleman succeeded in getting one end to the boy, who was then hauled ashore, reaching the bank just as the firemen arrived.

The youth wanted to go to school just as he was but he was rushed to his home and his clothing was changed. The boy seemed none the worse for his wetting and his coolness of mind probably saved him from drowning before a rope could be secured and be thrown out to him.

TEN DAY COURSE IN MILK PLANT OPERATION

STORRS, Dec. 17.—Announcement of a short course for beginners in milk plant operation to be given by the Connecticut Agricultural college was made here today by Professor R. E. Dodge, director of short courses. The course will cover a ten day period, from January 4 to January 15, 1926. Enrollment is limited, but if applications warrant, it will be repeated from January 25 to February 6.

Professor E. O. Anderson, who is in charge of dairy manufacturing at the state college, will teach this course. It is primarily for beginners who need to know the best practices in milk handling and manufacturing, and the reasons for such practices. The course will include lectures, demonstration talks, and much practice in the laboratory. Further particulars may be obtained from Prof. R. E. Dodge, Storrs.

FORMER NORWICH GIRL LEAVES FOR FLORIDA

Miss Florence A. Smith sailed Thursday from New York on the Kroonland for Miami, Florida. A former classmate of Pratt Institute, Ruth McNeely, who married Dr. C. B. Imrie, went from Knoxville, Texas, last year and Mrs. Imrie is just opening a shop for women's furnishings and sportwear.

Miss Smith spent the fall of 1923 at Knoxville and will live at the home of Mrs. Imrie in Miami remaining from Boston where she has been located in the dressmaking business since last fall. Her Norwich residence was at 179 Broad street.

The public has learned its lesson regarding mailing Christmas packages early. Up to Tuesday night, Clerk Joseph E. Burns was able to take care of the parcel post out-going mail, although the "bread lines" reached to the door, during most of the afternoon, Monday and Tuesday.

COMMERCE CHAMBER SIGN AT GROTON REMOVED

The thorn in the side of Groton has been removed and the borough now rests easily, for Thursday morning the large sign at the entrance to the state highway bridge which proclaimed in large letters the merits of Norwich, the Rose of New England, was dismantled says the New London day. The large sign was placed a short distance from the highway line on property owned by the state and was set at an angle to permit of its being read by motorists coming from the borough or from New London. When it was first installed, a row of electric lamps illuminated its surface at night, but recently the lighting was discontinued.

The construction of a Norwich advertising sign in Groton caused much comment in the borough and in New London. Local business men felt indignant over the fact that local interests permitted a distant city to get the drop on Groton merchants in taking the opportunity.

Permission for the erection of the sign was granted by the New Haven railroad to the Norwich Chamber of Commerce. It was recently discovered, however, that the sign was placed on property dedicated to the state.

A similar right to erect a sign was granted by the railroad to George Marquardt, owner of an automobile service station at the bridge entrance, but upon discovery of the error in assignment of the tract, the sign was removed.

Clark B. Whaley, president of the Groton Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday morning that negotiations will be made with the state highway department to secure a right to erect a Groton advertising sign at the same spot.

BIG DAN" ZEIZUNK AGAIN BOUND OVER

Daniel Zeizunk, proprietor of a lunch room on Thames street was bound over to the superior court, Thursday morning, when presented in police court on a charge of violation of the liquor law, by actual sale. Zeizunk was bound over to the superior court on a charge of violation of the liquor law, on December 12th, and this makes the third time he had been bound over for violation of the same law.

Evidence of Andrew Petrowski and Alex Leonard, both living off Everett street, was sufficient for the finding of probable cause, Thursday morning, Petrowski testifying that he had bought three or four drinks of liquor in Zeizunk's place last Saturday night. A two dollar bill was used when Petrowski bought a drink for himself and three companions and moonshine was served to them. As a chaser the men had beer, the witness said. Alex Leonard corrorborated the testimony of Petrowski.

Thomas Nelson and Felix Parczewski both testified that there was no sale of liquor. Zeizunk was not called on to testify and Judge Libby bound the accused over, fixing the bond at $1,500, furnished by Mrs. Waldek Graek. Zeizunk's other bond is for $2,500.

City Attorney L. R. Robbins tacked on another paragraph to the warrant against Zeizunk, stating that the accused had been convicted on two counts for violation of the liquor law, in the superior court on September 13, 1923.

When superior court comes in next month Zeizunk will face charges of actual sale on Nov. 17th, keeping with intent to sell on Dec. 9th and actual sale on Dec. 12.

COMFORT CIRCLE HOLDS ANNUAL BUSINESS MEETING

The meeting of Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters, held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert T. Utley, McKinley avenue, was attended by seventeen. It was the annual business meeting, the officers elected being Mrs. Utley leader, Mrs. J. H. Allen, vice-leader, Mrs. H. F. Cole, secretary, Mrs. Wm. H. Baker, re-elected treasurer. Chairman of social committee, Mrs. Frank L. Dodge. As the chairman of the work committee, Mrs. E. L. Green resigned, her successor will be chosen at the next meeting. The nominating committe was Mrs. Wm. H. Geer, Mrs. A. T. Utley and Mrs. Almon Carroll. There are about 24 in the circle.

It was voted to donate $10 to help provide Christmas cheer for a worthy poor family. Appreciation was expressed for the service of the retiring leader, Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, who has been at the head of the circle for four years.

CONFUSED ALLING COMPANY WITH ALLYN COMPANY

Repeated errors in many papers throughout New England and in other states have caused the Alling Rubber company, of Norwich, no little trouble.

The errors came about when the story was published of the H. H. Allyn Rubber Co., manufacturers of the Allyn Self Seal Tubes, which filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The similarity of the names caused some papers to publish the article under the title of H. H. Alling Rubber Co., and many houses understood this to be the Alling Rubber company of Norwich.

An official of the Alling Rubber company, in denying these printed reports, stated Thursday night, that his company was not connected with the Allyn company financially or otherwise.

COUPLE OBSERVE THEIR 25TH WEDDING DAY

SOMERSVILLE, Conn., Dec. 17.—Nearly 100 relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Connell of Church street attended a reception in the dining room of the Congregational church on Tuesday evening in the honor of their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Connell are widely known residents of the village and they have spent their entire married life here.

In addition to numerous individual remembrances the couple were presented a purse of 25 silver dollars from the Somerville Child Welfare club, a silver candlestick from the Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church and a chair and boudoir lamp from the Men's club of the church. The reception, which began at 7.30, was entirely informal and the evening was pleasantly passed with reminiscences, music and games. Mr. and Mrs. Connell entertained with a luncheon for their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Connell were married Dec. 15, 1900. Mrs. Connell was Miss Clara Arnold, daughter of John and Ellen (Davenport) Arnold of Stafford Springs. Both have been active in church and social affairs in the village. Mrs. Connell is now president of the Ladies' Aid society of the church, while she also is a former president of the Child Welfare club.

Mr. Connell, who is overseer in the wool department of the Somersville Manufacturing company, is a member of the Congregational Men's club and also of Carpet City Camp, Modern Woodmen of America, of Thompsonville. They have five children, Cornelius A., assistant boss dyer in the Somersville mills; Francis., and Ethlyn D., students of Enfield High school at Thomsonville, and Vernon A., and Clifton F., pupils in the Somersville schools.

Out of town friends were present Tuesday night at the reception from Rocky Hill, Stafford Springs, Hartford, Holyoke, Springfield and other places.

SKATING NOW GOOD AT MOHEGAN PARK

Skating is now good at the skating pond at Mohegan park and crowds are enjoying this favorable winter sport. The ice on the pond is now over two inches thick and has been tested to prove that it will support a large number of people. Lights have been installed along the pathway leading to the pond by the Gas & Electrical department of the city and the current was turned on Wednesday night.

The park commissioners have erected a pavilion at the pond to accommodate the skaters and this is a great improvement, one which is greatly appreciated. The pavilion is of good size and is furnished with proper heating facilities, benches and other accommodations.

DODGE BOY UNDERGOES ANOTHER OPERATION

Word has been received from the Brigham hospital, in Cambridge, Mass., that another operation had been performed on John Dodge, whose skull was fractured earlier in the week, when he was struck by an automobile and thrown from his bicycle. News Thursday was pleasing, indicating that the patients condition was favorable. A previous operation, that of trephining the skull, was performed at the Bacus hospital, previous to the boy being removed to the Brigham hospital at Cambridge.

SEND CHECK FOR $10 FOR FIREMAN'S FUND

In recognition of the work of the firemen, at the fire, December 10th, at their store on Main street, Eaton-Chase Co., presented the department a check for $10, the check being received Thursday morning, by Chief Howard L. Stanton and immediately turned over to City Treasurer Charles S. Avery. The money goes to swell the firemen's pension fund and is appreciated by the members of the department.

SEVEN KILLED BY MACHINES LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Dec. 17—(AP)—Seven deaths in as many automobile accidents were among the reports to the motor vehicle department last week included in the 370 motor crashes during the period. The fatal accidents were at Hartford, Norwich, Waterbury, Bristol, Northford, North Grosvernordale and Hamden. Fourteen cities reported 244 of the total of minor crashes.

Hartford led all cities with sixty-four. Reports from other cities were: New Haven, 48; Bridgeport, 36; Waterbury, 26; New Britain, 17; Stamford 12; Norwich, 11; Greenwich, ten; New London, 9; Meriden, 6; Norwalk, 5; Winsted, 5; Danbury, 2; Middletown one.

GROTTO SAYS ALL THEIR CIRCUS BILLS PAID

In connection with the unpaid bills and bad checks left in this city by the circus freaks who appeared at the Grotto show in this city recently, Herman Steizner, monarch, and Raymond C. Brittin, chairman of the committee in charge; stated Thursday evening that as far as the Grotto is concerned all bills connected with the circus have been paid. Whatever bills the circus performers left unpaid had no connection with the Grotto.

NORWICH WOMAN SEEKS TO DIVORCE HUSBAND

Charging habitual intemperance and cruelty Alice Shamit Jarrow of this city is suing Harry Jarrow of this city for a divorce and custody of their child, Anna Jarrow, aged 2 years. The couple were married October 8, 1922. The papers were filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city Thursday.

HOUSE PASSED REVENUE BILL 390 TO 25 WORLD COURT ISSUE DEBATED IN SENATE

Tax Bill as Voted in House Calls For Reduction of $325,000,000—Bill Has Been Sent to the Senate in the Form Drafted by the House Ways and Means Committee—In the Senate Borah Opened His Obstructionist Tactics Against United States Participating in the Proposed World Court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—A $325,000,000 Christmas gift to federal tax payers—useful throughout the year—was voted today by the house in passing the tax reduction bill.

Bearing the endorsement of President Coolidge as well as leaders of both parties in the house, the non-partisan measure was directed to the senate for the more difficult part of its legislative journey by a vote of 390 to 25.

Almost every member of the house was on the floor as the bill, which was the first introduced and was held constantly before the house since the opening day of the session, was called up for passage.

As the last of more than 50 proposed amendments to the bill was mowed down today the usual overwhelming majority, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republican leader, congratulated the house on "establishing a new record of promptness in the consideration of an important measure."

His words of congratulation on the non partisan manner in which the bill had been acted upon had hardly died, however, when Representative Rainey, democrat, Illinois, moved to re-commit it to the committee with instructions to increase the income surtax and inheritance rates from maximums of 20 per cent to 25 per cent. each.

For the second time during consideration of the bill, the house divided almost on party lines, 138 democrats voting for the motion, which was defeated 267 to 147.

Previously, some of those who opposed the bill expressed in short speeches their dissatisfaction with it, but as leaders pressed forward for a vote the large majority of proponents remained silent, expressing their views occasionally merely with cries of "vote."

The final vote was not reached until after dark, and its passage less than four weeks after introduction set a peace-time record in revenue legislation.

Those voting against the bill were: Republicans—Beck, Wisconsin; Brosius, Wisconsin; Cooper, Wisconsin; Frear, Wisconsin; Lampert, Wisconsin; Nelson, Wisconsin; Sinclair, North Dakota; Schafer, Wisconsin; Schneider, Wisconsin, and Voigt, Wisconsin—10.

Democrats—Collins, Mississippi; Dante, Florida; Green, Florida; Howell, Nebraska; Huddleston, Alabama; Morehead, Nebraska; Rainey, Illinois; Rankin, Mississippi; Sabath, Illinois; and Sears, Florida—10.

Others—Berger, Wisconsin, and La Guardia, New York, socialists; Carss and Wefald, Minnesota, farmer-labor; and Kvale, Minnesota, independent—4.

Representative Allgood, democrat, Alabama, was paired against the bill with Representative Abernathy, democrat, North Carolina, for it.

SENATOR BORAH OPENS FIGHT AGAINST THE WORLD COURT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The world court drew both offensive and defensive fire today in the senate, with opponents laying down their first barrages of reservations.

Taking up the gauge of battle thrown down by Senators Swanson, democrat, Virginia, and Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, vigorously asserted their contentions that the court was independent of the League of Nations and offered reservations which he held to be necessary to safeguard American interests.

These reservations were in addition to the five contained in the Swanson resolution of ratification, and would provide:

That the court could perform no functions except those provided for in the statute creating it unless the statute is amended by unanimous consent of the signatory nations.

That no force or economic sanction could at any time be employed to enforce the decrees of the court.

That nothing in the statute could be construed as requiring the United States to depart from its traditional policy of non-entangling alliances with European states or to relinquish its traditional attitude toward purely American questions.

The second day's debate on the court issue was opened by Senator Lenroot who declared that instead of being "a creature of the league and owned by it," as opponents have asserted, the tribunal was wholly independent, acting under the statute creating it and not under the covenant of the league.

Both he and Senator Walsh, who followed Senator Borah, contended that if the United States adhered to the court the only obligation it would assume would be that of contributing to the expenses of the tribunal.

They argued that by adherence the United States would gain nothing and would contribute nothing except as it was interested in the peace of the world.

Declaring that twenty two sections of the court statute tie it to the league, Senator Borah said those who organized the court had sought to create an "organ in legal part of the league," and if the court is not a part of the league, "it is because they failed in their efforts."

"The court is just as much bound by the covenant of the league" he added, "as the United States supreme court is bound by the constitution of the United States."

Replying to a point advanced by Senator Lenroot that both the republican and democratic party platforms had declared for adhesion to the court he took his Idaho senator expressed the opinion that senators would cast their votes on this issue according to their own judgment of their country's interests.

"If a man could be conceived of who thought this was an injurious proposition, detrimental to his country" Senator Borah declared, "and would still vote for it because his party platform said so, he would be the slimiest creature that ever wriggled his way through the United States senate."

FOUR BILLS IN HOUSE TO LIBERALIZE PROHIBITION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Another prohibition tidal wave swept into the house today.

It received, in a report on the treasury—post office supply bill, which carries provisions for prohibition agencies, an account of the methods of government enforcement agents in their efforts to stop the stream of liquor that trickle through the enforcement dykes along seacoasts and borders. In addition, four more bills to liberalize the Volstead act were introduced during the day.

The prohibition enforcement story was set forth in considerable detail in the report on hearings conducted on the supply bill by any appropriations sub-committee behind closed doors. The principal characters—the agents who have the direct enforcement work to do—ranged from those who masquerade as wealthy clubmen to the men who patrol the lonesome border roads.

Officers charged with directing enforcement machinery also told the committee how the coast guard had effectively scattered Rum Row on the Atlantic, how the enforcement machinery in the treasury department had been reorganized and how efforts had been made to bolster up the morale of agents.

AFTERMATH PHASES OF COL. MITCHELL CONVICTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Speculation as to what the five year suspension from army rank, pay and allowance meted out to Col. William Mitchell, actually meant, and what the air officer would do in the fact of it was rife today throughout congressional and army ranks.

The consensus was that the colonel would await action by President Coolidge on the court's decision and, if it was not commuted at that time, he would ask that the president accept his resignation from the army. Meanwhile, the air crusader kept his silence indicating that he would continue to do so until the court sentence had been passed upon and finally made effective.

Three echoes of Col. Mitchell's conviction were heard at the capitol during the day. Two took the form of resolutions, one by Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, to restore him to his "proper rank in the army" and the other by Representative Fiorello La Guardia, socialist, New York, to fix a maximum of thirty days as the penalty for violations of the 96th article of war, under which the colonel was found guilty by the court martial. The third was a statement by Representative Frank R. Reid, republican, Illinois, who headed the Mitchell defense staff, in which he assailed the war and navy departments, the court martial, the army general staff and the navy general board, and announcing that the "fight" for a unified air service "has only begun."

STATE RESTS IN FROST FACTORY ARSON CASE

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The state rested its case against Charles Frost, Larchmont, charged with arson in connection with the burning of the Xcluso factory, Bethel, April 2, at the close of today's session. The presentation of the defense is expected to take a week.

Edward Heins, Montclair, N. J., adjustor for five of the insurance companies that had policies on the Frost factory, testified this afternoon. He said inventories of the trunk company showed stock worth $70,880.40 and machinery valued at $10,000. Insurance in the sum of $75,000 was carried and the loss was estimated at $50,000.

Winifred Stevenson, 1547 Fifty-fourth street, New York city, a telephone operator employed in the Walker Street exchange, New York, testified in presenting a toll-call slip that a man named "Mr. Freed" had telephoned to Bethel to a "Mr. Frost" on April 2. Abraham Friedman, who says he was hired by Frost for $5,000 to set the fire, previously testified that he had telephoned under the name of "Fred" to Frost just before he left for Bethel the day of the fire to inquire if "everything was all set." He quoted Frost as replying: "Everything O. K."

TO CONFER WITH POLISH GOV'T ON ITS FISCAL POLICY

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Dr. E. A. Kemmerer of Princeton university a noted expert in the field of government finances, will leave tomorrow for Warsaw to confer with the Polish government on its fiscal policy, it was announced today by Dillon, Read and Company. His mission is to straighten the financial situation and the invitation was extended at the suggestion of the bankers.

Polish business has shown a temporary lack of confidence because of the liquidation by the bank of Poland of a large amount of its reserve in foreign gold currencies as a result of the bad harvest of 1924. This has resulted in the depreciation of the gold sloty established under a plan drawn up by E. Hilton Young, an English expert, which reduced inflation in Poland by withdrawing its paper money from circulation.

FACE WAS FROZEN DURING TEST FLIGHT

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Italy Ratifies Debt Agreement

ROME, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Formal approval was given by the chamber of deputies today to the bill ratifying the agreement for funding the war debt to the United States, signed by Count Volpi, minister of finance, at Washington, November 14. The vote was 237 to 1. The voting was done by secret ballot.

Would Limit Fascist Party

ROME, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Refusal to accept any new members for the fascist party during 1926 is urged by Roberto Farinacci, secretary general of the party, in a statement to the press today. He believes this measure is necessary as a means for checking the influx of undesirable recruits, especially newly converted fascists whose faith has not yet been proved.

TWENTY PROHIBITION LAW INDICTMENTS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Twenty indictments charging violations of the national prohibition laws were returned by the federal grand jury here late today. The Erie railroad and ten persons were named, and tonight Federal Judge Adam C. Cliff caused a summons to be issued for F. G. Robbins, its vice president.

In the second group Major Percy Owen, former Illinois prohibition director, and eight others are charged with offering bribes in addition to the liquor violations. Indictments had previously been returned against this group which includes Ralph W. Stone, a former prohibition director; A. E. Bennett, Bernard R. Rumps, former dry agents; Harry R. Schlau, Louis Abelson, Louis Cribari and Morris Zimbroff, wine dealers and former State Senator George R. Bruce.

Those named with the Erie railroad are Patrick F. Sullivan, Joseph Soltis, Andrew Bots, Joseph Lucas and Robert F. Adams, of Sayre, Pa., and William Dillon of Waverly, N. Y.

The indictments recite the method of transporting more than 100 barrels of beer from Waverly to Chicago suburbs, and its subsequent consignment to Chicago. Dillon is a freight agent for the Erie at Waverly. Adams is an alleged buyer for a beer syndicate, whose activities have resulted in previous indictments.

A number of instances were given in which those indicted with Owen sold wine, mostly in 2,000 gallon lots, and arranged delivery, often taking a "cut" in the sale price for themselves. Bonds for Major Owen and the others, with the exception of three were set at $15,000 each. Bonds ranging from $1,500 to $5,000 were set for the remaining three.

Bonds of $5,000 each were set for those named in the beer indictments. Judge Cliffe tonight ordered bench warrants issued for each.

FOUR LITTLE CHILDREN WERE BURNED TO DEATH

HOLDEN, Mass., Dec. 18.—(AP)—The charred bodies of four little children of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hoey of the Chaffins district, were recovered from the ruins of their home late today while the mother and father lay in critical condition at Holden hospital. The 16-months old child died at the hospital from burns received in the fire, bringing the death list to give. Two other children who escaped the flames because they were sleeping on the ground floor, were being cared for by neighbors and Holden citizens, appalled by the worst fire tragedy recorded in the history of this little town, were preparing to organize measures to provide financial relief for the family.

John J. Murphy, aged father of Mrs. Hoey, was working around the outside of the Hoey home early this morning when he smelled smoke. A moment later and the upper part of the house was a roaring mass of flames. Mr. Murphy aroused Mr. Hoey and the two children who were sleeping on the lower floor. Hoey tried to reach his wife and children on the upper floor but the stairway gave way under his weight.

Rushing to the outside of the house he saw his wife with their 16 months old baby clasped in her arms. He raised a ladder but before he could reach her, the fire forced her to jump to the ground with the child in her arms. Both mother and child had been horribly burned as they fought their way through the flames to the window. Firemen and state police who arrived while the rescue was taking place made an effort to reach the four children but they had been trapped in the flames and burned to death in their beds.

SUB TEST DIVES OFF BLOCK ISLAND WERE SUCCESSFUL

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 18—(AP)—A series of test dives by the Submarine S-19 off Block Island today was reported to have been successful in a radiogram received at the Submarine Base here tonight. The tests were ordered by the navy department.

The S-19 returned here a week ago from the Portsmouth Navy yard, where she was taken for repairs after running aground off Cape Cod several months ago. An earlier radio message received at the Submarine Base stated that the undersea craft would not return to New London until late tonight.

Claims City of Rome Was A "Blind Ship"

Judge Advocate Lockwood Contends Sub-51 Was in No Way to Blame For Disaster.

BOSTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Contentions that the steamer City of Rome was a "blind ship" when it rammed and sank the S-51 submarine with loss of 33 lives, that it was wholly responsible for the disaster and that the submarine was in no way to blame were made by Lieutenant Commander Charles A. Lockwood, judge advocate, in summing up today before the naval court of inquiry which has been investigating the collision. Disclaimer of any blame was made by counsel for the Ocean Steamship company which operates the City of Rome. Counsle for the company voiced belief that the matter of placing blame and assessing damages rest with a federal admiralty court. It was made known that the company has already filed its case with such a court in New York.

The court reconvened today upon order of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur who desired an immediate finding without the additional evidence to be obtained through the raising of the submarine, where it lies off the Rhode Island coast have been postponed until next spring. The secretary of the navy took cognisance of the death of Capt Orote P. Jackson, president of the court, and ordered the remaining two members, Capt. Walter H. Hunt and Capt. David A. Weaver, to conclude the session. The report, when prepared, will be forwarded to the navy department for review and promulgation.

The judge advocate contended that the submarine was competently handled, that its lights were in order and it observed the rules of the road. He set forth that the City of Rome was a "blind ship" through failure to maintain a proper watch and that she failed to observe any of the rules of the road pertaining to crossing or overtaken vessels.

He asked that the court find the collision "due to gross negligence and incompetence on the part of the officers and crew of the City of Rome and that no blame attaches to any person in the naval service."

Earl Farwell, counsel for the steamship's owners declared it unfortunate that no one was saved who could testify what the S-51 was doing on the night of the collision, what her course was and what was the condition of her lights. He contended that the navy had no jurisdiction over the steamer, her owners or crew. He maintained that a proper lookout was maintained, that there existed no possibility of collision until the steamer came close to the submarine's white light, and that for some reason the submarine suddenly crossed the steamship's bow.

"Were I a member of this court, I would not take the responsibility of passing on the question of fault except as it applied to the naval personnel," he concluded.

Commander Lockwood asserted that the testimony of Captain John H. Diehl of the City of Rome was "untrue and was given only to cover up the laxity of Third Officer Dryer." Although Captain Diehl told of being in the pilot house, the judge advocate contended that he was not on the bridge until after the first whistle, that time that might have been used to prevent loss of life was frittered away and that finding themselves in danger of being rammed, the handlers of the City of Rome chose to ram the other craft.

Commander Lockwood assailed the failure of Captain Diehl's rescue efforts, and his failure to mark the disaster spot, termed his bearings "careless" and dwelt upon the failure to send out a prompt SOS call.

It was shown, in the testimony, that the submarine and its equipment was worth $2,290,952, and that damage to the City of Rome amounted to $5,298.

Farwell held that delay in sending out the SOS was caused by the captain's desire to save a few minutes of valuable time.

MRS. RIDA JOHNSON YOUNG NOT IN SERIOUS CONDITION

STAMFORD, Conn., Dec. 18.—(AP)—The condition of Mrs. Rida Johnson Young, author and playwright, who is ill at her home here, remains as it has been for some days, her nurse said this afternoon, who also denied that the patient was gravely ill. DEFENSE OF N. H. ROAD'S BUS TRANSPORTATION PROGRAM

General Counsel Spock Tells of Plan of Interchangeable Tickets, of Station Conveniences, With Rates the Same as Rail Rates—Back of All the Road Will Be Responsible For Safety, Regularity of Service and Financial Ability to Compensate For Loss or Damage.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Benjamin L. Spock, general counsel of the New Haven railroad, speaking at a mass meeting held in chamber of commerce hall here tonight, defended the road's program for motor bus transportation. The meeting was held for a discussion of the course the state should take regarding the operation of motor busses by the New Haven road and its subsidiary. Other speakers were Patrick Healy, president of the Connecticut Motor Stage association and Professor Winthrop M. Daniels, of Yale university, who reviewed the subject from an economic standpoint.

Pointing to the opposition of independent bus operators to the New Haven railroad's application before the United States district court to the return of the Connecticut company to he New Haven road, Mr. Spock said:

"In that court action the judge, after full consideration of Mr. Healy's claims declined to allow the motor stage association to intervene, on the ground that his associates were endeavoring to create, by indirection, a monopoly of motor bus service."

Mr. Spock told of the company's plan of interchangeable tickets and pointed to the station conveniences which would be available to the bus passengers where through tickets may be purchased and baggage checked. The rates are the same as rail rates, or, according to Mr. Spock, substantially a cent or more a mile less than the independent rates.

"In addition to these direct advantages," Mr. Spock continued, "there is back of the transportation company all the responsibility of the New Haven road in the essential features of safety, regularity or service, and financial ability to compensate for loss or damage.

"The main contention of Mr. Healy is that their investment should be protected because they have been pioneers in the field. But exactly the same contention can be made for the New Haven company namely, that the investment of its stockholders must be protected and that it was a pioneer in the transportation field.

"Summing up his conention, it amounts to this: That the independent operators by virtue of licenses obtained from the public utilities commission, have vested proprietary rights in their routes and that no other applicant, such as the New Haven, no matter how superior its facilities may be, shall be admitted upon any such route. Such a position is entirely contrary to the legislative policy of the state and is a menace to the prosperity of the New Haven company."

Quoting Mr. Healy as stating that the independent bus lines are carrying substantially 5,000,000 passengers a year, Mr. Spock said that "the only possible deduction is that the busses get the business, and it is evident from these figures that the cream of the business is being taken by these bus competitors. In consequence, we have been forced to go into the bus business, both to protect what traffic is left, and, if we can, to regain some of that which has gone from us."

Replying to Mr. Healy's argument that the New Haven road was late in entering the bus field, Mr. Spock pointed to the New Haven's financial difficulties and its narrow avoidance of receivership.

"Furthermore," he continued, "it was not until the spring of 1925 that the legislatures of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island enacted laws permitting the New Haven railroad to own and operate motor vehicles upon the highways, following which the New Haven entered the bus field."

GRANTED RIGHT TO 228 MILES OF BUS LINES

HARTFORD, Dec. 18—(AP)—The public utilities commission today granted the New England Transportation company, motor bus subsidiary of the "New Haven" road, right to operate 228 miles of bus lines in Connecticut, at the same time denying the company's applications on 238 miles, the decisions affecting ten routes in the central, southwestern and eastern parts of the state.

The following routes, in whole or in part, received the favorable decision of the commission:

From New Haven to the state line, connecting with service to Northampton by way of Mount Carmel, Cheshire, Millidale, Plantsville, Southington, Plainville, Farmington, Avon, Simsbury and Granby. Granted in full a distance of fifty-two miles.

From Hartford to Danbury: Granted from Hartford to Waterbury by way of Millidale and Southington, thirty-three miles, the commission to issue a further order designed to limit competition as far as possible with existing transportation lines.

From New Haven — Danbury by way of Derby, Seymour, Oxford, Southbury, Sandy Hook and Newtown, thirty-eight miles. Granted in full, with the exception that no local business may be done over that part of the route now occupied by the Congress Taxi company.

From Danbury to South Norwalk, by way of Georgetown, Cannondale and Wilton, twenty-five miles. Granted in full.

From Hartford to the Massachusetts state line. Granted from Willimantic to the state line by way of Phoenixville, Pomfret, Putnam, Thompson and North Grosvenordale, thirty-five miles. Denied from Hartford to Willimantic.

From Hartford to the Rhode Island state line by way of Willimantic and Plainfield. Granted from Plainfield to the state line, a distance of twelve miles, the rest of the application being denied.

From Hartford to the Rhode Island state line by way of Willimantic and Putnam. Granted from Willimantic to the state line by way of Phoenixville, Abington and Putnam, thirty-three miles, the rest of the applications being denied.

Three applications covering routes between Hartford and Willimantic were among those denied. That part of the Hartford to Danbury route, between Waterbury and Danbury by way of Middlebury, South Britain and Newtown, thirty-six miles was denied.

A proposed route between Danbury and Bridgeport, by way of Botsford, Stepney and Long Hill, and which was hotly contested by the Congress Taxi company, was denied. The route is twenty-four miles and parallels much of the way, existing lines on the New Haven road.

The proposed route between Danbury and Stamford now served by the Danbury-Ridgefield Bus company, approximately twenty-six miles, was denied.

FAVORS OPERATION OF BUSSES BY THE N. H. ROAD

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 18—(AP)—With one dissenting ballot, the New Haven chamber of commerce, at a meeting here tonight endorsed the policy of the board of directors of the Connecticut chamber of commerce, favoring the operation of motor busses in general by the New Haven railroad or its subsidiary, the New England Transportation company.

The vote was taken following a discussion of the issues by Benjamin J. Spock, counsel for the New Haven road, Patrick Healey, president of the Connecticut Motor Stage association, and Professor Winthrop M. Daniels of Yale university.

COAL MAGNATES CRITICIZE GOV. PINCHOT AND LEWIS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18—(AP)—Two broadsides were fired today by the anthracite operators in their dispute with the coal miners, with Major William W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' wage negotiating committee, behind the guns. One was aimed at Governor Pinchot and the other at John L. Lewis, head of the miners.

Major Inglis declared that the only practical effect of Governor Pinchot's course in endeavoring to end the strike was to prolong it and increase public inconvenience and suffering among the mine workers.

As for Mr. Lewis, Major Inglis criticized his leadership and declared it to be "militant and not constructive."

Major Inglis' statement in regard to the course being pursued by the governor, was the first public expression of the operators of their reaction to Mr. Pinchot's course including coal among the subjects to be taken up by the extra session of the legislature called for January 13. Neither the governor's plan for ending the strike, (already accepted by the miners), nor the calling of the special session, nor the condemnation of the course taken by the operators, "produces any coal," declared Mr. Inglis.

Major Inglis' statement on Mr. Lewis was in reply to the mine leaders' speech made before the Philadelphia real estate board last night. Prior to the time Mr. Lewis became president of the United Mine Workers, the statement said, the anthracite operators and their employes settled their differences by collective bargaining. "Since Mr. Lewis has been in charge of its affairs," the statement said, "nothing has been accomplished by that process and we have had three strikes in less than four years."

RUDOLPH VALENTINO IS "COMPLETELY IN THE DARK"

PARIS, Dec. 18—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino returned to Paris from London yesterday and was leaving his train at the North Station just about the hour when the telephone wires were beginning to get hot with the news of the first definite official action in the suit of his wife, the former Winifred Hudnut, for a divorce from the motion picture star.

Valentino today, after a siege of newspaper men lasting 24 hours, still disclaimed any knowledge of his wife's intentions and said that since he was "completely in the dark" in regard to the action she might take, he had not yet formulated plans for his own course of action.

He said today that he would leave tomorrow for Berlin, and from Berlin would go to London to spend Christmas with relatives.

TAFTVILLE GIRL'S ESCORT DUPED LOCAL POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 18—The young sailor who drove a car into a tree at South Windham village Monday night, causing injuries to Miss Betty Archibald of Taftville, pulled the wool and is giving Constable Alfred P. Abbe, who arrested him something to think about. The young man, togged out in a sailor uniform, said that he was George Leroy Jones, machinist's mate of the U. S. Coast Guard Destroyer Roe, stationed at New London. He was arrested on charges of reckless driving, not having an operator's license and not having his car properly registered. Jones was told to appear in police court Wednesday morning. He failed to show and at first Constable Abbe believed that Jones was on duty and could not get a leave of absence.

Friday afternoon Chief of Police McArthur received a telephone message from the New London police stating that the registration numbers 1-409 which were on the Ford coupe which Jones was driving, had been stolen from a Nash touring car belonging to Fred J. Moll Hatch of Mystic. The Ford and number plates are now being held in a local garage. The New London police stated that they had conducted a search for the man to arrest him for taking the numbers but that there was no such person as Jones connected with the coast guard service, as near as they could learn. Evidently the sailor duped the local authorities by giving a fictitious name and it is expected that Miss Archibald who is recovering from her injures at St. Joseph's hospital, will be questioned in an effort to learn the identity of her escort.

Mrs. William Jones died at St. Joseph's hospital at noon Friday after a lengthy illness. She was widely known in this city and was a member of St. Joseph's parish and the Catholic Benevolent Association and St. Anne's Charitable Society. She was born in Manchester, a daughter of John and Catherine Noonan, but had resided in this city for the past thirty-eight years. Surviving her is her husband, with three daughters, Mrs. Walter Myers, Mrs. Edward Manemann and Miss Helen Jones; two sons, William J. Jr., and Edward J., and three grandchildren, Lorna and Elaine Manemann and Shirley Myers, all of this city and a sister, Mrs. Timothy J. Watts of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Funeral services for Ruth Gertrude Warner were held at two o'clock Friday afternoon at 62 North street. Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead officiated. Burial was in Willimantic cemetery. Avery and VanZandt had charge of the arrangements.

Miss Gladys G. Hanson was given a miscellaneous shower and Christmas party by Mrs. William C. Mass and her mother, Mrs. E. J. Hanson at the latter's home Thursday evening, in honor of Miss Hanson's marriage with William Dana Potter of Moosup next Monday. Twenty-five were present, including members of the Sorority of the Methodist church who presented the bride-elect a beautiful boudoir lamp. A decorated Christmas tree bore various other gifts of linen, china, silver, etc. The hostesses served a dainty luncheon.

A class of candidates was installed at a well attended meeting of Violet Rebekah Lodge, No. 57, I. O. O. F., Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected: Noble Grand, Mrs. Lillie A. Hershant; vice-grand, Miss Zabra Stoughton; recording secretary, Miss Juanita Jackson; financial secretary, Mrs. Alice D. Stoughton; treasurer, Mrs. Elinor T. Ford. The officers will be installed next month.

Engine Company No. 1 was called out about four o'clock Friday afternoon when a large pot of tar used in construction work on land owned by O. L. Willard near the Rossie Velvet Mill, boiled over and went up in flames and smoke. The Reo chemical truck in charge of Assistant Chief Michael J. English responded. Thirty-five gallons of chemicals were used to extinguish the blaze. The damage was slight.

The first annual policemen's dance held at the Al-Pierre Tabarin, Friday evening, proved a decided success from every angle. The Peerless Orchestra played for one of the largest assemblages ever gathered at the hall. Patrolman Arthur M. Hurley was chairman of the committee in charge.

Three tables were in play at a Christmas gathering of the Windham road bridge club at the home of Mrs. Herman C. Tuttle Thursday afternoon. Mrs. William E. Hendry and Mrs. W. Standish were the prize winners, their gifts being presented from a Christmas tree.

Local friends have received an nouncements of the engagement of Miss Harriet E. Cooper of Providence, R. I., to James H. Ebbitt of this city. Miss Cooper is a graduate of Windham High school and has been a stenographer in Providence for the past five years. Mr. Ebbit is an expert accountant in Providence.

Judge Burt M. Welch of Chaplin has returned to his home in a much improved condition after being a patient at a Hartford hospital for two weeks.

Mrs. Louis B. Tenny of Storrs entertained twenty-four members of the Junior choir of St. Paul's Episcopal church Thursday. Mrs. Tenny arranged to take charge of the junior choir and to direct the orchestra of the church. Special music will be prepared for the vesper services beginning with the new year.

Merchants in the city are looking forward a banner shopping day today (Saturday). Arrangements have been made to meet the expected rush and the business houses are prepared with well stocked shelves and additional clerks.

SEATS FOR THE NEW THEATRE ARRIVED FRIDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 18—Next week the scenery riggers will invade the new Capitol theatre building and arrange the drops and other stage equipment. While they are doing this workmen will be busy installing the seats for the theatre, which arrived in two box cars Friday morning. The parquet and balcony will be ready at the close of next week the flooring and electrical work having been completed. The tile floor of the foyer is being rushed to completion and carpenters have been at work hanging the marque over the entrance. Two of the four stores in the building are already occupied as well as practically all of the office suites. The theatre will open in January, Manager George A. Bartlett has been engaged for some time in arranging for feature attractions for the opening.

BAY STATE WEDDING GUEST FINED FOR SPEEDING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 18—After a five-mile chase, in which the speed of a Ford was tested against that of a Stutz, at 2 o'clock, Friday afternoon, State Policeman Henry Heinold, of Stafford Springs barracks halted Philip L. Davidson, of 206 Craig Hall, Cambridge, Mass., as the latter was forced to check the speed of the powerful car when he met a trolley on Main street here. The officer was passed on the road in Eagleville by the big machine and as it sped on he applied the gas to his trusty Lizzie and bounded along on the trail. The fugitive machine had been hitting the high spots and was almost out of sight when detained in traffic here. Mr. Davidson was taken to the home of Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews, of the town of Mansfield, in which town the misdemeanor of overspeeding was committed. Davidson said that he was on his way to attend a wedding. He pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding and was fined $10 and costs, which he paid.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

ORCUTTVILLE DOG BITES FIVE OR MORE PERSONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 18—A mad dog running wild near the post office created excitement Friday morning and before the animal could be killed he had bitten five and possibly more people. George J. Gray was bitten near the ankle and Miss Mae Gilligan had her leg badly lacerated. Mrs. Manfeddi, Miss May Long and Pieter Cancian were also objects of the animal's attacks, as he sunk his teeth in their flesh. Earlier in the day he had bitten Bert Cox and others whose names have not been given out. It is also said that he bit two or three dogs. While the dog was performing near Gray's coal office, Sergeant Harmon and Officer Willi sof the state police barracks arrived and a blow from the heavy club of Officer Willis put the animal out of commission.

Most of those who were bitten went to the Johnson Memorial hospital where their wounds were treated. The dog's head was taken by the state officers to Hartford and will be examined to see if the animal had rabies. The dog was owned by Otto Possardt of Orcuttville.

Samuel Lipmann, of Ellington was brought into the borough court Thursday morning by State Policeman Heinold and presented on charges of operating an unlicensed car and using improper markers. For using improper markers Deputy Judge Taft imposed a fine of $10 and for failing to register his car $5 with costs of $11.18.

FREDERICK FAULKNER DIES, RETIRED WOOLEN MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 18—Frederick Faulkner, 81, a retired woolen manufacturer died at his home in Highland Terrace early Friday morning. Mr. Faulkner had not been actively engaged in business for the past ten years. He came to Stafford Springs from Lawrence, Mass., about 35 years ago and for several years was the sole owner of the Middle River Mill, manufacturing woolen goods. For a time he also operated the Hope mill, in Staffordville. The Middle River plant was destroyed by fire in 1914 and Mr. Faulkner soon afterwards retired from the manufacturing business and devoted his activities to real state. He built several houses, a number of them on Keefe's Plains, which he later disposed of. He was a shrewd business man and had been successful in all his undertakings. Besides his wife Mrs. Annie Faulker he leaves a son and a daughter.

Insurance executive says Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is "Conqueror of Constipation"

Former addict to pills and drugs says ALL-BRAN restored youthful vim.

Here is a most remarkable tribute to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN:

For more than one-third of a century, I was an addict to all kinds of pills, drugs and nostrums to alleviate the tortures resulting from constipation. They brought only temporary relief. Then I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and as a result I have a new birth of freedom from the terrible foe of the race. I am again in the pink of condition, the personification even of youthful vigor in my advancing years. Truly, Mr. W. K. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the conqueror of constipation.

Gratefully yours,
(Signed) A. M. SWEMLEY,
The Federal Reserve Life Insurance Co.

Let Kellogg's ALL-BRAN conquer constipation forever for you. Doctors recommend it. It is what they call a bulk food, that sweeps the intestine clean, stimulating digestion and normal, healthy action. Something habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, relief is guaranteed or your grocer returns the purchase price. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in Battle Creek, Mich. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

You, Too, May Own a Closed Packard

MANY a man has longed all his life to own a closed Packard, and yet still drives a compromise car. Why?

He remembers the famous Packard "30" and "18" of 1910, the "38's" and "48's" of 1913, and the mighty Twin Six, America's first twelve cylinder car.

He remembers, too, that those fine cars—all of them—cost over $4,000 at the factory. And he has not yet learned that the Packard Six—a better car by today's standards than those he felt he could not afford—is priced far lower than any closed car Packard has built in 25 years.

Many do not know that the Packard Six five-passenger Sedan with all necessary accessories is but $2585 at Detroit and that it can be bought on a monthly payment plan.

When they do learn these two important facts there will be a lot of new Packard Six owners who have realized a lifetime ambition.

DANIELSON

RINGING ALARM FROM BOX 23 ANNOYS BOROUGHITES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 18—There were protests in number Friday against the practice of sounding such a fire alarm box as No. 23 for fires in sections of the borough far removed from the locality of this box, at the corner of Center and Main streets, as was done Thursday morning for the fire at the Connecticut mills.

Probably no alarm box in Danielson creates the apprehension that is caused by this self-same No. 23. It is in the very heart of the business section and is intended to denote a fire in that section. When it is pulled in, many a business man, particularly if the alarm be during the night, feels that there is a possibility that his place of business is burning. No. 23 likewise startles the entire borough and did not fail to do that thing in the early hours of Thursday morning, when the fire for which it sounded was more than a mile away. It was indicated Friday that a request would be filed with borough officials for an order against ringing No. 23 and other boxes in the business sections for fires in other parts of the borough.

CONNECTICUT MILLS YARN DAMAGED ON TRUCK

DANIELSON, Dec. 18—A few hours after the stockhouse and some of the contents thereof at the Connecticut mills was damaged by fire here Thursday morning, eleven valuable beams of yarn in a load on a convoy of trucks running between East Taunton and Danielson, were damaged by a fire that broke out on one of the trucks, in the town of Scituate, R. I. on the Providence highway. It is believed the fire may have been caused by a lighted cigarette tossed carelessly from some passing car and landing on the truck. Fire apparatus was rushed to the burning cargo of beams, which eventually was delivered to the Connecticut mills by Louis Savoie, owner of the trucks that haul the yarn between East Taunton and Danielson. Eleven of the beams of yarn are more or less damaged, but to what extent cannot be determined until the yarn is run off. The loss may total several hundred dollars.

MRS. DANIEL SPAULDING DIES AFTER YEAR'S ILLNESS

DANIELSON, Dec. 18—Mrs. Laura A. Spaulding, 74, widow of Daniel Spaulding, died Friday afternoon at 4:30 at her home at 134 Main street. Mrs. Spaulding had been in failing health for about a year and seriously ill for the past five weeks. She was born May 18, 1851, at Charlestown, R. I., a daughter of William and Mary Elizabeth Hiscox Arnold. Prior to coming to Danielson she had been a resident of the Green Hollow section of the town of Plainfield, where her husband died twenty years ago. Mrs. Spaulding leaves a son, Charles N., a daughter, Miss Grace, both of Danielson, a brother William Hiscox, of Scotch Killingly, and a sister, Mrs. Belle James, of Westerly.

At their home in the Baer hill section of the town, near East Killingly, Mr. and Mrs. I. P. Elfgren observed their silver wedding anniversary on Tuesday of this week. The family now consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Elfgren, three sons and two daughters, has been resident in Killingly since 1906. All of these years Mr. Elfgren has continued to follow his profession of civil engineering. For years he was with the N. Y., N. H., and H. R. R., and now is and has been for more than a decade with the engineering forces of the New York Central road. He is at his home week-ends and at other times as opportunity permits. Mr. Elfgren has a fine place at Bear hill, having, with the aid of his three sons, done a great deal of development work there since he took over the property. Reforestration has been one of his hobbies and he has set out a great many trees.

Up to late Friday afternoon Coroner Arthur C. Bill had received no report from Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, of Norwich, on the autopsy performed in that city on the exhumed body of an Italian young man whose body was found at Willimantic some weeks ago. Coroner Bill did not discuss the case, nor did W. E. Jackson, county investigator, have anything to say about the matter for publication, when he was in town Friday forenoon.

Friday morning the funeral of Mrs. Marie Millette, 52, who died suddenly during Tuesday night, was held from her home in Connecticut Village, with funeral services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., was celebrant of the solemn high mass of requiem, Rev. James McCarthy was deacon and Rev. F. X. Richards sub-deacon. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Louis Peloquin, Thomas Madon, Napoleon Perreault, David LaPrade, Walter Martin and Alphege Cournoyer. At the grave the committal service was conducted by Rev. F. X. Richards. Louis D. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Permanent repairs had been completed by early Friday morning on the water main of the Crystal Water company damaged by a blast during Thursday forenoon, a happening that left areas of the borough without water for a time during Thursday. During Thursday night the water was again unavailable for a time, but on Friday the service was up to normal efficiency. In a setting that was particularly pleasing, the season's decorative schemes predominating, members of the Social club held a Christmas tree party at their rooms here. The gifts will be presented to the pupils in the first grade of St. James' school. Singing and dancing were features of the evening and lunch was served. Miss Rita Gaudreau, president of the club, and Mrs. Amadee Boulais, chairman of the committee of arrangements, were in charge of the party, which was a pronounced success.

Local master barbers have joined an organization for which recruiting was done Thursday evening at a meeting of eastern Connecticut barbers at the Wauregan house in Norwich. This organization, a barber here said Friday, will fight any legislative proposal tending to restrict present working privileges of barbers in favor of hairdressers or beauty parlor proprietors.

Pastors and men's organizations in the churches of Danielson have been invited to attend at Dayville Monday evening and ladies' night of the Dayville Men's club to be held in the vestry of Dayille Congregational church. R. C. Bressley has been in charge of the arrangements for what promises to be a very interesting program.

Discussing wild things and their ways, hunters will tell you that wild cats will eventually appear where deer are more or less plentiful. These hunters point to the fact that several wild cats have been killed in this and other parts of the state within the past year.

Christmas afternoon a Christmas tree party, including an entertainment, is to be held in the playroom at the Westfield Congregational church.

The Community Christmas tree is to be placed in position on Davis park this (Saturday) afternoon, Santa Claus supervising the work. The tree will not be lighted until Christmas eve.

Commissioned officers of the Service battery will be in New London Sunday to attend the monthly school for officers of the 192d field artillery.

A feature of the Christmas season will be the presentation Sunday evening at the Baptist church of the dramatization of "Why the Chimes Rang," by a cast of 20 assisted by vested choir and a special orchestra.

Miss Rita Godreau is president, Miss Clare Allerie vice president, Mrs. L. J. Morin secretary-treasurer, of the Social club for the ensuing year. Miss Dorothy Lague and Mrs. Amadee Boulais were elected members of the executive committee.

At the postoffice numbers of postcards destined for foreign countries are being received with only two cents in postage affixed. All cards destined for other countries require three cents in postage. This is of special interest here ta this time when so many cards are being sent abroad.

Christmas exercises at the Community house in South Killingly are scheduled for next Wednesday evening. Miss Ruth Spalding has charges of the arrangements for the event.

Tonight the store forces of Danielson begin the long grind of evening work that will not be terminated until late Christmas eve. While a great deal of holiday shopping has been noted in Danielson, the bulk of it remains to be done. The slogan "Shop Early" remains a good one to observe.

The Tostee sandwich grill at Stebbins Paris Garden, Keystone block, is something new and something fine. Try a sandwich the Tostee way. Full line of Christmas candies, pipes, cigars, tobacco.—adv.

Christmas tree exercises at the church in East Killingly are to be held Christmas eve. The program arranged includes the presentation of a cantata.

Members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church held a food sale at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Davis, Friday afternoon.

Miss Beatrice Maynard continues to improve at the Rhode Island hospital in Providence, and the prospects are that she will be able to return to her home here before Christmas.

The cruiser Duquesne, first of the two 10,000 ton cruisers built under the 1924 naval program, was launched at Brest, France. The vessel is 607 feet long, will carry 600 men.

PUTNAM

MRS. RAYMOND HOLLISTER DENIES DIVORCE RUMOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 18—The story that Mrs. Raymond Hollister, of Pomfret, is to sue for a divorce from her husband is denied by Mrs. Hollister who is at Pomfret for the holidays. She is the guest of her mother and the fact that her husband is not there at present has, she says, no significance. The Hollisters are socially prominent.

NEW MASONIC CLUB OF 96 WILL TAKE OVER ARCANUM CLUB

PUTNAM, Dec. 18—The new Masonic club is an assured fact. Ninety-six members of the Masonic order have enrolled as members of the social organization to take over the club house and property of the Arcanum club on South Main street.

They will occupy it on practically the same terms as the Arcanum club, which leased the club house from the Arcanum association. The latter will still retain possession of the property including the three-family tenement house facing on School street. The Arcanum association consists of fifty or more individuals holding one or more shares of stock. As the result of purchase of shares in the past two weeks, four-fifths of the present share-holders are members of the Masonic fraternity. Those who are non-members are in favor of the project which means an immediate lease of the club house, as in fact were the share-holders prior to the active dealing in shares since the first of the month.

A meeting of the members of the Arcanum Club association is to be held at the club house Monday next, at which time it is probable that the proposal of the Masonic club to lease the building will be presented and accepted.

It is gratifying to those who were instrumental in the purchase of the Gardner property and the conversion of it into a modern club house to know that it will continue to be kept open for that purpose.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE ARRANGED BY ROTARIANS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 18—During Christmas week a community Christmas Tree will stand in Union Square. The Rotary club has obtained permission from the city authorities to have their committee arrange for this attractive addition to the city's celebration of the Christmas season. The Rotary club committee in charge of the affair consists of Dr. Karl T. Phillips, Rev. J. F. English and A. Newton Vaughn.

In addition there will be group singing of Christmas carols throughout the city, Christmas Eve. All who are interested in singing carols are to meet in the auditorium of Israel Putnam school, Monday, at 7:30. Those who play violins, cornets and clarinets are also being requested to meet with the singers. C. D. Sharpe has been chosen director and will conduct the rehearsal and supervise the forming of the groups that will go out to sing. It is planned to have the entire number of singers and players assemble around the Community Tree and then divide into groups to sing and play in the different neighborhoods of the city.

All those who wish to hear the singing of the carols are expected to place electrically illuminated candles in their windows.

The tree will be an imposing and georgeous spectacle. It will be erected on top of the drinking fountain in the Square and will rise thirty feet or more. Its boughs will glow with colored electric lamps. From the night before Christmas until the night after New Year's the current will be turned on as soon as twilight begins.

Christmas Sunday at the Second Congregational church at 10:30 a. m. the full choir with the Junior Choir will sing special Christmas anthems and carols. The minister will speak on "Making Room for the Christ Child." At 12.00 noon there will be a special Christmas service for the children of the Church school. It will consist of a Christmas story, the singing of Christmas carols and a message of Christmas by the minister. In the evening at 7:30 the choir will sing the Christmas Cantata, "The Star Divine" by A. W. Lansing. There will be additional violin music and Mrs. E. L. Robinson, the director of the choir will sing a solo.

The Christmas parties for the children will be held Tuesday afternoon at half past three for the Cradle Roll, Beginners and Primary Children and at seven o'clock in the evening for the children of the Junior and Intermediate departments of the school. The Drop-in Class has charge of the service and children's parties.

At the Baptist church Sunday, regular services will be held except at 6 p. m. the annual Christmas concert of the Bible school will take the place of the young people's meeting and the evening sermon. The program will be as follows: Welcome, Stella, Strait; Our Program, Elliott Johnson; song, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," Bernice Chaussee; I Wish I Had Lived in Bethlehem, Dorothy McAdams; The Christmas Rule, Mary Clark; solo, "Silent Night," Olga Ericson; My Dearest Gift, Bernice Evans; Mother's Christmas Fairy, Ruth Osier; The Snowbird, Frances Cutler; song, Mrs. Spencer's and Miss Smith's classes; I can Spell Christmas, Charlotte McCulloch; A Child's Reason, Kathleen Chaussee; First Attempt, William Kilborn; The Christmas Idea, Mrs. Ballard's class; cornet solo, Vincent Wilbur; Advise to Santa, Arthur Aldrich; Another Christmas Wish, Everett Stark; The Angel's Song, Gladys Evans; Merry Christmas, Mary Bishop; song, Blue Ribbon Class; A Christmas Telegram, Junior Willis; Where They Grow, William Kennedy; exercise, Junior and Intermediate departments; A Wish, Roberta Codell; Christmas is Coming, Orrin Austin, song, Blue Ribbon class; Christmas Meaning, Evelyn Stark; Christmas in Judea, Beth Thompson; An Invitation, Donald Cutler.

There will be a Christmas concert at the Methodist church Sunday evening at seven o'clock. The Christmas Tree and exercises will be held in the church parlors Christmas night.

The members of the cast in Pomfret's famous Nativity Play, "Holy Night," held a rehearsal Friday evening. Miss Annie Ash is directing the musical part of the program.

James S. Tatem, head of the firm of Tatem & Son nationally known manufactures of handles, baseball bats and pickersticks, is confined to his home by illness.

Miss Arline D. LeClair, one of the paying tellers of the Citizens National bank, is to become the bride at St. Mary's in this city Monday of Martin M. Adleman, of Hartford. He is in the wholesale drygoods business, the firm name being Martin Adleman & Company. After a wedding trip they will make their home in Hartford. Miss LeClair is the daughter of Mr. A. LeClair of Mill street. She was formerly chief clerk of the French River Textile company, of Hartford. Since the organization of the Citizens National bank, a little more than a year ago, she has been a member of its clerical force. Miss Giselle Magnant will succeed her.

Ice from two to four inches in thickness covers some of the ponds in this vicinity. It is entirely too thin to attempt to skate on, but boys and girls have attempted it. There have been no accidents but city officials and others in authority are watchful to prevent accidents.

A crew of nineteen men employed by the state in the extermination of the Gypsy moth in this vicinity stated that they find plenty of evidence of the presence of the pest.

Miss Esther Bishop of Woodstock is soon to leave to spend the winter in Toledo, Ohio.

Carl Danielson will move his family to Hartford soon after the New Year. Mr. Danielson has been employed there for several months.

Mrs. Frank Perrin of Woodstock Hill is now at Orlando, Florida, where she will spend the winter.

Mrs. Gertrude Austin is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Willard Steere at Georgiaville, R. I., for a few weeks.

The Woman's Relief Corps held a very successful food sale at the Community rooms of the Putnam Savings bank Friday afternoon.

Peter Lee has returned from a visit to Hartford and New London.

Friends of Edward Randall, formerly of East Putnam, now an inmate of the "Haven," Abington's home for invalid and elderly people, are planning to remember him with a shower of Christmas cards and quarters. Many remember the injury he suffered over two years ago, falling forty feet from a building on which he was employed, breaking his back. His is a pitiful condition. By nature a powerful man, but now nearly helpless, with finances nearly gone. Mr. Randall was employed in Worcester, at the time of his injury and after spending months in Memorial hospital, came to the Haven in July of this year. Now when the spirit of Christmas is active, it is planned to have his friends, and other friends of humanity who will join, make this Christmas shower a real shower of Christams cheer. The plan is to enclose a Christmas card with the sender's name and 25c in money, the letters addressed to Edward Randall, Abington, Conn, in time to reach him by Dec. 24th.

DEATH OF CHAS. H. CLEMENS— FAMILY SORELY AFFLICTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 18—Charles H. Clemens of the River road died yesterday at the Day Kimball hospital after ten days' illness with pneumonia. He was apparently in his usual rugged health when he went to the undertaker's December 9 to arrange for the funeral of his four-year-old boy, Henry E. Clemens who had died that day of pneumonia, following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Clemens was unable to attend the funeral the next day as he was a patient at the hospital and his name was on the dangerous list. He continued to grow worse until the end came.

Surviving him besides his wife are four small children, the youngest but seven weeks old, Mrs. Clemens' father, S. P. Sandstrom, of West Thompson, has been in a Boston hospital for several weeks following a surgical operation. It is believed, however, that he will recover.

One of the New Haven road's big steam shovels is at work just above the town, reinforcing the bank where the track skirts the Quinebaug, a couple of hundred yards below the Burnt Mill curve. When the Aspinook dam was built, the water was flowed up to the railroad's right of way. At that time, to prevent possible wash from the pond, the embankment was faced with rip-rap reinforcement. It is believed that the plans are being prepared for the extension north of the Jewett City siding.

PLAINFIELD

LOCAL FIRE COMPANY CALLED TO PACKER

Ty[illegible] were ten present and a generous offering was received. Mrs. A. H. Beebe was appointed to send baskets to the shut-ins at Christmas time. The hostess served delicious refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Miss Ruth J. Ellis, the B. Y. P. U. president, gave out about forty invitations for a Christmas supper and party Friday evening. A rehearsal was held during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Griffith of East Great Plain, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Ross.

TALK TO PRETTY GIRLS IS ONE WAY TO LIVE LONG

OXFORD, Eng., Dec. 18—(AP)—Listen to music, look at beautiful things, chat with friends, wear your best clothes and talk all you can to pretty girls, if you wish to live for many years.

Among the educators a conclusion prevails, however, that longevity is an accident rather than an achievement.

THE TAX BILL

Floor Leader Tilson in the lower house of congress promised to have the tax reduction bill out of house of representatives before Christmas. He has kept his word. The house has stood loyally by his programme.

From the time the discussion of the measure was started it has been manifest that the house members were strongly for it. It reflected the sentiment of the country when they ratified without change the bill that was presented to them by the ways and means committee. Tax reduction has been the demand and it is tax reduction which the non partisan measure in the house insures.

With congress in session less than two week the house has recognized and done it duty. It is too much to expect any such speed on the part of the senate. There the bill will take its course through committee and later come up for action on the committee's report. There is no excuse for a prolonged delay. It is intended that the provisions of the new revenue bill shall govern the collection of the next taxes. That means that the quicker final action is taken in regard to this matter the less confusion there will be in definitely indicating to the tax payers what the basis of taxation is going to be.

The country has reason to applaud the prompt and positive action which the house has taken. It would have reason to congratulate itself if there was any assurance that the bill would get the approval of the senate in twice the time the house has spent with it. Those in the house who have endeavored to rip the bill apart will get little sympathy. Their purpose has been political and destructive. They sought to embarrass when there's no question but what the country endorses the sound and scientific basis upon which the tax reduction has been proposed. The fact that there were but 15 who voted against the bill in the house indicates how premature the opposition and how ineffective its organization.

MAILING CHRISTMAS PACKAGES

For several days postoffice employes have been aware of the fact that there was a rush coming. This was evident from the character of business. Packages and cards have been coming in steadily, not in great numbers, but in such a way as to make certain that the facilities which we use so much because the postal force is not

[illegible] grow [illegible] Those [illegible] the mails [illegible] packages [illegible] destination. In Christmas there can be delay in mailing. The rush in the postoffice is [illegible] days earlier this year so far as the moving of packages is [illegible] be no Christmas [illegible] early, and [illegible] out of the [illegible] insurance [illegible] with heavy [illegible] and the careful tying with [illegible] string of the [illegible] most [illegible] who pre- [illegible] them separated [illegible] the list [illegible] when the [illegible]

[illegible] to [illegible] that these [illegible] for [illegible] all the work of the mails [illegible] They will serve to make [illegible] more [illegible] and in good condition and that is what is [illegible] to do and the more the [illegible] is made for these sending the [illegible] after the service is going to be. Then the sender is in reality [illegible] on this [illegible] hours when he [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] when work is carried on in early Christmas [illegible] properly and [illegible] [illegible] packages and in writing to address [illegible] in ink and putting a return address upon the package. If so, an easy and much better job to do things as they should be done.

THE DEBTS AGREEMENTS

A really the spirit of obstruction has been manifested in congress by certain individuals. It is not to be supposed that all members of congress are going to be of one mind on any question, but there are those who fail to understand the folly of their position and yet persist in voicing it when [illegible] of getting any [illegible]

[illegible] is to be considered in connection with opposition which has been displayed relative to approving the debt agreements which have been made by the debt commission with certain European countries. For the most part the same plan has been followed in all instances. The commission has looked carefully into the capacity of the respective nations to pay their debts and where it has been shown that there were conditions which made reductions advisable there have been adjustments in accord therewith.

Under normal conditions there might be justification for insisting that all debts and interest should be paid in full. This country has no idea of giving encouragement to warlike activity on the part of other nations through leniency in the matter of paying war debts. On the other hand it recognizes the folly of expecting to get blood out of a turnip. It is along such a line that the debt commission has been working. It has made good progress. Only one of the large debts remains to be adjusted and only a few of the small ones.

There are opinions concerning the debt payments which vary from the collection of every cent, with interest, to cancellation. The extremists in either direction do not represent general [illegible]ent, but it is imagined that the attitude which has been taken by the debt commission comes close to the feeling of the people of the country concerning this matter. It is the attitude that deals with a matter of business in a businesslike way, and those who undertake to waste time and use obstructive tactics in dealing with it will get precious little sympathy.

TAMMANY BOTH WAYS

Tammany has been much in the light for the past few months in connection with New York politics. It is likely to be a long time before it steps out of the picture.

New York's new mayor is to take office soon for a period of four years. He has recently announced that the boss of Tammany was going to be the boss of New York. That of course creates no surprise. It is what is to be expected when Tammany is victorious. Tammany will pull the strings and Mayor Walker will act. Now the mayor-elect is trying to claim that the city is being made wideopen in anticipation of the opening of his administration for the purpose of making it possible to point to such as proof of the charge made during the campaign that if Walker was elected the city would be wide open.

Thus the present administration and the coming one are having a merry time. And yet both administrations are the product of Tammany. The one that is going out was guided by Tammany. The one that is coming in admits Tammany control. Is the Tammany leopard going to change its spots?

Has New York under Tammany dylan been so admittedly bad that Tammany Walker is going to make a thorough house cleaning, or it is just a case where there is going to be a lot of talk about it with little being accomplished? In any case Tammany administration appears to have been so bad for the past eight years that the affairs of New York have been put into the hands of Tammany for four years more. New York has experienced the one and ordered the other. Is it bluffing itself that a [illegible]

GETTING RESULTS

It is unfortunate that it is necessary at times for ignorable conditions regarding the administration of justice to be revealed in order to set action but it is. Motor Vehicle Registrar Goodwin of Massachusetts long since came to that conclusion and he has been tackling the job single handed ever since.

Not only has he brought to light the reprehensible manner in which [illegible] have been handling cases which contributed to the dangers of the highways but he has set forth records of cases which disclose a serious state of affairs. Some of them are enough to make Massachusetts gasp.

Investigations have been started for the purpose of verification. They will report a section of the state where Massachusetts has shuddered before because of the manner in which officials were misusing their office. Only within a few days under the claim [illegible] it is possible to get away with murder [illegible] Mr. Goodwin pointed out. [illegible] a person charged with murder has been allowed to go to [illegible] to answer to another charge and as the result has disappeared. The person who provided the bail in that case admitted perjury in claiming to have property and set for years nothing has been done with the perjury [illegible] matter until the Goodwin statement [illegible] this situation. This week it has been brought into court and a six months sentence imposed.

Registrar Goodwin seems to be able to prove what he says. He is revealing some rank conditions. He is encountering rigid opposition but he is getting results. He is likewise opening some eyes.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Nowhere perhaps are the results of advancing civilization more apparent than in the evolution of traveling facilities. One has only to compare the modes of travel but a few years before our oldest inhabitants were children to see what is virtually a "new heaven and a new earth" in regard to methods of transportation. Prior to the first third of the last century distant traveling was confined to horse and carriage or stage coach. One can easily understand why Abigail Adams, the brilliant wife of our second president, should complain of the tediousness of the stage coach ride from Boston to Washington. Every day in Boston the bicycles, motorcycle, the automobile are in almost endless confusion, beside the motor truck, the trolley, and near by the elevated trains and the steam cars. With all these marvelous facilities, one wonders if in the meantime, there had been a corresponding increase of human happiness. If not, why?

By this time, of course, the Christmas list of gifts has been made out, bought, and sent to those living at a distance. Don't tear up that list and throw it into the waste basket without running it over just once. Possibly you have left somebody out and that somebody is very apt to be one most sensitive to a slight. Christmas appeals most powerfully to the opposite ends of life; to childhood and the second childhood. Don't forget Aunt Mary who is alone in the world. She is one of those quiet souls who is slipping out of life and nobody knows it but herself. Her husband is dead, and having no children or near relatives, she is just the person most likely to be forgotten. She lives alone in the house where she was born. What she needs is to hear the song of the angels in the shape of some little sign of remembrance. Whatever you do on Christmas, don't forget Aunt Mary!

Before the coming week closes we shall have passed another anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers on Plymouth Rock. There are some things in history as in nature that loom up bigger the farther one gets away from them. Close to Mt. Washington its glory and majesty are somewhat obscured by the lesser foothills, but as you get away from it, the mount looms up big just as the foothills grow little, till at length they disappear entirely, and the mountain itself stands out impressive in its grandeur. So with great men and great events. The cruise of the Mayflower like that of the Santa Maria and her companions seemed contemptible in their day, but no colossal ocean liner has made such history as they. The Emancipation Proclamation of 1863 was laughed at in some quarters of the world, but nobody laughs at it today. All honor to these men who had the courage of their convictions!

Is it not true that some people can do things—and get away with them—which others cannot? I. e., without injury to their reputation? The law allows us to do things that expediency condemns. One's position in life may be tyrannical, but it stands with authority. To illustrate: If as we pass along the street we see two little boys sitting in the middle of the street playing marbles, we simply smile and say, "God bless the lads." But suppose President Coolidge and Senator Borah should squat down on the broad sidewalk in front of the white house and play marbles, would the passers by be apt to say, "God bless our president?" A good many would be inclined to modify the expression. It is true everywhere it is expedient for girls to smoke in colleges—or out. They have the same legal right as boys. How many young men would select a young woman for a wife if he knew she was an inveterate smoker?

With the near approach of Christmas, one's thoughts naturally are more and more of that refined emotion that came to the world as the gift of its redemption. This underlies —or, at least, ought to underlie—the bestowment of gifts to one another if joy is in the air it ought to be the controlling impulse in all our hearts. It was as the Christmas season drew nigh that the eminent Henry Drummond had this beautiful thought about Christmas. He said: "The Gift of Joy." "Christianity," he says, "wants nothing so much in the world as sunny people, and the old are hungrier for that than for bread. The oil of joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor with a Garment of Praise, it will be better for them than blankets." Do we not need advice of this character to keep up from overcommercializing the Christmas season? And this we certainly stand in danger of doing.

The power of unanimous sentiment was never seen more clearly than in the present hour. That of course is due to the fact that the world was never more nearly one than at present in regard to the abolition of war. Every civilized nation is saying with emphasis: "War must go!" Nothing will keep this stain from the world's calendar but the united voice of humanity. Perhaps this decision is not the result of the humanitarian instinct against war as cruelty and the supply of paradise. It is rather the conclusion arrived at by the appalling logic that if war continues, the nations must go. The world's greatest diplomatists and statesmen of all creeds and color are emphatic on this point. Because of this fact it is not extravagant to say that recently at Locarno one of the greatest moral victories in all the ages has been won. With war gone forever one can hardly predict what may not yet be done for humanity.

Two boys were enjoying themselves over the toys displayed in a shop window. A lady standing by, interested in their enthusiasm, said to them: "Perhaps some of these toys will be found in your home on Christmas," instantly the older boy answered rather sadly: "There won't be any Christmas in our house this year; my father's been sick a long time." But the smaller boy said, "Perhaps Santa Claus will bring us something." The lady said nothing but she smiled. Yes, it may be that the little fellow's faith in this splendid myth will not be shattered this year. Does not this incident open up to us the great kingdom of the shadows, not in the near east or the far east, but right about us? Perhaps it is too much to hope that no little one anywhere in this section will have a heavy heart on Christmas. It may be that the law of compensation works in the moral world as well as in the physical, and at Christmas time as well as any other.

If it is true that an equilibrium is established in the physical world that keeps it rightly adjusted, must there not be something similar to it in the moral world? If not then it must collapse. But here we do find something that is equivalent to the law of compensation in the physical order. It is well known in the natural world if the eyes are not strong, the ears seem to say, "Poor eyes, we are sorry for you; we'll help you out." Now it is generally true that the blind and the near blind have unusually acute hearing. The strong are made to bear the burdens of the weak. The blind also are very keen to the sense of touch, and are usually genial and optimistic. If there are homes where the spectre of poverty is found, there are usually in that community consecrated agencies that bring comfort and cheer into such places. The spirit of the Christ child is everywhere.

THE DEMAND FOR MORE LABOR

The National Association of Manufacturers is advocating a revision of the present immigration law, to the end that the number of immigrants shall be regulated each year by the "current economic requirements of the country." The idea is to have a "flexible labor supply." When there is "need of labor," aliens are to be selected overseas to supply this need, and are to be admitted in excess of the quotas. A widespread campaign has been organized to bring about this change in the law, and certain newspapers that cater to "big business" have given it support.

There are certain perfectly obvious practical objections to the proposed plan. Suppose 100,000 or 50,000 or 10,000 "selected" aliens are brought here because of the need of labor in certain industries, what reason is there to expect that these people will all go where they are wanted, or, having gone there, will stick to the job they are supposed to do unless we compel them to do so? Again, while there might be temporarily an apparent need for laborers in certain industries, what would happen during a time of unemployment? Would all these imported laborers go back whence they came, or would most or all of them remain here, upsetting the permanent balance of our economic and social life and becoming a charge upon the community? Henry H. Curran, commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, New York, recently discussed selective immigration in a syndicate editorial. He said:

"The self-styled immigration 'expert' and the cloistered student . . . join hands ever and anon in asserting with the most sublime confidence that what we most need in America is 'selective' immigration. . . . The trouble is that we are already trying 'selective' immigration in a small way, and already we know that it does not work. At Ellis Island we never did think it would work. And we said so.

"But a year ago congress, nevertheless, ordained that we give preference, among intending immigrants, to 'skilled agriculturalists.' It is our consuls abroad who are to pick the 'skilled agriculturists.' It is we here at Ellis Island who are to let them in. The first fruit of the scheme is a flock of clerks, hatters and haberdashers who have persuaded the consuls that they are farmers, and have thus received preference over other immigrants. The second result is a crop of preferred 'farmers' who have taken to driving trolley cars in Chicago and taxis in Boston within a week after they went ashore from Ellis Island. In neither case have we received any alien addition to our muster of farmers in America.

"The thing has failed. How could it be otherwise? How can we keep a farmer farming or a cobbler cobbling? Who is going to stand guard over them and compel them to do in 1926 that which they did in 1925—if they do it even then? And who is going to say whether we most need milliners? The secretary of labor? Or congress? Who will tell them? The boss milliners? They will say, 'Yes!' for their milliners' wages will go down. Or the milliners' union? They will say, 'No!' for then wages will go up. So active immigration is a pretty theory. But it never will work and it never will."

Further, it is not clear that any induced immigration of labor would in the long run be of any real economic advantage to the very industries which are calling for more "hands." The latest statistics show that the population of the United States increased during the past year at a rate above the average one in spite of the marked decrease of immigration in recent years. This healthy growth of our population without any considerable additions by immigration is doubtless due, as is clearly stated in an editorial in the Manufacturers Record for July 9, "to the more general prosperity of the American people and to the higher wages which the laboring people have been receiving." The decrease in alien immigration has, without doubt, played a part in maintaining wages at a high level and thus in promoting national prosperity, and this again has induced a higher birth rate. Now, it is perfectly clear that a native-born population of Americans, or at least partly Americanized, parents will have higher standards of living than would the children of recent immigrants from some of the countries which used to send us the bulk of our immigration before the restriction law went into effect. With generally higher standards of living, the per capita consumption of commodities must inevitably increase. In other words, as a recent writer has well put it, "Manufacturers and employers of labor should carefully consider such facts before committing themselves to a program for urging the influx of foreign laborers in time of labor shortage; they are making a choice between cheap labor for the present and a wider market for their products in the future."

The stock argument against immigration of the past 25 years were due to this reckless greed for cheap labor on the part of our large industrial, transportation and mining "interests." These "interests" have set pocketbook above patriotism and profits above posterity. They have been regardless of every consideration other than that of speeding up their factories, their railroad construction and their mine output. Certain members of this same group, aided by foreign steamship companies, are behind the present agitation to break down the new immigration law by establishing the so-called "flexible labor supply." They use sugar-coating their proposal with smooth statements that the present law is a great improvement over our former policy, and then they proceed to persist in trying to break the law down.

To those who realize that foreign labor is often so "cheap" that it is dear at any price; that it is always, in the long run, socially and politically very expensive; that a tremendously rapid development of our country is by no means altogether desirable, and that every immigrant is to play a part in the formation of the future American race, this matter of cheap labor presents a wholly different aspect. In the minds of millions of our citizens the question arises whether any American industry which cannot prosper without a constant supply of cheap alien labor is worth preserving in a country which boasts of the high standards of living of its wageearners and the high character of its citizenship. The patriotic course for our large employers to pursue is to stop complaining about the "need of labor," to set themselves to work to reduce the labor turnover, to introduce labor-saving machinery, to improve working conditions so as to face the facts of the situation. "An intelligent American with an American-made machine can do the work of a dozen ignorant foreigners. That is good sense. It is good business. It is sound American policy. And it will greatly decrease the stress of unemployment when business conditions are bad. Edward A. Filene of Boston, a large manufacturer and employer, has put the economic situation clearly as follows:

"Employers do not need an increased labor supply, since increased use of labor-saving machinery and elimination of waste in production and distribution will for many years reduce costs more rapidly than wages increase and so prevent undue domination by labor."

Immigration is usually considered on the economic side, yet its racial aspect is infinitely more important. As Dr. Lothrop Stoddard has well stated the case, "The admission of aliens should be regarded just as solemnly as the begetting of our own children, for the racial effects are the same." Major General Leonard Wood summed up the situation in these words: "The American cannot run about all the sand it will stand."

The immigration act of 1924 is sound American policy. It expressed the conviction of the American people that "immigration is a long-time investment in family stocks, rather than a short-time investment in productive labor." Commissioner Curran has said that "as an affirmative performance the immigration act of 1924 has already done great good to the country and it gives promise of doing more." Bradley Buell, secretary of the New York City Council on Immigrant Education (July 17, 1924,) has pointed out the benefits of the new law in relation to the education and assimilation of aliens as follows: "By limiting the number of immigrants who will come in, the new Immigration Act gives organized education and social work its first real opportunity to help the foreigners already here to take a more intelligent part in the life of the city. . . . To accomplish constructively the delayed task of assimilation is the opportunity now afforded."

The well-organized and heavily financed campaign to break down this law should be met with determined opposition. More labor means cheaper labor, and cheaper labor of whatever race or color, imported and forced to do jobs at the behest of "big business," is a proposal repugnant to the vast majority of Americans.—Prof. Robert Dec. Ward of Harvard in Manufacturers Record.

Sunday Morning Talk

THE CHRISTMAS SONG

Glory to God in the highest—and on earth peace, good will toward men. And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another: Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.—LUKE, 2:14-15.

Christmas was ushered in by a song from the sky. Nearly every one was fast asleep when the angels sang, but the shepherds watching their flocks by night heard the wonderful strains and hastened to cross the fields and did not stop until they found the place where the young child lay. I am sure they never forget that music and when the hour came for those shepherds to cross the sea and meet the shining ones beyond, they only of the millions who have gone to heaven knew, for them were prepared something of the sweetness of the angel voices. They had heard the song already and knew it again when they heard the angels singing around the throne. We too, if we listen may catch in our thought something of that exultant strain, for the Christ child has come to us in this Christmastide as of old He came to mankind.

His parentage, His name, the time and place of His birth, the condition of His infant hours, have all the seal of heaven upon them. For what did Tertullian prophesy, Alexander conquer, Augustus give laws, but to point out to the world the instant the spot, the descent, the estate, in which the son of God assumed our nature in order to enter on the work of our redemption. Humble, as was however, the situation in which our incarnate Saviour first appeared to men. His birth was attended with honors which neither Alexander or Pompey nor Caesar could ever boast. Heralds angelic publish the event to simple shepherds watching in the fields of Bethlehem, while a chorus of attending angels from the opening skies celebrate the event as affording Glory to God in the Highest, peace on earth, and good will to men. And what night, or what music was there in the court of Herod or of Caesar that could be compared with this. These shepherds no sooner found the truth of the joyful tidings, than they made them known to others, they praised God for all they had seen and heard.

Christ came to the world to redeem humanity, and to establish the kingdom of God among men. The work of redemption was completed by the Saviour and no one can add to His atonement. The work of establishing the kingdom of God among men was left by the Master to His followers to carry forward, and every Christian has a share in this great enterprise.

Every Christian church should be a church of the evangel. Every individual Christian should be an ambassador, whose mission is to declare the glad tidings of great joy. The world is waiting. Human hearts oppressed with the burden of sin are filled with a longing which can be satisfied only by the knowledge of Him who alone can redeem the soul from sin. What are we doing? The question is a pertinent one, are we endeavoring to do all we can with all the enthusiasm of loyal and devoted allegiance to the Master, or are indifferent and careless of its proclamation. This is the message that is the most needed at the present time. It will find a welcome and a response where all other appeals fail, and if we are faithful in declaring it, we shall find our richest reward in the joy which its announcement brings to the hearts of the people, and in the transformation in their lives.

The loving heart, the prayer of faith
Are sweeter gifts to bring.
Shine out, O star, from heaven afar,
And guide us to our King.

Stories That Recall Others

Just His Fest

Andrew provided his mother with all the thrills and worries peculiar to boys of 17. She was passed through the talk love stage with him, the dancing school age and finally the age which all boys reach when they think it is manly to do a lot of things which are really very unmanly.

He was a big boy whose feet had outgrown the rest of him. Just a while ago a certain dancing party was imminent and Andrew had got the biggest he had in shoes and went his way.

Long after midnight that night his mother was lying awake listening for him. She breathed a sigh of relief when the door opened, only to change to panic as she heard his progress upstairs.

"Andrew," she screamed, "come here to me instantly. You have been drinking. Come here and let me smell your breath." Andrew entered the room and fell on the bed agonizing. "Oh, no, I'm not drunk, it's just my feet in these darn shoes."

—And Then Afterward

Among the passengers on the car was a mother and her small son. She had provided herself with entertainment for her rather long trip by getting a magazine and she was concentrating on that to the displeasure of the offspring, who sat unnoticed at her side.

Unable to endure the solitude of his position longer, the youngster began a fusillade of interrogations, unnoticeable and impersonal at first, but becoming more and more amusing to the other occupants of the car. Most questions were directed at the mother who stolidly kept her eyes on the pages of the periodical, except for intermittent glances at her small son, which hinted of future retribution. Undaunted by the freezing glances and encouraged by the smiles of the others, the youngster kept up his babel and at last caused a great shout of merriment, when, pointing to a stout and puffing woman who had just entered the car, he exclaimed: "My daddy likes fat ladies!"

Time may be money, but it's hard for a man to make his creditors believe it.

Resinol heals deep burn

Has used it for years and never known it to fail

Bolton, Mass., Jan. 22:—"In 1910 I burned my foot severely. Every time I moved the burn would open and for six weeks I tried various treatments which did no good—the burn simply would not heal. I was a nurse before I was married and had used Resinol Ointment and knew it to be wonderful, so I decided to try it on this burn. I had used only one jar when my burn was completely healed. I have used Resinol Ointment for years and have never known it to fail—it's great stuff." (Signed) Mrs. Joseph E. Sigrist.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

FUNERALS

Rev. William James Tate

Prayer for Rev. William James Tate, pastor of the Franklin Congregational church, was held at 10 o'clock Friday morning, at his late home in Franklin, followed at 10:30 o'clock by a funeral service held in the Franklin Congregational church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and members of the congregation of the church and the floral tributes were most beautiful memorials to the memory of one who had endeared himself to many during his pastorate in Franklin.

The service was conducted by Rev. William F. English, of Hartford, assistant superintendent of the Home Missionary society of Connecticut, and a personal friend of the deceased. He was assisted in conducting the service by Rev. Charles F. Reeves, retired, of Norwich Town and Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church. During the service Rev. Mr. English read the favorite hymn of Rev. Mr. Tate, the beautiful verses of Abide With Me.

The body was conveyed to Higganum where services were held in the Higganum Congregational church, Rev. Lester O. Schriver, pastor of the church conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Mr. English. Burial was in the Higganum cemetery. Bearers were relatives. Arrangements were by Church & Allen.

Funeral services for Mrs. Melissa Morgan of Montville, were held at her home Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Services were conducted by Rev. Charles Smith, pastor of the Montville Methodist church, who also conducted the committal service at the grave in Comstock cemetery. Arrangments were by Church & Allen.

Mrs. Edwin P. Comstock

With many relatives and friends attending, final tribute was paid to Mrs. Edwin Comstock of Montville, when funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her son-in-law, Carl O. Johnson, of Haughton park, Uncasville.

The service was in charge of Rev. Charles Smith, pastor of the Methodist church, who also read the committal service at the grave in Comstock cemetery. The bearers were Dan D. Home, George H. Bradford, John Fellows, Norman Allen, Frank Scofield and Bert J. Edmunds.

The many beautiful flowers sent to the funeral were fitting tributes in memory of a loved one. Arrangements were by Charles A. Gager.

Frank Krug

The funeral of Frank Krug was held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Preston City Congregational church, many relatives and friends attending. There was a wealth of floral pieces.

The service was conducted by Rev. Frank Robbins, who was assisted by Rev. George Clark. Burial was in Preston City cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Robbins. The bearers were Herman Davis, August Prodell, Ernest Luther and George Fritz. Arrangements were by The Henry Allen & Sons Co.

PARK CHURCH WOMAN'S FEDERATION ELECTS OFFICERS FOR NEXT YEAR

The annual meeting of the Woman's Federation of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon in the parlors of Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial parish house, Mrs. F. W. Carey president, opening the meeting at two o'clock with the reading of Matthew II, of the birth of Christ and a devotional prayer.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. John S. Blackmar, the secretary, Miss Edith Bliss, read the report of the November meeting.

Mrs. Allen Latham gave out envelopes for the 40th birthday party of Home Congregational union, which is to be held in Meriden, Jan. 11th. Envelopes are to be returned at the next missing meeting or any Sunday.

Two notable gifts of this year are the piano in the dining room, through the interest of Mrs. E. A. Harris, and a portrait of Mrs. Sarah Lanman Smith, from Frederick Huntington.

Annual reports were read by Mrs. Harriet Blackmar showing many most interesting and successful activities in all departments.

This, 50th year of the federation, is the first in which the budget system has been used, and the fact that it has been raised, and a balance left proves its success. The treasurer, Mrs. Rollin C. Jones, gave a most satisfactory report of the financial condition of the federation.

The report of the nominating committee was presented by Mrs. William Tyler Browne, chairman, the other members being: Mrs. Wallace S. Allis and Miss Helen Marshall. The report was as follows: President, Mrs. Frederic W. Carey; vice president, Mrs. Frank Hempstead; second vice president and chairman of missions, Miss Edith Bliss; third vice president and chairman of parish house, Mrs. Aurin Payson; recording secretary, Mrs. John S. Blackmar; corresponding secretary, Miss Barbara Allen; treasurer, Mrs. Rollin C. Jones.

Chairmen of committees: Membership, Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley; finance, Mrs. Henry D. Johnson; hospitality, Mrs. Raymond Sherman.

Program: Mrs. Edward J. Graham; custodians, Mrs. Cyrus Woodman; friendly aid, Mrs. Oliver L. Johnson; Sunday school library, Mrs. Frank S. Bunnell; publicity, Miss Mary A. C. Avery; sewing, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche; church interior, Miss Alexandrine Trumbull; hospital, Mrs. Charles A. Saxton; flower, Miss Harriet R. Trumbull; Young Peoples' work, Mrs. Louis H. Walden; home service, Mrs. Howarth C. Collins; Blue Birds, Mrs. Frank L. Crowell.

Mrs. Crary read a beautiful little poem, A Christmas Prayer, by Margaret E. Sangster, which was very well received.

At the end of the business session, Miss Louise Howe, retiring chairman of the parish house committee, introduced Miss Alice Coggswell, who gave a most interesting account of her visit last summer to "The Little Town of Bethlehem," oldest city in Palestine, and the only one to retain its old name through all these years.

She said it was almost exclusively Christian now, the 500 inhabitants being the supposed descendants of Crusaders, noted for the beauty of its women and its chief trade is that of shell carving. The Church of the Nativity is built over the grotto of Nativity, the accepted birthplace of Jesus.

A group of three songs were rendered with great feeling by Mrs. Aurin E. Payson. She sang "The Birthday of a King," by Neidlinger; Martin Luther's Christmas carol, "Away in a Manger," written for his children, with music by E. N. Anderson, and "Holy Night! Peaceful Night!" Mrs. Bursy presided at the piano.

Tea was served by Mrs. Aurin E. Payson, chairman, Mrs. Cyrus Woodman, and Mrs. Harrison Gray. Mrs. Vaughn poured. Table decorations were in yellow Iceland poppies and tall candles. At the next meeting of the federation, January 13, there will be a talk on Egypt, by Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee. Miss Katherine Hempstead will favor with a group of songs.

NEW YORK ARTISTS ENTERTAIN AT Y. M. C. A.

A large and appreciative audience heartily applauded the efforts of the New York Artists, Friday evening, when they appeared at the Y. M. C. A., in the opening number of the association's annual course of three entertainments. The artists, Ellen Keller, violinist, William Kelgard, entertainer and Charles LaTreve, pianist, presented a splendid programme that met instant favor with the audience. Their numbers were as follows:

Country Garden — Granger
Mr. LaTreve
Philosophy
Mr. Kelgard
Londerry Air
Kashmiri — Indian Love Lyric
Perpetual Motion — Bohn
Miss Keller

The second number in the course will occur late in January and the programme will be given by the Noted White Revue, five young ladies, dancers and singers.

SAVINGS STAMP MACHINE STOLEN FROM SCHOOL

The savings stamp machine owned by the Norwich Savings society, which has been at Elizabeth Street school, was stolen some time Thursday night, the theft being discovered Friday morning. The machine was torn from the wall and the stamps and money taken with it. The money stolen was a small sum.

The stamps will do the thief no good for they are all numbered and the bank will not redeem them. The stamps previously purchased by the children are also listed and only these will be honored when presented.

The work was evidently that of older boys for a small boy could not turn the machine from its fastenings on the wall. The police were notified and arrests are likely to follow as boys between the ages of six and seven presented some of the stolen stamps at the bank before 10 o'clock Friday morning. When questioned they could not account for having the stolen stamps but it is believed that older boys are responsible.

CONSTANCE CLAPP HEADS COLLEGE WHIST COMMITTEE

Friday, December 18, marked the beginning of the three weeks' vacation of Connecticut college for woman.

The past week has been filled with meetings of French, German, and psychology clubs, as well as house parties by the various dormitories.

Friday morning at one a. m., the freshman class caroled from dormitory to dormitory, and at five a. m., the sophomores carried out the same ancient custom. The annual Christmas play occurred in the gymnasium on Thursday evening at 8 p. m.

Many of the girls of the college are planning endowment entertainments during the Christmas holidays. A group of Norwich girls are running a large bridge and whist in the Wauregan hotel, next week, for this cause. Miss Constance Clapp, of Lincoln avenue, is chairman of the committee.

SEVERED HIS THUMB WHILE CUTTING WOOD

While cutting wood Friday afternoon Walter Prokop, 16, of Bunker Hill, Lisbon, handled his ax in such a manner as to sever the thumb on the left hand. The accident occurred at his home and James R. Palmer, letter carrier, of Lisbon, took the young man in his automobile to the office of Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve, who had him taken to the Backus hospital, where he administered the necessary medical treatment.

JOSEPH PETRONE HIT BY FLEEING AUTO

Hit by a fast moving automobile shortly before 11 o'clock Friday night near St. Mary's cemetery, Joseph Petrone, 23, No. 56 School street, is in a serious condition at the W. W. Backus hospital. He is suffering from a broken leg, injuries about the head, and is thought to have received a fractured knee cap.

Mr. Petrone, on his way home, was stepping from one trolley car, to another, at the "cross over." Both cars had come to a stop awaiting the transfer of passengers. The rapidly moving machine struck him, and either knocked or dragged him along the highway for a distance of between 75 and 90 feet. The driver of the machine without slackening speed fled from the scene leaving his victim in the road.

Motorman Jukoski called to Motorman W. J. Murphy that someone had been hit by a machine. Motorman Murphy immediately started after the fleeing machine driving his trolley car as far as Taft's station but the machine had disappeared.

At Taft's station Motorman Murphy met Francis McCarthy and Jeremiah McCarthy who were on their way to the city in their machine, and he told them of the accident. They immediately drove to the scene of the accident and hurried the badly injured man to the hospital.

Police headquarters was notified of the accident and police officers were rushed to Greeneville and Taftville in the patrol wagon in search of the driver whose identity, up to an early hour this (Saturday) morning, had not been learned.

Police officials in surrounding towns were notified to be on the lookout for the driver. The local police kept up an all night search for the driver.

LIONS PLAN HOLIDAY PARTY FOR CHILDREN

President William A. Anderson presided at the meeting of the Norwich Lions club, held Thursday noon at the Wauregan House. Lions Dr. Charles A. Solomon and Judge John T. Barry led the singing for the meeting.

Lion George Madden, reporting for the show committee, stated that rehearsals for the show, "That's That" will start in January. The play is to be staged for the benefit of the Lions club charity fund. This production was the prize show of the University of Pennsylvania.

The following committee was appointed to act with President Anderson in preparing for the Lions annual Christmas entertainment for the children of Norwich: Max Hanover, Rudolph Henschel, Louis Fontaine, William Friable, Benedict C. Pullen and William O'Neil.

The entertainment is to be staged at the Palace theater and the children will be guests of the Lions club. There will be a special entertainment and each child will receive some souvenir. The children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian or have a note from parents authorizing the manager of the theater to have custody of the children while at the theater.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

STATE'S FRUIT INDUSTRY IN HEALTHY CONDITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Dec. 18—Connecticut's first industry, with a marked increase in both tree planting and size of crop harvested in recent years, is in a good healthy condition said Fruit Specialist W. H. Darrow of the Connecticut Agricultural college speaking on "Trend of Fruit Growing in Connecticut" before the State Pomological society at its meeting in Hartford.

Most significant among the facts brought to light by Mr. Darrow was his statement that despite a five and a half per cent decrease in the number of young trees planted for New England in the last five years, Connecticut has shown an increase of twenty-seven per cent. This clearly indicates that apple tree planting is on the increase in Connecticut.

Commenting on the size of the commercial apple crop, Mr. Darrow declared that Connecticut has in the last five years made a greater gain over previous production than New England, and even New York state. Between 1920 and 1924, a total of 171,000 barrels were produced on an average each year, which is a forty-six per cent gain over the average production for the period between 1916-1919. New England has gained fourteen per cent in the last five years, while New York state has gained fifteen per cent. New York has a far greater total production than Connecticut however, its annual crop being thirty times greater than the one produced in this state. A 200 or 300 per cent increase for Connecticut would be hardly noticeable if the fruit were distributed among the larger markets of the east, according to Mr. Darrow.

Basing his belief on a survey of the apple industry, Mr. Darrow said that recent plantings may increase the crop somewhat within the next few years. He felt that with the better varieties and quality of the product, this increase can be readily consumed by the increasing population of Connecticut, and by extending to the excellent nearby markets such as New York and Providence. Varieties like the McIntosh gradually driving western box apples from local markets.

A decided change has taken place in the pruning practices of Connecticut Pomologists during the last five years, according to Mr. Darrow. Less severe pruning is now generally practised on both apples and peaches, and especially is this true of the younger trees. Old apple trees are seldom deborned as was the common practice a few years ago.

Practically all growers are using some form of quickly available nitrogenous fertilizer on their trees, he said, a practice that five years ago few were following. More thorough applications of spray material are being applied than formerly. Dusting has made rapid progress on peaches and is slowly gaining on apples.

Mr. Darrow said more interest is now being taken than formerly in the transplanting of trees from five to fifteen years of age. The practice has been successful where the moving has been properly done. Much interest has been shown in the construction of air-ventilated storage cellars for apples. A number are being erected in each county annually, according to Mr. Darrow, where five years ago there were few in the state.

Roadside markets for the selling of fruit were discussed by Mr. Darrow. He said their development had been rapid, and that those in better locations were doing an excellent and increasing business.

Commenting on the peach industry, Mr. Darrow said it has about recovered from the overproduction of ten years ago. He predicted that if a practical and effective control is found for the Oriental peach moth, Connecticut's industry is almost sure to thrive in the next few years.

CHARGED WITH DRIVING AN UNREGISTERED AUTO

Everett H. Hiscox, Jr., of this city, has been summoned to appear before the city court this (Saturday) morning to answer to a charge of violating the automobile regulations in driving a machine that he did not have registered. He was arrested Friday evening by Officer Hugh McAvoy and booked at police headquarters.

It is understood that Mr. Hiscox purchased the machine he was driving on December 9th and that he was using the numbers that were on the car when he bought it.

Plan "Mayflower Day"

Edwin H. Hinsdale, of Hartford, governor of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of Connecticut, attended on Saturday last, a board meeting of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants, held at the rooms of the New York state society on Twenty-third street. Addison P. Munroe, the governor-general, presided. The secretary-general spoke, and reports of various committees were presented. Acting in line with other patriotic societies, it was voted to have a "Mayflower Day" at the sequi-centennial exposition to be held at Philadelphia, in 1926.

KAPLAN WINS DECISIVE VERDICT OVER BABE HERMAN IN 15 ROUNDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—(By the Associated Press)—The world's featherweight crown still rests jauntily on the head of Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Connecticut's idol of the ring. He successfully defended his title tonight by battering his way to a convincing 15-round victory over one of his foremost and most persistent challengers, Babe Herman of California.

Before a crowd of 14,000 fans in the New Madison Square Garden, Kaplan nicked Herman's attack almost completely as well as any suspicion that his hold on the 126 pound crown was slipping a bit. The Kid belied his somewhat drawn appearance by setting a dashing pace from start to finish, driving Herman to cover with a swarming, aggressive onslaught and piling up a margin which left no doubt of his triumph in the minds of observers.

It was a slugging, mauling battle from start to finish but except for a few flashes it lacked the color and spectacular exchanges that featured the six previous encounters between these consistent rivals.

Kaplan's furious attempts at offensive kept Herman in retreat and resulted in continual holding by the challenger, who failed to show any effectiveness in attack except in the tenth and fourteenth rounds. These two rounds were the only ones credited to Herman and while he staggered the champion a bit in both with solid rights to the chin, he succeeded only in temporarily checking the Kid's swarming drives.

Herman held the champion even in two other rounds, the third and fourth, but in the remaining eleven the Connecticut "buzz saw" had his rival backing away from a steady hammering to the head and body.

There were no knockdowns despite the vicious swings indulged in by both battlers, but Herman took two acrobatic plunges to the canvas, once in the tenth round when he stumbled and turned a back flip, and again in the final round when he bounded to the floor and up again after dodging a Kaplan swing. Kaplan's shiftiness had Herman swinging wildly throughout the first half of the fight at such times as they were not locked in clinches and in the latter half the champion had sufficient stamina in reserve to check his rival's belated attempts to rally.

Honors were fairly closely divided in the last six rounds, despite the fact that Kaplan carried off four of them. Both flung caution to the winds in frequent and wild exchanges but the Kid, even when stung by rights to the head, nearly always came back to square accounts or take the edge again.

Both showed marks of battle as they wound up the final round in a slashing exchange. Herman bleeding from cuts over his right eye and around the mouth while Kaplan's cauliflower ear bled freely, in addition to which the champion's ribs showed some of the effects of Herman's pounding at close range.

The Preliminaries

Honeyboy Finnegan, Boston, won the semi-final bout on a foul from Bobby Garcia, soldier boxer from Camp Holabird, Md., in the sixth round of a slashing ten round go.

Garcia was disqualified by Referee Kid McPartland for hitting low after being warned three times previously for the same offense.

Up to that time Garcia held a lead chiefly as a result of knocking Finnegan down for a count of nine in the second round, but the Boston boxer rallied after this to score effectively with sharp shooting lefts to Garcia's jaw and body. Both slugged away furiously in every round and twice had to be separated after the bell rang. The crowd booed the disqualifying decision for several minutes.

Jackie Snyder, of New York, 126 1-2, captured a close decision over Jimmy Sakamoto, of Japan, 128, in a six round encounter.

PLAINFIELD FIVE WINS FROM FALL RIVER TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 18—The Kerr Thread of Fall River met defeat at the hands of the Plainfield quintet this evening at the Plainfield Community house, 23 to 33. At the beginning of the first half both teams were fighting neck and neck, first one would get a basket, only to have the opposing side tie the score. The Fall River basketeers were a little off on their shooting and missed a great many shots at the net. The Plainfield players fed Bissell, Norris and Benson throughout the first half, toward the end of the first half the Fall River quintet were winded and the local five took advantage of this and scored eight consecutive baskets. Fall River displayed some very fine pass work during this half. They broke up one of Plainfield's best plays, a play that accounted for a great many baskets in the preceding games played this season. At the end of the first half the score was 27 to 13 in the locals favor.

The second half both teams showed up some of the best passwork ever seen on the local floor. The half went about six minutes before Plainfield scored a basket, while Fall River scored five in the last ten minutes. The crowd howled and hooted continually. Fall River's wonderful passwork netted them five more baskets before the end of the game. Norriss, Benson and Bissell starred for the local team and Boothroyd and Dignan starred for the visitors. Dissinger carried the ball through the whole Fall River team alone. Normandin was off form tonight, getting only one basket. The lineup:

Plainfield	G.	F.	Pts.
Dissinger rf	2	1	5
Normandin lf	1	0	2
Norriss c	5	0	10
Benson rg	4	2	10
Bissell lg	5	1	11

In the preliminary game the Buddies defeated the Plainfield High school in a very interesting encounter, 40 to 25.

FOUR CITIES BIDDING FOR ARMY-NAVY CLASSIC

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—At least four cities are in the field for the Army-Navy football classic of 1926.

Chicago, which failed in efforts to land this year's game, has the backing of American Legion men in the middle west in making a new bid, but in spite of this, indications point to the contest going to one of the three most prominent eastern sites available—New York, Baltimore or Philadelphia.

The naval Academy which has the choice of 1926 battleground, picked Baltimore's big municipal stadium in 1924 and Franklin Field, the university of Pennsylvania's home, in 1922. With the sesqui-centennial celebration holding the spotlight in Philadelphia next year and involving major attractions in nearly every branch of sport, naval academy authorities may be persuaded to add the service gridiron classic to the calendar.

New York has two big arenas available, the Polo Grounds, where the games have been played twice in the last three years, and the Yankee stadium which has put in a tempting bid for the big game as a result of arranging to increase its seating capacity to about 80,000.

DOOLITTLE ELECTED MANAGER OF AGGIE FOOTBALL TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Dec. 18.—Vincent M. Doolittle '27, of New Britain, was last night elected manager of the Connecticut Aggie football team for 1926. Doolittle is a member of Pi Alpha Pi fraternity, and in addition to his work in connection with the football team, has been active in the business affairs of the College Dramatic club.

BATTLING SIKI FUNERAL IS IMPRESSIVE AFFAIR

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Six pallbearers wearing turbans and fezzes, the garb of Islam, carried the silver gray coffin containing the body of Louis Siki, former light-heavyweight pugilist champion of the world, better known as "Battling Siki," to the grave today, chanting Moslem prayers as they walked. A brief service had been conducted earlier by the Rev. Clayton Powell of the Abyssinian Baptist church. Siki's widow, escorted by members of the homicide squad, entered a waiting carriage and drove to the Flushing cemetery.

Hundreds of residents of the negro district in Harlem crowded into the funeral parlors where the services were conducted. Six members of the homicide squad mingled with the crowd that lined the sidewalks, as the funeral cortege got under way in the hope that Siki's slayer might appear and betray himself.

The pugilist was found murdered early Tuesday in a street in the west side district known as "Hell's Kitchen." The police have found no clue to the murderer.

EDDIE SHEVLIN LOSES TITLE TO AL MELLO

BOSTON Dec. 18—(AP)—Al Mello of Lowell, won the New England welterweight title from Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury in a technical knock-out in the eight round of a 10 round bout here tonight. Shevlin weighed 146 and Mello 147.

It was Mello's fight from the start. In the opening round he carried the battle to Shevlin, landing a shower of blows. The second round saw Shevlin go to the mat for a short count. When he got up Mello battered him from one side of the ring to the other.

From the third to the fifth rounds Mello used a left hook effectively. Both fighters slowed up in the sixth and seventh rounds, but in the eighth a left hook to the jaw sent Shevlin to the canvas for the count of nine. He struggled to his feet, but the referee stopped the match, and awarded the decision to Mello.

CANADIANS PRO SOCCER LEAGUE IS FORMED

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 18.—(AP)—Formation of an international Professional Soccer League is practically a certainty, according to Sam Davidson, secretary of the Dominion Football Association.

According to present arrangements, the league will be split into two sections, comprising in all ten teams, five from Canada and five representing cities in the United States.

The official playing season will be inaugurated to operate with teams representing Fall River, Mass., Boston, Providence, R. I., Brooklyn, N. Y., Garfield of Montreal and Montreal City, a new organization, the other section would compromise Toronto, Ulster, Toronto-Scottish, Philadelphia and a team from New York.

Tilden to Play Richards

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—(AP)—William T. Tilden, national singles champion, and Vincent Richards, Olympic titleholder, will renew their tennis rivalry of the outdoor season in an indoor benefit match of two sets here tomorrow afternoon. They will also be opponents in a doubles encounter, Tilden pairing with Dr. George King and Richards taking Francis T. Hunter as partner.

Mrs. Molla B. Mallory and Miss Mary K. Browne will meet in a two set singles match.

Tigers Strengthen Team

For the indoor baseball game next Monday evening the Greeneville Tigers have been out and strengthened their team by the signing of Henry Boyd as a pitcher. The Tigers have been very weak in the pitching box and with Boyd doing the twirling it is expected that the team will show a decided improvement. The new lineup for the Tigers is as follows: Boyd, p; Hamil or Goldblat, c; Burke, 1b; P. Labenski, ss; Tombari, 2b; Cimikoski, 3b; Nevins, rs; Hamil, lf; Jarvis, cf, S. Labenski or Connell, rf.

BALTIC WINS FROM CHENEY BROS. TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

BALTIC, Dec. 18—The Baltic Five, led by Capt. Robertaille, took a close and fast game from the Cheney Bros. A. C. of South Manchester, 36 to 30 here tonight. It was an interesting and thrilling game and it was the great floor work of the Baltic leader that prevented the Cheney team from scoring many times. Robertaille was here, there and everywhere, his passing and guard work easily surpassing the play of his teammates and the Cheney players Condy, however was high point man and shade honors with Swanson who played center in place of Charron who was unable to play, owing to illness. Provencher also played a nice game. Pentland started for the visitors. The summary:

HEYDLER UPHOLDS USING OF ROSIN BY PITCHERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—(AP)—Announcement by President John A. Heydler that he "may see fit to interpret the rules to allow the use of rosin by pitchers," was accepted in baseball circles, here as indicating that the National League may take independent action on the question in the event of the joint rules committee's failure to lift the ban at its meeting next month.

"I believe it would be possible for the president of either league to tell the umpires to permit pitchers to use rosin," he said. "Each president may interpret the rules as he see fit. I certainly would not let each pitcher dive into his pocket for his own supply of rosin, because that would pave the way for abuse of the privilege.

"If we adopted the rosin idea it would not affect the American League in any way. Of course in the world's series we would have to work under a uniform code, but as far as the National league is concerned, I believe it would be for the best interest of the game if we gave the pitchers a little help."

ROCKNE WILL REMAIN AS COACH AT NOTRE DAME

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The idea of any discord existing between Knute Rockne and Notre Dame authorities over salary and schedule matters was scouted today by Joseph M. Byrne, eastern representative of Notre Dame, who also indicated no investigation was planned or considered necessary by the Indiana school in connection with the football coach's recent negotiations with Columbia.

Branding as "silly" reports that Rockne desired to schedule good drawing cards for home games so that he would receive a bigger "cut" in the gate receipts, Byrne is quoted by the Evening Post as saying:

"A few years ago Rockne received a small salary and five per cent. of the receipts. When he signed his present ten-year contract two seasons ago the figure was placed at $10,000 flat, with no percentage of the gate. I know this to be true, because I helped arrange the terms. Rockne, in fact, named his own figure, which I thought too low, but he said it was enough."

SCHAEFER BEAT HOPPE IN EXHIBITION MATCH

BOSTON, Dec. 18—(AP)—Jake Schaefer defeated Willie Hoppe 3,200 to 2,777 in their four day exhibition 18.2 balk line billiard match which ended here tonight. Both the former champions showed fine form in the closing hours of play, Schaefer making a high run of 249 and another of 194, while Hoppe had four of more than 100 during the day.

EDDIE BREWER AWARDED CLAPP CUP FOR THE BEST DEFENSIVE PLAYER

Capt. Eddie Brewer, star backfield man of the Academy football team, was further honored Friday morning at the Academy when he was awarded the Russell A. Clapp cup for being the best defensive player on the Academy squad during the season. The presentation of the cup was made by Coach Courtland Whitney in the presence of the entire student body.

The cup which is given by Mr. Clapp is for the player who shows the best defensive playing of the season which includes tackling, interference and putting opposing players out of the play. The award is made by the captain of the team and the coach. Both Capt. Williams and Coach Whitney were unanimous in their selection of Brewer as the best man for the cup.

Brewer is deserving of the honor as he most certainly was a wonder on the defense as well as playing a consistent game on the offense. Capt. Brewer was a sure tackler and his work in forming interference for the other backfield men was one of the outstanding features of the Academy offensive play. He never missed putting out his men and it was through his sterling play that the other backfield ball carriers were permitted to get off on their runs.

Capt. Brewers' ability as a football player gained him recognition all over the eastern part of the state. Every sports writer that picked an All-Interscholastic league team placed him in one of the backfield positions. Prof. Guyer of Storrs, who refereed all the league games chose Brewer for one of his backfield men. Prof. Guyer was very much impressed with Brewers' work in all the league games and expressed his approval of Brewer in no uncertain terms. Not only are Brewers' classmates pleased at this honor conferred upon him but all the followers of the Academy football team during the year are unanimous in their praise of the boy.

NUTMEGS BEAT VALIANTS IN ROUGH GAME

Friday evening at the Armory in a rather rough game, the Nutmegs overwhelmed the Valiant five by the score of 37 to 12. Jones was leading point getter for the winners with 17 baskets and four fouls, while Jab Burns was next with 11 baskets from the floor.

For the losers Muckoski was leading scorer with 2 baskets and 1 foul while Cimikowski was next with two baskets.

The Valiants were unable to get a single point in the first half, the score at half time being 35 to 0.

The Nutmegs would like to hear from either the Jewett City Speedboys or the Plainfield Buddies for a game Christmas day at either of the above places. Answer through this paper or call 1914.

The following are the lineups:

Valiants—Forwards, Tibbetts and Shea; center, Cimikoski; guards, Mingo, P. Labenski and O'Neil.

Nutmegs — Forwards, Jones and Burns; center, Brown; guards, Murphy, W. Burnes, Healey and Winters.

SALEM HIGH WINS FROM TALLAHASSEE SCHOOL TEAM

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Dec. 18.—(AP)—The Salem Massachusetts High school football team decisively defeated Leon High of Tallahassee here this afternoon 44 to 7.

Salem scored a touchdown after 10 minutes of play, came strong in the second period for another twelve points and ran rough shod over Leon in the third quarter, forward passing themselves to nineteen additional points.

Mughan intercepted a forward pass from Leon for a 50 yard run for the final goal.

Leon scored its only points in closing minutes of the game.

POETRY

The Popular Creed

Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes!
If a man is down, give him a thrust!
Trample the beggar into the dust!
Presumptuous poverty's quite appalling.
Knock him over! Kick him for falling!
If a man is up, oh, lift him higher!
Your soul's for sale, and he's a buyer!
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes.

I know of a poor but worthy youth,
Whose hopes are built on a maiden's truth;
But the maiden will break her vows with ease,
For a wooer cometh whose claims are these:
A hollow heart and an empty head,
A face well tinged with the brandy red,
A soul well trained in villainy's school—
And—Cash, sweet Cash—he knoweth the rule:
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes.

I know a bold and an honest man,
Who strives to live on the Christian plan,
But poor he is, and poor will be;
A scorned and hated wretch is he.
At home he meeteth a starving wife,
Abroad he leadeth a leper's life—
They struggle against fearful odds
Who will not bow to the people's gods!
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes.

Go get the wealth! no matter how!
"No questions asked" of the rich, I trow!
Steal by night and steal by day;
(Doing it all in a legal way);
Join the church, and never forsake her,
Learn to cant and insult your Maker;
Be hypocrite, liar, knave and fool;
But don't be poor! remember the rule:
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes

—By Charles P. Shiras.

These Things Pass

These things pass like the winds away:
Grass and flowers and dew and dawn;
Dreams of beauty! Where now are they?
Broken and withered or blown and gone.

These things pass like a flaming fire;
Lowly cottage and princely hall;
Where is Arcady? Where is Tyre?
Shifting dusting where the jackals call.

These things pass like ghostly breath;
There is laughter, though they are gone;
We mock all dying, there is no death,
Heart o' my heart, for love lives on!

In food value a pound of baked potatoes is equal to eight eggs, to a pound of chicken, or to seven ounces of the best bread.

There have been over 1,000 different varieties of potatoes, but only a few of these have been found worth cultivating.

A notable engineering feat recently completed was the laying of a gas main 7,600 feet long across the bottom of the Hudson river at Newburg, N. Y.

Twenty thousand tons of ashes and cinders, representing the "waste" from the local gas and electric works in Rochester, N. Y., have been used this year in the manufacture of building brick.

The beet sugar industry was first introduced into the United States by David Lee Child, a New England journalist, who in 1836 made a special visit to Belgium to learn the process of its manufacture.

A new 100-kilowatt station is under construction at Herzogstand, Bavaria, which will enable crystal set owners to hear the programs throughout all Germany, says Scientific American. This will be the most powerful broadcaster in the world. The second largest German broadcaster will be Koenigswusterhausen, rate at fifty kilowatts.

While John Wood, a truck driver of Morrowville, Kas., was assisting in excavation work at an old church, he dug up a large copper cent, which bears the date of 1817, says the Topeka Capital. The coin has thirteen stars around the edge, emblematic of the thirteen original states. It is blackened by age, but is in a good state of preservation, and its characters on it can easily be read. The coin was about one foot below the surface, near the Pike's peak and Ocean auto highway, which was traversed as a part of the old Oregon trail at one time and some member of an early caravan evidently lost the coin in crossing the country. It is probable that it had lain buried for about 100 years.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Four little children at East Great Plain narrowly escaped being burned to death in 1875, when they were locked in an upstairs room when their mother went to the home of a neighbor. A man passing by saw smoke coming through the roof of the house and heard the cries of the children. He succeeded in getting them out of the building before flames enveloped the premises.

Items of interest in 1875, taken in part from the columns of The Bulletin of that year, are as follows:

Monday, December 13, 1875—By the new arrangements of the New London Northern railroad, the train running from Brattleboro to Palmer now runs only to Amherst and local passengers making that trip have found that the remainder of the trip has to be made by night freight, with passenger car attached.

Mr. Beale has written a new Gloria in Excelsis for the Christmas eve service at Christ church, and a jubilee and Te Deum for Christmas morning.

The Rev. Father Mullen being about to leave for a trip abroad, was presented a purse of $500, last evening, by his parishioners.

It is expected that the new Catholic church on Broadway will be completed, so that Mass can be celebrated up to a year from New Year's day.

The trestle work for the new bridge is completed and work will be commenced immediately on the iron work.

Tuesday, December 14, 1875—Norwich people who were caught in the Breed affair Saturday night are pleased that one of the men has been arrested, although it is likely that he was innocent of fraud, being only an employe. The story of the affair is that a Rhode Island man engaged him and asked him to take tickets at Breed Hall. He did so and shortly after 8 o'clock, the man who hired him, came to him and informed him that the company had not arrived for the entertainment and it would be well to leave and not face the wrath of the populace. He left and at Plainfield the Rhode Island man gave him a five dollar bill. The head of the swindle is still at large.

Rev. Father Kennedy will have charge of St. Mary's parish during the absence of the Rev. Father Mullen.

There was a light fall of snow in this city yesterday but twenty miles back in the country the ground was covered with a fairly heavy blanket.

The home of George McDavid, corner of Third and Prospect streets, was slightly damaged by fire yesterday when a servant upset a lamp. Contents of the room were badly scorched before the fire was extinguished by members of the family.

Wednesday, December 15, 1875—One of the three men who assaulted George Butler and James Brassell, at Norwich Town, in September last, presented himself at the bar of the city court yesterday. He was charged with four counts, assault with attempt to rob, assault with intent to kill, an aggravated assault and a breach of the peace. Judge Thayer found him guilty and ordered bonds of $500 for his appearance in superior court. Three men took part in the assault and one of them is still at large.

An injunction has been granted to prevent the school committee of Stonington building the $15,000 school, until the town has a chance to vote again on the matter.

The gale was so strong last night that the City of Norwich, putting out from New London, was obliged to return to port.

Laurel Hill people are complaining that street lamps are not burning nights and want the authorities to furnish them a moon or gas lamps.

There is considerable floating ice in the Thames river, but not enough to block traffic.

Thursday, December 16, 1875—The four little children of Mr. and Mrs. George Richmond, of East Great Plain, narrowly escaped being burned alive yesterday, being saved by George Bromley, who got them just in time. The children had been locked in an upstairs room when their mother went to a neighbor's. Mr. Bromley saw smoke coming from an upstairs room and heard the children crying for help. He rushed in and fought his way to the room and saved them. A few minutes later would have ended all chance for their rescue. The house was entirely consumed. It was one of the oldest buildings in the town and was owned by Abel Rathbun. Loss was $1,600 with insurance of $1,000.

The boxes for the fire alarm telegraph will be placed at Franklin Sq., railroad shops, Greeneville engine house, corner Roath and Cliff streets, near corner Franklin and Chestnut streets, corner of Broadway and Broad streets, Falls engine house and on Mount Pleasant street. Gongs will be placed in the engine houses at the police station. The contract price is $5,500.

Hon. R. A. Wheeler was the last sheriff in this county to receive a pair of white kid gloves for having no case for trial at the opening of his court.

Hartford people are excited over what they call a "magic clock" recently installed in that city. It has a glass dial, with metal hands and apparently no machinery. A similar clock, made by Mr. Konsalik of this city, has been on display in Norwich for over a year.

Friday, December 17, 1875—A very beautiful lunar rainbow was visible about three o'clock yesterday morning. The moon was surrounded by five brilliant rings, the outer of which was merged in a light white mist.

Adrian Isar, the champion finger-billiard player of the world, is announced to make an appearance in this city soon, his second appearance within a year.

The shingle wedding is the latest fashion. It is supposed to be celebrated when the first born is old enough to be spanked.

The Fisher Island Colonization Superintendent proposes, if possible, to offer inducements to the Willimantic Camp Meeting association, which will make it an object to make the place of meeting there.

While Dr. Charles Jewett of this city was lecturing to an audience of over 500, at Provincetown, this week, someone set fire to the hall. The audience escaped from the building without injury but the building was somewhat damaged.

The waiting room for ladies, connected with the superior court, which has often been closed during court sessions, will hereafter be kept always open.

Two new sleighs have been received in this city by proprietors of the Horse Railroad company.

Saturday, December 18, 1875—Tax Collector Main, of Preston, has a job he can keep for all we care. Yesterday he tried to sell a piece of land on which he had levied and was obliged to argue the matter with the owners, who sat on a wall with shotguns in their hands. Wednesday he went to collect a tax from another resident and was met by the front end of a seven barrelled revolver and was told to vacate or get shot. The men have been arrested and their cases continued until January.

Judge Richard A. Wheeler is writing up a full history of Fisher's Island, to cite its advantages if it becomes a part of Connecticut. A petition is to be presented to the legislature that this be done and that Fishers' Island be taken from New York.

In the house yesterday Mr. Starkweather introduced a petition signed by residents of Norwich and Mystic for the establishing of a signal station on Block Island, to be connected with the mainland by telegraph cable.

"NO-TOBACCO" YEAR MEANS UNEMPLOYMENT

A "no-tobacco" year in 1926, with the possibility of most of the 5,000 farms in the Connecticut Valley Tobacco association lying idle, will offer a problem of employment for as many as 30,000 tobacco farm hands, many of them skilled laborers, who are familiar chiefly with planting and caring for tobacco, and, during the height of the harvesting season and warehousing activity, the employment of nearly 60,000 people will be affected, according to statistics formulated on information given by the association.

These employment figures are based on an average during the spring and summer of five tobacco hands on each of the 5,000 farms in the association and approximately 6,000 people in the warehouses. In the harvest season the help on the farms is increased to twice the usual number and warehouses employ much additional help.

Selling at Loss

The estimate of the unemployment on tobacco farms is made on the assumption that the combined decrease will for the most part remain idle. There is, however, a difference of opinion as to how much tobacco will actually be raised next year. Many tobacco farmers may turn their land to other crops, and some may continue the tobacco crop although the attitude of association officials is that it will be as well, if not more profitable for the members to raise no tobacco whatever next year. It was said that several tobacco growers outside the association, as well as the latter, are unable to dispose of their 1924 or 1925 crop at more than 20 cents a pound, when it has cost 26 cents a pound to raise harvest and cure it.

If a 1925 crop were raised it would mean that probably the three crops, 1924, 1925 and 1926, would have to be disposed of at about present prices, whereas if no tobacco is raised the market is expected to go considerably higher.

Efforts are being made by the Connecticut association to get the co-operation of the Northern Wisconsin Tobacco Growers, also a co-operative enterprise raising about the same amount of cigar tobacco as the Connecticut association, to reduce its acreage next year. An official of the Connecticut association will leave soon for Wisconsin in the interests of such a proposal. Judge L. P. M. Hickey, vice president, said.

The possibility of a "tobaccoless" year in 1926 is already being felt in many lines of business connected with the industry. Contracts for fertilizer are being held in abeyance by the farmers, and the ordering of cloth for shade grown tobacco, the purchase of implements and machinery and other crop necessities is being postponed.

Cigarette Tobacco Perhaps

Although very slight, there was a decrease noted in the consumption of cigar tobacco last year, according to government reports. Judge Hickey said. Since 1913 the number of cigars used annually has decreased from about 8,450,000,000 to 7,000,000,000,000, with a corresponding increase in the consumption of cigarette tobacco.

Should cigar business continue to fall off in consumption the raising of cigarette tobacco will be considered by the association, he said. During the past year experiments have been conducted at Windsor in the growing of cigarette tobacco, which although yielding much less to the acre than cigar tobacco, needs but little, if any, fertilizer.

WOMAN NOMINATED FOR POSTMASTER AT POMFRET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—The president has nominated for postmasters in Connecticut Robert A. Dunning at Thompson and Nellie A. Byrnes at Pomfret.

Midnight Christmas Service

Plans are being made for a carol service at Christ church, Christmas eve at 11.45 o'clock, to be followed by choral eucharist at midnight.

President Coolidge is planning to attend the sesqui-centennial exposition in Philadelphia next year, probably on July 4, his birthday.

WESTERLY

SILVESTRE FOUND GUILTY—NOTICE OF APPEAL FILED
(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 18—Herbert A. Gates of Charlestown, foreman, "guilty," was the verdict returned by the jury in Washington county superior court, at 3:25 Friday afternoon, before Judge Antonio A. Copotosto. The jury had been out from 12:35 that afternoon. In the case of State vs. Guiseppe Silvestre, 24, of 79 Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck, for carnal knowledge of Hattie Elizabeth Handy, 15, of 131 Canal street, Westerly. At 1:15 Judge Copotosto directed Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell and Deputy Sheriffs Fred Bull and Thomas W. Pierce, to see that lunch was taken to the jurymen during their deliberations.

The offense was alleged to have occurred between June 21, and Sept. 21, 1925, on the Riverside park baseball lot off Canal street, Silvestre was indicted by a special session of grand jurors who were recalled to the county courthouse at West Kingston. Following their return of a secret indictmen, the defendant was arrested. At the preliminary hearing before the superior court judge, James O. Watts, of Narragansett, was directed by the court to act as attorney for the accused. The state's case was prosecuted by Assistant Attorney-General Louis V. Jackvony, and for three days, beginning on Wednesday, has been heard behind closed doors in the superior court rooms in Westerly.

Friday morning at 11 o'clock, Judge Watts began his 45-minute argument, the evidence having all been in Thursday afternoon when court adjourned. Judge Watts started to read the R. I. statute to the jurymen concerning the offense and was stopped by Judge Copotosto just before he read the part in which a maximum penalty of 15 years is stated on conviction for the crime. Judge Watts had his exception noted to the judge's ruling, also a number of other exceptions to parts of the judge's charge to the jury to be used in case of appeal.

Third Assistant Attorney-General Louis V. Jackvony took about 35 minutes for his argument and the judge's charge which followed was for about an equal period. No restriction was placed on admission to the court room Friday.

Judge Copotosto gave the defendant seven days in which to file an appeal and raised the bond to $1,500.

Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., acted as both judge and clerk, at the Friday morning session of Third District court in Westerly. The following was read:

Civil dockets

New Writ Entered—John E. Ruisi vs. Gaetano Narracato, book account, continued one week.

Ernest Boyington vs. Mary Costanza.

Criminal Docket: State, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of Westerly, complainant vs. Henry F. Narrone, manslaughter. Continued three weeks to Jan. 5th.

State, Dept. Chief William L. Kay of Hopkinton, complainant vs. Albert A. Main. Continued two weeks.

State, William L. Kay, complainant vs. Thomas Madison. Continued two weeks.

State, Thomas E. Brown, vs. George Carney, leaving place of an automobile accident, continued three weeks, to Jan. 5th.

State, Thomas E. Brown, vs. George Carney, operation of automobile recklessly, continued three weeks to Jan. 5th.

State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Thomas Fiore, operation of auto without securing license from superintendent of motor vehicles. Continued two weeks.

State, Rhode Island State Trooper No. 7, Robert S. White, Jr., vs. Ralph C. James. James was charged with the unlawful operation, on the Hopkinton-Woodville road Dec. 11th, of an automobile not properly registered. He pleaded guilty. The state trooper testified that a Ford sedan was operated with plates from a Chevrolet auto from which registration had not been transferred. Acting Judge Flynn inquired if the defendant was taking a chance until the first of the year and received the reply that this was the first time. He was fined $20 and costs which totalled $25.10 which were paid.

Russell E. Kenyon, 20, of Shannock, town of Richmond, was presented on complaint of State Trooper White on the complaint of operating an automobile on the Boston Post road which was not properly registered. He entered a plea of guilty. The state trooper told the court that he stopped the car early Sunday morning and the automobile had the plates of a Ford tourin, car. Although the defendant said it was properly transferred now, he was fined $20 and costs, amounting to $25.10.

Harry H. Ullman, of Providence, was called for the operation of an automobile at an unreasonable and improper rate of speed in the town of Hopkinton and on his non appearance, the case was continued two weeks.

Louis Vitteritto, 16, of Westerly, was complained of for the operation of an automobile on Dec. 14th on the Hopkinton highway in a closely built up section at an unreasonable rate of speed. He pleaded guilty. Attorney Ferguson stated that considerable speeding had been reported recently in this built up section and the officers had to be on the alert. In this complaint a Ford truck was operated at a 35 miles per hour rate in the center of the village of Ashaway. He was fined $10 and costs amounting to $15.10, which he paid.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk are the following transfers:

Sept. 17. Alexander H. Thompson to John S. Thomson a tract of land in Bradford adoining lands of the heirs of Enoch Vars.

Sept. 18. B. S. and R. Knight, Inc., to William H. Skell lease of the whole basement floor of the White Rock Mill storehouse, equipped with automatic fire extinguishers in White Rock.

Peter L. Priore to Minnie G. Priore an undivided one-half interest in a certain lot of land at the junction of High street and Mountain avenue.

Attorney General Charles P. Sisson of Rhode Island has been asked for an opinion relative to the town of Westerly incurring indebtedness by one of the members if is said of the committee of five named to consider the proposition of cutting down and extension of Union street. At the special hearing given by the members of the Westerly town council to the special committee named of the former Westerly town council and the Westerly board of road commissioners, Town Treasurer James d. Pendleton and Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., stated that the town had reached its legal limit of indebtedness. It was stated, further that special legislation would have to be asked, even if it proved later that it could not be granted, to secure authority to issue bonds to the amount of $5,000 for the purpose of undertaking the Union street work.

Wishing

Do you wish the world were better?
Let me tell you what to do.
Set a watch upon your actions,
Keep them always straight and true.
Rid your mind of selfish motives,
Let your thoughts be clean and high.
You can make a little Eden
Of the sphere you occupy.

Do you wish the world were wiser?
Well, suppose you make a start.
By accumulating wisdom
In the scrapbook of your heart;
Do not waste one page on folly;
Live to learn, and learn to live
If you want to give men knowledge
You must get it, ere you give.

Do you wish the world were happy?
Then remember day by day
Just to scatter seeds of kindness
As you pass along the way,
For the pleasures of the many
May be ofttimes traced to one,
As the hand that plants an acorn
Shelters armies from the sun.

Investments

I have some extra dollars which were better saved than spent
And so I'll buy a gilt-edged bond to earn me four per cent;
I'll call that an investment, 'tis a term all bankers use.
But one which money-minded man so frequently abuse.
Not all investments pay in gold, some pay in peace of mind,
And some in happy memories of days when we were kind.

Life gives us countless dividends in payment for our deeds.
The marigolds are coupons which we cut from planted seeds.
The good will of our neighbors is a joy which we collect
From having neighbored with them in a way they could respect.
Our children are investments, too, in which our worth shall show,
For seldom 'tis by luck or chance good men and women grow.

We are investors, one and all, by each, a choice is made.
Some risk their lives in art and some invest them in a trade.
And who shall give his best to life shall reap his dividends
In peace of mind and happiness, the love and trust of friends;
But who invests in selfishness, in cunning or in shame,
Shall find, however, filled his purse he's played a losing game.

Bleak poverty of spirit is a failure that is worse
Than the error of wrong judgment which brings poverty to purse
For money may be squandered, and a stock not worth worth its cost.
But a good name lives forever and a kind deed's never lost.
So I'd invest my hands and brain in all life's finer things
And seek the compensation which that sort of venture brings.

By Edgar A. Guest.

BUSY MAKING QUILTS

Dear Corner Members: What a nice fall page and pretty poetry we had the past week.

Rural Aunty: I wish you could see my quilts I am at work on. Don't you rant to come to a quilting at my home when we have good weather? I will now tell you what I am getting ready for, providing I live and all goes well. I have a top made, ginger bread pattern, I call it, for quilt number one. I had a lot of flags of different nations given me. I set them together on a cloth foundation already for the frame and quilt number two. Another called wild goose chase for quilt number three, setting the strips together with yellow. For quilt number 4 I have a very pretty top made in log cabin style. This I put together in jib time sewing it together on the sewing machine. For quilt number 5 I have made blocks enough of little houses and am going to set them together with green calico. This will be the cottage on the green, and is going to be very pretty when finished.

Scottie: You told me you would like to see my rugs. I am in hopes when you come to my house I'll have those quilts all finished to show you, too. As it is I have one, the tree of Paradise all completed, ready for the bed. Another I call the kaleidoscope and that is also finished. Another the rocky road to Dublin, another I cut the pieces of cloth the size of a post card and set them together first a dark and then a light one alternately. I still have another. I originated my pattern. I cut three cornered pieces of dark and light and set them together light to dark and so on through the blocks, making the blocks ten inches square. Then I took light colored percale cut blocks ten inches square, got some small figured red calico, cut a heart and sewed it in the center of each block. Now I set first a block of the three cornered pieces and a block with the red head on it, and continued through the quilt arranging the blocks in this manner all through the quilt. This one I gave the name of "bleeding heart."

Now Rural Aunty please tell me the names of the quilts you have pieced.

True Blue: Thank you for your past kindness. I appreciate it very much.

Dom Pedro: Yours received and was glad to know you have so much improved. Will write you soon.

Interested Reader: Your box received. Many thanks for contents, which I think are just beautiful. Did you know the flowers came very near extinct? Ramblers?

Here's wishing all a merry Christmas and a bright and prosperous New Year.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Dear Editor and all Social Corner Friends: Everybody's busy, cause it's oh, such fun, sending Christmas greetings out to everyone.

Still it makes a difference, whom we send 'em to, and I'm mighty happy, to be sending 'em to you.

SUGGESTION FOR CLUB NO. 1'S DECEMBER MEETING

Dear Social Corner Friends: Well, the good time of December 9, is over. Didn't we have a good time though! It more than paid me for all the hard work I put into it. If Aunty No. 1 only lived nearer she could have helped me more but she got there in time to finish the chowder, so give her the credit for that. My helpers were just splendid. They certainly treated me white. I want to thank them most heartily, one and all. When I suggested having a vegetable orchestra they all fell right in for it and it certainly was a decided success. No discords, oh no, ha! ha! And the presents 60 in all. I had Miss Anderson, secretary of the Welfare bureau count them. Miss Anderson every year has to go out and buy presents for the poor children and they also give the poor children a Christmas tree. This year she has 60 presents less to buy. Miss Anderson was present by invitation and thanks the ladies for the gifts. Now let me suggest something friends. Let us set aside the December meeting for the children.

We have a Donation day originated by Tidy Addly—our dear departed sister—for February meeting. Now let me suggest giving a ten cent present to the poor children from the Corner in December every year. We can call it 'The Social Corner Club No. 1 Welfare Bureau Christmas Box for children." Rather a long name but why not? In my estimation giving to the poor children is a good Christian act. I thank you all for the present. Glad to see so many from other clubs.

Effie M.: How long since? It was my daughter Fairy who sang with Wandering Jew, instead of me.

Marigold: Yes, the interesting hymn Blest Be the Tie That Binds was composed by Rev. Dr. John Fawcett pastor of the Baptist church in Wainsgate, Yorkshire. Then a young man, once teacher of a class of unruly girls in D. L. Moody's Sunday school was given up to die and on entering Mr. Moody's store one day, pale and bloodless exclaimed, "I have been bleeding at the lungs, and they have given me up to die, I must go at once." "But you are not afraid to die?" Mr. Moody. "No," he replied, "but I must soon stand before my God and give an account of my stewardship, and not one of my Sunday shool scholars has been brought to Christ." Immediately he called in all the scholars, appealing to them to accept Christ. For ten days he worked and prayed with them as never before until each member of the class was saved. On the night when he left for the distant place, where he finally died, says Mr. Moody. "we held a true love feast. It was the very gate of heaven—that meeting." He prayed and they prayed and then with streaming eyes they sang.

"Blest be the tie that binds,
Our hearts of kindred love;
Is like to that above."

Bidding each farewell at the train, the dying man whispered that he would meet them all in heaven.

Maine Lover: May you be blessed with faith to bear your affliction. I am sorry for you.

Spry Bird: Was surprised to hear of the death of your sister L. H. K. I always enjoyed reading her letters, for they were certainly interesting. We shall miss her in the Corner.

Clam Chowder: For the benefit of those who asked the quantities in making clam chowder. For 100 people count on 1 peck of clams, large round ones, 1 peck of potatoes, cut up in cubes, 1 1-2 quarts of onions, 1 pound of onions, 1 pound fat salt pork. Enough liquid to make 25 quarts.

To make chowder scrub clams clean with stiff brush then put in large kettle, pour on boiling water, let boil five minutes, turn out, open and grind cut up and grind salt pork, grind onions, put pork on and fry, then add the onions and fry. Be careful and not burn them. Then strain through cheese cloth water where clams were boiled, pour over pork and onions, add potatoe and boil, adding water as as needed. About 15 minutes before serving time add the clams and enough water to make enough for the 100 plates. A cupful is a good serving, it nearly fills a soup plate. Season to taste.

Pilate bread (large long square cornered crackers) is best in clam chowder, or any soups. It goes further, does not soak up like the crackers we usually use.

BIDDY.

CHRISTMAS CANDIES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: As Christmas is drawing near I will send a few good candy recipes which I know will be appreciated in the home or packed in holiday boxes for gifts.

Chocolate Fudge: Two cups of light brown sugar, one cup of cream, (sweet or sour), one fourth cup of corn syrup, one cup of nutmeats, one eighth cup of figs, dates, or raisins, one teaspoon of vanilla, two squares of chocolate. Boil together the sugar, cream, corn syrup and chocolate until a few drops will form a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Remove from the fire and pour into a crock or pan: add fruit, nuts and vanilla and beat vigorously until the mixture becomes too stiff to manage. Then pour on a plate, and when cool cut into squares with a sharp knife, but do not remove from plate. Cover with waxed paper and wrap plate and all in a clean cloth and set aside until ready to use. A tin bread box makes a good hiding place.

Panoche: This is made in exactly the same manner as chocolate fudge and with the same ingredients except the chocolate is omitted.

Peanut Brittle: One cup of sugar, one cup of shelled peanuts, one half teaspoon of salt. Place sugar in an iron frying pan and cook slowly until sugar is melted and a light browo in color. Pour while hot over the salted peanuts which have been placed in the bottom of a buttered pan. When hard break into pieces.

Peppermint Drops: One cup of sugar one half cup of boiling water, a speck of cream of tartar, five drops of oil of peppermint. Mix the sugar and water, heat slowly until it boils. Boil five minutes then take from fire, add the cream of tartar and pour into a crock to cool. When cool add the peppermint and beat until creamy. Drop by spoonfuls on waxed paper.

Popcorn Cake: Two quarts of popped corn (popped without grease) make a syrup of one cup of sugar, one half half cup of corn syrup and one fourth cup of water. When a few drops will crack when placed in cold water, remove from the fire and stir in cold water, remove from the fire and stir into the corn, adding one cup of shelled peanuts. Have ready a large plate or tray, well greased and quickly press the syrup drenched popcorn into the shape of a cake, leaving a place in the center to that the cake may be more easily cut. For decorative purposes stand a red Christmas candle or a big stick of candy in the center of the cake.

GREETINGS FROM IRVA LYNN

Dear Social Corn re Friends: These are busy days for us all. But I must snatch a few moments to wish you all "A Merry, Merry Christmas."

Marigold: I'd love to attend some of your social gatherings. Who knows, some day I may. As it is, I'm often with you in spirit. By all means sail up our beautiful river. No river is more interesting for beauty of scenery and for romantic associations. To quote Washington Irving,

"I thank God I was born on the banks of the Hudson." I fancy I can trace much of what is good and pleasant in my own heterogeneous compound to my early companionship with this glorious river. In the warmth of my youthful enthusiasm, I used to cloth it with moral attributes, and almost to give it soul. I admire its frank, bold, honest character; its noble sincerity and perfect truth. Here was no specious, smiling surface, covering the dangerous sand-bar or perfidous rock; but a stream deep as it was broad, and bearing with honorable faith the bark that trusted to its waves. I gloried in its simple, quiet, majestic, epic flow; ever stright forward. Once, indeed, it turns aside for a moment, forced from its course by opposing mountains, but it struggles bravely through them, and immediately resumes its straight-forward march. Behold, thought I, an emblem of a good man's course through life; ever simple, open, and direct; or if, overpowered by adverse circumstances, he deviates into error, it is but momentary; he soon recovers his onward and honorable career, and continues it to the end of his pilgrimage."

"The Hudson is, in a manner, my first and last love. After all my wanderings and seeming infidelities, I return to it with a heart-felt preference over all the other rivers in the world. I seem to catch new life as I bathe in its ample billows and inhale the pure breezes of its hills."

Theoda: Indeed we've been introduced! Perhaps not in conventional manner. But what difference does it make? Mary France is the best of sponsors. Isn't there a bit of a thrill in penning words to someone you've never seen? Let us hope our mutual friend will soon learn her way through clutches, breaks, gears, etc., so we can become visibly acquainted.

Nyack-on-the-Hudson: The other day I crossed the ferry to your home town. At the top of the hill, I took the bus for Cloister. The drive along the river, in spite of bleakness, was as fascinating as ever.

Mary France: Have you mastered the intricacies of motor anatomy? I hope effects won't parallel anatomy study of other days! I do want to see you steer your chariot up to my front door next summer.

Nema: Join Mary France when she rides this way. "We've wander'd mony a weary fit, sin 'auld lang syne, so cam' and hae a waught o' tea for auld lang syne."

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Dear Corner Sisters: What a wonderful thing the daily newspaper is, keeping us in touch with every corner of the earth. The Social Corner is of great help to the housewife. There is an old saying, "There is nothing new under the sun," but I am quite sure a lot of the ideas your contributors send in are from their own experience and are new to us all.

In regard to Christmas giving, it is the kindly thought behind the gift that counts and to give should be a pleasure. If the gift must be practical flourish it up with bright ribbons and clean wrappings, and pretty greeting card and if possible add a box of candy—home made is fine, but at holiday time there are pure and attractive candies to be bought reasonably in Santa Clause boxes or stockings. Homemade jelly or marmalade is acceptable always. My gift for back "in the hills of Home" is to be candies—to light the carolers—or for the tables. Some are to be the large red candles to be holders in green tinsel Christmas wreath may be hung around some and others may have fine tinsel bows. Some are in bunches of six, not large size, and put through a small red or silver Christmas wreath or tied with ribbon or silver tinsel. The verses to go with these are written on Christmas cards with a candle lit in window, or on mantles, or other ways and on the back I write, "In the glow of a Christmas candle we can see each old time friend." And on others, "A warmth of happy memories are in our hearts tonight, and smiles and friendly faces are in the candle light. We may not hear your voices, but none the less we know your thought and our thoughts are in the candle glow."

An assemblable gift for those who have fire places is a box of powder which throws out wonderful colors, and one can fancy how fairy scenes in the firelight glow.

Incense is something that gives pleasure and a pretty burner with it can be bought very reasonable.

Fancy garters are acceptable. Last year when I opened a pretty box all dolled up in ribbons I found from son's wife oh! such pretty garters, ribbon flowers on, and a frill of narrow black lace.

ENJOYS CLUB NO. 8

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: I am always glad to meet with you in the same old room and the same old way with Club No. 8. Glad new friends are joining. I think they will not be disappointed in the food or social part. I have enjoyed both. I, too, think it would be good to have something special in honor of those whose birthday anniversary comes each month. I was not at the last meeting. I think they had a good time for one said she laughed until her side ached. I will be with you next time if all is well. I am very busy sewing and making Christmas things and making tatting.

Dear Editor: Would like a Social Corner pin if I am not too late.

I wish to send Christmas greetings to all and may the New Year bring you all blessings and joy and health.

TREE DECORATIONS

Dear Cornerites: Each year, while trimming the Christmas tree we would discover too late that we had forgotten the things needed most to make our tree attractive. We would vow to surely get them the next year, but by the time the year rolled by we had forgotten, the same as in previous years.

Last year after we had our tree trimmed we made a note of the things we thought would beautify it, and went shopping the day after Christmas. We bought tinsel and other trimming at less than half the price paid before Christmas.

This year we do not worry about the tree's Christmas dress, and I do not need to stand in a pushing crowd, selecting what I think is needed, or awaiting service. I have more time to shop, and select toys for the children.

MARY J.

HOW TO PREPARE THE CHRISTMAS GOOSE

Dear Corner Folks: As Peggy Alder is looking for that letter I promised her will write this time to tell you about the "land of Pardon" with which she is nearly as familiar as with the "garden of Eden," although not bound to it by such strong home ties.

This was the land of Pardon Tillinghast and father leased and moved on to the farm the spring I was seven. We lived there four years and they were very happy ones for me. About every thing that grows wild around here could be gathered from that land. One of the finest trout brooks in the state runs through the meadows and while sister, brother and I knew little about trout at that time we used the brook to gather cowslips and water cress and had lots of fun wading it and finding the little speckled back turtles to play with. The brook was near the house so sometimes father would rig us up for fishing and if we were fortunate enough to hook one, home we would go as fast as our legs could take us for father to take the fish off and bait the hook again. At strawberry time what lots of nice luscious berries we could gather; in fact there was an abundance of all kinds of wild berries around there. Then there was an old fashioned cider mill there which was a great attraction for us; never a load of apples came in that was not inspected by us as to taste and size. We knew the names of mose apples in those days than I do now. To grind the apples a long pole was connected at one end to the grinders and at the other end of the pole a horse was hitched and he was made to go round and round in a circle, often wondered why he did not get dizzy and fall as we children did when we tried it. After the apples were made into pumice, this was packed in the press with rye straw and squeezed until all the juice was out, and we had to sample that too. In thos days every one had the juice of their own apples and much better ones were used than are today where everything goes.

Hope Cactus Blossom will tell us if the old cider mill was there when she knew the place well. There was a large grove of shagbark walnut trees and bushels of the nuts were gathered each year and sold in Providence. Besides these there were pig walnuts (which we thought made wonderful coffee) hazelnuts, filberts, butternuts and the chestnuts which turned out the nice fat white worms to roll around on the floor of the store room. When winter came that store room was a wonderful place with its nuts, popcorn, home made butter, cheese and all the nice things a skilled farmer's wife knows how to make. We were a healthy lot. No day was too cold for a slide on the ice, or a sled ride and the hills were aplenty there. I never traveled through the woods to the "garden of Eden," Peggy Alder, and am wondering if I could find the path now through the lots that comes out on the road south of the Burlingame place. Have not been around that land of "Pardon" for years but hope to some time.

Feel that I should not close this letter without giving the members some useful information, so here is something about dressing, cooking and garnishing the Christmas goose and duck. The goose should not be more than 4 months old and the fatter the better the quality of the meat. If you should happen to get an older bird lots can be done towards softening the fiber by treating this way. Prepare it for filling, hang in a current of air, but do not let it freeze. Sponge inside and out with vinegar three or four times a day. Goose, old or young should be parboiled first, then browned in oven. This removes much of the strong taste. After the goose is drawn, singe then scrub inside and out with strong soda water. Hold under the cold water faucet, and let it get full force of the stream for five minutes, then cover with cold water and let lie while preparing dressing. When ready to fill it drain and wipe dry, stuff lightly and sew up. Drop into a kettle of boiling salted water for an hour and finish in oven.

Sage and Onion Dressing for Goose: Remove crumbs from a loaf of bread and crumble fine, 1-4 cup of butter 1-4 cup salt pork chopped fine, 1-2 cup of chopped onion, a tablespoon of sage, 1-2 teaspoon black pepper, 1 teaspoon salt and pinch of paprika. Fill the bird lightly and not too full and when taken from the boiling water drain, brush with butter, dredge with flour and put in hot oven. When it is browned on all sides pour into the roasting pan one quart of water and cider, equal parts to which have been added 1-2 cup butter, some pepper and salt, baste with this liquid frequently. The giblets which have been cooking in the stove must be chopped fine and added with the water in which they were cooked, to the liquor in the pan. Thicken with flour. Hot sour apple sauce should accompany this dressing.

Ducks should be prepared in the same way as they are also oily, and this German dressing is nice for them. Slightly shred bread crumbs to the amount of a quart, add a cup of chopped sour apples, 1-2 cup of seeded raisins, 1-2 cup currants, 1-4 pound blanched almonds, 1 teaspoon salt, a dash of pepper and mace, 1-2 cup butter and a beaten egg. When the duck is properly roasted remove to a platter and garnish with these stuffed apples. Select tart apples of a uniform size, peel and put to cook in water faintly sweetened and colored pink with vegetables coloring or a few cranberries. Simmer on back of range till tender, but not broken, drain from liquid and set where they will become cold. Beat one cup of cream to a froth, add one rounding teaspoon gelatin which has been dissolved in cold water then melted and 2 teaspoons of grated horsergdish. Remove the cores from apples fill with the cream and set in nests of curled celery.

Free Air: Very much pleased with the card you sent me and hope to hear more of wonderful Florida.

A happiest Christmas ever to every Corner member is the wish of TWICE TWENTY.

LIVING ALONE

Social Corner Editor and Friends: I was looking over the paper and wondering what I would write about when the letter on "In Love" met my eye. That is where I am. I had a husband and four children and they have all passed away but one and he is married and has his family and I live all alone. But I am never lonely, I have so much to do. I help this one out and that one. Then I go out two afternoons and I call on the sick and I do all my own work. But if I got sick where would I go? To the hospital; it is a wonderful place for you, when you have no one to take care of you. I have a wonderful time and my health is wonderful and I do surely enjoy all the wonderful days. I love the sunshine and fresh air, and when I look around and see all the misery I am thankful I am alone, and no one to cater to but my own dear self. When I have been out and come home I sit down and thank the dear Lord I have such a comfortable home and my own fireside.

I save all my ribbons from my writing paper then if I give a handkerchief for a gift I put a ribbon around it.

Sorry so many of the sisters are sick and that so many lost their loved ones. We are having a lovely winter so far. Hoping I may remain a Corner Member if I am a slacker. I will now wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

ARMITAGE.

NEED CLOTHES MORE THAN CANDY

Dear Social Corner Members: The cold New England winter will soon be be here. Have you looked in your clothes presses to see what you can send some poor families that will suffer for want of clothing that hangs in many homes doing no one any good? Many children will need clothing more than candy or toys the coming Christmas.

Jennie: The elm tree you have in your section of the state is wonderful. I have seen many of the big trees in California, some 90 to a 100 feet to the first branch, but they did not have the spread, of the old elm at Wethersfield.

Potlatch: It was like meeting a true friend to see your letter in the Bulletin of Dec. 12th. We did not think you had forgotten us, and I understand. It was the first time I have passed a birthday without receiving a beautiful birthday card from you for many years. Was very sorry to learn of your illness and losing dear friends. Hope these lines will find you fully recovered and that you can take a walk in your Social Corner garden with the raspberries and the beautiful roses. We also had a nice fall in Connecticut but nothing like yours. My daughter and husband are in Riverside, Cal., for the winter. They write the weather has been like the month of June some of the time.

Dom Pedro: I was glad to see your letter in the Corner page last week. I well remember the time when you sent your last letter for the corner page as you were going to a hospital for treatment and did not knew you would ever return to your home. I am glad you are recovering so nicely and can once more add your letters of interest to the Corner page. I hope you will continue to improve. May the Bulletin and the Social Corner family see a very merry Chistmas and a happy New Year in the wish of one of the old writers.

RURAL DELIVERY.

GREETINGS FROM KEZIAH DOOLITTLE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I certainly seems good to see the Social Corner page again, after seeing only a few copies, sent me by some of the Social Corner sisters for nearly three months. Expect you are all busy getting ready for the Christmas holidays which will soon be here.

Cactus Blossom: Am sorry you came so near losing your hat. It will make a good story for our Social Corner page. I don't believe you could have had your glasses on. Where was R— with her camera?

1492: Have you received your cross word puzzles? May be they will reach you in time to be called a Christmas present, if you haven't.

Goody: I saw a report of the Christmas sale and supper. I would have enjoyed meeting with you all once more. It would have seemed like olden times. I often think of them. Does "our president" even caution you to look out for your pocket books, since Keziah moved away? Does Nannie Lou still look out for the money?

Papa's Boy: Am sorry you are having sickness in your family. Hope to hear they are better soon. How is that big boy?

Butterfly: Why didn't you let the sisters know you were to have a birthday? Am glad you had such a pleasant time. May you have many more.

Dom Pedro: I am glad you are on the gain once more.

I will wish you all a merry Christmas and sing off.

KEZIAH DOOLITTLE.

THE SIGN CAPRICORN

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: As the mercury drops it reminds me we are soon to enter the sign Capricorn which begins Dec. 21st, and ends January 20th every year. All persons born in this period of time are Capricorn subjects. This sign is the sea-goat and rules the knees of human kind also governs public affairs. Capricorn is the negative pole of the earth triune. The tribe is Judah, meaning "the praise of the Lord." Ruling planets are Saturn and Mars. The colors are maroon, brown, silver and black. The gems are white onyx and aquamarine. The important day of the week is Saturday. Favorable months of the year are November and March. Fortunate week of the year are from Oct. 14th to 21st and from May 27th to June 3rd.

Free Air and E. M. R. C. P.: Card and good wishes received. Thank you. Same to yourselves.

Potlatch: Glad to see you haven't forgotten the Social Corner page.

Balsam Fir: Are you busy planning a garden for 1926?

Anna Z.: Reading of your loss of preserves reminds me of what happened to some of mine some years ago. We were living in Rhode Island at the time. One night I heard thumps and crashings in our cellar. I opened the door and peeped cautiously down and beheld what I thought was a cat, (without any head) upon the preserve shelf pushing all of the quart jars off onto the floor. Excitedly I told the good man who grabbed gun and was about to fire at the beheaded cat when he discovered the cat was a tame skunk belonging to our next door neighbor. He had entered our cellar in mistake and had in his frenzy to escape had rooted all of my preserves off the shelves and broken every one of them. Needless to say we closed the cellar door and did not disturb him. When morning dawned the cellar was not inhabited and no one would have known we had had a night caller except for the mute evidence of fruit juice and broken glass.

A merry Christmas to all from

ARIES.

OLD YEAR IS PASSING

Dear Social Corner Friends: I was glad to see the page full of nice things to read. We know that this year is fast passing and the joy and sorrow that came with it. Some may have been made very happy and some just the opposite. But life is made up that way. I think younger people should throw off their sorrow. Older ones that have had experience get hardened to it some way, unless it is to great.

The joy of Christmas gladdens many a little heart to think old Santa is coming. They plan on it for weeks ahead and it makes the older ones happy to see the little ones take so much pleasure in it.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

ROSALIND.

THE ANNUAL GREETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Children: Another years has rolled around and it is now time to send my usual greeting to all my Social Corner children. We can all return thanks to the One who has permitted us to enjoy this life a little longer, the Great One who rules the universe, the Giver of all good gifts—health, strength, and happiness.

I have been grieved through the past year when I read the account of our number who have passed into the great beyond, that is something that is governed by one who is stronger and knows what is best for us. When our work on this earth is done and we are called to the higher and better life I trust it can be said of us all "she hath done what she could."

My sympathy goes out to all its bereaved ones.

To the sick ones I extend the hand of love and good cheer.

At this time I welcome all new members into my large family of fairy god children.

In closing I will say I leave upon all in the bonds of Him who said, Peace on earth, good will to man.

FAIRY GOD MOTHER.

ENAMELING ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I want to thank the editor for the yellow slip which was a big surprise to me.

Will send directions for enameling artificial flowers with sealing wax. A good substitute for real flowers with which to decorate one's home, are the artificial flowers enameled with sealing wax, in the colors of nature. There are two methods of coating flowers with sealing wax. One is used only for the open flowers, like the daisy or wild rose. This method consists of selecting the proper color of sealing wax and heating the end of the stick over the flame of an alcohol lamp until the wax is about to drop. Then the melted end is drawn lengthwise of the petal, leaving behind it a streak of melted wax. A second method of covering flowers with sealing wax is by painting it on. By this method, the closed type of flowers like rosebuds can be successfully covered. The easiest way to use sealing wax as paint is to break up a stick of the desired color in a small container and cover it with denatured alcohol. It will dissolve in an hour or so.

Than with a tiny camel's hair brush apply the paint to the flower.

MAY.

GIFTS FOR CHILDREN

Dear Sisters: Who would not be a child again this Christmas time when the toys shown in the stores are so fascinating? They fairly draw the money out of your pocket. And if you can in any way manage to tear yourself away before your purse is quite empty you will be supremely lucky. Everything in the realm of toyland is represented. There are dolls and dogs and soldiers, airships and Eskimos, hook and ladder trucks with prancing horses an real bells that ring, little girl dolls dressed in the latest mode with their hair cut in the prevailing style, baby dolls and Dutch dolls with wooden sabots and last but not by any means the least the Billiken doll with the smile that won't come off. There were doll houses fitted with all the latest conveniences in the way of a gay leather ball elevators and telephones, there are stables all complete with horses and carriages, the coachman at the door and even a watch dog on guard. There are automobiles with reckless chauffeurs, and steamboats that really go (if you wind them up); engines that break the record time; a counter filled with the cunningest little drawers and furnished with little scales and wrapping paper. A Noah's ark built like the original one, in the form of a boat and ducks and ships and turtles and frogs that will float on the water and follow a magnet held to their noses. There are tin soldiers, whole regiments of Prussian grenadiers right straight from the fatherland. Santa Claus is nothing if not up to date this year with radios and Victrolas. You can take your choice. There is a Christmas monkey and there is a little story connected with this. A lady was looking at this Christmas monkey and a gentleman walked up and addressed her saying, "Beg your pardon, you were looking at this I think." And the grotesque brown monkey was restored to the counter before her. She looked up to find herself face to face with her husband and she detected her heart in a guilty jump wholly unexplicable, in view of the fact that three months before they had voluntarily parted forever.

The situation was a trifle unusual but she decided that this man, even though he chanced to be her former husband, was entitled to the ordinary courtesy due one's fellow-shopper at Christmas time, and she replied graciously: "Look at it by all means. I was simply deciding between this and the larger one" and retuned outwardly calm, to her examination of the other toy.

Inwardly she was upbraiding herself for lack of self-control. Why should self control be necessary? Why, at the unexpected sight of the man she had banished from her life, should the whole world have changed, she knew she ought to go—she told herself she would as soon as she had purchased the monkey for the "boy." In that one fleeting glance her husband looked handsomer and more lovable than ever, she wondered if he missed her, but no, of course he couldn't. He was a superficial man, with no depths of feeling. A man who was fond of his horses and the dogs and keen out-of-door living. A normal man of no moods—hence of no temperament—that was why she had left him.

Side by side they stood for several minutes each seriously manipulating the absurd toys until one of the contortions of the smaller monkey provoked a low unconscious chuckle from the man. Involuntarily she looked up, their eyes met, the moment demanded speech.

"I won't get a monkey for him if you want to," said the man. "Do you think the boy is big enough for a rocking horse this Christmas?"

The woman looked up smiled wistfully, "Oh, dear no, he's only 15 months old, you know."

There was a wonderful silence. Each knew what the other was thinking. Finally the man spoke unconsciously, "He was such a little fellow last Christmas and we gave him the puppy—from father and mother." He spoke very softly. That event had been almost of the nature of a sacrament. The words sung themselves into the woman's ear. She was engulfed in a golden mist—fell into her husband's arms.

She opened her eyes in the hospital room of the big department store. The house physician gave her stimulants, remarked on the frequency of fainting in the crowded shops. She looked down, she still had possession of the brown monkey.

An inspiration seized her. She put up her hand, monkey and all, and drew her husband's head near her, "For the boy, from father and mother," she said.

GETTING HUBBY'S PRESENT

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: Isn't the Social Corner getting "Christmasy" though? So many lovely suggestions have been offered and nearly every one is tucked away in my kitchen scrap book.

I would like to tell you of a way to make hubby appreciate his Christmas gift twice as much. 'Tis what I'm doing and have done before and it does me worlds of good to see the look of pleasant surprise on his face. Do not take his money to buy his Christmas gift—earn it yourself and surprise him. It's worth the effort.

Perhaps this wouldn't apply to the mother of a large family who rarely has time for herself after the household tasks and caring for the loved ones is finished at the close of day, but there are many who have a few extra hours they could spare now and then and there are many, many ways of earning extra money.

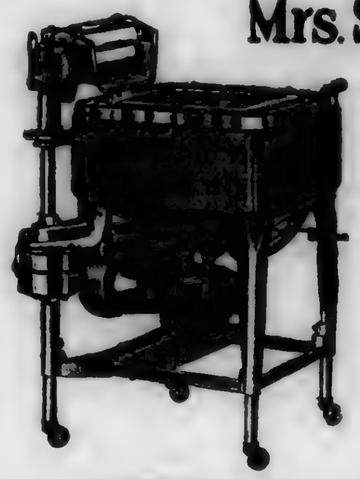
One way is to sell subscriptions for magazines; now especially when there are such loads of ideas and suggestions for Christmas it is easy to sell them. And there are many things when can be made at home to be sold, either in sewing or painting. I have more than enough for hubby's gift right now and so I'm going to get a nice reed rocker with the remainder. That is something we both can enjoy.

FRED'S WIFE.

Many a man has risked acquiring a wife in order to acquire a sister.

Maytag Washer

This time they wrote to Mrs. SANTA CLAUS



THEY'VE been sending their letters to her this year—the women of America. Their hearts are set on one gift—they call it the "Miracle of Monday."

It's the blessing and relief of a washer that washes 50 lbs. of dry clothes in sixty fleeting minutes (twice the capacity of ordinary washers)—tubful after tubful, as quickly as a woman can wring them out. And mark you, sparkling, hygienically clean—and in addition, it eliminates that most trying task, the handrubbing of cuffs, wristbands and collars.

And these are only some of the wonders of the Gyrafoam principle, that makes soul of the Maytag Washer. No other washer has it.

Make no mistake about the washer that's "wished for" this Christmas. Think of the Mondays that are to come. Your wife or your mother needs the Maytag — a perhaps than you may think.

For homes without electricity, the Maytag Gyrafoam is available with Multi-Motor attachment.*

The famous Maytag Gasoline Motor*

9 Outstanding Maytag Features

1 Washes faster.
2 Washes cleaner.
3 Largest hourly capacity in the world.
4 Most compact washer made—takes floor space only 25 inches square.
5 Cast aluminum tub—can't warp, rot, swell, split or corrode.
6 Easily adjusted to your height.
7 Clothes can be put in or taken out with the washer running.
8 Tub cleans itself.
9 All metal wringer. Self adjusting. Instant tension release.

Mr. and Mrs. Urban Whitford of Old Mystic and Mr. and Mrs. P. Warren Wheeler of Stonington borough were guests Sunday of Mrs. Warren Wheeler.

Mrs. George Scott has returned, after a few days spent in New Haven.

Revision of the immigration law to permit entrance in excess of quota limitations of skilled agriculturists was urged before the house immigration committee which began hearings on immigration legislation.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

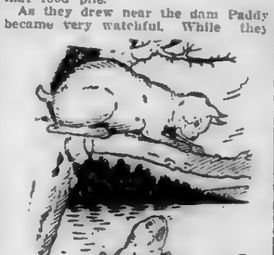
Danger at the Dam.

Though the way seem safe and clear
Danger may be lurking near.
—Paddy the Beaver.

Paddy was a very small Beaver when he learned that. It was one of the first things taught him by Mother Beaver, and all his life he had remembered it. He has taught it to his children and he knows that they will teach it to their children. It must be at all times remembered and heeded by the Beaver who would live to a good old age.

Paddy had it in mind as he swam with his log the very first of the new cutting on the shore of the new pond up the Laughing Brook, deep in the Green Forest. He was towing that log down to the dam. It would have to be dragged over this and then towed down the Laughing Brook to the old pond and the place where the food pile was to be. Behind Paddy, swam one of his nearly grown children. He also was towing a poplar log for that food pile.

As they drew near the dam Paddy became very watchful. While they were in the water there was nothing to fear. But they must climb out on that dam to drag these logs over into the Laughing Brook. There hardly was likely to be any danger then, but you never can tell.



She had looked up just in time to see Yowler the Bob Cat creeping out on that limb above her

So Paddy did not at once climb up on the dam and drag his log out. He told his young son to wait. Then Paddy swam the whole length of that dam, using his ears and nose, as Mother Nature had intended he should. He discovered that Reddy Fox was sitting at one end of the dam, having run around there from the place where the logs were cut. Paddy had no fear of Reddy. Reddy wasn't big enough to be dangerous. In fact, Paddy was glad to find Reddy there. As long as Reddy was there no danger was to be feared from that direction. Reddy was afraid of both Yowler the Bob Cat and Old Man Coyote, and should either be about that end of the dam Reddy would not sit there quietly as he was now doing. Paddy wished he could be as sure about the safety of the other end of the dam as he was about that end.

His eyes and his ears and his nose failed to find even a hint of danger, so Paddy decided that it was safe to go ahead and drag those logs over the dam. But that he might run as little risk as possible he decided that instead of dragging those logs across the middle of that dam he would do it near the end where Reddy Fox was.

By this time Mrs. Paddy and the other young Beaver had arrived with their logs. Mrs. Paddy sniffed when Paddy explained why he had delayed in dragging his log over the dam. "There isn't any danger here," said she. "You are silly. For goodness sake, how do you think Yowler or Old Man Coyote or Buster Bear could hide out on this new dam? It is too new and the top is too narrow for any enemy to hide on it. I am going to take my log over right here in the middle."

Paddy didn't have time to protest before Mrs. Paddy had scrambled out and begun to drag her log after her. Now right close at hand was a tree which was one of the supports of the dam. You remember, I told you how Paddy had built that dam so as to make use of several trees. A limb of this particular tree extended out right over Mrs. Paddy. Just the faintest sounds caused her to look up. The next instant she had dived into the water, slapping the water with her tail, the Beaver danger signal, as she did.

What did it mean? Only that Mrs. Paddy had discovered that it never does to be too sure. She had discovered that she had made a great mistake, and she shivered as she thought how very near to losing her life she had been. You see, there was danger at that dam, after all. The tiny sound which Mrs. Paddy's ears had caught, causing her to look up, had been the faintest of scratches made by claws. She had looked up just in time to see Yowler the Bob Cat creeping out on that limb above her.

No one had thought to look up in the trees along the dam. Yowler had been waiting up there all the time. If it hadn't been that he had to change his position to get out on that limb very likely he would have caught Mrs. Paddy. As it was, she escaped.

DEPRAVED WOMAN AND FILLIPINO FIGURE IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 19—The police, or at least that part of the force which comprises Detective Cavanaugh and Sergeant Nelson Smith, are of the opinion that they can break up a nest in Golden street which has been the source of young girls getting into the path that leads to demoralization and shame. They haled Mary Peterson, alias Mary Pejeaux, before the police court this morning, and charged her with being a party to leading young girls under 16 into the ways of delinquency. She was accused of allowing a Mara girl to occupy a tenement in the building at No. 24 Golden street where she, (Mary Peterson) lived with Edelphone Torres, a Filipino, formerly connected with the submarine base. Mary and the Filipino were represented by an attorney, who asked for a continuance of the case till tomorrow. The adjournment was granted and Mary gave a bond of $500 for appearance then while the former sailor went to jail as he could not produce anyone who was willing to take a chance to the extent of $200 in assuring his appearance in court.

Those making serious charges against the pair accused and declare that they are responsible in great degree for young girls going astray. The police were outwitted early in their investigation of the Mara case, but did not give up the determination to rid New London of the place in which the Filipino and the Peterson woman were located. They learned that the Mara girl went to the roof of the building where she remained till the police had departed and then came down to the Peterson rooms whence she was lowered to the yard in the rear of the premises by means of two sheets tied together and that she then made her way to the street by way of a restaurant on Bank street. Now the Peterson woman claims she is the wife of the Filipino, while he represents that she is his housekeeper. The whole dirty mess is to be threshed out in the court tomorrow morning. The case grows out of the sending of a couple of girls to reformatory institutions a few days ago. There are said to be other just such places as the Peterson woman has maintained in this city and Sergeants Cavanaugh and Smith declare their purpose to get rid of them.

Johnny Brewer, who at one time was a conductor and at another period a policeman on the New London trolley cars, was in the police court today charged with intoxication, having been picked up helpless, from the use of liquor. He had not been before the court in a long time and as he professed the intention of abstaining from the use of liquor, judgment was suspended that he might get back at work. Two hours after the court session closed Brewer was found down and out from drink and he was again locked up to appear in court tomorrow. If Brewer does not spend Christmas in jail, he may consider himself lucky, for he evidently deceived the court and did that with intent, as he pleaded guilty as he was charged and asked for leniency, on a promise to abstain from liquor.

A few days with temperature where it had been during the past three nights will bring ice to the shallow ponds adjacent to the city, where there will be good skating.

Miss Mattie Hunt, of 30 Harrison street; James McDermott, of the crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 127, state pier; Benjamin Franklin, United States destroyer Fanning; James Noyes, Blackhall, and Mrs. William Gaucher and infant son, Williamntic, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of Louis Burnett, of 27 Winthrop street, who died suddenly of heart disease Wednesday afternoon following his having shoveled his way to a fellow-worker, Joseph McFee, who had become enveloped in coke while at work in a car that Burnett and McGee were engaged unloading was held this morning. At 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, a mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons. The bearers were Eli Lake, Theodelis Hodge, Hubert Lawrence, Clifton Hill, Joseph Lake and Gerald Hodge. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Lucie E. Taft, 77, wife of Edwin L. Taft, of Waterford, died this morning at Home Memorial hospital, in which institution Mrs. Taft had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. Taft had resided in Waterford many years and was well known.

Abraham Notkins, of New Haven has sold a house and lot on Ocean avenue to William W. Vars, also of New Haven.

The Title Guaranty & Trust company, of New York, executors of the will of James D. Lynch, formerly of New London and New York, have sold a building lot, corner of Hillside avenue and Jerome place, to Daniel Sullivan.

Harry Mapheliner, Brewer street, has returned to his home, having spent several days with relatives in New York.

A Ford touring car owned by Foster J. Hobron, 31 Blackhall street, was left on Methodist street about two hours last night and when Foster returned to where he had parked the machine it was missing. Foster did not report the loss of his car to the police for he believed that some of his acquaintances had taken the car and would return it to him. When Foster failed to locate his machine this forenoon he notified the police but a half hour later, while walking through Atlantic street, Foster found the car parked alongside the highway where it had been abandoned.

Police Sergeant Patrick Murphy is absent from duty, being confined to his home on Ledyard street, as a result of a severe cold.

The Shall estate, Pequot, is to follow in the wake of the Guthridge estate, according to report, for it is understood that Charles Shall, of New York and this city, and Mrs. Guthridge, New York, have obtained an option on the valuable realty and will become possessed of the property within a few days. It is the intention of Mr. Shall and Mrs. Guthridge to have the large tract developed into building sites. The deed transferring the property to Mr. Shall and Mrs. Guthridge, it is understood, is being drawn and will be filed for record in the office of the city clerk within a week or ten days.

Several New Londoners went to New York this forenoon and tonight were among the spectators at Madison Square Garden that witnessed the featherweight title battle between Kid Kaplan and Babe Herman.

Captain Browning, ordnance officer at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, reported to the New London police this afternoon that three automatic revolvers, each of .45 calibre, had been stolen at the reservation. It was not known when the revolvers were taken but Capt. Browning declared that the theft was committed within the past 20 days.

The automobile, owned and operated by George Murphy, 171 Montauk avenue, and a car owned and operated by W. E. Sanford, mail clerk at the submarine base, were in collision last night on State street, corner of Union street. Neither car was damaged of consequence. Murphy, however, believed that Sanford was guilty of reckless driving and today the former lodged complaint against Sanford. The latter was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning.

Mrs. C. E. Holloway, 238 North street, Baton Rouge, La., today communicated with City Manager William A. Holt requesting the assistance of that official in locating her son, Leon D. Holloway, who recently married a New London girl. The request was turned over to the New London police and a short time later the address was obtained of the young man, who was notified to correspond with his mother without delay.

An automobile, owned and operated by Thomas P. Murphy, Connecticut avenue, and a machine driven by Arthur Hansen, 30 Cliff street, were in collision early this morning, corner of Vauxhall and Ledyard streets. Both cars were damaged and Murphy was arrested on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, Hansen preferring the charge against Murphy. The accused was in the police court this forenoon but trial of the case was deferred until the 23rd inst. Murphy furnished a bond of $200 for his appearance at that time. The machine operated by Murphy was being driven north on Ledyard street and as it was about to enter Vauxhall street the car driven by Hansen and proceeding easterly on Vauxhall street, started to pass the intersection sideways. Neither operator could bring his machine to a stop, so a crash occurred. Harry Watterson Summer street, an occupant of Murphy's car, sustained a lacerated scalp and is now under treatment at Lawrence hospital. Patrolman Michael Corcoran was nearby when the accident occurred and he caused the drivers of the machines and their companions to go to the police station and make a report and it was while the report was being made that Hansen accused Murphy of driving while intoxicated. In the car with Hansen were Walter B. Clark, 231 Montauk avenue; Rudolph Bjorge, 52 Sherman street and Stanley Searle, 256 Montauk avenue. None of the occupants of Hansen's car sustained injury.

Dr. and Mrs. Gurdon S. Allyn, of Waterford, have gone to West Palm Beach, Fla., where Dr. Allyn intends to remain indefinitely and engage in business. Mrs. Allyn, however, will return to Waterford early in the summer.

Cardinal William O'Connell, of Boston, was a visitor in New London Wednesday. When enroute from New York to Boston, he stopped off here, being a guest Wednesday night at the Hotel Mohican.

At the annual meeting of Union lodge, No. 31, A. F. and A. M., held in the rooms of the orgapization last evening, Joseph C. Lounsbury was elected worshipful master. Other officers elected were: Senior warden, Elwood L. Stanton; junior warden, Alfred J. Phillips; treasurer, Frederic C. Burrows; senior deacon, George L. Masters; junior deacon, John T. Manion; chaplain, Charles C. Perkins; associate chaplain, Walter M. Slocum; marshal, Robert H. Heath; senior steward, Arthur M. Card; junior steward, Ralph D Briggs; tyler, Hiram Lewis; trustee for three years, Howard A. Edgecomb; trustee of trust funds, Howard A. Edgecomb.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Reginald M. Rowland, 35 Thames street, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emily Elizabeth Rowland, to Ira E. Eskridge, Baltimore and this city. No date for the wedding has been assigned.

Miss Florence L. Barrows, of the department of botany, Connecticut college, has gone to her home in Union, this state, to spend the Christmas vacation.

Miss Dorothy Walsh is in New York where she will remain over the weekend with friends.

The S-19 left port this noon and went to the vicinity of Block Island and Montauk Point and engaged in several diving tests, the tests being ordered recently by the navy department. Among those aboard the submarine was Lieut. C. Shugg, naval construction expert, who came to New London for the special purpose of observing the test. Lieut. Charles A. Martin, of this city, is in charge of the diving tests.

Miss Barbara Dupre, of Groton, a patient at Home Memorial hospital was able to return to her home today.

Letters received from John Chio, who is in Athens, report him in excellent health and enjoying himself with boyhood friends in the capital of Greece. Mr. Chio was an instructor in the schools of his native land before he came to America. He will return here next summer.

A line of automobiles stretched along the west side of Bank street into Pearl street on the south side along Starr street to the Masonic temple, where the Amaranth society had a feast tonight, and into Starr street on the north side and to Washington street to the Mohican hotel where the line extended into Meridian street. State street was also lined with automobiles, so that it is estimated there were more than 300 cars awaiting the convenience of their owners who were out for an evening's pleasure. "What would have been said were as many horses at the curbing some twenty years ago?" was the query this evening.

There have been fewer arrests for violation of the automobile laws in this city in the last month than has been the case in many months. The cause of this is difficult to find unless it may be attributable to the fact that there are fewer autos in use or perhaps it may be due to the greater cautiousness of operators. Auto ordinance violations have also fallen off in number, something that leads to the view that there are fewer automobiles in use.

Several cases of poisoning from dogwood are reported in this city. The dogwood is used for decoration about Christmas trees in homes where the cases of poisoning are reported.

Coal dealers are not cheerful about the settlement of the strike that is now in progress, and coal is becoming of less quantity daily in the yards of the dealers. No advance is anticipated in the price unless the stock in the yards shall indicate that there will be no hard coal to be delivered even to regular customers of the dealers. Practically no hard coal can now be obtained, so consumers are obliged to resort to the bituminous supply.

FRED MOLL DID NOT MISS HIS STOLEN MARKERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 18—Fred Moll, of Mystic, today informed the New London police that some time within the past three weeks the garage where he stored his car on Water street had been entered and that the markers, L-409, had been removed. Moll stated that he had not visited the garage of late as he had no occasion to use his car, but when he read in The Bulletin that George Jones, submarine base, had been apprehended for reckless driving at Willimantic, and that the car Jones operated bore the same markers as were attached to Moll's car, the latter went to the garage and found the car had been stripped of markers.

ADDITION TO POSTOFFICE IS TO COST OVER $20,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 18—Work on the construction of an addition to the New London postoffice will be started early in the spring, it became known here today, when advices were received by the local postoffice officials that the contract for the work had been awarded to Garber & Cissel, Bethlehem, Pa., contractors. The work calls for the construction of an additional mailing room so as to provide greater floor space for the parcel post division and additional mail boxes. The contract price is $20,500 and the work will be completed by Aug. 16, 1926.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Broadway Theater

The Coast of Folly, Gloria Swanson's latest starring picture for Paramount which will be the feature at the Broadway theater on Sunday has an American background of the aristocracy of wealth as best exemplified in the exclusive orbit of Palm Beach, the "coast of folly," and New York.

In the prologue to The Coast of Folly, Nadine Gathway, a young, beautiful and tempestuous girl, is married to a middle-aged millionaire who is prosy and narrow by nature.

Bored by the dull rigidity of her married life she deserts him and her baby, faring forth in the world to seek the romance her heart craves.

But mother love triumphs in the end. Years later after a colorful career she is drawn irresistibly to her daughter when the latter becomes involved in a difficulty.

Miss Swanson portrays Nadine Gathway, and also Joyce Gathway, the daughter. She brings a dramatic finesse that is fairly genius into the characterizations.

True to life, the husband passes into the discard. How his wife finds happiness eventually on the very brink of destruction is a powerful theme of the story.

Allan Dawn, who directed Gloria in Manhandled, Her Love Story, and Wages of Virtue, produced the story from Forrest Halsey's adaptation of the novel by Coningsby Dawson.

Never has there been packed in one single photoplay the number of thrills and melodramatic climaxes that are presented in The Handicap, Phil Goldstone's tremendous drama of the turf, which will be shown at the Broadway theater as the second feature Sunday night only.

Starting with its locale in an eastern city, the story swiftly switches to San Diego and the Tia Juana race track, where one is intimately introduced to the staging of the world-famous Tia Juana handicap one of the richest features in turfdom.

A comedy, news and enlarged orchestra make up the balance of this program that is going to pack the house from top to bottom.

Monday night, eight try-out acts.

Breed Theater

Hobart Henley's fifth production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Exchange of Wives, is coming on Sunday to the Breed Theater.

Henley will be remembered for his production of So This Is Marriage, one of last year's greatest successes. Exchange of Wives has in its cast two members of the former success, Eleanor Boardman and Lew Cody as Mr and Mrs. Rathburn. The two have turned their talents from drama to comedy in this picture, however, and according to advance reports are even more successful.

The story concerns the domestic difficulties of the Rathburns and the Morans, neighboring couples. Each couple has been married long enough for the novelty to wear off, and both the men lose sight of the desirable qualities of their own wives in their admiration of the other's. This leads to the trial "exchange of wives," and the complications resulting bring about some of the most brilliant comedy of the year.

Hobart Henley, the director, seems to have an inside understanding of the complexities of married life, and he brings out in his productions all the points that add reality to the situation, yet everyone is given a touch to bring out its irony and humor.

Renee Adoree plays Elise Morgan, the little flirt, and Creighton Hale, her husband, Victor. Miss Adoree has been doing some excellent work lately, which includes the portrayal of several parts in a line with her present impersonation, notably that of the flirtatious wife in Excuse Me. Creighton Hale, who has run the gamut of human emotion for many years on the screen, plays a role somewhat similar to his marvelous portrayal in The Marriage Circle.

Shop Early For Your Christmas Radio

Commencing today, authorized Fada Radio dealers in this section will undertake the longest concerted drive in the history of the industry to place a standard radio receiver in every home that is a logical prospect, before the first of the year.

Because radio lends itself so admirably to the Christmas gift idea that is the season of tremendous sale. Retail merchants this year are planning far ahead to supply the demand. "Shop early for radio" is more than a mere slogan, for there are definite reasons back of the urging. A radio receiver cannot be selected in a moment; there is the demonstration to be considered and the matter of the installation. Hence, it is highly advisable for the public to avoid the usual Christmas rush by visiting the dealers early.

Next week the first of the special Christmas displays will be shown. "Come in and listen-in before you buy" will be the invitation extended. Windows will be prepared to greet the early shoppers for Christmas gifts. The drawings of great artists will graphically depict the joys of owning a real radio receiver, such a one as will make "Merry Christmas" last the livelong year, and "bring a gleam of gladness to every love."

The general campaign for early shopping, extending over several years has had considerable effect in relieving the last minute rioting Christmas rush and if the crush is reduced further this year radio can claim some of the credit. For such manufacturers as Andrea and others have made it almost a national issue to open up all the wisdom of early shopping. The First Lady of the Land set a good example in New York the other day when she did some of her Christmas shopping very early.

Palace Theatre

Proof that stars are human after all was evinced when Rin-Tin-Tin, popular canine star of the screen, for the first time in his short and remarkably successful career ignored the commands of his master and trainer, Lee Duncan, during the filming of his latest Warner Bros. photoplay, "Tracked in the Snow Country," now playing at the Palace theatre.

One of the scenes in this melodrama of the North Woods takes place in a trading post, and there is a bit of business where Rin-Tin-Tin sneaks up to a barrel of dried fish with the intention of stealing one. However, the action of the story does not permit him to get away with this petty larceny and the script called for Rinty's overcoming his temptation.

He was taught to suspect all strangers, regardless of what appeal they made, and refused all food proffered by strangers, even though he might have been extremely hungry, thus learning the fundamental requirement of refusing bribery.

Robert Keable, author of "Simon Called Peter" and its sequel, "Recompense," came to America recently at the invitation of Warner Bros., when the latter producing company was filming "Recompense."

It was the author's first trip to the United States. His suggestions for picturizing his sensational sequel "best seller" proved valuable and were incorporated into the film.

"Recompense" will play at the Palace theatre, beginning Sunday. Marie Prevost and Monte Blue co-star, and are supported by John Roche, George Siegmann, Charles Stevens, Virginia Brown Faire, William C. Davidson and Etta Lee.

Tropical Africa, the vivacity of Paris and the picturesque contrasts of London's Limehouse District have been called into play by the resourceful Director Harry Beaumont to give this "Classic of the Screen" all the tingling life and verisimilitude which the novel had.

Dorothy Farnum, noted for her brilliant adaptation of "Beau Brummell" and other Warner productions, adapted "Recompense."

Jackie Coogan at Y. M. C. A.

"The Boy of Flanders" a seven reel moving picture feature in which "Jackie" Coogan is the hero will be shown in the gymnasium of the local Young Men's Christian Association Sunday. There will be two showings, for boys only at 1:45 and for all others at 3:45 p. m.

This feature is adapted from the short story, "A Dog of Flanders," and demonstrates how a little waif and his dog win fame and love, through their constancy and love for each other. Jackie is a ragged little chap, living with his blind grandfather, and they eke out an existence by delivering milk. The boy's obsession is drawing, and he uses any bits of crayon or chalk he can find, making his pictures on pieces of board. He acquired the habit when a peddler leaves the animal to die in the road. When his grandfather dies, Jackie and his dog make their home in a haystack, until his talent wins recognition and a prize from a visiting artist. A brief talk will be given by Rev. Edwin Crowdis at the 3:45 meeting on the topic, "The Power of Affection." Hugh Kinder will officiate at the piano at 3:45.

The doors will be opened at 1:30 for boys and at 3:30 for others.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
New York

Stocks irregular; Postum Cereal rises 10 points.

Bonds steady; Mexican issues at new highs.

Foreign exchanges mixed; French francs rally twenty points.

Cotton barely steady; trade buying.

Sugar easier; more favorable Cuban labor situation.

Coffee firmer; buying by importers.

Chicago

Wheat weak; disappointing export demand.

Corn lower; Easter cash markets.

Cattle weak.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Revival of activity and strength in the oil shares was the outstanding development in today's regular stock market. An early advance in other industrials was checked by a stiffening of call money rates, due to heavy withdrawals of gold ad other currency in anticipation of the holiday demand. Trading showed a marked reduction in volume, total sales running just above one and one half million shares.

French francs made spirited recovery from recent weakness on reports of negotiations for a huge loan to French industry. Commodity markets were irregular. Cotton and coffee futures showed moderate advances, but wheat prices lost ground in reflection of the uncertainty over the Argentine crop situation.

The sudden outburst of buying in the oil shares was based on rumors of a merger of some of the California companies, and expectations of an early increase in Mid-Continental crudes. Pacific Oil was the leader in that group, closing 2 points higher at 64 5-8, while Sinclair, Standard Oil of California, California Petroleum and Houston closed about 1 to 2 points higher. The Pan-American issues were heavily bought on prospects of huge Mexican output next year.

Some new leaders were brought forward in the rail group but the general rail list showed the effects of heavy profit-taking. Chicago and Eastern Illinois common and preferred advanced 3 1-2 ad 3 points, respectively and northern Pacific established a new 1925 peak at 75 7-8. Declines of a point or more were recorded, however, by Canadian Pacific, Chicago and North-Western, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Louisville and Nashville, and a few others.

Standard industrials showed only fractional net changes. U. S. Steel common fluctuated within a range of 1 point, closing one quarter higher at 133 3-4. American Can closed three-eighths higher at 253 1-2 and Baldwin showed a net loss of one eighth at 130 1-2, after having sold 2 points above that figure.

Buoyancy again developed in a number of high priced industrials. General Electric scored an extreme advance of nearly 10 points at 324 1-2 and then eased to 321 and California Packing, Continental Insurance, Fidelity Phoenix Insurance, Fleischmann, General Cigar, Kelsey Wheel, National Lead, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and United Fruit, closed 2 to nearly 4 points higher. S S Kresge jumped 15 points to 735 on a few sales. Bullish operations also were successfully conducted in some of the low and medium priced issues. Postum Cereal scored 10 points to a new high record at 101 1-4. Russia Insurance jumped nearly 9 points to 95 1-2, and A. Byers, General Outdoor Advertising, National Enameling, Pressed Steel Car common and preferred and Standard Milling advanced 2 to 5 points.

Weakness again developed in the motors and rubbers. Chrysler fell back 8 5-8 to 194 5-8 and General Motors, Mack Truck, United States Rubber, Du Pont, Fisher Body, Goodrich Rubber and Timken Roller Bearing eased 1 to 2 1-2 points. Stewart Warner showed independent strength by advancing over 2 points to a new high record for the year at 96 1-2.

Call money renewed at 4 3-4 per cent. and advanced to 5 1-2, closing at the top. Time money was in moderate supply with 5 per cent. the ruling rate. Commercial paper was unchanged.

French francs rallied over 20 points to 3.85 cents and then eased about 5 points from the top in the later trading. Demand sterling held firm at $4.84 3-4. Polish zloty rallied 100 points to 11 cents and other European exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits.

FAIR TODAY; PROBABLY RAIN TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1796 1925

NORWICH, CONN., SATURDAY, DEC. 19, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Saturday, Dec. 19, 1925

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

Pressure remains low over the eastern Canadian provinces.

There have been local snows within the last 24 hours in northern New England. Elsewhere in New England the weather has remained fair.

The indications are for rain in the extreme south and for mostly fair weather elsewhere east of the Mississippi river on Saturday and for snow in the lower lake region, northern New York and northern New England, and for rain elsewhere. In the Washington forecast district on Sunday the temperature will rise almost generally east of the Mississippi river during Saturday and will not change materially on Sunday. Except that colder weather will overspread the lower lake region, northern New York and northern New England by Sunday night.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh west and southwest winds and fair weather Saturday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate to fresh west and southwest winds and fair weather Saturday.

Forecast.

For southern New England: Fair and somewhat warmer Saturday; Sunday cloudy; probably rain.

Observations.

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Friday:

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	24	30.00
12 m.	30	30.10
6 p. m.	26	30.10

Highest 30, lowest 23.

Comparisons.

Predictions for Friday: Generally fair, not much change in temperature.

Friday's weather: Fair predicted, westerly wind.

NORWICH TOWN

A large delegation of Norwich Town people comprising members of the First Congregational church, went to Versailles Friday night, to put on the Great Chicken Case (Abduction of Daisy White) a mock trial by Allan Burns. The men who had the leading parts were members of the Men's Forum of the Norwich Town church, under whose auspices this mock trial was successfully held about two months ago. Those who took part: Judge Hiram Haywood, Henry T. Frazier; clerk of court, John Simpson, Thomas H. Bacheler; counsel for plaintiff, I. Wilkenson, Esq., Clyde M. Beebe; counsel for defense, Sumner Webster Wyndham, Esq., Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey; witnesses for plaintiff: Mrs. L. M. A. Bertbler, Miss Sadie J. Davison; Mrs. Rev. R. E. Pentent, Miss Katharine D. Smith; Mr. G. W. T. J. J. G. A. A. L. Johnson. Charles Barber Witnesses for defense: Prof. Solomon Aristotle Puffer, John L. Browning; Mrs. John Jones, Mrs. Charles Schewenk; Mr. I. B. Sweeney, Charles Schwenk, The defendant, Henry Hemlock, Elton Olders; sheriff, Hezekiah Henderson, Arthur Avery. The jury: Foreman, Jesse James, Dwight W. Avery; and Frederick Ross, Dwight L. Underwood, Frank Skinner, George T. Hyde, Edwin Johnson, Mrs. Charles P. Learned, Mrs. Orrin F. Merry, Mrs. David M. Dean, Mrs. Frank E. Sterry, Mrs. Philip P. Whaley and Mrs. Marcus Buckley.

Arthur Avery substituted for his father as the sheriff; and Elton Olders was the prisoner, in place of Herbert L. Verrington.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church and Rev. Charles E. Reeves of Norwich Town, were in Franklin, Friday morning, to attend the funeral of Rev. William J. Tate, late pastor of the Franklin Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Bailey and Rev. Mr. Reeves had a part in the funeral service with Rev. William English of Hartford, assistant superintendent of Connecticut Home Missionary society. Rev. Mr. Tate was laid to rest in the cemetery where his eldest son is buried in Hoganum and where he formerly held a pastorate for eighteen years.

A sacred musical service is to be given at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday evening. Miss Hazel Cruthers and Miss Florence M. Brown are the committee in charge.

Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters of Norwich Town, will conduct a Christmas service at the Almshouse, Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, will have charge of the religious period. There will be special music. Miss Rose M. Durr, R. N., is in charge of the [illegible]

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church, at a recent meeting voted to accept the invitation to attend the Candle Light service Sunday evening at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist). The regular Sunday evening meeting of the Norwich Town society will be omitted.

Miss Clementine C. Bacheler of the faculty of Miss Masters school at Dobbs Ferry, on the Hudson, is to spend the holiday recess at her home on East Town street, with her sister, Miss Mary E. Bacheler and brother, Thomas H. Bacheler.

Mrs. Letitia Cornstock and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe of East Town street, were in Montville, Friday afternoon to attend the funeral of Mrs. Beebe's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edwin Comstock. Mrs. Comstock was well and favorably known in Norwich Town, where years ago she visited at the home of Mrs. Mary Williams Allen and her husband the late Fitch L. Allen, of Town street. Mrs. Allen is now in Sacramento, California, residing at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William B. MacLane. Mrs. Edwin Comstock and Mrs. Allen were cousins.

Mrs. Albert Birdsey of Elm avenue will return Sunday from a week's visit with Mr. Birdsey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Birdsey, of Middletown.

Boys Stealing Cats.

It is claimed that boys about lower Broadway are stealing cats, later returning the pets and claiming a reward. In one case, a pet cat was taken back to a business place with its whiskers cut off and other evidences of having been cruelly treated by its boy captors.

COLCHESTER SKIRT AND DRESS FACTORY DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

COLCHESTER, Dec. 18—Cohen Bros.' skirt and dress factory, located on Norwich avenue, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin, early this evening with a loss of approximately $20,000. The fire was discovered about 7:30 o'clock and an hour later the two story building, with a single story addition on the rear, was a mass of ruins. The building itself was valued at $7,000 and there was over $10,000 worth of finished stock and raw material in the factory. Max and Ike Cohen of this town, are the proprietors and 40 hands were employed at the factory. The loss is covered by insurance.

Harold Dunning, a member of Colchester Fire Co., No. 1, who was at work in a nearby garage, was notified of the fire and he ran to the fire house, sounding the alarm. The fire company laid two lines of hose and directed the streams on the building which was a mass of flames. The Ransom school building, a few feet from the burning factory, was threatened for a time, but a stream of water directed on the building, kept it from catching fire.

The fire evidently broke out in the rear part of the building, where the furnace is located. There was no one in the building at the time, as the factory had been closed at 6 o'clock for the night. The factory was formerly occupied by the late S. T. Avery as a tinshop.

CHIEF H. L. STANTON WARNS AGAINST CHRISTMAS FIRES

Let Santa Claus in, but keep the fire demon out, says Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton, in issuing a warning against the danger of fire from Christmas decorations. Chief Stanton says in his warning:

"One of the things a fire chief has to do most often, and one of the things he likes to do least, is to keep issuing warnings. No one likes to play the part of kill-joy, no matter how good the reasons — certainly I don't. And so I hope that everybody who reads the few words of caution I've written down about Christmas celebrations will take them in the right spirit, and understand that there must be some real cause for alarm or I wouldn't talk like this at such a season.

"The truth is," says the chief, "that Christmas is sometimes turned from a time of good cheer to one of deep sorrow very suddenly, and all because of fire. Everybody who reads the newspapers remembers the accounts of death and injury and property destruction reported last year on Christmas day and the days immediately following. Almost always such fires are due to somebody's carelessness and, according to figures I have from the National Board of Fire Underwriters, about one in every ten Christmas fires results in loss of life.

"Certainly nobody wants anything like that to happen in Norwich, when it can be so easily prevented; and so I've drawn up this short list of 'do's and don'ts' as precautions. I know they will 'do the trick' if only everybody will do his best to follow them. Here they are:

"If you must have a candle in the window on Christmas eve, make it an electric one—that is safe.

"If a Christmas tree is used, make sure that it is securely set up so that it will not topple over, and keep it away from heating and lighting fixtures.

"Use metal thsel, flake asbestos and powdered mica for snow effects instead of the highly dangerous paper clippings and cotton.

"Do not illuminate the tree with candles. Colored electric light assemblies are more ornamental and. If used with care, are safer. A spot light focused upon the tree is, however, the safest method of all, and gives a highly pleasing effect.

"Smokers should exercise great care with their matches and smoking materials while near trees and decorations. Keep matches out of the reach of small children.

"Toys requiring alcohol, gasoline or kerosene should be avoided, as should the flimsy toy motion-picture machines using inflammable film.

"Cheap electrical playthings should be forbidden, as they are often defectively wired and have insecure, dangerous connections. Such electrical apparatus may cause serious burns and fires.

"If it is felt that Santa Claus must be present at the celebration, the impersonator should avoid long cotton whiskers, and should keep away from open lights and fires. As an additional precaution, the costume used should be made partially fireproof by spraying upon it a solution of water glass, obtainable at any drug store.

"If anyone's clothing does catch fire, the victim should be promptly rolled in a rug or woolen cloth in order to smother the flames, which should be kept ready at hand.

"In order to prevent the spread of any fires that may start, a bucket or two of water and a fire extinguisher should be kept ready at hand.

"Merchants should keep their places of business free from rubbish and paper accumulations, and should insist that employes keep all exits clear.

"A most important safeguard is to remove all evergreens immediately after Christmas, before they become completely dried out.

"There's one Yuletide visitor," concludes the chief, "that everybody welcomes, and that's the spirit of Santa Claus. But don't let the Fire Demon come in with him. By all means keep Christmas, but keep it safe, and Norwich will be a happier city for everybody in it."

FIVE ARRESTED ON LIQUOR LAW CHARGES

State and local police in a series of raids in this city Friday arrested four men and one woman on charges of violating the liquor law. They were booked at police headquarters as follows:

Frank Wilbur, 32, colored, Forest street; Mrs. Nawrocki, Polish, Yantic; David Blum, 40, School street; Max Blazer, West Main street and Amer Abraham, 30, Syrian, Boswell avenue.

All but Wilbur furnished bonds of $1,000 each for their appearance in the city court this (Saturday) morning. Wilbur remained locked up at the police station, being unable to provide the necessary bond to secure his liberty for the night.

TRAIN HIT TANK TRUCK AT COLCHESTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

COLCHESTER, Dec. 18—As the result of injuries received when the oil tank truck on which he was riding was hit by an express train at the Chamberlain Hill crossing, on the Hartford turnpike, near here this morning, Benny Horowitz, 15, Westchester, is in a critical condition at the Hartford hospital. Howard Barton, driver of the truck, was slightly injured.

The truck was being driven from East Hampton to Colchester. Harowitz asked the driver for a ride and was taken on the truck, loaded with 500 gallons of gasoline. A touring car ahead of the truck slowed down at the crossing. Barton turned out and the locomotive struck the rear end of the truck, turning it over and pinning the driver underneath. He extricated himself. Horowitz was taken to the Hartford hospital by a passing motorist.

REV. EDWARD C. DUNBAR COMMANDER FLETCHER POST

At the annual meeting of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, held Friday night at the post rooms on Shetucket street, Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, was elected commander for the ensuing year to succeed Samuel Jennes, who served as commander after the resignation of Commander Webster D. Copp last fall.

The meeting was one of the most largely attended meetings of the year and proved one of the best ever held by the local post. Commander Jennes opened the meeting in regular form and the usual reports were read, and committee reports were made.

John A. Cunningham, past commander, was appointed chairman of the committee to secure Christmas baskets of fruit to be given to disabled veterans now patients at Uncas-on-Thames. It was also voted to purchase a Health bond and the number of stamps sent out by the Norwich Red Cross, on the annual Christmas seal campaign.

A letter from Department Commander E. L. White, was read by Adjutant Jonathan L. Johnson, urging the members to take an interest in Legion matters, after which Commander Jennes appointed Comrades William A. Anderson, Harold T. Robinson, Harry N. House and Charles Olsen; adjutant, Joseph Bellefleur; treasurer, Jonathan L. Johnson. Members of the executive committee for three years, Past Commander William A. Anderson and Comrades Lou Hawkins and Harry N. Powers.

It was voted that the officers be installed at the first meeting in January at which time annual reports would be heard.

Vice Commander Frank P. Chase then took the chair and State Vice Commander John A. Cunningham, on behalf of the post, presented past commanders' badges to Webster D. Copp and Samuel Jennes, who served in that office during the year 1925.

State Commander-elect, E. E. Jackson of New Britain, was present at the meeting and spoke briefly to the post, urging the members to go out for membership during 1926 and sell the Legion to every ex-service man in this vicinity.

The meeting was then turned over to the entertainment committee, Comrades William Skelly, chairman, Meredith Lee and Michael D'Auri who introduced two special guests of the evening, Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, D. D., pastor of the New London Congregational church and Commander Orrin M. Price of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R.

In addressing the meeting Dr. Lee selected Washington's Farewell Address, saying that it was one of the most misquoted documents ever written. He urged the Legion members to have the international mind, not to live simply for self. Speaking of entangling alliances he mentioned that the United States and France once had an agreement to fight for one another, this being in Washington's time. There is nothing about entangling foreign alliances in Washington's Farewell Address, he said, and Henry Cabot Lodge was too good a historian to claim that there was such a thing.

Commander Orrin M. Price of Sedgwick post, spoke concerning the history of the G. A. R., in Norwich, saying that the first few years saw hard sledding for the Grand Army men. The Norwich post, he said, was the first one organized in this state and was due to efforts of Gen. Harland, who went to New York and took the degree work, bringing it to Norwich to institute a post. At the end of seven years the post numbered nearly 300 members and at its peak membership had over 600 names on the roll.

Both speakers were heartily applauded by the post for their inspiring remarks.

Entertainment supreme reigned for the remainder of the evening when Manager Edward L. McEvoy, of the Palace theatre and the entire troupe of vaudeville artists held sway. The meeting hall became a theatre for the time and Manager McEvoy announced that although several of the players were indisposed, when they heard that the Legion wanted them they quickly volunteered their services.

This announcement met with instant applause on the part of the comrades and three rousing cheers were given for "Ed and his Gang."

The first number was Scott McKee, banjo player extraordinary, and from the applause and cheering he evidently was. His numbers included southern melodies and several popular numbers, interpreted in a most pleasing manner.

For the second act "Ed" announced Cloney and LeFree would give their song and dance act. Two clever boys with their feet, possessing fine singing voices, the numbers went over big and encores were demanded and speedily given.

Previous to announcing the third act "Ed" introduced Mrs. Luckabill, as the mother of two charming daughters. The Luckabill Sisters then were introduced and they went big from the start, Irish songs and dances proving a hit with the boys, many of the boys remembering "Redhead" of yesterday, being taken back to the days in the service when "Redhead" was always a hit.

For a change it was announced that in contrast with the Irish dances by the Luckabill Sisters, Miss Walsh would favor with a Russian dance. This dainty miss sure "Russianed" her dance in fine style and when the boys called for a repeat she assisted one of the sisters of the interpretation of the Charleston, done in true southern style.

The closing number of the delightful program was given by Friend and Watkins, their clever character song of the sick Jewish man on the ocean liner, proving to be a laugh getter from the start.

Johnny Egan, Palace theatre accompanist, was at the piano and his work was a great assistance in putting the acts across.

For the remainder of the program Edward J. Brennan, violinist and Lily C. Stockdale, pianist, favored with two delightful musical numbers, Keep On Crooning A Tune and It Must Be Love.

All entertainers received a rising vote of thanks for their delightful entertainment.

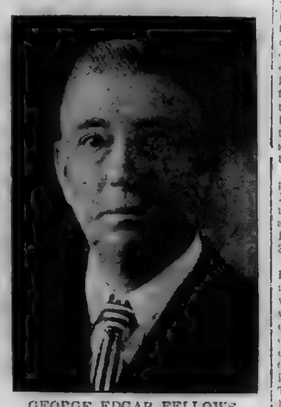
At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the entertainment committee. Announcement was also made that the local post had been invited to attend the installation of officers of John Coleman Prince post and auxiliary, which takes place in New London on the first Wednesday in January.

A Montville student at St. John's Preparatory school, Danvers, Mass., Herve Chagnon, was cited this week by Brother Edmund, prefect of studies, for proficiency, being one of six students with marks of A or B for the first quarter of the school year.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER GEORGE E. FELLOWS DIED LAST NIGHT

George E. Fellows, 72, member of the board of county commissioners for New London county and a former street commissioner of this city, died Friday night about 9:30 o'clock at his home, No. 343 Franklin street. Mr. Fellows had been in poor health for some months and had been seriously ill for a number of weeks.

George Edgar Fellows, fourth child of Joshua E., and Eunice Hannah



GEORGE EDGAR FELLOWS

(Hempstead) Fellows was born in New London, August 9, 1853, but five years later, Norwich became the family home and here he had since made his residence. He was educated in the local public schools and at East Greenwich Academy. Following his school days he took up the mason's trade under his father.

Mr. Fellows became a skilled worker and continued as his father's assistant until the latter's death in 1885. He then succeeded his father, and as head of the firm, Fellows and Rice, continued the business until September, 1893, when he became sole owner by purchasing his partner's interest. He continued alone as a contractor and builder for about one year. He then accepted the appointment as street commissioner for the city of Norwich.

He served in this capacity for three years, then, in 1898, resumed his former business and gave it his entire attention until 1908 when he again accepted appointment as street commissioner.

From this time until 1917, he filled several terms as street commissioner, and in May of that year, he received the appointment of the governor to fill out an unexpired term as county commissioner. He continued in this office until 1919 when he was appointed for a full four year term and again in 1923, he received a reappointment for another four year term, holding this office at the time of his death. During 1920 he was again appointed to the office of street commissioner serving Norwich in that capacity until July 1, 1921.

Mr. Fellows was a republican in political faith, an attendant at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, and a member of St. James lodge, No. 33, F. and A. M., Franklin Chapter, No. 4, R. A. M. and Franklin Council, No. 3, R. and S. M.

At the Long Society section of Preston, at the bride's home, he was united in marriage with Lila E. Harvey, November 24, 1875. Four children were born to them. Edith Amanda, employed by the Norwich Savings society; Miss L. Louise Fellows of this city; Miss Alice Helen, deceased and George Robert Fellows, assistant cashier at the Thames National bank. There are also two grandchildren, Barbara and Shirley Fellows.

On November 24, last, Mr. and Mrs. Fellows observed their golden wedding anniversary. Owing to Mr. Fellows' ill health the observance was of a quiet nature.

That he was so often called as street commissioner and county commissioner is proof that Mr. Fellows satisfactorily and efficiently discharged the important duties of those offices. He was widely known and popular with his many friends, by whom he was highly esteemed. He was a man who possessed sterling traits of character, and a friend who could be relied upon to the utmost. He was ever courteous and gracious, and was a loving husband and father. The news of his death will be learned with deep regret by his numerous friends.

APPEAL FOR FINANCIAL AID FOR ANTHRACITE MINERS

William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, Calls For Assistance From All Organized Labor Bodies in the United States—Maintains That the Attitude of the Mine Owners is a Challenge to Organized Labor—Coal Magnates Accept Invitation to Attend Meeting in Scranton Today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(AP) — All organized labor bodies in the United States today were appealed to by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to come to the financial aid of the anthracite miners, who have been under a work suspension since last September.

No limit was set as to the amount sought, and the appeal was explained with the statement that the United Mine Workers of America has been spending many thousands of dollars each month in supply relief in the way of food, clothing and shelter but the burden has become too great for one organization.

Mr. Green asserted that the attitude of the anthracite mine owners "constitutes a challenge to the whole membership of the American Federation of Labor" and that their "unreasoning attitude toward their employes and their indifference to public necessity cannot fail to rouse the generous spirit of organized labor." The 35-odd local unions affiliated with the central body were all asked to make contributions, directly through its secretary, Frank Morrison.

Somewhat similar steps to sustain non-union miners during prolonged periods of strike and work suspension have been taken in the past by organized bodies, and in 1922, when both bituminous and anthracite workers were out, John L. Lewis, president of the union, also obtained large loans from a New York bank. The money was later repaid but the advances from other unions were treated as direct gifts and spent for strike benefits, supplementing the fund of the miners' union for the same epurpose.

Mr. Green's appeal was made in the form of a letter addressed to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, which is in session here, and to the presidents of all international unions affiliated with the federation. It was made public after the council had approved it.

The letter, which was dated December 19, declared that the attitude of the anthracite operators "is a challenge to the whole labor movement of America" and that "the very existence of the United Mine Workers of America is at stake."

"The anthracite miners have been on strike since September 1," the letter said, "and during that time they have suffered untold hardships. Their savings have been exhausted, their credit has been strained to the breaking point, and they are now facing the most severe winter in their history. Their condition is desperate and unless they receive immediate financial assistance they will be compelled to return to the mines and accept the terms offered by the operators, which mean the destruction of the United Mine Workers of America and the reduction of the miners to a condition of serfdom."

Mr. Green asserted that the attitude of the anthracite mine owners "constitutes a challenge to the whole membership of the American Federation of Labor" and that their "unreasoning attitude toward their employes and their indifference to public necessity cannot fail to rouse the generous spirit of organized labor." SANTA CLAUS WILL NOT OVERLOOK MINERS' CHILDREN

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 20—(AP)—Santa Claus will not overlook the thousands of children in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania whose fathers are on strike, but he may not be able to stuff their stockings as full as on other Christmas eves.

No earnings have come into the homes of thousands of miners since Sept. 1, when 158,000 men and boys stopped work. Many fathers and mothers are giving more thought to getting foodstuffs, clothing and fuel than to providing toys, candies and nuts for their children. In hundreds of homes the only things to eat come from miners' relief committees or charitable organizations.

Nevertheless, Santa Claus will make an effort not to forget any one. Plans are being made by those in more fortunate circumstances to make the Yuletide season as happy as possible where suffering may exist.

Down through the five hundred square miles of the hard coal fields—from Forest City on the north to Williamstown on the south—there will be brightly lighted community Christmas trees and also decorated trees in many homes. But they will not dot the valleys and highlands as numerously as heretofore.

In Scranton Mayor John Durkenis arranged with charitable organizations to have community trees in sections of the city where children of the miners may gather and make merry. He has instructed city employes to obtain from nearby woods the tallest trees that can be handled. These will be placed at central points and special services will be held around them on Christmas and during the following week.

Hazleton, the center of the coal fields, will erect a large tree on the lawn of the city hall where church choirs will render special programs up to New Year's day.

There will be a community tree in the public square of Wilkes Barre. The playground association in conjunction with the social service exchange has arranged for carol singing on Christmas eve. Some of the mining communities in the environs of Wilkes Barre also will have illuminated trees.

A canvass made of the entire anthracite district shows that every charity organization, fraternal body and church is taking unusual interest in conveying the "Merry Christmas" spirit to others.

Reports from Lansford in the Panther Creek valley indicate that Lehigh Valley Coal and Navigation company, through its field officials, will join with civic organizations in bringing cheer into the homes of many of the workers who are out on strike.

In the Hazelton region, Mrs. Sophie G. Coxe, widow of Eckley B. Coxe, pioneer coal operator, will distribute Christmas gifts for the 45th consecutive year among 4,000 children and hundreds of adults. Residents of Drifton, Eckley, Beaver Meadow, Old Black Mountain, Stockton, Tomhicken, Harleigh, Oneida and Gowen will be remembered. Each guest at the middle coal field poor house will receive a gift and five dollar bills will go to four hundred miners' widows in the districts.

Business conditions in the anthracite fields vary according to the dependence of the communities upon nearby coal mines for prosperity. The small towns, where the majority of workers are employed in the mines, are feeling the pinch of the strike more than the larger cities. Holiday trade is reported brisk but not quite up to normal in Wilkes Barre, Scranton and Hazelton.

MINE OWNERS' COMMITTEE TO ATTEND MEETING TODAY

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 20—(AP)—The sub scale committee of anthracite operators conference late this afternoon accepted the invitation of the committee of mayors and burgesses of the anthracite fields to attend a meeting in Scranton tomorrow with the committee and the miners' sub-scale committe provided 'any plan may be represented for consideration" which may bring about a termination of the suspension.

"Acknowledging your communication of December 18, wherein you give the text of a resolution adopted at a meeting at Harrisburg on December 16 inviting the operators and miners to consider plans for the settlement of the existing strike.

"The text of that resolution indicates that no one plan is to be the subject of conferences, but that any plan may be presented for consideration. With this understanding we accept your invitation.

"If the miners likewise accept your invitation under the conditions stated in your resolution, then we are ready to meet at the call of Chairman Alvan Markle, as provided in the resolution of the negotiating committees adopted at the time of adjournment at Atlantic City. This is the regular course of procedure in such cases.

"If the published report of Mr. Lewis' reply to your communication is correct that the Pinchot plan alone will be considered by the miners, it would, of course, preclude a conference.

(Signed)
"WILLIAM W. INGLIS."

HEBRON MAN COMMITTED SUICIDE IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Roger Porter, 46, of Hebron, Conn., committed suicide at the Waterbury hospital just before midnight, last night, by cutting his throat with a safety razor blade. Mr. Porter had been in the hospital for five days, suffering from typhoid fever. He had not been delirious, hospital officials say, but had been despondent because his wife, is somewhere in Florida, in search of health. He has no relatives here. His wife was to have started north tomorrow, to be at the bedside of her husband.

Mr. Porter was one of Hebron's best known citizens and was a representative from that town at the last session of the general assembly. Last April, he sold his general store in Amston and returned to his farm in Hebron. In October, he and Mrs. Porter and New London friends left for Florida expecting to remain there during the winter.

Four weeks ago, Mr. Porter was called back to Hebron on business and after his return north was taken ill. His illness was diagnosed last week as typhoid fever. Soon after Mr. Porter had left Florida his wife also was taken ill with typhoid fever but has recovered. Mrs. Porter's brother, Herbert Wilcox, left for Florida today to bring Mrs. Porter home.

Mr. Porter was born in Hebron, June 22, 1878 and had lived in that town all of his life. For more than fifteen years he conducted the general store in Amston. He was a member of the board of assessors in Hebron for many years, holding that position at the time of his death, and was a member of the Masonic order in Colchester.

Mr. Porter is survived by his wife, twin sons, Roger W., of Springfield, Mass., and Herbert W., of Hebron, and one brother.

TO TURN OVER TO EMPLOYES HIS $500,000 A YEAR BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Because he has made all the money he wants, Morris Rosenwasser, 55, shoe manufacturer announced today that on January 1, he will turn over to 50 of his employes his $500,000 a year business.

"My success is due to the loyalty and co-operation of my employes, especially my chief subordinates," Mr. Rosenwasser said. "I want to reward those who have helped me. The first employes will take charge of my four factories. They will not be the owners of the building or ground, but will be the proprietors of the business and all the profits will accrue to them."

Mr. Rosenwasser came here from Poland when he was 17 years old. The next year he went into business with his brother and later became sole owner of the $4,000,000 industry which employs 1,900 men.

MODERNISTS AND RUM ATTACKED BY BILLY SUNDAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(AP)—The Rev. William "Billy" Sunday, evangelist, returned today to the city where he was converted 37 years ago and delivered three fiery attacks on modernists and rum.

"Science and religion can never be reconciled," he said at Moody church in attacking modernism in religion. "If we're going to believe these modernists who attack old time religion, we might just as well tear down our churches. There is only religoin, the religion of Christ."

"Demon rum has been knocked out," he said on the subject of prohibition. "He's whipped. Prohibition is here to stay. It is as permanent as the forty eight stars and thirteen stripes of our flag."

M'CORMACK AND BORI TO REPEAT PERFORMANCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—John McCormack and Lucrezia Bori, concert and operatic stars, who sang in a joint radio program on New Year's day a year ago, will repeat their performance on the evening of January 1.

An hour's program will be broadcast from Station WJZ in New York, which will be hooked up with statios KYW in Chicago; KDKA, Pittsburgh; WGY Schenectady; WBZ, Springfield, and WRC, Washington, D. C.

FRENCH DEPUTIES APPROVE SYRIAN POLICY

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies supported the government today on its Syrian policy. The vote was 360 to 29.

The debate on Syria and the part played by General Sarrail, the former high commissioner, has occupied the chamber for several days. Violent discussions were the rule, and General Sarrail was present to listen to the verbal attacks against him.

King Ali Has Abdicated

PORT SURAN, Egypt, Dec. 20—(AP)—King Ali of the Hedjas, eldest son of King Hussein, who was forced to abdicate in October 1924, was himself abdicated, owing to the collapse of the defenses of Jeddah, invested by Ibn Snoud, Sultan of Nejd.

Repulsed by French Troops

WAMASCUS, Syria, Dec. 20—(AP)—In a torrential rain the rebels attacked Fort Keseler, near Hasbeiya, Friday night. They were repulsed by the French with heavy losses.

CHICAGO PUBLIC HEALTH IS BENEFACTOR OF INSTITUTE

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP)—A donation five years ago of $12,000 launched the Public Health Institute of Chicago on a urological campaign of business, philanthropy and medicine, which now results in "profits" devoted to a public health research program of $150,000 a year, gained from treating thousands who pay only a dollar or two a treatment.

The mass methods of big business have been so developed by the institute that patients pay only about one tenth of the former costs of treatment and still have the benefit of a research laboratory unexcelled in the world. Individual attention equal to the highest standards of the medical profession is given.

As high as 1,200 patients a day are handles at the institute, which has in five years treated 77,000 cases. It is the aim of the institute to reduce urological infections to the same rarity as typhoid and scarlet fever in Chicago, while reducing costs to the patient and improving the specifics. At the same time the institute staff has a chance to win financial success rarely achieved in individual medical practice.

"Our work is an experiment in standardization of medicine," said Dr. J. E. Berkwin, head of the institute. "All of our surplus goes into reduction of the cost of treating the patient, and perfecting our medicines.

"We reverse the usual process of handling contagious diseases as a community protection. Instead of building costly isolation hospitals where the rewards to the medical profession are virtually nil, we aim to put urological treatment costs so low that even the humblest can pay them, and still create a reward for the physician commensurable with his skill and effort.

"The greatest problem in stamping out social diseases is to convince the public that they have very little relation to immorality. Once located, social diseases are among the easiest to cure."

To lower the costs of its treatments, the institute has developed the largest intermediate laboratory of its kind in the world. Here virtually all its own medicines are manufactured. Few of these drugs in their form as administered are on the market, and must be manufactured from the primary ingredients. These intermediates are supplied to public institutes every where and discoveries are shared without charge.

As its greatest contribution to medical science, the institute points to its only known remedy for tertiary syphilis, comparable to the discovery of insulin as a treatment for diabetes.

UNMARRIED TURK BRINGS REFORMS TO GIRLS' SCHOOL

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 20 (AP)—Emine Bey, a young unmarried Turk, has become director of the Normal School for Girls here—a position which a few years ago only a bearded patriarch could have held.

Many radical reforms have been instituted by the new director. Traditional lattices have been removed from windows and now the rooms are flooded with sunlight and air. The old white head covering worn by students has been banned and they now attend classes bare-headed.

Tennis, basket and volley ball courts and other athletic grounds have been provided for the 320 girls and no longer is attendance at religious services compulsory.

SUCCESSFUL MINER PREFERS PROSPECTING TO MINING GOLD

SEATTLE Dec. 20 (AP)—William G. Grady, how discovered gold in Gold Pan creek and started a rust in Caslar country of British Columbia last year, says that looking for the precious metal is more fun than taking it.

Mining is just hard work, but prospecting is great sport.

"Maybe I'll sell out my interests so I can go out in the hills and try to find something else," he added.

Grady and his partner, Hugh Ford, worked the claim for 50 days last summer and took out $30 per shovel daily. Grady came to Seattle en route to Eastern Canada to visit his mother He had about $10,000 in gold nuggets.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT WILL RECESS TUESDAY

LONDON, Dec. 20—(AP)—Parliament will recess Tuesday with the government in much better repute than might have been expected a few months ago. In political observations this is attributed chiefly to the successful efforts at Locarno of Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, and the totally unexpected peaceful settlement of the Irish boundary question.

Although the unemployment problem is still of the gravest nature, there are signs of improvement in trade and industry.

The solution of the Mosul difficulty finds many active critics on the opposition benches. The common belief, however, is that the government will succeed in negotiating a satisfactory agreement with Irak, and that the threatened danger from Turkey will blow over.

CHARGED WITH OBTAINING MONEY FRAUDULENTLY

MILFORD, Dec. 20—(AP)—A man giving his name as James C. Doyle and said to be a former clergyman, who has been doing business here as a fortunate teller, was arrested here Saturday night on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He is being held for Philadelphia authorities.

The man is said to have done a flourishing business, catering mostly to fashionable women, many of whom came from New York to attend his spiritual meetings and crystal gazing.

Drive Against Vice In New York City

Arraignment of 182 Alleged Gamblers in Magistrate's Courts All Over the City.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—Police Commissioner Enright's drive against vice, ordered after Mayor-elect James J. Walker charged that the city had been allowed to become "wide open" in order to discredit his incoming administration, began today with the arraignment of 182 alleged gamblers, all of whom were immediately discharged in magistrate's court all over the city.

The men were arrested in a series of raids on small clubs and rooming houses. The attitude of the magistrates was apparently expressed by Magistrate Vitale in dismissing 68 men arrested in the Bronx, when he said that he saw "no harm in a sociable card game" and advised the police if they wanted to arrest real gamblers to "invade Fifth avenue and the Roaring Forties."

Seven men arrested in the same drive were held for arraignment in the federal building for violation of the prohibition law, and three men and three wome nwere held on vagrancy charges.

COL MITCHELL FOR POLICE COM. OF NEW YORK CITY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(AP)—Appointment of Colonel William Mitchell, under sentence of five years suspension from his army rank, pay and duties, as police commissioner of New York city, was proposed today to Mayor-elect Walker by Rep. Bloom, democrat, New York.

If the former assistant chief of the army air service was accepted for the post, Rep. Bloom told Mr. Walker he had no doubt congress would enact any legislation necessary to make the appointment possible.

Col. Mitchell, whose sentence remains to be passed upon by the war department and President Coolidge, has not been approached on the proposal. He is out of the city after his long confinement to the District of Columbia during the court martial trial which ended in his conviction on charges of misconduct "to the prejudice of good order and military discipline."

Mayor-elect Walker, who takes office January 1, has not announced the personnel of his administration. The message sent to him today by Rep. Bloom read:

"The name of Colonel William Mitchell is presented to you for the office of police commissioner of New York city. If he should meet your approval, I have no doubt that legislative authority could be enacted here permitting his employment by the city of New York. I believe this would be an eminently fitting appointment and give our city an able executive who has in war-and peace shown himself to be a fearless and able man at every difficult task that has come to his hands."

MAN WHO STABBED GUARD HAS BEEN CAPTURED

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Nicholas Nelson, 25, of this city, inmate of the Springside home, who escaped after slashing Edwin Kerwin, a guard, with a knife Saturday night, was apprehended by the police today as he was entering his home.

Kerwin was cut about the head and arms when he attempted to prevent an attack by Nelson on another inmate. Nelson, who was armed with a butcher knife, broke away and disappeared.

A posse of 250 men was sent through the woods in an effort to capture him.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Simeon D. Fess

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(AP)—Mrs. Simeon D. Fess, wife of the senator from Ohio, died here today.

Mrs. Fess died at Emergency hospital late today of complications resulting from injuries received in an automobile accident on Summit mountain, near Uniontown, Pa., November 24, while the senatr and his party were returning to Washington for the opening of congress.

The funeral party left this evening by train for Yello wSprings, Ohio, where services will be held Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal church.

Stricken with pneumonia last night, Mrs. Fess was unable to resist its inroads, being already weakened from a serious fracture, received when the automobile skidded on a wet road and crashed into a culvert, throwing her against the side of the car. Senator Fess watched at her bedside throughout the night and was with her when she died.

Mrs. Fess, who was active here socially and was president of the Congressional club, is survived by her husband; three sons, Hamilton Lehr, parliamentaria of the House of Representatives; Lowell of Columbus, Ohio, secretary of the Ohio Retail Merchants' association, and C. Sumnerof, Springfield, Ohio; a sister, Mrs. Minnie Razore, and a brother, Edward Thomas, both of Columbus.

Robert S. Hulbert.

WINSTED, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Robert S. Hulbert, managing editor of the Winsted Evening Citizen, died at his home 267 Rockwell street, this morning from complications following an operation one year ago last June. Confined to his bed since November 14, he apsed into unconsciousness Friday and remained in that condition until his death.

Mr. Hulbert died in the house where he was born, April 6, 18 54, his lifetime residence. His father, Timothy Hulbert, founded the Hulbert Iron company here, in 1853. Mr. Hulbert was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific school at Yale in 1878. After teaching for a time he became editor of the Winsted Herald, at that time a daily. Later he practiced his profession as a civil engineer and for thirteen years was with the state highway department as a division engineer for this part of the state.

Mr. Hulbert became general manager of the Citizen Publishing company in 1920, when the company, principally through his efforts, was organized. He became managing editor of its three publications, the Citizen, the Litchfield County Leader, and the Winsted Herald.

Legal Victory For Bootleggers' Queen

Miss Hilda Stone is at Liberty After the Fourth Arrest in Four Months.

WOODSVILLE, N. H., Dec. 20—(AP)—Mrs. Hilda Stone, to whom the border liquor patrol has given the name of "Queen of the bootlegers," has won another skirmish with the law. She walked free today after her fourth arrest in as many months, but the prohibition enforcement officers of Northern New Hampshire retained as souvenir of the encounter an automobile with skillfully devised compartments for carrying liquor. Not so much as a spoonful of beverage was found in the car as evidence.

Mrs. Stone, who is dy $1,500 bail for appearance at Newport, Vt., on a rumrunting charge, was arrested Thursday at Lyme by Sheriff Walter E. French, R. J. McKirnan of Providence, R. I., was driving her car. Although it had a New Hampshire license plate McKirnan produced a Rhode Island registration certificate, and they were taken to Hanover where a fine was imposed. Search of the automobile disclosed secret compartments.

The woman told the police she had been on her way to Franconia with spare parts for an automobile which had been disabled. In a Franconia Notch garage last night a car was found in a battered condition. New York, Tennessee, Rhode Island and New Hampshire number plates were found in it. Because no liquor was discovered Mrs. Stone and McKirnan were released.

Officials along the border assert that Mrs. Stone is one of the chief field lieutenants of a rum running gang which has its Massachusetts headquarters at Greenfield. Her home is at Colerain, Mass. She was arrested in northern Vermont last August with Henry Murdock of Holyoke, Mass., in an automobile containing 566 bottles of liquor. A fine of $500 was imposed. On November 29 the border patrol captured her again with Fred Skuowles of Bangor, Me., but the two were released from the North Stratford, Vt., jail through a misunderstanding from the North Stratford, Vt., jail through a misunderstanding.

On December 4 Mrs. Stone was arrested again with a male companion near Island Pond, Vt., and held in $1,500 bail for hearing at Newport. She told officials then that she liked to run liquor for the thrill of it" and thought it "rather fun" to be pursued by customs officers. She said her husband operated a sawmill in West Halifax, Vt., and that when home from the road she "raised turkeys for a pastime."

DIED OF HEART DISEASE WHILE FLEEING WITH $40,000

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—Death from heart disease in a taxicab today ended the flight of Edward F. Keller with approximately $40,000 in loot taken from the Corn Exchange bank, where he was employed as a watchman. Nearly $14,000 of the loot was in cash and the remainder in checks.

Keller, who in October, 1924, was pardoned after having served a sentence for manslaughter in connection with the Danny McNichol trunk mystery of a decade ago, hailed a taxicab in front of a hotel today and asked to be driven to Broad and Wallace streets. He carried a suitcase. Arriving there, he alighted taking the suitcase with him, and, according to the chauffeur, tapped several times on the window of a house.

Receiving no response, he again entered the taxicab and ordered the driver to take him to an address in Germantown. A few minutes later the chauffeur noticed his passenger had slumped forward over his knee and was apparently unconscious. Physicians, hastily summoned, pronounced Keller dead from heart failure.

Officials of the bank were unable tonight to explain how Keller had obtained the money and checks. They are investigating. Kelleran one of eight night watchmen at the bank, was missed from the institution when he failed to ring in on the time clock early today.

Keller was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of McNicol, whose decomposed body was found in a trunk buried ni the cellar of an old building where Keller had operated a laundry in March 1914.

KILLED HIS WIFE AND HIS INFANT DAUGHTER

ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 20—(AP)—Prompted by what police say was jealousy, Anthony Maruno today shot and killed his wife, Julia, his infant daughter, Julia, and seriously wounded a fourteen-year-step daughter, Anna Greico, he then ran from the house and made his escape.

Marano had been separated from his wife for almost a year, and gained entrance to her house by cutting a hole in a pane of window glass so he could raise the window. Police think he deliberately fired upon Mrs. Marona while she slept and then turned to the smaller bed. The step-daughter, Anna Grieco hid under the bed when awakened by the shooting, and was shot when Marano stumbled over her feet while running from the room.

Police were first notified of the tragedy when a patrolman noticed a small boy running along Central avenue, crying. He said he was Frank Grieco, and that his father "had just shot his mother." He said he was going to get a doctor.

NEW LONDON MAN CHARGED WITH TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

STAMFORD, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Frank Motta, 15 Holmes street, West Haven, and Louis Ranistella, 708 Bank street, New London, were arrested here today, charged with transportation of liquor. In their car the police found six five-gallon cans and 43 one-gallon cans of alcohol. Motta was released under $1,000 bail and Ranistella is being held under the same bail. They said they were going to New London.

STATEMENTS ISSUED ON LIQUOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

The Drys in the House Are Preparing to Amend the Volstead Act So That It Will Provide For The Search of Private Homes—Government Records Stolen Dealing With the Mayflower Hotel Liquor Case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The riot of words over prohibition continued unabated today, with new ramifications adding fury to the controversy and fresh ineitements in prospect.

The Sunday developments included disclosure that a file of government records in the Mayflower Hotel liquor case had been stolen from prohibition headquarters, and an announcement by dry leaders that counter moves will be made against the new onslaught by the wets. The drys are preparing to counter the wet "liberalizing" moves with efforts to amend the Volstead act to tighter further its provisions respecting search of private homes.

As a consequence of the drive loosed against prohibition by Representative Gallivan in the house yesterday, and the recent liquor indictments in Indiana, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the anti-saloon League, and Representative Berger, of Wisconsin, each issued statements on the general subject of liquor enforcement.

Mr. Wheeler struck back at the Massachusetts member, who had denounced him the day before and Mr. Berger, who favors legalization of beer and wine, charged that the drys, by their efforts to enforce the Volstead act, were "creating a series of evils greater than the one they intended to remove."

The Anti-Saloon League counsel announced that a bill soon would be introduced to broaden the powers of prohibition agents in searching private homes. Under present provisions of the Volstead act, he said, it is impossible for enforcement officers to obtain a search warrant for entry of a private home unless they have evidence of sales, and the purpose of the new bill is to make any evidence of manufacture of distilled spirits, reason for entry.

As to the government records which were stolen officials would say little. Prohibition Commissioner Haynes admitted they had been stolen a few days prior to the trial by Jules R. N. Vence, formet chef at the hotel Mayflower, and Rinardo Biazi, a waiter, both of whom were acquitted of conspiracy charges, a few days ago. Assistant Secretary Andrews, the prohibition field marshal for the treasury, had not been informed of the incident.

Mr. Wheeler, however, was acquainted with the disappearance of the records and, in his statement replying to Mr. Gallivan, inquired why it had not attracted the attention of the house member, whose speech yesterday was regarded generally as one of the most vigorous assaults against prohibition that has been delivered in some months. Mr. Haynes declined to divulge any information he had on the case. James E. Jones, recently named by Mr. Andrews as prohibition director was absent from the city, Mr. Wheeler, however, said suspicion had attached to one or two persons, but he declined to identify them.

Mr. Haynes said the records were supposed to be in their regular places in metal encased files until they were requested by attorneys preparing for the prosecution of Venice and Blazi. An investigation apparently has failed to solve the mystery, although Elwood L. Irey, chief of the intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue, was not informed of the inquiry he said until questions relating to the case were made of him.

The records included reports of the work of Agents E. C. Birgfeld and Chas. Early, who planned the Mayflower hotel trap which developed the charges against Venice and Blazi, together with other confidential papers. The nature of these has not been disclosed except that among the fire were duplicates of the expense accounts for the now famous Mayflower dinner which cost the government $963 for liquor entertainment, which precipitated the Gallivan's attack.

In connection with the expense accounts, which showed among other items the purchase of liquor for evidence, Mr. Wheeler called attention to the provision in the pending treasury-post office appropriation bill of $250,000 to be used in liquor purchases by agents in the next fiscal year. This was needed, he held, because of the requirement making sales necessary for evidence, whereas if the Volstead act should be amended to permit confiscation for manufacture in private homes, he felt the full amount estimated would not be required.

Mr. Wheeler denied that any one from the Anti-Saloon League ever threatened Mr. Gallivan with defeat if he made a wet speech.

Representative Berger, who has introduced a bill to legalize four per cent. beer and 12 per cent. wine, declared in his statement that law makers who understand human nature should not be hypocrites.

"They should not permit fanatics and the Anti-Saloon League, he said, "to create a situation in which drunkenness is more general than ever and in which disrespect for the law has become a national menace.

"Prohibitionists now compel the secret drinking of alcoholic poison, because they cannot prevent that; but they can prevent and do prevent the use of wine and beer. To promote temperance and to remove the great evils to which their fanaticism has given rise, prohibitionists should join in securing repeal of the Volstead act along the lines I have indicated."

SHOT AND KILLED WHILE RIDING IN AUTOMOBILE

HAINES CITY, Florida, Dec. 20—(AP)—Owen Higgins, 25, president of the Haines City Finance company, was shot and killed while riding in an automobile this afternoon by Odom Dunlap, negro, who was slain a few minutes later after a gun fight with police and citizens during which more than a hundred shots were fired. Dunlap was intoxicated, authorities said.

Higgins was motoring when Dunlap stepped out with a rifle and commanded him to hold up his hands. Higgins is said to have complied with this order and the negro is then said to have declared, "Well, I guess I'll kill you anyway," and shot Higgins dead.

Dunlap barricaded himself in a nearby house and an exchange of shots continued for fifteen minutes. When Dunlop refused to come out of the house, Policemen Shaw and Pete Allison, a civilian, walked in the house and shot the negro.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 20—(AP)—Fire tonight destroyed the St. John hotel in the business section here and damaged nearby stores. Several guests and firemen were overcome by smoke and required hospital treatment, but officials expressed confidence that no lives had been lost.

The fire, discovered at 8 o'clock, raged for about two hours, threatening the entire block in which the hotel was situated, before it was brought under control. Property loss was estimated at $250,000.

NEW OPERATING RECORDS MADE BY RAILROADS

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Ten new operating records were established by the railroads of this country in 1925, in handling the largest freight traffic that has ever been offered to them by the shippers of the United States. A report embodying the records is to be submitted to a meeting of the board of directors of the American Railway association here tomorrow. Following are the high marks:

Handled the greatest freight traffic in history, measured by the number of cars loaded with revenue freight.

Throughout the year there were never less than 103,000 surplus freight cars and 4,200 surplus locomotives in serviceable conditions, thus eliminating transportation delays.

Handled the greatest freight traffic for any month on record in October when it mounted to 44,060,000 net ton miles, exceeding by 2.2 per cent the previous high record made in October, 1924.

Reached a total of 1,124,436 cars loaded for the week ending August 23, the greatest for any one week on record, exceeding by 12,091 cars, or 1.1 per cent, the previous high record made in the week of October 4, 1924.

The average daily movement of all freight cars in October was 32.2 miles which extended by one and one-half miles the previous high record.

THREAD EMPLOYES' CASES THRESHED OUT IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 20—Dispositions were made in five out of six continued cases, by Judge Frank H. Foss in the police court Saturday morning. Continuance was granted in the sixth case. The session was one of the longest in the history of the court, adjournment not being taken until 12:30.

The hearing of the cases of Timothy McCruhan, Charles Buckingham and Theodore Ogden who were charged with assault and breach of the peace consumed the greater part of the session. Their arrests were the sequel of a scrap at Thread Mill square December 4, as the employes of the American Thread company were leaving the plant. McCruhan and Buckingham were loitering in the vicinity of the mills, both being former operatives. They were represented by Attorney Arthur T. Kelley. Ogden's attorney was Former Attorney-General William A. King.

It was evident that the trouble started when McCruhan pushed William T. Turner, another American Thread company operative, into the gutter. Turner testified that he questioned McCruhan as to the reason for his action and, when the latter squared off, the witness got in a telling right, sending McCruhan to the gutter for a count. Buckingham thereupon entered the melee and going to the defense of his companion he crossed with a blow to Turner's face, which Turner said loosened a tooth. Turner then made his exit, entering the Quality Tire Shop to secure something with which to protect himself. Finding nothing there, he went to an automobile where he secured a starting crank. In the meantime, McCruhan got to his feet and unleashed another swing at Ogden who was passing by with his wife. Ogden retorted with a telling smash and he and McCruhan stepped into the road, where they had a mixup bristling with action, McCruhan finally quitting. Ogden, in court, entered a specific denial to McCruhan's claim that a woman, presumably Mrs. Ogden, jumped on his back.

William Fryer, of The Ridges, another thread employe, was a witness, although his testimony had no connection with the melee in question. Fryer told the court that he was struck a vicious blow on the right ear and that he was rendered unconscious. He did not know who struck him. Neither did anyone else who was questioned by the court. According to Fryer, he had been made deaf by the blow, his ear drum having been punctured, in the opinion of physicians.

McCruhan's version of the fracas was that his collision with Turner was accidental Turner, he said, applied a vile epithet to witness and then made a pass at him. He started to defend himself. Several passes were made by both men, according to McCruhan, but none took effect. In the mixup, he lost his hat and had bent over to pick it up when he was struck in the jaw by some one. He looked up and saw Ogden so he believed that Ogden was his assailant. Ogden stepped into the street, whereupon he did likewise. When he did so, a woman jumped on his back and with one hand grasped his nose and scratched him, while Ogden landed a haymaker to his right eye cutting it open.

Mrs. Ogden testified that she was a witness to the fight but that she did not leave the sidewalk as McCruhan had said, her only desire being to see that her husband received fair play. She denied that she had jumped on McCruhan's back. Neither did she hold her husband's overcoat, she said.

Carleton P. King, of The Ridges, Daniel Baker of this city, and Edwin and Bruce Ronson of Scotland, employes of the American Thread company, gave testimony practically identical to the effect that in their opinion, McCruhan was on the offensive and was the aggressor throughout the melee.

Buckingham, in his own behalf, said that his only participation in the trouble was pushing Turner in the face with his hand. An attempt was made by the court to ascertain if one of the belligerent struck Fryer, but this was unsuccessful.

In the opinion of the court, Ogden was in no way the aggressor and participated in the fight only to defend himself. He was found not guilty. A fine of three dollars and costs was imposed on Buckingham, the court ruling that although he had had a small part in the melee his admission of having pushed Turner constituted a technical assault. The assessment amounted to $10.35. McCruhan was fined twenty-five dollars and costs, the assessment amounting to $33.05. He was reminded that this was the third time he had been before the local tribunal on similar charges since 1924, the last date being last August.

Isadore Pollack, of Gurleyville, was before the court on a charge of violation of the liquor laws in a sale of liquor, consisting of three gallons of cider brandy, to Louis H. Hodis last Sunday, and having in his possession liquor with intent to sell. He pleaded guilty to both charges and saying nothing in his own defense other than that he worked for his father and did as he was ordered. Constable Hodis saying that there was nothing against the accused before last Sunday of which he was aware and Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher recommending a fine in preference to a jail sentence in view of a first offense, Judge Foss imposed a fine of $100 and costs on the first charge and a fifteen days' suspended sentence on the charge of having liquor with intent to sell. The fine and costs amounted to $137.15.

In the case of John J. McKeon of Providence, R. I., a continuance was granted to February 6 until the same bonds of $200. McKeon is charged with failure to have an operator's license on the night of December 4, when the automobile which he was driving on Columbia avenue struck and badly injured Miss Meda Gilbert. Miss Gilbert is still a patient in St. Joseph's hospital.

Stanley Zewerauck was not put to plea. The charge against him was resisting an officer. On the evening of November 29, the accused created a disturbance in the lower village and showed fight when an attempt was made to arrest him. Judge Foss fined him $10 and costs, amounting to $18.75, after Prosecuting Attorney stated that the accused had already paid the price of resisting an officer. The fine was paid.

The funeral of Mrs. Alexina Laforce was held Saturday morning from her home, 968 Main street. Requiem high mass at St. Mary's church at 10.30 o'clock was sung by Rev. J. J. Papillon. The services were largely attended. There was singing by the church choir, with Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau at the organ. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Father Papillon. The bearers were Dieudonne Maclure, Charles Samson, Francis Ducheseneau, Dona Nadeau, Frank Martin, Jr., and Theodore Martin. The Hurteau Bosse Corp. was in charge of the arrangements.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 20.—A special session of the Windham county superior court was held here Saturday afternoon with Judge George E. Hinman of this city on the bench, when the case of the New York Trust Company, executor of the will of the late Norman B. Ream of Thompson was heard. The case is an amicable one, on agreed statements of fact, in which the executor asks to be empowered and authorized by the court to recognize the assignment of income coming from that and other estates, to Edward Ream, one of the sons of Norman Ream. The amount of the assignments totals about $250,000, which sum is to take care of indebtedness claimed to be owing to the National Bank of Kentucky, at Louisville. The proceeding is similar to one heard in this city last June in relation to the same estate. The attorneys were in accord, both as to the facts in the matter and the law governing the facts, each side being desirous that the order be passed. William A. King of this city appeared for the New York Trust Company and Arthur L. Shipman of Hartford for Edward Ream.

ILDEGAL DRAGON FOUND ASPHYXIATED IN SHOP

PUTNAM, Dec. 20—The body of Ildegal Dragon, 52, was found at 10 o'clock this morning in his tailor shop on the second floor of the Strombells building. A rubber pipe leading to a pressing machine had become loosened from a gas pipe in the wall and death had resulted from asphyxiation. Dr. R. C. Paine, medical examiner, said that in his opinion death was accidental.

When Dr. Harry Sharpe entered his dental office on the same floor of the building this morning he noticed the odor of gas and found it was coming from Dragon's shop. He tried the door and finding it locked, called Officer Jarvis. The latter forced the door and found Dragon lying on the floor. Dr. E. F. Perry was summoned. The man had been dead, he said, several hours, death probably having occurred during the night.

Mr. Dragon, had not been in good health for several weeks. He had slept in his shop Friday night and Mrs. Dragon was not particularly disturbed when he failed to return home the next night.

He was one of the leading tailors of the city and had been working at nights because of the holiday rush of business. One of his workmen, J. M. Ledroux, was working with him last night. He said that Mr. Dragon was complaining of feling ill and shortly after 9 o'clock he called in Dr. George T. Lamarche whose office is in the same building. The physician administered a restorative and advised Mr. Dragon to go home and go to bed. He left him about 9:30. At 10 o'clock Mr. Ledroux left, in company with a customer, Samuel Jette. They were the last ones to see the tailor alive.

Mr. Dragon was born in St. Denis, Canada, in 1873. He came to Putnam 30 years ago. His exceptional skill as a workman soon became known and for many years he has had to employ workmen to enable him to keep up with his orders.

His home is on Ravine stret. His wife and three children, Edgar, Elodra and Viola, survive him.

BURGLAR GOT COLD FEET— DARED NOT TAKE DIAMONDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 20—The cash register at Varbedian's shoe store was forced open by a burglar Friday night and between $2 and $3 in currency stolen.

From a drawer in the safe diamond rings and watches valued at $700 or $800 were taken, but evidently the burglar decided that he did not want to be involved in a theft of such magnitude and left them on the chair near the door. They had been the property of Mr. Varbedian's first wife, who died three years ago and included two valuable diamond rings. The safe was not locked, but the drawer in it containing the jewels was fastened and it had been broken open.

Entrance was obtained through a window in Arnold's restaurant which gave the burglar access to the door leading to the shoe store, which did not offer much resistance. In the cash drawer of the restaurant was a collection of pennies, possibly 100, and these were taken.

The police are confident that the burglar was some one familiar with the premises, and that he is not a professional or he would not have left several hundred dollars worth of jewelry after he had got his hands on it.

KEON AND BLOUIN HURT— CAR CRASHES INTO POLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 20—Hurley Keon, son of A. Francis Keon of Pleasant street, and Philip Blouin son of Mrs. Victoria Blouin of Park street, this city, were taken to the Manchester hospital, suffering from severe lacerations sustained at 4 o'clock, Saturday morning in North Coventry, when a Chrysler car in which they were riding skidded and crashed into a pole. The machine was owned by Everett J. Williams, employed as a salesman by Cotter Bros. of this city. It was badly damaged. Keon, who is employed as a salesman in Norwich was driving the machine. He and Blouin had borrowed the car and following a dance here here had taken two Hartford girls to their homes. They were making the return trip when they struck the pole. Keon was taken to his home Sunday, but Blouin is still a patient at the hospital.

ASTHMA CURED BEFORE YOU PAY

Mr. D. J. Lane, a chemist located at 1869 Lane Bldg., St. Marys, Kans., has discovered a simple home remedy for Asthma. Mr. Lane has so much confidence in his ability to cure that he will send a regular $1.25 bottle free, postpaid, to any sufferer who will write him. WESTERLY

MAN WHO USED WIRE TRAP IS HELD IN $800 BAIL

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 20—Judge Michael J. Turano held a special session of the third district court Sunday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock when A. Haberick of Hope Valley was presented on complaint of Deputy Game Warden Howard Swan charged with using a wire trap. Conviction was a $50 fine or a 60 day jail sentence. The accused entered a plea of not guilty but was held in $800 bail and the case was continued to January 8th for trial. Deputy Game Warden Frank Knight was one of the officers in the case.

Westerly commuters on the New Haven railroad received a slight jolt Sunday morning, when a small black and white hound was observed to place its head (with disastrous result to the dog) across the rail directly in the path of the approaching wheels of a baggage car on the New England express, which was making the station stop an hour and a quarter late. It was just a year ago that this train was in collision with a freight train at the Midway yard and railroad traffic was tied up for practically the rest of the day.

There will be no session of superior court for Washington county this week in Westerly as Associate Judge Antonio A. Capotosto is scheduled this (Monday) morning to preside at the opening of the Bristol term of superior court, from Providence and Bristol counties at Bristol. Due to legal holidays intervening, the civil docket on the Westerly trial calendar will not be taken up at Westerly until a week from this (Monday) morning December 28th.

The site of Bliven Opera House burned in the destructive fire of Jan. 3rd has been sold by its owner and former manager of the theatre, David Novogrod, to the Morrone Bros., of 125 Main street. A new garage will be constructed by them on the sit. 96 Main street.

Clarence Spink of Fall River is home for a few days.

P. P. Crowley of Lynnbrook, L. I. is her eon a short visit.

Bernard Carson of Fisher Island is home on seven days' furlough.

PENDLETON HILL

The absence of the beautiful red berries which grow on black alder shrubs on the field and by the roadside is noted. Doubtless the heavy rains and high winds of the early fall are responsible although city friends and dealers of Christmas decorations help themselves regardless of property rights. This may be a free country but it is only fair and just that owners be allowed to enjoy vines and shrubs free from molestation.

Richard Ray Palmer continues to improve. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Norwich visited the patient Saturday.

Rev. E. P. Mathewson preached a scholarly sermon to a fair sized audience Sunday from the text "Today if ye would hear his voice harden not your heart." Mr. Mathewson is regarded as one of the best preachers in this part of New England.

Mrs. Albert Thompson, of Norwich was the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thompson Sunday.

All will have to concede to Miss Mary Wilkinson first place as gardener. Her large garden contained among a wide range of vegetable products four jumbo pumpkins, which weighed around twenty pounds, watermelons weighing forty-two pounds.

John Wilkinson, the young son of George Wilkinson of the Wyassup region caught a mink for which he received a large sum.

Mrs. Anna Engdell is visiting her daughter Anna and grandchild in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Harris Boardman and Miss Sarah T. Palmer were guests Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roode entertained Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ali Yeager and daughter of Watch Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Audubon Kinne and daughter Mildred and niece Miss Ella Rood all of Voluntown.

A very large flock of turkeys is seen and heard daily in this vicinity.

Voluntown has decreed that all unpaid taxes on real estate or personal taxes must be paid on or before April first.

The children of the public school had their Christmas tree Friday afternoon. The had not forgotten their former schoolmate, Richard Ray Palmer to whom they presented a Christmas gift upon which among other gifts was a gold cuff-links from the school.

Miss Mildred Johnson is entertaining Mrs. Haris Boardman and Miss Sarah T. Palmer.

ANOTHER WILD EFFORT

Such efforts as are being made for the changing the sentence that has been meted out to Colonel Mitchell by changing the law governing courts martial, cannot be imagined as making any great impression upon congress.

The very fact that such a move is proposed by a radical like LaGaurdia of New York is enough to condemn it at the start. It is a move that deserves no consideration and should by no means be permitted to take up the time of congress which has much business before it. It is as wild as were the Mitchell statements.

Colonel Mitchell has been fairly convicted. He fully knew what he was doing when he indulged in a lot of rash and unwarranted statements, and he knew what the penalty might be. He took the attitude that what might govern others did not govern him. His views and ideas had been heard and failed of approval but he was unwilling to accept such a verdict and in his bitterness determined to go over the heads of superiors and departments and by sensational statements to get the support of the country.

He has made a very poor impression. He has eliminated whatever ground he may have had for a hearing. He has disclosed himself an unfit official. He has done just what he condemned in others. As a superior, it can be appreciated what a subordinate would have received had the latter tried similar tactics upon the colonel. Colonel Mitchell intentionally invited his court martial and his sentence. He has in fact been given no more than he deserves and less than so would have received but for his record in the war.

It is folly for a congressman, even though he be a radical, to think of interfering in such a matter. It does no credit either to the representative who backs it or the person such a move is intended to help. What great benefits our laws and regulations would be if they should be altered every time their enforcement conflicted with the prejudiced minority that opposes them!

PROBING RUBBER

From the resolution introduced by Floor Leader Tilson calling for an investigation of the rubber situation no harm can certainly come. It deals with a situation that has been created outside of this country but it would be well to have the facts set forth again with such benefit as a congressional inquiry might give to it.

The rubber situation has not developed suddenly. It has come following warning of what could expected as the result of the British law restricting the amount of crude rubber which the British colonies could export. Inasmuch as they control most of such rubber the boosting of the price was inevitable, but when that price has gone from around 20 cents to $1.20 a pound the howl of protest is justified.

Having had pointed out what the effect of the British law was going to be, the steps which have been taken to escape from the effects of that monopoly have not been sufficient to meet the situation. Action was tardily taken in an effort to develop other fields. These efforts will bear fruit in time, and fields where the higher priced rubber is produced are again doing business, but the rubber trade naturally seeks the product of the fields where it can be cheaply raised and whatever pressure can be brought to bear upon the British law is regarded as thoroughly justified.

The situation gives encouragement to those localities where rubber can be cheaply produced. Provided they take advantage of the existing situation they bid fair to establish a large and profitable business and get started before ruinous competition might floor them. But the idea of being done out of two thirds of a billion, or more, yearly, is not pleasing to the American users of rubber. Such inquiry as may thus be started, whatever the good that may come from it, will have hearty endorsement. It will at least be interesting to note what effect it has, if any, upon other legislation and the British law.

RUSSIAN TRADE

Every time the opportunity has presented itself certain ores have urged the recognition of the soviet government of Russia. It has been insisted that it should be done because Russia today is a different Russia from yesterday, because practically all the other countries have recognized it and because there is need of trade resumption with that country. Special emphasis has been laid upon this third reason, the regaining of the lost trade.

The recognition of Russia is again being heard now that congress has resumed its session, and it is interesting to note that during the past year that the volume of trade between the two countries has been fast increasing. It cannot fail of attention in connection that Russia bought from the United States in the United States in the last year goods to the amount of $102,000,000, taking half of it in cotton, a third in grain and foodstuffs and the remainder in machinery and like articles. Neither can it escape notice that during that same time Russia bought from England $75,000,000 worth of goods and from Germany $65,000,000 worth.

Thus it is quite evident that we lead the list in the amount of goods supplied to Russia, and it cannot be overlooked that during all this time that Russia has been buying goods here in greater quantity than elsewhere the United States has not recognized the soviet government, though such recognition was some time ago extended by both England and Germany.

Recognition has thus done nothing for the European countries that this country has not obtained without it. That we had goods which the others did not have may be offered as one of the explanations for the contrast, but that simply indicates that Russia is going to trade where it can get what it wants recognition or no recognition.

If Russia is improving well and good. Let the good work go on and it may be that in time it will see the importance of meeting the requirements which this government has set forth as the price of recognition.

THIN ICE

With the coming of a few days of cold weather at this season of the year it is natural that thoughts should be turned to the joys of skating, and that large numbers should anticipate in this exhilarating sport where conditions which insure safety prevail.

But for the sake of a little pleasure there is no justification for the taking of some of the chances which reports indicate are taken as the preliminaries to near drownings or drownings.

Thin ice does not provide safe conditions for skating. On ponds where the depth of water is such that drownings are not liable to occur it may be possible to go skating on ice that is thinner than would be required on a river where there is a current, but all ice is not safe ice. What may look inviting and furnishing a surface like glass may involve a risk that is not warranted.

When it comes to skating it is always advisable to be sure it is safe before taking chances. It is preferable to wait a day too long than to be the cause of a funeral just because poor judgment was exercised.

In this respect there is need for the exercise of parental responsibility. Impetuous youngsters may not be left to their own decisions with safety when it comes to venturing on the ice any more than in deciding many other things that involve danger. The warnings against thin ice cannot be too emphatic and apparently this is the season of the year when they are greatly needed.

DISARMAMENT'S EFFECT

Attention is being attracted by the new battleship which has just been launched by Great Britain because it is the last of its kind that can be constructed under the term of the naval agreement resulting from the Washington conference. The Rodney has its interesting points as a modern fighting ship but it marks the end and all of the beginning of such monsters.

As the great expense involved in the building of such a ship is considered it is easy to appreciate what a great advantage had been gained by the naval restrictions that have been put into operation. If it were not for the agreement the launching of the Rodney, or the laying of the keel for such a ship would have been all that was required for other nations to set out to get the equal of it or to outdo it. This rivalry in naval construction, so far as battleships are concerned, has been checked. It is well that it was and the hopes are that the good effects of it will led to a still further restriction in naval armament.

It was not believed at the conclusion of the Washington conference that all had been obtained in the way of restrictions that ought to prevail, others were sought but without success. But with that excellent start the foundation was laid for further action. The good effects of the beginning with the accompanying results obtained at Locarno have even led the British to advance the idea of curtailing aerial construction for war purposes. This is considerable for the British to favor, but it simply shows the effects of the good impression that has been gained by the disarmament agreement already in effect.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The early shopping can still be done early in the day.

The man on the corner says: We are now on the home stretch to Christmas.

Are you going to roll down the stockings you are going to hang up Christmas eve?

France is having as hard a time with its fiscal problems as it has had with the Riffs and Druses.

Christmas presents which are being received this early are not going to congest the mails and burden the mail carriers next week.

With but a few days left before Christmas it behooves all buyers and senders of gifts to make the best possible use of the time.

Can it be that those who are urging 2.75 per cent. beer in this country haven't heard that 4.4 per cent beer wasn't satisfactory in Canada.?

With the apples in storage 26 per cent. greater than a year ago you can probably obtain an apple and a quarter day to keep the doctor away this year.

Uncle Sam cannot have any objections to Japan's attitude when it refuses to enter a disarmament conference of which the United States is not a member.

When Gerald Chapman indicates he doesn't like Connecticut justice it is the kind of criticism we like to hear. He hopes for more consideration in New York and he probably would like to have his case transferred to Suffolk county, Mass.

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A little lemon juice brings out the flavor of all preparations of peaches.

If a new broom is soaked for a half hour in a strong brine it will last much longer.

If you are going to squeeze a lemon for its juice warm it first. You will get more juice out of it.

Don't throw away the skins of oranges. The yellow rind when grated makes a good flavoring for cakes.

Cane-bottomed chairs should be brushed to remove all dust and then washed with salt and water and placed in the open air to dry.

A good way to keep table mats from being wrinkled is to roll them around a cardboard tube that has been covered.

To remove lime which accumulates on the inside of a teakettle, boil a strong solution of vinegar in the kettle then rinse thoroughly before putting water in.

If the small rugs seem inclined to curl at the corners sew a small tailor's weight on the under side of each corner and it will lie perfectly flat.

When making a cake try adding a tablespoon of vinegar with a level teaspoon of soda dissolved in it instead of using eggs. One can make delicious cakes in this way.

If sausages are rolled in flour before cooking they will not break. They may be toasted, stewed, grilled or fried. This will be found a much better way than piercing them.

To remove smoke marks from ceilings, mix a thick paste of starch and water and with a clean flannel spread it over the marks, allow to get thoroughly dry, then brush off with a soft brush and the marks will have disappeared.

When it is necessary to keep a dinner hot for a belated member of a family, do not set the plate containing the food in the oven. Place it on the top of a pan of boiling water. It will keep hot and moist, and the plate will not be cracked or discolored.

HOW THE FRENCH DO

It may be useful to the cook to know that French cooks add a teaspoon of sugar to each quart of water in which peas, marrows and other green vegetables are cooked. This brings out the flavor of the vegetables and is very agreeable, especially in very young peas, which the French cook serves, pods and all, with cream.

TO CLEAN WALL PAPER

To clean wall paper, first brush the walls thoroughly with a duster tied over a long-handled broom and wipe with clean cloths until all the dust is removed. Then cut a loaf of stale bread in quarters and with the pieces slightly wipe the paper, holding the bread by the crust. Begin at the top and rub downward—never up or across.

TO COOK THE FILLING

Sometimes the pie will brown before the filling is sufficiently cooked. Should this happen cover the pie with another pie plate until you think the filling is done.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Scalds or burns can be cured almost immediately by applying a poultice made of oatmeal and cold water. The meal has both soothing and healing qualities.

Whether one's face will sag or not depends largely upon one's habitual expression. Women who allow their mouths to droop with a despondent or sulky air will before long find their cheek muscles sagging, too. The habit of smiling keeps the cheeks firm. A smile, however, should not become a wide grin that wrinkles the face.

They are letting bobbed hair grow. That is the latest report on hair from milliners who are watching the growth closely. Hat designers now have been forced to develop styles in headwear for unbobbed heads, which heretofore have been made for those with bobbed tresses only. While the shingled heads are growing out, many women are wearing transformations.

If the ankle bones are large you cannot reduce the ankles, but if the thickness is due to fat it may be remedied. Walking four or five miles a day at a brisk pace is one of the best ways to develop trim ankles and legs. Raising and lowering your heels 50 times a day is also good. Another exercise for making slim, supple ankles consists of rotating the foot at the ankle while one is sitting on a chair with leg held out straight.

SOME TIMELY DON'TS

Never start a child's meal with sweets, never give him sweets between meals. If he must have candy in any form let him have one or two small pieces at the end of his dinner in the middle of the day and let this candy be of the best and simplest. Never give rich chocolates or nut candy, but give one good gumdrop, one small piece of clear barley-sugar candy, one little piece of maple sugar, or one small white peppermint. Two or three times weekly for such treats as these is quite enough. They will be real treats then, much looked forward to and much enjoyed.

BRIDES, TAKE HEED!

There are two things that never fail to thoroughly irritate the carver, a dull knife and a platter too small for the roast. If your silver platter is a little too small, sacrifice pride and put your roast on your large china platter for hubby to carve. You will be glad you made the change.

SAVE ENOUGH FOR PATCHES

When having papering done, it is well to save a part of the roll, for emergencies. Frequently we cannot match wall paper and we are very grateful for a piece to cover the spot where the roof unexpectedly made us acquainted with a heavy rain.

FOR BEDSPREADS

If one is tired of chintz or linen covers for the bed it is an excellent plan to use upholsterer's satin, which comes in many beautiful shades and is extremely wide.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Bois de rose is introduced as one of the very important new shades for lingerie and hosiery.

The prevalence of green and gray in the fall colorings has brought renewed popularity to stockings in these shades.

It is quite smart now, to wear short or long strands of beads to match the color of one's frock, together with strands of pearls.

Frocks for southern wear generally are of the two-piece type and exploit fagoting, smocking, fine tucking and novelty pleats for interesting detail.

The newest hats for wear with fur and fur trimmed coats are of heavy black satin closely draped to form turbans and ornamented with exquisite jeweled motifs.

Smart little handknitted jumpers have effective designs done in cross-stitched wool as a border around the lower edge and around the square neck opening.

Printed velvet is one of the loveliest of fabrics for afternoon and comes in the most lovely and subdued combinations of colors as well as the harder and more striking effects.

No material at the moment is more fashionable or practical than velvet-een which comes in extremely light weights and in an astonishing range of colors. It is particularly well adapted to the little two-piece jumper dresses or ensembles.

Very new and smart is the new costume jewelry copied from very old pieces and set with brilliants in pastel color combined with tinted pearls. Necklaces, bracelets, ear rings and bar pins are shown in the new designs that are in keeping with the noticeable elegance of the mode.

To the expert pleating iron, nothing is impossible. Plain fabrics are so treated with pleats nowadays as to make them appear striped or checked. The very fine checked or pleated patterns which are obtained by apposition of round and flat folds, have never been achieved before this season.

BROADCLOTH WILL BE IMPORTANT IN SPRING

It seems quite safe to say that broadcloth will be one of the important spring fabrics, says the Dry Goods Economist. In fact it is being shown at the present time for frocks and coats for the southland. Lighter weights, of course, than those we have had during the winter season and lighter colors, too. Fifth Avenue recently stressed the importance of this fabric in shop windows. There were coats and frocks of broadcloth in the new chamois shades, which, by the way, stand very good chance of being general favorites next season. Alligator leather appliques in new designs were employed for trimming both dresses and coats. From these displays one would take it that the ensemble idea is as important a one as ever.

NEW SCARFS

A narrow little crepe de chine scarf of much charm has a band of embroidery in bright colors around the ends, and a cuff of the same embroidery through which both ends of the scarf are slipped to make it fit snugly around the neck.

LAUNDRY HINTS

When purchasing a new clothesline, before using it boil it in soapy water. This will prevent the twisting so annoying in a new rope.

An iron weighing seven pounds does better work when passed over clothes once with a firm, steady pressure, than a lighter iron hurriedly passed over the clothes two or three times.

Sew into a long strip pieces of old cotton flannel or other thick cloth, torn into widths of one and one-half inches. Braid these together and sew round and round into a circular mat of any size you wish. These are very useful in cleaning flatirons.

To give a fine polish to linen use lukewarm water instead of cold to break down the starch. When it has been reduced to the required consistency by boiling water, add a pinch of fine salt and stir several times with a wax candle. This will make the iron run smoothly and give a polish to the linen that nothing else can impart.

GIVING SHINE TO PLATE GLASS

There are numbers of simple formulae to aid the housewife in the care of plate glass. Among them is the well-known and much-used household product, vinegar. Dilute the vinegar with water, using one-third cupful to a quart of water. Wash the windows with a soft cloth wrung out of this solution and then dry with another cloth or a piece of soft chamois.

Many of the shop windows shine with an unusual brilliance, the secret is this: wood alcohol in the proportion of one part of the alcohol to two of water is used to cleanse them daily or in some cases oftener.

Another effective method of window cleaning is the use of sand soaps, of a fine grain. The addition of a small amount of washing soda to the hot water before applying the soap gives a better luster. Sometimes the sand soap lodges in the corners of the window panes and is difficult to remove, in this case an ordinary meat skewer, wrapped with cloth will be helpful.

VOILE CURTAINS

An attractive style of curtain in vogue at present is the colored voile curtain. It gives the color and long lines of a heavy overdrapery without shutting out the air and catching the dirt as the heavier materials do. One pair of voile curtains was a lovely shade of green, made to extend to the floor, thereby giving a graceful line to the window. The valance added a soft touch, for it had four small ruffles set one upon another.

HAVE BEDSPREAD MATCH DRAPERIES

By having the bed cover of the same material as the window hangings, the color note will be carried into the room and will make a unit. The bed is generally the largest object in a bedroom and the color of the counterpane has much to do in creating the proper color harmony.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Geisha girls in Japan are prohibited from wearing short skirts and bobbed locks.

The first Japanese woman to put the nude feminine form on canvas is Miss Kuwako Hanihara.

Women are prohibited from holding positions as managers of motion picture houses in Hull, England.

Miss Mary M. Morgan is the only woman ever to serve as one of the 18 supervisors of San Francisco.

Mme. Gaudre, wife of a French farmer and mother of 19 children, has been awarded the Legion of Honor.

At the age of 111 years, Mrs. Louise K. C. Thiers of Kenosha is known as the "Mother of Wisconsin."

In Norway a girl who wishes to marry must first show a certificate of her ability as a cook before she can become a wife.

NEW PILLOWS

Unusually interesting and effective are pillows with embroidery done in shaded chenille.

TO CLEAN BRONZE

Perhaps the most satisfactory way of cleaning bronze is to first immerse the articles in boiling water and then rub with a soft cloth dipped in yellow soapsuds. Polish with a dry, soft rag.

RECIPES

Cream and Butter Frosting: Put two tablespoons of rich cream into a bowl and add sifted confectioners' sugar until of the right consistency to spread without running; add two and one-half teaspoons of melted butter and one teaspoon of vanilla; continue beating until well blended. If needed add a little more sugar by teaspoonfuls.

Rice With Milk and Cheese: In preparing cheese dishes for children of the runabout age be very careful of certain things. First grind the cheese to a powder, if dry. If soft, chop as fine as possible. Have ready well made white sauce, and for one-half cup, to be served with two tablespoons of rice, use one teaspoon of ground cheese. When the white sauce is piping hot stir the cheese in very carefully so that each particle is smoothly melted in the sauce. This makes a good main dish for a runabout's chief meal.

From Small Beginnings

William C. Brown, a Railroad President.

Stop some day and sketch a section hand at work on a railroad track. Then let your mind wander to the palatial Grand Central Railroad Station in New York city. Ask yourself if the section hand at whom you look has any likelihood of directing the entire road and bringing about the erection of spacious marble buildings that rival the palaces of olden times.

In the Arabian Nights story, Aladdin rubbed the magic lamp, and gained the power to do wonders. In the stories of today thousands of people do something that is far better than rubbing magic lamps; they work hard and faithfully, and develop to the full the ability that God has given them. That was the case with William C. Brown, president of the New York Central Railroad System, the man who left the present beautiful station, one of the wonders of New York City. At one time he was merely a section hand, working with his muscles for his daily bread. He found no magic lamp, but he did work long and hard, and he did study and do the best he could to develop ability.

"So you want a job as telegrapher, do you?" a man asked him one day when he was a young man. "What do you know about telegraphing?

"I picked it up," the youth answered. "I wanted to be something better than a section hand."

"Good for you. Section hand? No."

"Yes, and not much account either," young Brown replied. "I was piling wood on the engines. That wasn't much of a job. I always had to work—not much chance for school. Then I got a job as a section hand, and now I've learned how to telegraph." William Brown won his job as telegrapher. Soon he became expert, and at 23 was a train despatcher for the C. B. & Q. Now he began to move rapidly. It was a natural step from train dispatcher to General Manager. In something like 20 years he moved along, always working hard and faithfully, just as he had done when he had piled logs on to the engines—for the engines in those days burned wood—and at 43 he was a railroad vice president. In 1909 William Brown became president of the New York Central, and as such gave to New York city the magnificent terminal station. More than that, he did away with the smoke of the long tunnels by using electric engines. "Go West, young man, go West," Horace Greeley had said. Young Brown had been born in New York state, but he had found his opportunities in the Middle West. Without education except in the lower schools, he had met life manfully, set out as a mere shifter of firewood for the engines, and had ended by becoming president of one of the great railroad systems of the world. That is the story of one who rubbed the modern Aladdin's lamp—hard and faithful work.

At 21 a man knows everything and at 50 he wishes he knew something.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Jeremiah D. M. Ford, whom King Victor Emmanuel has honored by making him an officer of the Crown of Italy, is Smith professor of French and Spanish languages at Harvard University, a professorship which has been held in the past by such eminent literary lights as Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and James Russell Lowell. A native of Cambridge, Mass., Dr. Ford received his A. M., A. B., and Ph. D. degrees at Harvard and then went abroad for several years of study in the great colleges of France. In 1895 he returned to Harvard to become an instructor in French and later in the Romance languages. Since 1907 he has held the Smith professorship. At present Dr. Ford is in Paris on leave of absence as director of the American University Union in Europe.

Stories That Recall Others

She Knew Her Lesson

Recently Annie and Alice, eight and five, respectively, were staying for the day with their aunt Mary while their mother was downtown doing some Christmas shopping. Both children are firm believers in the down the chimney type of Santa Claus. Naturally, talk was of Christmas and Christmas only.

Presently Alice asked: "Aunt Mary, is there just one Santa Claus, or a whole lot of Santas?"

Before Aunt Mary had a chance to answer, Annie, who already boasts of two years in school, asserted: "Of course, there are more than one Santa Claus; because if there were only one he would be called 'Santa Claus.'"

A Crime Wave.

Calm peace prevailed that Sunday morning. Suddenly the telephone bell jingled. Alarm was sounded. The next door neighbor was calling. She said a burglar, brazen and skillful was operating in broad daylight at a window of her house. Already damage had been done, she exclaimed.

Some action seemed imperative, so entering into the spirit of the times investigation was started. Conditions were found as follows: A sack of apples had been placed between the window and the screen to keep cool. The screen was just a little old and the burglar had broken it and gotten to the apples. He was perched in an elm nearby enjoying his breakfast salad to the full, his bushy tail waving an independent greeting. More inroads upon the apples seemed sure so they were put where Mr. Squirrel cannot get them, but can't something be done about this crime wave?

Somehow it is awfully hard for a mother to persuade her daughter to marry the kind of man who will make her happy.

CHILD TRAINING

LITTLE TYRANTS
Irma Morris

A few days before Christmas, a young mother was "entertaining" her little girl of six by dragging her around the crowded stores. Beautiful as the little one spied a "darling" doll's house.

"Oh, Mother, I must have that house! Won't you please give it to me for Christmas?" she coaxed.

Mother priced the toy and when she found that it was twenty-five dollars she was about to tell the child that it was entirely too expensive; but realizing that might cause a scene in the store, she diplomatically said, "We'll ask Father." Poor Father! He didn't come home for dinner, and the little one, after much coaxing, reluctantly consented to go to bed, on condition that Mother would speak to him about the coveted toy as soon as he came in.

At six o'clock in the morning an excited figure appeared at her father's bedside, awakening him with, "May I have it?"

The sleepy father had to listen to the whole story, and being too tired to argue, he temporized by saying, "I'll go to see it."

After thinking the matter over, he decided that although he would like to indulge his little daughter, the present state of the exchequer did not justify the expenditure of twenty-five dollars on a toy. Mother agreed with him, but was distracted as to what to tell Mabel.

A young aunt, who was present, feeling that this deception had lasted long enough, said, "I don't believe your father has bought it. He thinks it's too expensive."

This was the breaking point. Little Mabel threw herself on the floor and promptly went into hysterics. Poor Mother, almost hysterical herself, didn't know what to do. She entreated, implored, offered substitutes.

Nothing was of any avail; the hysterics continued. Mother thought of sending for a doctor. Suddenly she decided to go immediately to buy the doll's house with the money she had saved, little by little, to buy herself a much needed dress. With the prospect of receiving her heart's desire, Mabel's hysterics subsided. Happy Mother! Happy Mabel!

Are they happy? Hasn't Mabel learned a most "valuable" lesson? She has learned that whenever she wants anything very badly all she need do, in order to have her wish gratified, is to go into hysterics. By her mismanagement of this situation, the mother has piled up trouble for herself and for her child. How much better it would have been, had she told Mabel, immediately upon her request, that although she would love to indulge her, the toy was too expensive for the family pocketbook.

Our children are very clever. They learn early how to secure the gratification of their desires. If howling will give them what they want, they will howl; or they will tease, and maybe lie. It is our job to teach them that none of these methods "work." From earliest infancy, we should make them realize that our conduct, with regard to granting their requests, is regulated by just one question—"Is it right?"

Solitude frequently surrounds the man who is alone with his thoughts.

FIVE LIQUOR VIOLATORS ARE SENT TO JAIL

In police court, Saturday morning, five convictions were secured and a sixth seems likely to be made, results of the raid by state police, made in this city Friday. Five went to jail to serve terms, two of the guilty being women.

The longest case to be tried was that of State vs. Frank and Pauline Wilbur, colored residents of Forest street. Each was charged with actual sale of liquor. Mrs. Wilbur pleading guilty to the charge while her husband pleaded not guilty.

After hearing testimony Judge Libby fined Mrs. Wilbur $200 and costs and gave her a jail sentence of 10 days. The case against Frank Wilbur was nolled.

Wilbur came out of the pen out a warrant was immediately made out charging him with keeping liquor with intent to sell. He also pleaded not guilty but the court found otherwise and fined him $200 and costs and gave him 30 days in jail. Neither could pay so they went to jail.

Mrs. Peter Nawrocki of Taftic was found guilty of selling liquor and was fined $200 and costs and sent to jail for 30 days. This was the second conviction against her. On a charge of resisting an officer she was fined $20.

David Slum of School street and Max Bazzer of West Main street pleaded guilty to actual sale of liquor and were fined $200 and costs, with a 10 days jail sentence. They paid $220.50 each and then went to jail for their sentence.

Aiken Abraham, of Howard avenue, asked for a continuance to allow him to straighten out his business affairs and this was allowed by the court, bonds continuing at $1000. It is understood that he will plead guilty and take his medicine.

Everett H. Bacon, Jr. of this city was charged with improper registration and Judge Libby fined him $25 and costs.

The case against Frank McClosky of this city, charged with theft of one revolver, from Eaton-Chase Co., was continued again as the counsel for the defendant was ill and unable to attend court. Judge Libby informed the accused that if his attorney could not appear next Saturday he must have another lawyer because this is the final continuance.

AVALANCHE OF GIFTS FOR EAST SIDE PARTY

With the date of the East Side community Christmas party almost here plans are practically completed and everything is about set for the first party of this kind that the Duwell club has put on. The teachers of the Bishop school who are working with the Duwell club in putting over this party have been very busy sorting over the avalanche of presents that have poured in to the collecting stations during the past week. These collecting stations were supposed to close Saturday night but will be left open until three o'clock this afternoon and it is requested that everyone have their gifts in by that time.

The way that the East Siders and people of other parts of the city have pitched in to help put this party over has been remarkable and there is no possible reason at all why the children won't have the time of their lives at the Elks home Tuesday night.

For the benefit of those not attending the Bishops school and residing on the East Side, the committee have requested that those children who have not already done so must hand in their names to some member of the Duwell club not later than Monday night. It is the aim to reach every child from the seventh grade down and unless the children assist the committee it will be difficult to do this.

The program is practically completed and will be published Tuesday morning.

WEDDING
Green-Scott

Leroy Green, of Central Village and Mrs. Mary J. Scott, of Norwich Town, were married Wednesday evening, the 16th, at the residence of the bride's son, Abraham Scott, on High street, Norwich, by Rev. J. M. Patterson, of Grace Memorial Baptist church. The best man was Lorenzo Geer and the matron of honor was Mrs. Hattie Geer. About 100 guests attended. The bride wore white embroidered crepe de chine, carrying a shower bouquet of white roses. The matron of honor was dressed in blue chiffon, her bouquet being pink carnations.

An elaborate wedding supper followed the ceremony. The bride received many handsome gifts.

OBITUARY.
Mrs. Louis Haack.

Following an illness of some time the death of Marie Zahn, wife of Louis Haack, occurred Saturday morning at her home in Trading Cove.

Mrs. Haack was born in Berlin, Germany, November 8, 1855, the daughter of William and Mary Zahn. She came to this country some years ago with three sons, William, Louis and Arthur, and had resided in Trading Cove since that time.

Mrs. Haack was born in Berlin, Germany, a Lutheran church and a member of Immergruen lodge of this city. She was the mother of 12 children and was a woman who thought much of her home and family. During the war her son, Walter, served in the army and contracted pneumonia. He was brought home from Camp Devens and died shortly afterwards. When the government sent her the payment due all "Gold Star" mothers, she returned it, saying what she gave to her adopted country she gave willingly and freely. As her son was glad and willing to sacrifice his life for his country, she, too, felt the same way. Her spirit during the war, especially when her native land was an enemy country was similar to her viewpoint on life.

Mrs. Haack is survived by her husband and eight children, William and Louis of Norwich; Arthur, of parts unknown; Mrs. John Sauter and Mary L. Haack, Norwich; Anna C. Haack, Eastern Point; Mrs. Frank Foote, Norwich, and Mrs. William Morton of Stamford. She is also survived by 14 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

FUNERALS
Wallace E. Pratt

The body of Wallace E. Pratt, who died Friday in East Somerville, Mass., arrived in this city Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and was taken in charge by Church & Allen. Relatives accompanied the body to this city. Burial took place in the family lot in Hamilton avenue cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. C. H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Attending the service were relatives and friends from East Somerville, New London and this city.

Mrs. Edward S. Clark

Funeral services for Mrs. Edward S. Clark, who died in Niantic, Dec. 16th, were held Friday morning in this city, requiem mass being celebrated in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock with Rev. Edward A. Flynn, celebrant and Rev. William A. Keefe at the altar. During the service Mrs. William Murphy was at the organ and Edward T. Connelly sang Face to Face as a waiting hymn. Lead Kindly Light was sung for the recessional.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Flynn, assisted by Rev. Father Keefe. The bearers were William Weldon, Thomas McVeigh, Alexander McGregor and Amanda Payer of New London.

Mrs. Clark is survived by four daughters and three sons. Two of the daughters are of the Order of Sisters of Mercy, Providence, R. I., Sister M. Bartholomew and Sister M. Roseta, and were present at the funeral.

Miss Kate Allen Rudd

Funeral services for Miss Kate Allen Rudd, who died Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from her home "Woodside," at Norwich Town, with a very large attendance of relatives and friends. Delegations from various committees of the United Workers were among those present.

Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ Episcopal church, Norwich, conducted the Episcopal service.

There were beautiful floral pieces from loving friends.

The honorary bearers were Nathan A. Gibbs, W. G. Clark, C. Edward Carpenter and Wells Lyman of Lyme, a nephew.

Burial was in the family plot in Yantic Cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. [illegible]. Miss Rudd is survived by six sisters, this being the first break among the seven daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudd. The Henry Allen and Sons Co., had charge of the funeral arrangements.

CHRISTMAS SERMONS AND CAROLS IN LOCAL CHURCHES SUNDAY

Christianity was cradled in song and set the world to singing and the church has sustained that role to the present hour, said Rev. Samuel H. Howe, D. D., pastor of Park Congregational church, in a remarkable Christmas message to his congregation Sunday morning. There was a large attendance at the service and the attractiveness of the service was enhanced by a splendid programme of music. Featuring the music programme were the organ prelude, Chant des Noel, the anthem, Calm on the Listening Ear of Night, the offertory solo, Song of the Chimes by Mrs. William C. Burgy and the carol, The Burning Flame.

Rev. Dr. Howe took as his text, The Dayspring from on high hath visited us—Luke 1-78. Reading these advent idyls, the Annunciation, the Benedictus, the Magnificat, the Floria, the Nunc Dimittis, we get two impressions, he said. We say this is a great literature. Its language is a golden chariot. We wonder as we read our Bible at the great linguistic force and charm of the Bible speech viewed as literature.

We wonder at the great work of the translators of three centuries ago, and we wonder at the great Tindale who set the key for our English Bible, a century before. If there is anything in rythmic majestic speech or in lyric sweetness, breathing now like the sephyr and rising to the sonorous note of music like the sound of ocean in storm then we have it here. You read them as masterpieces of human speech, lifting the lips of the orator or the great voices of the orchestra in oratorio. There are here the voices of the prophetic prophets, blending the voice of the prophetic age with the joy and rapture of the new epoch just opening. They rise like the high key of the old seers to the note of sublimity, which cannot be said of any other ancient literature. Burke and Ruskin and Watts Dunton makes this plain for us.

Greek literature has never been exceeded by the secular mind but it nowhere rises to the lofty height of true sublimity as did the Hebrew mind.

Greek literature has been the admiration of mankind but it lacks the wide horizons, the dazzling heights.

It had no infinitudes. Its gods made in mans likeness: its Olympus was the scene of riotous conflicts and drunken banqueteers. They went forth to bring aid to favorites or plunge into human vice, base sensuality. Its thinking, its ethics, its theology, faced none of the tremendous questions the soul must ask. It dredged none of the soul's profoundest depths. It made its place for incarnations or crosses of sacrifice. It solved no ethical problems. It had no gospel of forgiveness and no soul regenerations. It was completely on the level of common human weakness and vice, reigns.

But the Christian faith takes its stand at the heart of the worlds sin and its misery, its failures, its broken hearts and hence makes room for the human mind to stretch its wings full pinion, and the result is a literature of such sublimity as no other racial literature can share.

A second impression as we [illegible] these great lyrics is that the new era is heralded by a great hymnody.

Christianity was cradled in song and set the world to singing and the church has sustained that role to the present hour.

We sing in solitude and in the Christian assembly and in concert and in the great orator's and say what we will of artistic music written for art's sake, no music touches us at such depths as sacred music.

The story of Christianity is the story of a succession of dawns. It is said there was no sun setting in Greek literature. Plenty of reference to the "rosy fingered morn" but no place for the ending of the day. But Christian literature does not deal in sunsets, except as it turns the sunsets into glorious dawns.

Christianity is a series of day breaks. It is always bringing in a new day and a better one.

If it is failing on you and no failing to awaken new enthusiasm it is speeding on others. Christianity carries on eternal youth at its heart.

It dawns on our darkness and the world's darkness. The age with its back to God or the man with his back on God sees only his own black shadow. He is facing the night. The realities and eternal verities are all here but unseen. There are no revealings of the outer world to the blind.

To summarise the incarnation is a new dawn, the original out of which all others arise. A dawn to the world's life setting it on a new career. And to come as a new dawn to the individual's life. Jesus Christ makes a difference to a man or age when He comes, gives life a new meaning and sorrow and death a new significance.

If death is a golden sunset it is the dawn to great life beyond the limits of vision.

CHRISTMAS VESPERS AT CHRIST CHURCH

The annual pre-Christmas vespers were held at Christ Episcopal church Sunday evening, there being a large congregation in attendance. The service was one of music and choral numbers and was most pleasingly arranged.

Previous to the service a delightful organ recital was rendered by Stanley Pierce of Stonington, organist of the church, this being followed by the Voluntary, Choral vespers and carol singing preceded the offertory anthem, Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord, sung by the choir. Other carols were sung by the congregation. The postlude was The Festival March in F. Vestments were of red as Sunday night was the Eve of St. Thomas' day.

Y. M. C. A. MEN HOLD SERVICE AT LOCAL JAIL

At 9.15 Sunday morning Y. M. C. A. representatives conducted a religious service at the local jail. Hugh Kinder played the organ for the hymns and also rendered very effectively several vocal solos. Secretary Edwin Hill led the song service and offered the prayer. Edmund A. Prentice gave a most impressive heart to heart talk; he spoke in part as follows: Men, what would you think of a man who started out from here to New York in a vessel without taking with him a chart that would show him the shoals and rocks and all the danger places, you would say he was foolish. The reason you men are here as prisoners is because you have been trying to live your lives in Norwich amid the rocks and shoals of sin and temptation and you failed to fight successfully against them because you have failed to take as your guide Jesus Christ who is the only one who can lead you safely through the danger places of life. You see the results of life, but you cannot see life itself. You see my bodily form, my features, etc., but you cannot see my real life which is my soul. You see the acorn which planted in the ground in due time became a great oak. But you cannot see the real life within the acorn; you see the results of that life. God is the only one who really sees the life and knows is away down in your very soul; He knows your life far better than you know your own life. Men, this is the Christmas season, and it is a time when you should all be thinking seriously of the one who made Christmas possible, even Jesus Christ who is waiting this moment to save you from your sins, and he will do that very thing if you will but give him a chance. Why not give your life to Him at this glad season and thereby begin to live as true men should. Some 25 of the men, with evident sincerity asked that they be remembered in prayer that they might become followers of Christ. The service was one of the most impressive one ever held at the jail.

GAVE CANTATA AT FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

At the First Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. James H. Aldrich used for the text of his Christmas sermon Isaiah 9:6. Unto You a Child is Born, Unto You a Son is Given. Hark the Heavenly Voices, and The Song of Love, were the anthems given by the choir. Miss Hazel Cruthers was in charge of the music.

Hopes of evergreen arranged in festoons at the rear of the pulpit and evergreen wreaths formed the main part of the decorations, together with a basket of green with read flowers in front of the pulpit, and at the side on a stand was a jardineer of green with red berries, all effectively done by Mrs. George Manning. Miss Gertrude Tefft's Sunday school class of young men, procured the greens used in the decorations.

At 7 o'clock in the evening a cantata was given at the church. The programme was as follows: Song, Hail Your King, choir; responsive reading and prayer by pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich; solo, Miss Lois Manning; reading, Mrs. George Manning, song, The Song of Love, choir; recitation, Christmas Every Where, Miss Theodora Brown, recitation; The Dreamer, Miss Florence Brown; reading, Mrs. George Manning, reading, The Shepherd Boys Carol, Miss Florence M. Bennett; song, Story of the Morn, choir; reading, The First Christmas, Miss Theodora Brown; lullaby, Only a Child by five girls, Edna Judson, Doris Rose, Isagel Gimbel, Muriel Rose and Virginia Ward; recitation, O Little Town of Bethlehem, Edna Judson; song, Hark the Heavenly Voices, choir; offering for the White Cross, (Palmer Memorial Boston); recitation, A Christmas Carol, Miss Brown, closing song, Unto Us A Child is Born, by the choir, benediction, Rev. James B. Aldrich.

The church organist, Miss Hazel Cruthers accompanied for the singing, with her sister Miss Gladys Cruthers playing the violin. Miss Hazel Cruthers and Miss Florence M. Brown was the committee in charge.

NEED REBIRTH OF JESUS IN SOULS OF MEN

The Christmas service at the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church was as follows: Organ prelude and Christmas Pastoral from "The Manger Throne," Manney; Call to Worship and Invocation; carol, Hark What Mean These Holy Voices, by John Williams Black, choir; Responsive reading, 63; Gloria Patri; hymn, Angels From the Realms of Glory; Scripture lesson, minister; anthem, Lo! The Manger Where He Lies, by Cuthbert Harris; choir; prayer, minister; offertory solo. The Birthday of a King, Neidlinger, Mrs. Charles Schwenk; announcements; hymn, Holy Night, Silent Night; sermon, minister; anthem, The Song Angelic, Norwood Dale, choir; prayer and benediction, minister; Organ Postlude, Hallelujah chorus, Handel, organist.

The musical part of the service was under the direction of Organist Herbert L. Yerrington. Members of the choir were, Miss Bernice Underwood, Mrs. Charles Schwenk, Frank E. Sterry and Clyde M. Beebe. Miss Underwood very acceptably sustained the solo part in the anthem "Lo, The Manger Where He Lies," while the offertory solo, "The Birthday of a King," was given in pleasing voice by Mrs. Schwenk.

Christmas greens and red berries formed the decorations. These were banked in front of the pulpit and a bouquet of the same was on the platform, Miss Ida Beebe, chairman of the Y. P. S. C. E., flower committee, was in charge.

The pastor, Rev. Gurden F. Bailey preached a splendid sermon on "The Meaning of Christmas." The text was Luke 2:11. There is born to you this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

Christmas is the great festival of the Christian church, observed annually on December 25th in memory of the birth of Christ. History does not record the date of the origin of this festival, but Clement of Alexandria refers to it in the third century, and Chrysostom who lived in the latter part of the fourth century speaks of it as an ancient custom. For a long time the eastern and western churches divided on the selection of the particular day for the celebration of Christmas, the western church fixing upon December 25th, while the eastern church favored the 6th of January. The division of opinion was due to the fact that the precise day on which Jesus was born could not be determined. A few years ago however the eastern and western church came together on this point and now the east and the west, the Greek and the Roman, Protestant and Catholic the world over observe the 25th of December as the day on which to do homage to the Christ child. It is the most widely observed of all the festivals of the Christian church.

What is the meaning of Christmas? It does not have the same meaning to any two individuals. The fact is the same for all—Christ was born. But the interpretation of the fact will be different with each of us. It was even so with those who gathered around the infant in Bethlehem.

What can Christmas mean to those whose lives are shadowed with sorrow. The holly bears a prickle, the berry has a thorn, and every Christmas season has its touch of tragedy. In the midst of our merriment let us not forget the homes where with trembling fingers thye weave the holly round the Christmas hearth, and where in silence they cherish memories that cluster round the vacant chair.

To others Christmas means the home coming of those who have been long absent. No one but those who experience it can understand the thrill which goes through the parent's soul when he hears again the shouts and laughter of returning children echoing through long silent rooms.

And yet to little children Christmas means something different still. I suppose we must concede this day to be supremely the children's day. There is the possibility of turning this most beneficent festival into an occasion for the cultivation of selfishness, and, unguided, come out of it disappointed and in a sullen mood. Under proper direction children will find happiness in doing for others and they should not be deprived of this richer joy of being instruments in producing happiness for other people.

What the world needs today is a rebirth of Jesus in the souls of men. Every nation is a Palestine, every state a Judea and every heart a Bethlehem.

It is by his spirit born in us that Christ will save the world—and in no other way.

Christmas finds its meaning in the life and work and words of Jesus. In order to get a true picture of a man you must take in the whole sweep of his life from the cradle to the grave. Each epoch in the man's career is to be viewed in the light of the completed life. A birthday is significant only as it is related to the life as a whole.

You have no long journey to make to find Bethlehem, for there is a Bethlehem in your heart. Have you room there for the Christ?

SAYS THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT NEEDED TODAY

The Song of the Angels interpreted Today, was the subject of the Christmas sermon delivered Sunday morning at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, by the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster. Rev. Mr. Foster took as his text, Luke 11, 13-14, "And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying—Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace and good will toward men."

In part, his sermon was as follows:

So many sided is the Christmas observance, it has a message for all classes and all ages of peoples. The textual words are of vital interest in our personal, social and economic relations. The beautiful poetic story of the shepherds and of the crowded inn, seen in its historic setting, assumes pertenient interest to us and almost acquires the authority of command to us in our duties before the world.

Today most people will think of such as applied to our international relations. Many will doubtless declare that when America, through the stress of a terrible Civil war, emancipated the slave she heard the song of the angelic host and responded to the duty of the hour. And many will add that if the counsel and policy of the great war president of that era had been followed—"charity for all and malice for none"—so much of the sectional bitterness of the later years would have been missed. In 1914 America again distressed and haunted the counsel of her great war president and has ever since been trying to claim national rights and to avoid international duties. Those spokesmen at Locarno heard the song of the heavenly host and made effort for co-operation to lessen the risk of the horrors of war and to promote peace and good will on earth. America was not there and a willful minority of the United States senate may yet prevent the consideration of the question of international disarmament at all.

This halting and negative policy is now supplemented by the authorized efforts of the American war department to militarize our high schools and colleges and universities, and this at the very time when war smitten Europe is rallying the forces which make for international good will. And we furthermore, selfishly exclude immigration from the shores which the fathers called "theland of the free and the home of the brace." Yes, the Christmas spirit of generous impulse, of good will and fraternity is needed today and it really appears in contract to so much that is of dominating power in current affairs. Still stands thine ancient sacrifice, an humble and an contrite heart. Thy mercy, Lord, lest we forget!

BIBLES FOR TWELVE AT UNITED CHURCH

Twelve children, members of the church school of the United Congregational church, were presented Bibles Sunday morning, during the session of the school in recognition of their attendance during the year.

The children receiving Bibles were Eileen M. Eston, Dorothy E. Blanchard, John H. Dean, George J. Dibbis, Lillian M. Kyle, Phyllis L. Oat, Marjorie Pierce, Doris E. Seagrave, Ralph H. Sinay, LaVere A. Tubbs, Gladys May Waters and Theresa C. Wibberly.

Christmas Social Tonight.

The annual Christmas tree and entertainment for the Sunday school of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, will take place this (Monday) evening in the church school room. The entertainment arrangements are in charge of Mrs. A. N. Foster and the usual Christmas presents will be distributed for the children of the school.

CANDLE LIGHT VESPERS AT UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

The annual Christmas Candle Light vesper service was held at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, Sunday evening, under the auspices of the Young People's Christian union of the church.

The service opened with the processional, twenty young people, bearing candles entering the church and escorting the choir and Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor, to the altar. Over a hundred lighted candles were used during the service to furnish light. The processional was, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear.

Following this the singing of two carols took place, O Lord of Strange Event and in Yonder Manger. The next selection was a violin solo, by Bercuse, by George Guile, with piano accompaniment by William S. Huber. Another group of carols, Joseph and Mary and Slumber Song, were then sung.

As the offering was taken, Rev. Mr. Foster read a poem and this was followed by another pleasing violin selection, Bach, by George Guile. Two more carols were sung, O Little Town of Bethlehem and Gloria in Excelsis, this being followed by the processional, Hark the Herald Angels Sing and the singing of Silent Night, by the choir of the church. Benediction by Rev. Mr. Foster brought the service to a close.

UNION CHURCH SERVICE ON CHRISTMAS NIGHT

During the Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor, announcement was made that a union Christmas service will be held at the church Christmas night. The sermon will be preached by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church.

HELD CAROL SERVICE AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

The singing of Christmas carols featured the Sunday evening service at the entral Baptist church, and by request will be repeated at the evening service next Sunday. There was a large attendance at the servic which was a delightful and inspiring one. Several unusually fine numbers were sung by the choir.

Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, will preach his annual Christmas message at the morning service next Sunday.

CHRISTMAS OBSERVANCE BY COLUMBIAN COMMANDERY

The annual Christmas observance of Columbian Commandery No. 4, Knights Templar, is to take place at Masonic Temple, on Broadway, at 12 noon, Christmas day. Invitations have been sent out to all Sir Knights by Eminent Commander George, E. Zimmerman.

Sentiment prepared by the committee on Christmas observance of the Grand Encampment Knights Templar, United States of America and the reply from George W. Vallery, most eminent grand master, is as follows:

To George W. Vallery, Most Eminent Grand Master:

As the sacred day commemorative of the birth of Him whom we are [illegible] to call Immanuel, again approaches, the nearly five hundred thousand Templar Knights within the jurisdiction of the Grand Encampment, salute you and greet you as their chosen leader.

Praise God, the tragedy of the world war lives only now in memory, and the consequent hysteria is rapidly disappearing. We are enjoying blessed peace, and approaching an era of great properity. In our beloved Order the desire for quantity is rapidly giving place to a desire for quality, and the result must be the placing of Templary upon a higher plane of human action. The people of the earth realize more than ever before that our great Order of Christian Knighthood is a most potent factor, second only to the church, in the christianizing of humanity and in lifting it into a higher, clearer, purer atmosphere of virtuous conduct. May those in authority have clear vision, wise discretion, sound judgment and kindness of heart, and may Almighty God grant them strength of mind and body to lead us to the highest and fullest realization of the purposes of our great fraternity.

To which the Grand Master responds: Sir Knights of the Temple, Christian Knights all:

Your loving message, with its ring of confidence, presents to me five hundred thousand reasons why this great nation need not fear that the name American, which belongs to us, shall stand for other than those high ideals that the Father of our Country had in mind as for the last time he addressed us.

With the best of the Citizenship let us join in broadcasting to the world our Saviour's message: "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

The old, old story of the Birth at Bethlehem is still dear to all of us, and as we meet at our Christmas Observance on this the 1925th Anniversary, let us listen again to the bells pealing forth their promises of good tidings of great joy to all people.

Let us once more consecrate ourselves, our hands, our hearts and our resources to the great work of our Order—the defense of the innocent the aid of the destitute and the advancement of Christian principles.

Your Grand Master wishes all a prosperous and happy New Year.

The orders by the Grand Commander of Connecticut Knights Templar are as follows:

General Orders No. 1.

To the Officers and Members of the Grand and Constituent Commanderies of Connecticut

The noble sentiment expressed in the foregoing exchange of memorials, urgently though tenderly, reminds us as members of the great Christian order of Templarism, of the duty involved and obligation imposed by our voluntary subscription to those structural principles upon which it so securely rests and moves us to a deeper, more studious, and broadened contemplation of that life and character whose purpose, influence and sacrifice can but incite us to redoubled efforts toward a clearer and more comprehensive interpretation of its meaning and application.

It is to the defense of the principles and teachings of the blessed Nazarene, the embodied fabric of the Christian religion, that we have at the common altar of understanding plighted our lives and to this same Jesus of Nazareth that Templarism stands pledged.

What, therefore, Sir Knights is the immediate obligation of Templarism to our own people and the peoples of the world?

It would seem that the outstanding need of the day is self-possession and restraint; an absolute refusal to be moved from the simple yet sublime faith of our fathers; an unyielding front to the foes of a Christian liberty and justice as we conceive it and as the principles have been continuously practiced for the past one hundred and forty-nine years of our independence: a rededicated allegiance to our flag and to the country for which it stands; the recognition that constituted law is the supreme authority of the land; and that we Americans in Christian America first and everything else afterwards. No branch of organized Masonry provides sharp tools for achievement more abundantly than that of Templarism.

It is my order that the several Commanderies assemble in their Asylums on Christmas Day at 12 o'clock noon and after an appropriate service, cause a collection to be taken up for any charitable purpose, reporting to me the amount and how used.

The Grand Commander extends to each and every member his Knightly Greetings and hopes that all have a Merry Christmas and a bright and prosperous New Year.

Courteously and fraternally yours,
ANGUS H. MacKENZIE,
Grand Commander.

WEST SIDE MAN HIT ON HEAD WITH LAMP

As the result of a fracas at the home of Harry Foster, colored, West Main and Forest streets, Sunday afternoon, Foster is in the hospital with a cut on his face, his alleged assailant, William Anderson, colored, 24, was arrested on a charge of breach of the peace and Foster's wife was arrested on an intoxication charge. Both Foster and his wife claim that Anderson hit him (Foster) with a lamp. Sergt. Myron O. Morgan and Officer John O'Neil made the arrests.

When they got to the house they found that Foster was bleeding from the cut and Dr. Louis Cassidy was called to attend him. Dr. Cassidy had the man removed to the hospital. Foster's injuries are not considered serious.

INJURED FITCHVILLE BOY FOUND LYING IN ROAD

As the result of injuries sustained when he fell off or was thrown from the horse he was riding, Samuel Berkman, 13, Fitchville, is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, suffering from a fractured skull. The boy was found lying on the highway about two miles from Fitchville, by Pierre J. Theve of Rocklawn, Warren street, Sunday morning. Mr. Theve and his father who was riding with him placed the boy in their machine and took him to the hospital. People in the neighborhood stated that the boy had been on a horse and it is thought that he either fell off the animal or was thrown off.

INDOOR TRACK MEETS WILL HOLD CENTER OF SPORT STAGE SOON

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(By the Associated Press)—Flying feet will beat upon wooden paths this week in the first important indoor track meet in a season that promises to equal in interest that of last year when the phenomenal Paavo Nurmi of Finland invaded America.

On Tuesday night in Brooklyn a Christmas fund benefit program will bring into action some of the leading American distance men, Jimmy Burgess of Georgetown, George Marsters of the New York Athletic club, Vin Lally of New York, Billy Sullivan of Georgetown, Abel Kiviat of New York and Ducan Sober of the College of the City of New York.

George Mittelsdorf of Colby college, New England sprint champion, will appear in the Century against Eddie O'Shea of Georgetown and Tom Halloran of the New York Athletic club. The walking demonstrations will find the American champion, Willie Plant, in action.

Here another month has passed a new foreign invasion will be under way—one that is to bring the champion of pole vaulters, Charley Hoff of Norway, to these shores, then will come Herbert Houben, German who conquered Coren Murchison and Charley Paddock on their visit to Europe last summer. Adrian Paulen, a Dutch sprinter, may come, but Nurmi will not appear in the United States again until next fall.

Boxing

The week in boxing has proved the soundness of Louis (Kid) Kaplan's claim to the featherweight title and the unsoundness of the Dempsey-Willis negotiations. Kaplan meeting Babe Herman for the seventh time here Friday night, won with ease on points. Dempsey's camp has announced the end of one contract with Floyd Fitzsimmons of Michigan City and the prospect of a new "deal."

There were reports early in the week that the present difficulties in the Dempsey-Willis matter would bring Tex Rickard into possession of the title bout and that it would be fought in New York.

The championships for 1925 have been settled, but a bout of the contender class as scheduled for New York Wednesday when the former light heavyweight champion, Mike McTigue, meets Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro. McTigue has improved since he lost the title last summer to Paul Berlenbach and has become a better drawing card than he was as champion. Fidel Labarba, recognized as flyweight king, will meet Lew Perfetti of New York on the same program.

Golf

Archie Compston of England and Arnaud Massey of France, champions in their own countries, bring color into the winter season of golf in America. They will arrive the last of this month and start their play in St. Augustine New Year's day, a tour of the country to follow their winter in Florida where they will encounter the leading amateurs, Bobby Jones, and the little fellow who played Jones in the finals at Oakmont, Watts Gunn.

Football

The storm of criticism which fell following the college football season appears to have itself and with Red Grange suffering from injury and Ernie Nevers of Stanford hurt in an auto accident on the eve of his departure for Florida to play professionally, further attacks upon the game are expected to await the meeting of the coaches and officials.

Baseball

Babe Ruth's arrival in New York with the announced intention of conditioning himself properly for the 1926 campaign has opened the baseball season. The New York Yankees have refused to pay for any more warm baths at Hot Springs, so the Babe is working in a New York gymnasium.

Basketball

Basketball is well under way, but the first intercollegiate league contest is two weeks away. Meantime professional hockey has made a triumphant entry into New York and by the end of the week leading university teams of the United States and Canada will be using the ice at Madison Square Garden.

TWO FAST INDOOR GAMES AT ARMORY TONIGHT

This (Monday) at the Armory the Norwich indoor league will play in its fourth week. Tonight's games will bring together the Tigers and Battery B at 6.30 while the Nutmegs and Faber's Stars clash at 9.30.

In the first game a strengthened Tiger team will meet the Battery in what should be an important contest. If the Tigers win they will pull the Battery down to a tie with themselves, while if they lose they will drop considerable in the league standing. For the Tigers Boyd will pitch with Goldblatt or L. Hamil on the receiving end. For infield duty Burke, Cimikoski, P. Lagenski, B. Lagenski, Nevins and S. Tombari will be available while Jarvis, E. Hamil, Connell, A. Tombari and Mc Gowan will play the outfield.

The Battery lineup will be the same that has defeated all comers to date in the league.

In the second game the Nutmegs, flushed by their recent 20 to 1 victory over the Tigers last week are out to get the Stars' scalp and will stand pat on the lineup that performed so brilliantly last week.

Jim Kelly will pitch with J. Tombari on the receiving end. Gil Kampf will cover the initial with Jim Falcone at second. Ellie Segal will cover third and Gibbs and Jab Burnes will play left and right shorts respectively. In the outer pastures Brown will play left field, Couture, center field and Lambert or Nevins right field. Healy, W. Burnes and Winters will be in reserve.

Little is known of the Stars' lineup but they will bring down a fast outfit that will make trouble for the Nutmegs before the game is decided.

All players are requested to report on time so that a full nine inning game can be gotten in during the alloted time.

INGRAM'S STAR TEAM LEAVES FOR THE WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(AP)—"Navy Bill" Ingram and his team of selected football stars of eastern gridirons left here tonight for San Francisco where on December 26 they will play a team of picked western football stars in a benefit game for the Shriners' Children's Hospital.

The easterners have been moulded into an effective football machine during a week of intensive drill at Bloomington, Ind. The strength of the aggregation was proven yesterday when it met the Indiana team and beat it 42 to 0 in a 40 minute game.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON EXPECTED IN N. E. CONFERENCE

STORRS, Dec. 20 (AP)—A successful basketball season is looked forward to in the New England conference as the teams of Massachusetts Aggies, University of New Hampshire, Rhode Island State, University of Maine, and the Connecticut Aggies, prepare for strenuous schedules.

Maine has already played four games, the best of which was the downing Dartmouth 26-23 at Hanover. Rhode Island has played three contests, but New Hampshire, Massachusetts Aggies and Connecticut Aggies do not play their first game until next month.

Basketball has always been a strong sport in he conference, and with many veterans from last year's team available, a good brand of play is expected this season. Maine, due to the fact that basketball is not supported by other colleges in the Pine Tree state, is handicapped in drawing up its schedule. Only three of the fourteen games scheduled will be played at home. Maine will be coached by Fred M. Brice, who this year signed a three-year contract to handle football, basketball and baseball.

Massachusetts Aggies, tackling its stiffest schedule in years, has a wealth of veteran material on hand, including Temple and Parrenheimer, all-New England forward and guard, respectively. Brown, Holy Cross, Vermont and Springfield are among the stronger teams that will be met at Amherst on the home court. Thirteen games have been scheduled, the first of which will be played at home with Norwich, January 7.

Harold M. Gore will coach the Bay Staters.

New Hampshire has a squad of 40 men at work, three of whom played regularly last year. W. H. Cowell, of Illinois, will coach the Granite Staters, who play the first contest of a fifteen-game slate with Maine at Durham, N. H., on January 15. The outlook for a strong five at New Hampshire is good.

Connecticut Aggies have five letter men available, but were seriously handicapped by a lack of experienced reserves. Schofield, forward on All-New England second team, are the outstanding men. Fourteen games have been scheduled, the first of which will be played, January 8, at Storrs, against Norwich. Sumner A. Doble, of Massachusetts Aggies will coach the Connecticut five.

Rhode Island is putting a veteran team on the floor and a good season is expected. Since losing to Yale at New Haven, two weeks ago, the team has made rapid progress. Seventeen games have been scheduled. Frank W. Kearney, of Bates, is coaching Rhode Island.

SANITARY TEAM BEATS BATTERY E QUINTET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 20—At the State Armory on Dixon street on Saturday night the Westerly Sanitary Basketball team defeated the Battery E players by the score of 46 to 17. A larger crowd was present than a week ago and many came later to enjoy the dancing until midnight music by the Crandall-Sutcliffe orchestra.

The first basket was scored by right forward Lamb of the Battery team, who also had to his credit three other field goals and two foul shots. The outstanding players for the Sanitary corps were Bamford with seven cages to his credit, Henderson with five baskets and two fouls, Blake with four baskets and Stenhouse and R. Meikle with three each.

Herman F. Driggs, an "approved official" of the 1925-26 season acted as referee; Alexander Greig as timekeeper and A. Bamford as scorer. The roster of players was, for Sanitary corps forwards, R. Blake, M. Bamford (Capt.) Robert Meikle; centers C. Stenhouse and A. Henderson; guards Raymond Meikle, Harvey Meikle and Raymond Mitchell. For Battery E forwards, Lamb, Killam, center, Harvey, Andrews, (Capt.) guards, Barber, A. Blanchard, J. Blanchard, Spry, Maxwell, Sullivan and Hopwood.

On Monday night at the State Armory on Dixon street will be held a meeting of the league officials to formulate rules and regulations and adopt a playing schedule for a series of amateur basketball league tournament of Westerly teams.

RICKARD BUYS INTO PARIS BOXING ORGANIZATION

PARIS, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Tex Rickard has invaded the European boxing promotion field, it was learned on good authority today. The New York promoter has acquired an important interest in the French firm of "Manitot," which for the last year has controlled the organization of boxing bouts in Paris.

It was announced today that Jefferson Dickson, of Jackson, Miss., has entered the firm of the partner of Antione Boyer, who has been head of "Manitot" since its organization in 1923.

Although no official announcement was made to that effect it is understood on good authority that Rickard is behind Dickson in this venture.

In connection with "Manitot's" changed management it was announced that the American pugilists of good rank, one from each class from heavyweight to flyweight will be sent to Europe to make their headquarters in Paris. They will appear in bouts in Paris rings, but also will engage in matches in other cities of the continent, including Brussels, Berlin, Vienna, Rome, Madrid, Milan, Barcelona and Prague.

The enterprise is undertaken for the purpose of giving Europe a first hand knowledge of American fighting methods. It was explained that European fighters going to the United States have always complained that the style employed by American pugilists is so different from that used in Europe that they have felt completely at sea in American rings.

The American pugilists will be assigned to various training establishments in Paris to mix with French fighters not only in the ring but also in the gymnasium.

EDDIE TRYON, COLGATE STAR, TO PLAY AT PLAINFIELD

Those who had no opportunity to see Eddie Tryon, Colgate's star football player, in action on the gridiron will be given a chance to see this All-American star in action on the chalked court at Plainfield on Wednesday evening. Eddie Tryon who was the leading point scorer in eastern football, and who turned down many flattering offers to go into professional football, is playing basketball this winter with the Tri-State Collegians of Grove City, Pa. This aggregation of college basketball stars will be the oppents of the Plainfield team at Plainfield on Wednesday evening.

Taftville at Jewett City Tuesday

Tuesday night at Bijou hall, Jewett City, the first big home game of the season will be staged. Jewett City won the initial encounter of this series but Taftville is determined to cop the second skirmish. Taftville has gone to no little expense is securing the far famed and highly efficient "Dutch" Leonard. The addition of Leonard to an already powerful team seems to give Taftville the edge but the Jewetts with the same lineup that succeeded in winning from the Taftvillities at the latter's home court are confident of repeating their first success. These teams are great rivals and can be depended upon to give their utmost for the victory will mean a lot for either club.

Nutmegs After Games

The Nutmegs basketball team would like a game with any fast team in this section for Christmas, either afternoon or evening at the latter's court. A return game can probably be arranged for later in the season. Answer through this paper or call 1914, before Wednesday night.

Hayes Denies Report

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—Teddy Hayes, who is training Mickey Walker, welterweight boxing champion, for his bout with Tommy Milligan of Scotland in New York next month, today denied reports from Halifax that he had predicted a knockout for Harry Wills over Jack Dempsey next year in a brief bout. Hayes formerly trained Dempsey.

TENNIS EXHIBITION CAUSES ONLY MILD STIR IN TENNIS CIRCLES

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—The situation arising from the participation of several leading tennis figures in an unsanctioned exhibition here yesterday was described by Joneh W. Mersereau, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association today, as "just a tempest in a teapot."

Among those who participated in the matches were William T. Tilden, national singles champion; Vincent Richards, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory and Miss Mary K. Browne. They took the court in face of a letter from Louis B. Bailey, chairman of the sanction committee of the U. S. L. T. A., stating that there had not been sufficient time for his committee to consider the matter of sanction.

Mr. Bailey's letter explained that he must refuse sanction, regardless of his personal interest in the charity concerned in the exhibition, under the rules of the association. The policy of the association, he said, was against giving sanction to exhibitions where there were gate receipts.

Mr. Meraserau said today that so far as he had learned the trouble came from a misunderstanding as to who was to apply for the sanction. The matter will come before the advisory committee of the U. S. L. T. A., meeting here Tuesday, and Mr. Bailey plans to explain the matter with the hope that no penalties will be imposed. The players may be cautioned as to future exhibitions.

HAPPENINGS IN SPORT WORLD ON SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Three of the best known baseball players in the two major leagues are now managing teams in the new Winter league being operated in various resorts in Florida this year for the first time. These three players are Frank Frish, captain and star second baseman of the Giants; Stanley Harris, manager and star second baseman of the Washington Senators, and George Sisler, manager and first baseman of the St. Louis Browns. Frish is managing the Cruisantania team, Harris is guiding the destinies of the Coral Gables team and Sisler is leader of the Miami Shores club.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 19—Mickey Walker, the world's welterweight champion, may undergo a slight operation of his toes before he resumes training for his bout in January with the Englishman, Tommy Milligan.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Tex Rikard's New York hockey team went down in defeat before the Montreal Maroons last night in the second home game of the National Hockey League season in Madison Square Garden. The score was 4-1.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Willie Hoppe has been ceredit $10,000 by a Miami Fla., promoter, to defend his world's 18.1 balkline billiard title against Jake Schaefer during February, Hoppe said today that he would accept the offer if Schaefer could arrange his affairs to compete.

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 19.—Teddy Hayes, former trainer for Jack Dempsey, who is handling Mickey Walker's training in the absence of Manager Jack Kearns, predicted here today that Dempsey will meet Harry Wills next year and that Wills will win by a knockout in a brief bout.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 19—The Kansas City American Association baseball club will train at Lake Charles, La., for the 1926 season, George Muehlebach, owner of the Blues announced.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Winter sports were popular at Mount Holyoke college as far back as 1844, when the college was a female seminary, but they received their greatest impetus in 1885, when John D. Rockefeller presented the institution with a spacious skating rink.

The Dartmouth College Outing club, founded in 1909 to conduct the winter sports at the New Hampshire institution, now has more than 1800 members on its rolls. The club maintains a chain of twelve cabins, with more than 100 miles of trail, and annually stages a great carnival of winter sports.

The New Hampshire University winter sports team will include Gunnar Michelson, winner of last year's intercollegiate winter sports union ski-jumping championships; Stewart Weston, winner of the Marshal Foch ski-jumping trophy at Lake Placid in 1925, and F. W. Peaslee, winner of the intercollegiate winter sports union snowshoe cross-country championships last season.

In some quarters the suggestion is made that the National Hockey League might do well to follow the example of other hockey organizations by eliminating much of the bodychecking. A bodycheck was originated to stop a play or an advance, but is now more often used for personal purposes and it is argued that the roughness culminating out of such disturbances is likely to prove a detriment to the good of the sport.

The High Cost of Fire

It has been estimated that the fire waste of the United States is $1,044 a minute. Staggering as it may be it is not all of the story.

At the last meeting of the National Fire Waste council, which is cooperating with the chamber of commerce of the United States to cut down the fire toll, Ira H. Woolson, New York engineer, made the following estimate:

"The best census figures available indicate a total urban population in the United States for cities having a population in excess of 8,000 as approximately 50,000,000. Assessing the average cost per capita of $27.70, as calculated in 23 cities, upon this population would indicate a cost for fire department service of $135,000,000, or a total annual fire loss to the country of $670,000,000, exclusive of water supply. Such figures are staggering and they are believed to be conservative. The end is not reached. How long can we stand such terrific waste? The burden is needlessly heavy, because much of it can be eliminated by judicious legislation."

Upon this basis of calculation the cost of fire would be approximately $1,275 a minute.

The reason for this condition Mr. Woolson attributes largely to our habits of frail combustible construction. "Coupled with this," he concludes, "is our excessive carelessness and wastefulness. These two national characteristics have reciprocal relations, each stimulating the other and both creative of fire hazard."

DANIELSON

LIONEL FOURNIER BURNED IN TRUCK GASOLINE FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 20.—Lionel Fournier sustained severe burns on the left side of his face, his left arm and hand, Saturday afternoon, while making his way out of the cab of a motor truck on which he had been riding after an explosion had ignited gasoline and set the interior of the cab in flames. The cause of the explosion is not quite clear, though it may have been caused by ignited carbon. The incident happened at a filling station in Main street. Peter Seneca was at the wheel of the truck when the explosion that ignited the gasoline came and he escaped with a mere singeing by slipping out from behind the wheel and out of the cab. Fourpier was not so fortunate. He had to make his way out through the flames and was severely burned in so doing. He was rushed by A. A. Bonneville in a car to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Fourier of School street, was given first aid attention by Mr. Bonneville and later a physician. The burns were said Sunday to be of the second degree. The fire on the truck was extinguished before it caused any great amount of damage.

KENNEDY BUILDING, DAYVILLE, DAMAGED BY FIRE AND WATER

DANIELSON, Dec. 20.—Dayville had its biggest fire in years, Saturday night, when a building occupied for business purposes and apartments was about half consumed and the remainder of the frame structure damaged by water. The building is the property of Frank S. Kennedy and is situated on the southerly side of the Main street with only the width of a street separating it from the passenger station of the N. Y. N. H., and H. R. R. company.

It is believed that the fire was caused by the explosion of an oil stove in the dry goods store of Thomas Solomon, on the front and ground floor of the building. So rapidly did the fire gain headway that Gladys Mills, who had an apartment on the second floor of the structure, saved nothing but her coat. Another tenant who suffered heavily was Bert Long, his household furnishings being largely destroyed or ruined. The apartment of Mrs. George Barnes was saturated with water, but touch of the furniture and other equipment in her home was removed from the structure. The office of the French Cable company in the burned building was gutted. It is estimated that the loss on the building and contents will be from $5,000 to $7,000.

A triple three call brought out the Captain Put Engine company for a quick run to offer assistance to Dayville. In the meantime the Dayville firemen, using two streams being pumped by apparatus at the mill of the Assawaga company, had started to fight the fire, which was stubborn and at times threatened to get out of control and become a menace to the entire central section of the village. Such a catastrophe was avoided through the good work of the firemen and because the night was calm.

The front section of the building is destroyed, the loss of the Solomon store stock being total.

Because of lines of hose stretched over the New Haven road tracks at the Main street crossing the north-bound shoppers' special from Norwich for Putnam was held at Dayville for more than an hour. The fire was so well under control when the boat train came along, south-bound, that it was not materially delayed in getting through.

Cables that were caught in the sweep of the flames caused trouble lights to blaze on the switchboard in the Danielson central office of the telephone company and many lines in the Dayville area went out of commission. The service was practically restored within three or four hours. Hundreds flocked to see the fire, many going from Danielson.

The gutted building was one of the most profitable real estate holdings in Dayville. The past fall and summer it had been repaired and painted and was in excellent condition. No information was available as late as Sunday afternoon as to the amount of insurance carried on the property by Mr. Kennedy, but it is understood the sum is practically sufficient to cover his loss, although it may not entirely do so.

Saturday was something of a field day for out of town calls for the Danielson fire department, The Captain Put Engine company, having been at Dayville early Saturday night, leaving here about 7:35, returned, put up the apparatus and decided to call it a night, when, along about midnight, came another alarm, sending the company on a run over to Brooklyn, where a chimney fire was threatening the safety of a small dwelling in the west village.

It was not that the fire was such a serious one as the threat of disaster in a thickly settled section, inadequately protected against fire, that brought the call for assistance from the Danielson department. There was only a small amount of damage to the building, but the ringing of an alarm started another rush of cars from Danielson over into the neighboring town. The local firemen made but a very brief stay in Brooklyn.

Timothy Dwight Robbins, 81, died during Saturday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Nelson Baker, in Canterbury. Mr. Robbins was a native of the town of Brooklyn and had lived in that town or the vicinity all of his life. He was of a family long identified with the affairs of Brooklyn and during many of his active years of his life was engaged in farming.

Saturday, the funeral of Joseph LaRoche was held from his home in Attawaugan, with funeral services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 8 o'clock, Rev. Ignatius Kost was celebrant of the requiem mass, attended by relatives and many friends. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Arthur LaRoche, Julius LaRoche, Durfee Pechie, Fred Pechie, John Pechie and Frank Pechie. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson of Allen Hill, Brooklyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. of Danielson were visitors Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Corey, of North Sterling.

Miss Bertha Anderson is seriously ill at her home on Allen Hill.

The first massed onslaught of the Christmas shoppers on Danielson's marts of trade was made Saturday. From early afternoon until closing time many of the stores were crowded and those who came had their pocketbooks and drew heavily upon them to pay their trading bills. It was a satisfying day for the merchants. Remarkably fine weather, the Saturday before Christmas and plenty of money among those who would spend, made a combination thoroughly pleasing to the business man. From now until well into Christmas eve the store forces expect to be consistently busy. The stores are open every evening until Christmas.

A dramatization of Why Chimes are rung was presented at the Baptist church Sunday evening, with many present for the impressive service. A cast of twenty, a vested choir and chorus singers ad soloists all cotributed to the beauty of the affair! The congregation included representatives of a number of the churches of the borough.

As in other years, Danielson was represented Supday evening at the annual production of the Nativity Play at Pomfret Sunday evening. This was the fourteenth Christmas time on which the play was presented. Numbers of those in the cast Sunday evening have portrayed their roles in the spectacle since the play was first presented at Pomfret. Notable among them was Warren Averill, who portrays the Patriarchal King of the Orient. J. Fred Ash in the role of the master shepherd. The Pomfret Nativity play has in years past received widespread publicity and has been read of and favorably commented upon from coast to coast. In a way, Pomfret has become the Oberammergau of America.

Late Sunday afternoon, Coroner Arthur G. Bill said that he had not received any report from Dr. C. C. Gildersleave on the autopsy performed the past week in Norwich on the body of a Willimantic young man, exhumed in the hope that something more might be learned that would contribute to unraveling the mystery as to how he came to meet his death. The body was found in a yard in Willimantic, practically on the eve of the young man's wedding day.

SAMUEL APHER HELD AFTER CORONER BILL'S INQUEST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 20.—Following an inquest here before Coroner Arthur G. Bill Saturday, Samuel Apher of Worcester was taken before Justice Tourtellotte of the town of Thompson and held in $1,000 bail to answer later in the superior court to a charge that he was criminally negligent in causing the death of Phyllx Kuzzola, 14 year old Wilsonville boy, on Tuesday evening of last week. Apher, representing a Worcester sausage company, was operating a motor truck, fitted with gas lights, when he ran down the Kuzzola boy, who suffered a fractured skull. Apher saw that the boy reached the office of a physician in Webster, from where he was taken in an ambulance to a Worcester hospital, where he died during the night. Apher furnished bond for his appearance when the case comes up in the superior court in January.

It will be charged by the state that the truck that figured in the accident had lights of insufficient power and that Apher operated the vehicle without due care, striking the boy, who was riding a bicycle, while the boy was far over to the right side of the highway and dragging him approximately 50 feet before the truck was brought to a stop.

In connection with the case, Guy Ruggiere, who was riding on the truck with Apher, has, at the instance of State Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam, been held as a material witness, his bond being fixed at $500. He was unable to furnish this when taken into custody. State Attorney Bradford said that in the event Ruggiere is unable to furnish the bail he will be held at the county jail in Brooklyn until the Apher case is tried. In the meantime he will have an allowance of $2 per day, as the law provides in such cases.

OLD MYSTIC

SERGT. MYRON MORGAN ACTIVE WAY BACK IN '84

(Special to The Bulletin.)

OLD MYSTIC, Dec. 20.—In The Bulletin of Dec. 14, an item about the 44th wedding anniversary of Police Sergeant and Mrs. Myron O. Morgan, of Norwich, was of interest to many here who remembered the former through his boyhood and until he went to Norwich to reside. His mother, who was from the Wightman family of Baptist ministers for generations was one of the best and most amiable Christian mothers any man could have. She survived her good husband for many years. The following item taken from the Mystic Press of Sept. 25, 1884, will show that Sergeant Morgan, way back at that date was capable of being a policeman: While Myron Morgan of Norwich was on his way from our village (Old Mystic now) to Bennetts Corners, Monday afternoon, he was accosted by a tramp who asked for a match and then demanded a dollar. Morgan told him that he had no money for him, whereupon the fellow knocked him down. Morgan, however, is a man of science and jumping up, he turned the tables on the old fellow and gave him more than he bargained for, till he begged Morgan to let up on him. Tramps would do well to give Mr. Morgan a wide berth hereafter.

The Old Mystic Social Circle is to have a Christmas tree this (Monday) evening in the Methodist parish house. The tree was donated by L. O. Allen and the money for decorations by Dr. C. F. Congdon. Each member is to bring a ten cent gift to hang on the tree. Ice cream and cake will be provided.

The Ladies' Aid society and the United Workers will omit their regular meeting this week.

Hobart Siswick, a student at St. John's Boys' Boarding school, Ossining, N. Y., is spending the holiday vacation at his home on Mystic road.

The Methodist Sunday school is to have a Christmas tree and gifts for the children Wednesday evening, in the parish house.

The public schools will close Wednesday for the holiday vacation.

Arthur Whitford and Clifford Holmes are engaged at carpenter work in Mystic.

Mrs. Ellery Davis of Mystic road is visiting relatives in New Hampshire.

Thirteen is sometimes an unlucky number when it is made up of a judge and jury.

PUTNAM

ARMISTICE DAY COMMITTEE HAS $750 TO GIVE BACK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 20—Byron D. Bugbee, chairman of the finance committee of the Armistice Day celebration has made his report of the expenditures of that day. The appropriation made at the town meeting for dedication of the new memorial bridge was $2,500. After all bills have been paid he found that the cost of the celebration had been but $1,749.60, so that the committee has returned $750.40 to the town treasurer. It is very gratifying to the committees and to the citizens generally that the celebration which was carried out so successfully was well within the appropriation, taking but little more than two thirds of the amount allotted.

State Highway Commissioner Macdonald was in Putnam the past week and a luncheon was held at the Putnam Inn by the commissioner and other members of that department including the district supervisors. Mr. Macdonald is holding similar meetings in different part of the state.

The pageant "The Old, Old Story" is to be given by the Pomfret Congregational Sunday school in their church Wednesday, December 23 at 7.30 o'clock. There will be solos and carols by the children. The children have been asked to take gifts to make others happy. At the close of the entertainment all are to assemble in the church parlors for refreshments and Miss Helen Philbrick of Boston will sing.

TOURTELOTTEE M. H. S. PUPILS GIVE CLEVER MINSTRELS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 20—There was a large crowd at the minstrels given last evening at the auditorium of Tourtelotte Memorial High school by the pupils of the school. It was originally intended to present the show two nights, but owing to the illness of Miss Marguerite Burns, under whose direction it was given, it was decided to give but the one performance.

When Court City of Putnam, Foresters of America held its annual election at Foresters' hall it was decided to have a public installation and a committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements for the affair, Tuesday evening, January 5. The officers are: Chief ranger, Joseph Larrow; sub chief ranger, Alfred St. Marie; treasurer, John Kerns; financial secretary, Edward Girard; recording secetary, Donor Jolie; senior woodman, Austin Lincoln; junior woodman, Edward Donnvan; senior beadle, Theodore LeClair; junior beadle, Joseph Sorel; trustee for three years, Ie Robitaille. The installation committee Charles A. Woodward; lecture, Alfertee is Eugene Alvord, Donor Jolie, Alferie Robitaille, Theodore LeClair and Joseph Sorel.

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Athletic club the following officers were elected: President, Armand J. Brousseau; honorary president, Peter E. Bonin; vice president, F. O. Marion; financial secretary, Eldore Guertin; recording secretary, Rosario Lacroix; treasurer, James Charon; auditor, Donor Jolie. The installation will be held Sunday, January 10. The membership of the club is the largest in its history and it is in excellent financial condition.

Mrs. Pauline Devieu Hall, of Worcester, formerly of Putnam, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident several weeks ago, remains on the dangerous list at St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Gordon and children of Wilkinson street are visiting relatives in New York.

Mrs. Lester Larabee of Hartford has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ainley.

Miss Nellie Weston, superintendent of the infirmary at the Odd Fellows Home, Worcester, has been the guest of Rev. and Mrs. N. B. Burton at the Methodist parsonage.

Prof. and Mrs. Malcolm Willey of Hanover, N. H. spent the week end with Prof. Willey's mother, Mrs. Helen Willey. Prof. Willey is instructor in Sociology at Dortmouth college.

Mrs. Anna Houghton is visiting her son Wilfred Houghton at East Putnam for a week.

Mrs. Louis Delorme of Woonsocket, formerly a resident of Putnam, has been visiting friends here.

Miss Clara Benoit has returned from a visit with friends in Hartford.

Mrs. Alice Carpenter is visiting friends in Barre, Vt., for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dereault have returned from a visit with relatives at Worcester.

Isaac Champeau and George Lewis of the Bugbee & Wulf store were in Boston last week on business.

Mrs. Carlton Blossom and little daughter spent the week end with relatives in Pawtucket.

Mrs. William Crawford of Lexington, Mass., is the guest of her mother Mrs. W. M. Sweet, who is ill at her home on Intervale street.

Mrs. Mary L. Burt, Mrs. Edward H. Burt and Miss Mary Johnson were visitors at Willimantic this past week.

Miss Rose A. Gilman has returned from a visit with friends and relatives in Central Falls, Woonsocket and Providence.

WESTMINSTER

Phil. 4:7 was the text at the morning worship in Westminster last Sunday. An unusual circumstance was an audience wholly adult.

The schools of the town closed Friday of last week for two weeks' vacation.

Westminster Hill school has its public Christmas play and entertainment including Santa Claus Thursday evening.

Miss Nellie Colburn of Westminster and Procidence, who has been in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Colburn since early in November, returned to Providence, Thursday of last week, December 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldenberg, the latter mother of Mrs. Lewis Greenman, were the first visitors from New York received by their new granddaughter, Justina Izola Greenman.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf A. Karlson of Mooseneck Hill, were visitors at Mrs. Moody's, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Helstrom are among the number afflicted with severe grip colds.

Louisa Soderberg has bronchial pneumonia and has been under the doctor's care about two weeks.

At the W. C. T. U. meeting last week Miss Hadley gave a deeply interesting report of the fifty-first national annual meeting held in Detroit in October, specializing on Connecticut as it there appeared. Miss Hadley received a rising vote of thangs at the close of her account.

Herman Stevens has completed an addition to his house.

Mrs. Sprague of Mooseneck Hill, and her nephew of Appanoug, R. I., were recent visitors in Westminster.

Clifford Williams of the Plains has been sawing wood on the hill.

The church school at Westminster will have its entertainment and service Christmas day, the hour to be announced later.

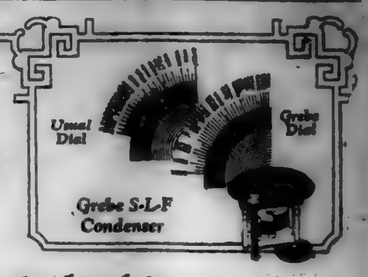
Bennetts mill, closed for the hunting season, will resume operations after Christmas, employing several men of Westminster, as usual.

Axel Helstrom was a Willimantic visitor the first of the week. He expects to work in Bennetts Lumber camp again when it resumes operations in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pellett, their son, John, and daughter, Ruth Elizabeth, were guests of Mrs. Pellett's father and family in Plainfield Sunday of last week.

A number of teachers of this town took last Friday for visiting day, the schools being closed. Miss Kimball and Miss Gold visited the Model school at Bozrah, Miss Dawley was in New Haven, and others visited in other places.

The school nurse, besides visiting schools, also goes to sick pupils from her schools, advising each mother with regard to her child, advising calling a doctor, if necessary, as has been done several times by Canterbury's nurse.



Diagrams show how the crowding of low-wave stations is eliminated on the Grebe dials

From the Jumble of Radio Programs

the Synchrophase easily picks the one you want. This quick and accurate tuning is made possible by the Grebe S-L-F Condensers. They distribute low and high-wave stations so that they have equal spacing on the dials. This eliminates the usual crowding of low-wave stations onto lower dial numbers which makes almost microscopic dial adjustment necessary.

Other exclusive developments that make Grebe reception so superior are:

Binocular Coils, Low-Wave Extension Circuits, Flexible Unit Control, "Colorizne" and Volume Control

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Man Who Can

The man who can is just the man,
When there's a thing to do,
Who jumps in and works like sin
Until the job is through;
Who likes the game and plays the game
According to his plan,
And doesn't stop till done with it—
The worth-while man who can.

He's he who works and never shirks
Whatever he may find,
And takes delight in doing right
The task to him assigned;
Who's trained to serve and never swerve
His course nor lack the vim
It takes to do and carry through
The job that's up to him.

It's not his way to count the pay,
Nor what the cost shall be:
His is the aim to buck the game
And win the toiler's fee:
He's always fit and every whit
Of confidence bestows
With faith sublime and zeal to climb
As on and up he goes.

Thank God for him who's ever trim
And dauntless in the race,
Who, heart and soul, pursues the goal
And wins a worthy place:
Who plays his part in field or mart,
Or shops that clang and buss—
Thank God for such, we owe him much,
The man who can—and does!

Yule-Tide Gifts

Blessed Yule-tide bring to us
These fair gifts, we pray:
Clearer vision, strength to do
Right from day to day;
Kinder hearts, more sympathy
For all upon life's way;

Tenderness to bind the wounds
Of the sick and sad;
Wisdom to direct the feet
Of the weak and bad;
Tears to shed for others' woes;
Laughter to make glad.

And not least of all thy gifts,
Speech bold, unafraid,
For our little brothers dumb;
Willing hands to aid
Every weak and harmless thing
By the Father made

The First Christmas

Where man was all too marred with sin,
The lowly kine were bidden in;
Where angels were unfit to come,
These humble entered holydom—
There in the stable with the beast,
The Christmas Child hath spread his feast.
These His adorers were before
The kings and sheperds thronged the door.
And where no angels knelt there kneeled,
The innocent creatures of the field.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Few of us realize the immense importance of our trees. This world of ours would be a sorry world indeed were it not for our forests. Our forests are being rapidly cut down and beginning to disappear. The great men of our nation are becoming more and more impressed with the possibility of a shortage of lumber. As our great men in public life are taking increasing interest in the preservation of our forest lands, so should boys and girls take a similar interest.

The boys and girls of today are going to be men and women within a few years time. When that time comes it will be the boys and girls of today who must take the leadership in preventing the needless waste of our forests and woodlands. Trees have been likened to the big brothers of the flower world. A tree is nothing more nor less than a huge plant. Forests were once the support of our earliest ancestors They gave them shelter and clothing weapons and other means of defense from wild beasts and animals of prey.

Some nations which were at one time covered with great forest lands have never been able to replace their forests and the result is that they are to-day among the bleak, arid and desert lands of the world.

The lumber industry of our country takes about a third of the wood which is taken from our forests each year. The pulp and paper mills take a large part of the remaining wood. More than nine tenths of all our paper comes from wood pulp. The page on which this page appears was made from trees.

It would not be possible to give a complete list of the many industries in our country that depend on forests for their existence. For instance there is furniture making, the manufacture of 50 different large groups of twelve vehicles, machines and articles that are made of wood. Turpentine and resin come from our forests. And so it goes. Boys and girls, do not needlessly cut down or otherwise destroy young trees. They may seem small and insignificant now but in the years to come they will grow into large trees.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

The First Snowfall

Dear Uncle Jed and all the Little Wide Awakes: This is another story that I hope you will all enjoy reading. It's title is—The First Snowfall. One frosty December morning, after I had finished my chores, I suddenly remembered that, in fifteen minutes school would begin. As I lived one half mile from school, and I hadn't eaten breakfast, I knew that I would have to hurry. Running into the house I sat down at the breakfast table, which was by a window. Looking up at the sky through the window I said, "Mother, we shall have snow today." "Yes," said my mother, "I think so too." Finishing my breakfast I put on my cap, took my books and lunch, and started for school. I arrived just as the bell rang. Hurrying into the school with the rest of the children, we all sat down into our seats. "Children," began the teacher, "I think we shall have snow today, so study well that you may enjoy it when it comes." I was rather impatient for the snow to come but somehow I managed to keep my mind on my work. I had just finished my last lesson when I happened to glance through a window. Ah, what was that white speck in the air. There, that was another, another, another until the air was full of them. It was snowing at last, I was as glad as any boy would be for they all enjoy sliding or skiing. That night as I lay in bed I thought of the fun I would have when the snow was deep enough for skiing or sliding.

A Visit to Sweden

Dear Uncle Jed: Last year, some of the boys and girls of our school wrote to you about imaginary journeys through other lands. I will write you a few lines about a real trip I took this last summer when my father, my mother and I went to Sweden for the summer.

My brother and sister took us to New London in the car one night about eight o'clock and there we took the boat for New York. Next morning we reached New York and took the boat for Sweden. The boat was a fine large steamer and is called the Drottningholm. It was pleasant going over. A band played for us every afternoon; and every third evening we had moving pictures. Most of the pictures were of Swedish scenes and of things that can be seen in Sweden. We were on the Atlantic nine days; and one Saturday morning, we entered the harbor of Gothenburg. We had lunch in Gothenburg and then took a train out into the country.

I wish all the Wide Awake boys and girls could see Sweden. It is a land of high mountains and beautiful lakes. There is good fishing in the lakes.

We remained in Sweden all summer and came home on the steamer Stockholm. On the way home, the boat stopped at Halifax.

We landed in New York and went to the Grand Central station where we took a train for Willimantic. My brother and sister met us in Willimantic and took us home. We had been away from home for three months.

The First Thanksgiving

Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to your Circle. I follow the stories every Monday and find them both interesting and educational. The Little Advices appearing in your columns if carried out, will surely prove worthwhile.

The week before last, Thanksgiving was observed by the people of the United States. Little we think of its true meaning. When the kind hand of fate rivened the crops of the Puritans they resolved that they should not let the season pass without showing their gratitude for the many favors bestowed on their colony in the new world.

They set the last Thursday of November as the appointed day and called it Thanksgiving day. From them we learn the true spirit of gratitude totheOnewhosendsus hm hm hm h to the One who sends us every favor.

Let us hope that we Americans will always cherish the memory of our beloved ancestors and our own Thanksgiving day.

VELINA A. CYR.

Went Sliding

Dear Uncle Jed: I had a good time on Thanksgiving. I had good bread and chicken and cookies. It was snowing Saturday. Whe there was more snow I went to slide. I had a good time sliding. On Christmas we are going to have a party at school. I am going to be in a play on Christmas. I will be dressed in red and I will carry a white candle. It is a big play. Last year Santa Claus gave me 25 cents and a box of candy. Santa Claus is going to come at Christmas.

If I haven't anything to do I play with my dog. I like to take care of the baby. Our baby's name is Helen and she is three months old. I have a brother and his name is Edward. He is eight years old. I am nine years old and I live on the farm. I like to live on the farm.

STEFANE RYBARZ, Age 9.

Winter

Dear Uncle Jed: It is winter. The wind blows keenly, the ponds are frozen over and all nature seems to be asleep. The ground is covered with snow and week after week, I may even say months, we look at the landscape only to see an immense white sheet spread over mountains and trees Horses and cattle have left the pastures and are now in warm barns. Folks who are out of doors wrap themselves in heavy clothes.

Now we meet the sleighs filled with laughing people dashing along to the tune of jingling bells. Boys spend their Saturdays coasting down hills or gliding over the glassy ice.

Indoors there are hot fires and merry games, also pleasant books to pass the long winter evenings. All is joy especially when the whole family is at home. Every season has its feasts and its joys, but this season brings to us the happy feast of Christmas. Every one is joyful even the poor, for Christ of the world is born.

Likes to Coast

Dear Uncle Jed: This is Christmas time and I hope it won't snow too hard Christmas day. I like to coast down the hill. I have a sled and it goes fast as any sled could go. We are going to have an entertainment at the school. There is going to be cake, candy, sandwiches and most everything. I am hoping that every one will have a Merry Christmas. Last year I sent you a few letters but I never won a prize. I like to read books that are interesting and exciting and I may win some of yours.

About Holland

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to write to you about Holland. The people in Holland are called Dutch. On some of the streets they have no sidewalks and nothing between the houses but canals. In most of the houses they have no carpets on the floors. They scatter white sand on the floor every morning.

They keep their houses very clean. In their kitchens they have open fireplaces with fires blazing brightly. If you should go to Holland you would see windmills.

When you see them far off they look like giants with their arms stretched out. The arms are shaped like ladders. The arms have sails to catch the wind. It is the wind that makes the arms go round. With these windmills the people pump up water or grind corn and saw wood.

The little children in Holland are very pretty. They have round fat faces, golden hair, and blue eyes. The boys wear wide trousers and little round caps. The girls wear jackets and skirts and little caps with gold braid.

The children in Holland have wooden shoes. The Dutch children do not wear their shoes in the house but wear slippers. The boys and girls go to school. Every Saturday the children clean their shoes. They do not shine them as we do. The children wash them with soap and water. They dry their shoes at the fire and if the sun is shining the children put the shoes on a bench. When the shoes are dry they look as white as snow.

EMILY STANKOVICH, Age 11.
Moosup.

Why We Have Christmas

Dear Uncle Jed: Lots of children don't know why we have Christmas. They only know that they get lots of presents. Why we get presents is because when Christ was born, the wise men brought gifts to show their love. That is why we give gifts to one another and have a Christmas tree to show our love.

At our school this year we are going to have an entertainment and get money to buy a big clock for our school. We are going to have a play. I am in it and my name is Phoebe Farley and my sister is Polly. There are two more girls in it too. After the play there will be refreshments.

I hope all the children in other schools will have a good time too.

Is Nine Years Old

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I like to tell you about school. I am nine years old and I am in the third grade. I like to go to school. My teacher is kind and good.

Yowler Tries Again

Why waste time o'er failure sighing?
Just buck up and keep on trying.
—Yowler the Bob Cat.

The little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest waste very little time thinking about failures. They know that this is worse than useless, so they just forget and try again. Of course, Yowler the Bob Cat was disappointed when he failed to catch one of the Beavers at the dam. He had thought himself very clever, very clever indeed, when he had planned to try to catch one of them crossing the dam. He had looked that new dam over with the greatest care. He had made up his mind that Paddy the Beaver had no intention of building a new house up in that new pond. That meant that the food pile would be down in the old pond.

"And that means," said Yowler, talking to himself, "that any food cut around the shore of the new pond will be taken down to the old pond and must be dragged over this dam. To try to catch one of those Beavers while cutting trees close to the water will be a waste of time. The place to catch one is right here on this dam. Of course, I don't know just the point at which they will drag their logs over, but a little patient watching may help me out on that point. Two of those trees against which they have built this dam are in just the right places for me. I will climb one of them and wait. Paddy won't think to look up in one of those trees for me."

So Yowler had kept near enough to where the Beavers were cutting trees to know when the first ones fell. Then he had hurried to the dam, had run out along the top of one of the trees, climbed it and made himself comfortable to wait and watch. You know what happened. You know how Mrs. Paddy started to drag a log over that dam just under the very tree in which Yowler was lying in wait. But she wasn't directly under Yowler. He couldn't drop or jump down on her without changing his position. He tried to make up his mind to wait and trust to luck that she or one of the others would later pass directly under him.

"I'll spend the rest of the night here if necessary," thought Yowler.

But the sight of Mrs. Paddy so near was too much for him and he tried to noiselessly get out on the limb directly over her. But she heard his claws and instantly gave the danger signal as she dived into the pond. Yowler was so disappointed that he felt like yelling right out. But he didn't. He said nothing, made himself comfortable on that limb, and watched Paddy and his family work, tugging their logs over the dam at a point where he could not reach them.

When the logs were over and in the Laughing Brook on the other side of the dam they were towed down to Paddy's old pond. The moment the Beavers were out of sight Yowler moved. Down from the tree he came and swiftly ran along the dam to where a great, high rock formed one of its supports. Up on this he sprang. He arched his back for a moment, which is one way in which he stretches, then flattened himself on that rock. In the shadows his coat was so near the color of the rock that he seemed to be a part of it.

"I'll spend the rest of the night here if necessary," thought Yowler. "Paddy will look for me in the tree where he last saw me. Not seeing me, he will think that I have given up and gone away. One of those young Beavers dragged his log across right close to this rock. When they return they will have to cross the dam somewhere and perhaps they may do it right here. Anyway, I'll have two chances, one again when they bring down some more logs. Sooner or later I will get one of them. Yes, sir, sooner or later I will get one of them. This is a very comfortable spot and I don't mind waiting at all. A little patience is all that is needed to bring success in this world if I didn't have patience and wasn't ready to try, try again, I guess I would soon starve to death. I wonder if I will have time for a cat nap before those Beavers return."

INSPECTOR GEO. S. CHAPPELL KILLED UNDER FREIGHT CAR AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20—George S. Chappell, 57, of 9 Brooks street, employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad as car inspector, was almost instantly killed, Saturday morning, in the Fort Neck yard when he suffered a fractured skull while working beneath a freight car. He is survived by his wife and family and had been employed by the railroad many years.

Chappell went to the Fort Neck yard about 8:30 o'clock for the purpose of removing a bar-pin from beneath a disabled car. He went about his work, but without taking the customary precaution against the moving of the car by placing a blue flag on the front of the car denoting to engine crews that an inspector was at work beneath the car. While Chappell was cutting the pin, a switch engine attached itself to the car and in doing so, Chappell's head was caught in the car rigging and crushed. As the engine started to back the cars to another section of the yard, a railroad employe saw Chappell's body lying between the rails and gave a signal for stopping the engine. As the train crew went to where Chappell lay it was seen that he was bleeding from hemorrhages of the nostrils and ears and before a physician could be summoned Chappell had expired. His hack-saw and hammer were found on either side of the tracks, indicating that he was trying to remove the pin when the switch engine attached itself to the car and inflicted the fatal injuries.

NORWICH MAN STARTS ROW AND IS SOON ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20—Tony Rodriquiz, of Quarry street, Norwich, was taken into custody Saturday when he engaged in a fight at 51 Hempstead street. Rodriquez went to the Hempstead street house during the forenoon and soon started a fight with some of the occupants of the house. Complaint was lodged with the police and Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Walter Rehn apprehended Rodriquez, who is charged with breach of the peace.

LATVER APOLOGIZES FOR DEFENDING VILE PAIR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20—The police department and Judge Prince of the police court on Saturday closed up a vile place that has been in existence sometime in this city. It was located at 4 Golden street and was conducted by Mary Peterson, a negress of light color, and Eldeponse Torres, a Filipino, who was in the service of the navy and later a barber in this city. The pair were in the police court, where they were charged with keeping a disreputable house and with aiding in causing the delinquency of young girls, in specific cases females under the age of 16 years. Two of their victims have been sent to reformatory institutions and they will remain there some time. The woman and the man were fined $100 each and each was committed to the New London county jail for thirty days. The Peterson woman's mother was in court and heard the facts presented to the judge. The pair were represented by Attorney Lubchansky, who apologized for being in the situation of a defender of the sort of offense with which the pair was charged. He said he appeared at the request of a client for some years. He demurred to the complaint and told the court he believed that such people should be driven from the city and such places as it was represented the pair conducted should be closed up. "But," he said, "even such persons are entitled to be defended and in that capacity he appeared." He added that it would be a good thing if the woman went back to Chicago, whence she declared she came to New London. He said the Filipino was a person of little judgment and not familiar with the laws. He could make no defense of the conduct of the pair and for that reason he had demurred to the complaint, leaving judgment to be passed by the court.

Judge Prince called each of the accused to the bar and told both they were to be punished. He added that they might have been informed against a more serious charge, but he would be content to fine each and to send both to jail. He told the woman that she would be wise to leave the city as soon as she had paid the penalty for her offense, and warned her that if she were found in the city when she had served her sentence, she would be rearraigned in court. In the event that she resorted to her former business she would be treated with greater severity. He gave much the same advice to Torres.

Today is pay day with the sailors stationed at the submarine base, but because of the day upon which the blue-jackets receive their semi-monthly compensation falling on Sunday, the sailors were paid off Saturday. As a result seven of their number are prisoners at the police station, because they were successful in getting a supply of drinks of a alcoholic content that resulted in their being taken into custody on charges of intoxication. All will be presented in the police court Monday forenoon, at which time there will be about 15 cases to claim the attention of Judge E. Victor Prince.

Edward Duvnaes, coast guard sailor, stationed at the state pier, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Captain Kelly, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad's force of special agents and Patrolmen Clarence Martin and Henry Sylvia. Duvnaes went to the union station and caused a disturbance.

David L. Varsilman, submarine base, was arrested by Patrolmen Clyde Murphy and Edward Riordan Saturday afternoon at the Plant building, State street, where he was drunk and abusive.

Henry E. Patterson and John B. Calloway, sailors aboard the U. S. S. Camden, state pier, were on Main street late last night and because of their intoxicated condition made a nuisance of themselves, to the extent that they were apprehended by Patrolmen Braxton Hill, Edward Riordan and Michael Dorsey.

William C. Clark, 221 Howard street, was found beastly drunk Saturday night at the corner of Elizabeth and Division streets, and was taken into custody by Patrolman Henry Hick.

James Shea, laborer, of 2 Starr street was found down and out on Green street Saturday night by Patrolmen John Clifford and Edward Riordan, and was locked up.

George Silva, 32 Golden street, was found early this morning on Golden street, near Bank street in such a condition that he was arrested by Patrolmen Frank Philopena and George McCaskey, to prevent the man sustaining injury.

William M. Gallup, of Waterford, and John Hutta, of Unionville, will be in the police court Monday morning charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances, in having parked their automobiles Saturday afternoon on Masonic street and in restricted area. The cars were parked on the north side of the street and in such a manner had an alarm of fire been sent in the Nameaug Engine company's apparatus would have been unable to leave the fire house until the parked machines had been moved. Patrolman Edward Riordan observed the violations of the traffic laws and ordered Gallup and Hutta into court.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel, Saturday afternoon caused the operator's license of Fred Brooks, 66 West Colt street, which was recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

Lieut. and Mrs. Minkler, the former being stationed at the submarine base, appeared at the police station late Saturday afternoon and stated that a man was down and apparently drunk beneath the Thames river highway bridge and was in danger of freezing to death. When officers went to the bridge the fellow had disappeared.

An automobile operated by Gustavo Beullaqua, 98 Smith street, and a machine owned and driven by Milton Rice, United States Coast Guard, state pier, were in collision on Howard street, late Saturday afternoon. Rice's car being overturned and seriously damaged, although he escaped with injuries no worse than bruises. Beullaqua was taken into custody by Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with reckless driving and will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning. He furnished a surety on his bond of $200 for his appearance. Rice was backing his car from a garage and as the car entered the highway, the machine operated by Beullaqua, travelling in a southerly direction, is alleged to have come along at a fast rate of speed, with the result that it crashed against Rice's automobile driving it upon the sidewalk, where it overturned.

Sailors in the service of the government have made things annoying for the Canton restaurant of late, so that when the bluejackets got into a noisy condition there Friday night the management of the eating place sent for the police and made complaint of a breach of the peace against Samuel Coleman, a sailor. Harry Lee, manager of the restaurant and one of the Chinese employes at the place told the court that a sailor had demanded to be served with ginger ale or sarsaparilla in the restaurant and when that service was denied him he grabbed Lee by the neck and abused him. But the Chinaman did not seem to be certain that the man arrested was the offender beyond doubt. There were several sailors in the place and they were in different booths, so that to pick them out was much like picking a particular pea from a pod. Companions of the sailor arrested and accused declared that Coleman was not the offender. They said there was some trouble in the place, but they could not or would not say who created it. They were positive that Coleman did not create any disturbance as he was in the booth adjoining that in which the witnesses were being served. The testimony was of such a nature that the prosecutor did not ask for a conviction and Coleman was declared not guilty.

John Brewer, released from arraignment for intoxication, was drunk in an hour after he left the courtroom, so he was taken back and again charged with intoxication. He was allowed to get away a second time on suspension of judgment, as it was believed he could point out where he bought his liquor. He could not do this however.

Henry White, of Waterford; Harold Hogan, United States Coast Guard, state pier; Mrs. Mary Zegowitz, 12 Front street, and Astred Benson, 30 Thames street, Groton, were patients dismissed as Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital Saturday.

Mrs. Harriet Simons, of 73 Hempstead street, died Saturday afternoon at Home Memorial hospital, where she had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. Simons was the widow of Stephen Simons and was of advanced years. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Bertha Ray, 28 Chappell street.

Waldo E. and Daisy Klinck Clark have sold a house and lot on Crocker street to Wil and Selma Carlson.

Bruno T. Lewsy, colored, of New York, a waiter when employed, was taken into custody by Captain Kelly, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad's force of special agents and Patrolman Augustus Ray Saturday morning charged with being a stowaway. He is now a prisoner at the police station and will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning. Lewsy was taken into custody at the New London line pier following the unloading of the cargo of steamer Richard Peck, which arrived here earlier in the day from New York, when Lewsy was discovered in the freight storage.

Charles Rinardo, 9 Prest street, complained to the police this forenoon that a thief entered the cellar of his home last night and stole his bicycle.

James Elliott, 50, residing at 16 Konomoc street, a painter, is at Lawrence hospital suffering from serious injuries, having been knocked from a ladder Saturday afternoon when an automobile truck hit it. He suffered a lacerated ear and a possible fracture of the skull.

Elliott was standing high on a ladden while he painted one of the buildings at the freight house of the New Haven railroad at Fort Neck. A truck owned and operated by David G. Tourtelott, 888 Bank street, backed against the ladder, causing Elliott to pitch to the ground, landing on the side of the head.

Hugh McPartland Jr., Tilley street, is critically ill with pneumonia at Lawrence hospital.

In observance of Christmas Sunday this evening the parishioners of the Methodist church conducted a brief exercise outside the church. A large Christmas tree that has been erected in front of the church and with a huge star at the top, was illuminated. Men and women gathered about the tree and sang carols.

An automobile driven by Fred Gardner, a member of the crew of U. S. S. Alexander Hamilton, United States Coast Guard academy, was in collision this evening with a Yellow Cab operated by Charles H. Coulson, 17 Mather Court, corner of State and Huntington streets. Both cars were damaged, Coulson lodged complaint with the police, alleging that Gardner was under the influence of liquor. The police ascertained that the registration of the car is entered in the name of Samuel Wyrtel, 55 Boulevard, Hartford, and whether Gardner was rightfully in possession of the car he was driving at the time of the accident, will be determined. The police are making a search for Gardner.

A. S. Prentice, 141 Mohegan avenue was ordered by the New London police late this afternoon to appear in the Groton town court Monday morning on a charge of reckless driving, at the request of the Groton authorities.

Steve Busha, 169 North Bank street, was arrested this afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman William Riordan charged by his wife with intoxication. This evening Busha was liberated upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $100 for his court appearance.

As a result of Arthur Hansen, 10 Cliff street, having caused the arrest of Thomas P. Murphy, 22, Tilley street, Friday on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky has instructed Sergeant Nelson Smith to conduct an investigation and determine the facts in the case. This afternoon several witnesses, youths who were passengers in the machines, were at the police station and related their versions of the accident, together with the facts leading up to the crash of the two cars. Murphy's case will be tried in the police court Wednesday morning.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Beginning of Christmas week.

This is the last full day of autumn.

It is also reckoned as the shortest day of the year.

It is the festival of St. Thomas, the patron saint of architects and builders.

Observance of Forefathers' day, the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, in 1620.

In accordance with an annual custom, Plymouth, Mass., will observe Forefathers' day with a parade and civic exercises.

A Handsome Calendar

The New London County Mutual Fire Insurance Co., Henry H. Gallup president, Walter F. Lester, secretary and Arthur L. Peale, treasurer, is distributing an artistic calendar for 1926, adorned with a reproduction of the famous painting of Edward Lamasure, the Philadelphia artist (1846-1916). The subject is "Indian Summer, Tennessee" an early autumn landscape in colors.

Connecticut Electric Service Co.

Boston—Issuance of 90,000 shares of cumulative convertible preferred stock by Connecticut Electric Service Co., supplements a step which has characterized the rapid progress of public utilities in the past year or two. Eight companies operating in the state of Connecticut are now amalgamated in the interest of economical operation.

In connection with this New England utility consolidation it is worth while noting that the merger does not represent a sale of properties to new interests. The same management will continue to direct the integrant companies. Randal Morgan, chairman of the executive committee of United Gas Improvement Co., is president of the new company. Stockholders of the largest units in the consolidation Connecticut Light & Power and Eastern Connecticut Power Co., are exchanging their old shares for stock in the new company. Stockholders of Connecticut Light & Power are also supplying additional cash in part payment for smaller companies acquired.

Operating companies of Connecticut Electric Service Co., serve 78 cities and towns in important industrial sections of Connecticut with an estimated population of over 640,000. Their nine plants have a generating capacity of over 206,000 horse power, of which 19 per cent is hydro-electric. Operating companies are or will be interconnected with each other and with other power companies in Connecticut. For the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1925, output of electricity was 418,515,065 k. w. h. and gas sales 759,-391,200 cubic feet.

Consolidated earnings for the year ending Dec. 31, 1925, after charges and preferred dividends of operating companies, will amount to about $1,501,656 more than 4.17 times the idivend requirement of $360,000 on the preferred stock now issued. Using present volume of sales and demands for additional service as a basis, similar profits for 1926 are estimated at $1,-666,894.

After giving effect to present financing capitalization of Connecticut Electric Service Co., is simple, consisting of 90,000 shares of no-par preferred stock and 625,000 shares of no-par common. The senior issue will receive dividends of $4 a share annually and is convertible share for share into common.

Palace Theatre

This is one time when a novelist is accorded unlimited tribute for the marvelous piece of characterization that his "best seller" has become on the screen, as demonstrated by "Recompense," the feature attraction at the Palace theatre this week.

Robert Keable's sensational novel "Recompense", which was written as a sequel to "Simon Called Peter" lost nothing of its remarkable vivid reality by being transposed to the silver sheet, and Warner Bros., who produced the picture, are to be highly recommended on the excellent results they have achieved.

Mari Prevost and Monte Blue are primarily responsible for the gripping, spell-binding intensity of the production, which tells the story of Peter and Julie and their struggle with themselves to learn the real meaning of life and love. Their interpretation of the two famous roles of the Army Chaplain and the Army nurse are nothing short of perfect, and their screen personalities are so closely attuned to each other that they epitomize the old saying—"man and woman are complements of each other."

John Patrick, John Roche, Etta Lee, Wm. Davidson and the other players who constitute the Warner cast more than fill requirements, while the direction and mounting of the picture raises it to the level of "unusual". Harry Beaumont directed "Recompense"; Dorothy Farnum wrote the scenario and Dave Abel handled the photography.

"Recompense" is a Warner Bros. "Classic of the Screen" and should not be missed.

For today, Tuesday and Wednesday, the picture is accompanied by four Paramount Vaudeville Acts, which is headed by John Haw & Co., in a singing and dancing revue. Ward & Raymond will furnish the laughs. Barger and Miller Co., novelty act. Ed Mulcahey, silver tone tenor.

Sunflower Crops

The Canadian sunflower crop has grown to enormous proportions, the plant having been found to form excellent silage

Sunflower wields 20 to 25 tons per acre, a great deal more than the average corn crop and the extent to which it has been cultivated in Canada shows how this plant, until a few years ago despised as a worthless weed, has become a crop of great economic value.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

If you can imagine all the complications that would result from a trial "exchange of wives," you have a faint idea of the amusing incidents in the picture that opened last night at the Breed Theatre.

It is titled "Exchange of Wives", and is Hobart Henley's fifth contribution to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lineup. It is based on the famous stage play by Cosmo Hamilton.

"Exchange of Wives," is one of the finest, most consistently funny comedies seen in Norwich this season. It tells the story of two neighboring couples, the Rathburns and the Morans, whose lives become decidedly tangled and messed up, when Mr. Rathburn imagines himself in love with Mrs. Moran, and Mr. Moran's heart turns handsprings whenever he sees Mrs. Rathburn.

Hobart Henley has directed the picture with a nice understanding of the petty differences of married life, permeating his story with the satire of each situation, yet playing each scene with the utmost seriousness, making it all the more funny. The director never insults his audience by explaining in detail what he is trying to express, but tells by the lift of an eyebrow, or a twitch of the corner of the mouth what it would take a whole page to explain. Though the direction is very subtle, one is never in doubt as to the meaning of a scene.

Eleanor Boardman as the beautiful but cold Mrs. Rathburn has never been more charming. Her work shows consistent progress in each picture, each performance adding immensely to her popularity.

"Exchange of Wives" is a picture you really can't afford to miss. And you will have only yourself to blame if you do, for it will be on view at the Breed Theatre today and Tuesday.

Broadway Theatre

The management of the Broadway Theatre announces a program of try-out acts at that popular playhouse for tonight only. Those who were fortunate enough in getting a seat at the Strand Theatre in try out night held recently, will appreciate what fun can be had from such a program.

This night is going to be even better than ever. A number of out of town acts make up the bulk of the program while there will be several local numbers including Hooker and Cassano in a new musical turn. Aubrey the popular eccentric dancers and other localites.

The Paramount picture, "The Coast of Folly," produced by Allan Dwan from the novel of the same name by Coningsby Dawson and starring Gloria Swanson at the Broadway Theatre this week, is what is described as a story "that is a warning for the girl who dares; an idyll for the girl who cares."

The picture brings Gloria to the screen in a story that is as unlike "Madame Sans Gene," her previous success, as day is from night. "The Coast of Folly" is laid against a background of Palm Beach and New York and offers a gorgeous Gloria her first dual role on the screen.

With the climax develops the situation that Nadine must take the blame for the odious situation and the scandal attached to it herself if she wants to clear Joyce. Doing this will cost her the love and respect of her titled husband, it takes but a moment for her to decide and with her decision the picture comes to a truly unusual and appealing close.

It's a pretty sure bet that all Swanson pictures hereafter will be compared to "The Coast of Folly"—that's the kind of picture it is. Never was Gloria more glorious. And gowns!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Revival of activity and strength in the railroad stocks coincident with the weakness of speculative industrials, a huge volume of newsfinancing, and a spirited recovery in French francs were the outstanding developments in this week's financial and commodity markets.

Heavy accumulation of the rail issues represented a strong year-end reinvestment demand for those issues, based on reports of large current earnings and prospects of special dividend and merger developments. Another interesting feature of the week was the prompt and heavy oversubscription of several industrial stock offerings, with several others in prospect before the end of the year.

The recovery in French francs reflected the passing, at least temporarily, of the French financial crisis through the appointment of Paul Doumer as French finance minister.

Commodity markets moved within narrow and irregular limits. The erratic fluctuation of wheat futures, which showed a net decline of about two cents a bushel on the week, reflected the doubts raised by the publication of the Argentine government crop report. Cotton futures closed steadily lower, with considerable interest manifested, however, in next week's official report of Ginnings.

The softening in call money rates towards the close of the week was generally regarded as temporary. Time money and commercial paper rates remained unchanged.

RAIN TODAY AND PROBABLY TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1776 1925

NORWICH, CONN., MONDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Monday, December 21, 1925.

WEATHER
Conditions

The disturbance which was central over Georgia Saturday night has moved northeastward and it is now some distance east of the New Jersey coast. The southwestern disturbance now extends in the form of a trough of low pressure from Lake Huron southwestward to Texas coast. Still another disturbance is approaching the north Pacific coast. These disturbances have been attended by rains within the last 24 hours in the Atlantic states.

There will be rain changing to snow in the lower lake region the Ohio valley and western Tennessee and rains elsewhere east of the Mississippi river during Monday; mostly fair weather will prevail Tuesday, except for snow flurries in western and northern New York, western Pennsylvania and rain or snow in New England. The temperature will not begin to fall in the Atlantic states, however until Monday night or Tuesday.

Winds

Storm warnings remain displayed along the New England coast, north of Boston.

North of Sandy Hook: Strong northeast and east and overcast thick weather with rain Monday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh shifting and weather overcast with occasional rains Monday.

Forecast

Eastern New York: Rain Monday; slightly warmer in southeast portion; Tuesday mostly cloudy and colder, possibly snow flurries in north and central portion.

Northern New England, snow or rain Monday and probably Tuesday, colder Tuesday or Tuesday night.

Southern New England: Rain Monday and probably Tuesday; slightly warmer in west portion Monday; colder Tuesday or night.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT FOR TYLER CRUTTENDEN

It took a jury in Judge Leonard J. Nickerson's session of the superior court 12 minutes Friday at New Haven to decide the case of Joseph Iannuci, a real estate broker and private detective, of 607 Chapel street, New Haven, who sued Tyler Cruttenden, a hotel keeper of Guilford, formerly of Norwich for $20,000 damages on behalf of himself and his five year old son, Louis Iannuci, who was struck by Cruttenden's automobile on July 16, 1924. The verdict was for the defendant.

The case had been on trial for three days and it was not concluded until shortly before 5 p. m. when it was given to the jury and the verdict was brought in at 5:05.

It was one of the most interesting civil cases tried at this term of the superior court for during the progress of the case before Judge Nickerson and the jury these developed serious differences of opinion between a corps of medical experts who were called in to testify by each side. The trial of this case developed an opinion that may be of widespread interest so far as personal liability goes for boys raised in the city and those who are reared in the county districts.

The boy received a fractured leg.

The jury found that the 5-year old boy was guilty of contributory negligence and found for the defendant.

FIVE INJURED EMPLOYES GIVEN COMPENSATION

Five compensation agreements were filed Friday with the clerk of the superior court in this city as follows:

STATE POLICE SEIZED NINE SLOT MACHINES HERE LATE SATURDAY

Late Saturday afternoon state police seized nine slot machines used for the vending of candy mints, and arrested the proprietors of the stores in which the machines were found. The machines were taken to police headquarters along with the store proprietors, who are charged with operating gambling machines.

The store proprietors arrested are as follows: Peter Droais, Greek, 36 Bath street; Shea's News Stand, Broadway; Louis Atkin, Russian, 43, West Side; Alfred Lapre, 32, East Side, Stanislaw Kiecolt, Polish, 50, North Main street; Michael Marr, East Side; George Glascopulos, Greek, 30, Chelsea Lunch; Philip Ladowski, West Side; Samuel Ehrenberg, West Side. All were released on cash bonds of $25 each, for their appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

The arrests were made by State Policemen Bobnick, Albright, Kulowski, Kenerson, Watson, Whitmarsh, Caron and Schwarkent.

This (Monday) morning's session of the city court promises to be a busy one as there are 24 cases in all to be taken up. Besides the nine arrests made by the state police there were seven arrests on intoxication charges, six for violations of the local traffic rules and one breach of the peace.

PREACHER OF PENANCE ST. JOHN, SAYS PRIEST

"Preaching the baptism of penance for the remission of sins," from the gospel for the fourth Sunday of Advent, Luke 3. 1-6, which he had just read, suggested the theme of the sermon by Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, at the 7:30 mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, although his specific text was "Prepare ye, the way of the Lord, make straight His paths," from the same gospel. The epistle for this mass, as for every mass read throughout the world Sunday, was I. Corinthians, 4. 1-5, beginning "Brethern let men regard us as the ministers of Christ, and the dispensers of the mysteries of God"—as the three hard-worked priests of St. Patrick's, in charge of over 4,000 souls, may rightly regard themselves. That their devoted labors are bearing fruit was evidenced by the great numbers receiving holy communion at the three masses of Sunday, in that penance which St. John enjoins and which is the test of practical Catholicity. Members of the Rosary Society were included in the communicants at first mass.

Monsignor May explained how Christ's way may be prepared and His paths made straight by taking advantage of the graces and privileges of Advent. St. John, stern preacher of plain truths, is essentially the preacher of penance. The precursor of the Redeemer, he taught what Christ later taught in His earthly life and works, that as the Saviour bore His cross to Calvary, those who were to be His disciples must ever accept the burden of bearing their crosses cheerfully, if they would follow their Lord. To do penance is the heritage of every Christian, who realizes that he is merely a pilgrim here, detained but a short period at best from his home in eternity. This was the thought very beautifully and convincingly developed by the preacher in the short time at his disposal, his hearers being questioned as to their use or misuse of the Advent time in making straight the paths, by charity, good will, good living as true and practical Catholics.

Announcements were made of the four masses on Christmas day, when the Holy Sacrifice is to be offered as on Sunday, with an additional mass that morning at 5:30; that is, the hours will be 5:30, 7:30, 9 and 10:30 with the regular mass for the Italian Catholics. The masses at 5:30 and 10:30 will be high masses.

At the 7:30 low mass, the members of the parish Holy Name Society are to receive Christmas quarterly communion in a body and there will be congregational singing. This Yuletide communion always appeals to Catholic men, and in one parish of the diocese, in a Bridgeport church, there were 1,500 members of the Holy Name society at communion, Sunday the 13th.

The offertory on Christmas Day is the personal offering which is all the priests of any parish receive direct from the people during each year; St. Patrick's church ranks very high in the diocese of Hartford, for its magnificent generosity in all such offerings.

Thursday, the vigil of Christmas, is a day of fasting for those obliged to fast, and of abstinence from meat for all. Because Christmas falls on Friday this year, the prohibition of the use of meat on Friday is removed for that special day. That all who desire may receive the Lord on Christmas worthily, there will be confessions during Thursday afternoon and evening. It has always been a popular custom with many Norwich Catholics to attend the first mass at 5:30, Christmas morning and receive communion.

It was announced that the parish school is to close Wednesday for vacation, opening the winter term Monday, Jan. 4th.

MORE PETITIONS FAVOR INTERNATIONAL COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut, introduced the following bill and petitions in the United States senate today:

Bill proposing to grant a pension to Mrs. Philena C. Nettleton of Rockville, Connecticut, widow of Edgar A. Nettleton, late of Company H, 13th Regiment Connecticut Volunteer Infantry at the rate of $50 per month.

Petitions from Students of Yale Divinity School; American Legion; Women's club; Chamber of Commerce; Whitneyville Women's club; all of New Haven; Women's Christian Temperance Union and Citizens of Valesville; Young Women's Christian Temperance association of Bridgeport; Sisterhood Temple Beth Israel of Waterbury; Citizens of Middletown; Womans Christian Temperance Union of East Windsor; Women's Christian Temperance Union of Canterbury, Citizens of Newington, Citizens of Manchester; The Industrial club of Hartford Y. W. C. A.; Meriden League of Women Voters; Students of Trinity College of Hartford; Teachers of the Lakeville Schools; Connecticut Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Sisterhood Temple Beth Israel of Hartford; Citizens of Goshen and Citizens of Kent; all in the state of Connecticut, favoring the proposal to establish an International Court of Justice to which the nations may submit their disputes if they so desire.

Petitions from Charles F. Kirkland Camp, No. 18, United Spanish War Veterans of Winsted, Connecticut, favoring the enactment of legislation providing increased pension for the Spanish War Veterans.

MOTORCYCLIST IS HELD FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Winfield Robbins, Jr., of this city, was arrested Saturday, by Officer Ryan, on a charge of reckless driving. Robbins was riding a motorcycle and is alleged to have figured in a slight collision. Robbins was summoned to appear in court this (Monday) morning by Sergeant Myron Morgan.

The small boy in the jam closet doesn't care to be heard or seen, either.

LARGE AUDIENCE AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

What might be called a sermon picture was shown at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Sunday afternoon to an audience that filled practically all the chairs in the large gymnasium. The meeting opened with the singing of America, this being followed by the reading of the Shepherd Psalm and prayer. Hugh Kinder furnished fine and very appropriate music for the occasion. The feature picture was "A Boy of Flanders," in which Jackie Coogan was the hero, and many of the scenes were exceedingly impressive indeed, showing as they did the unusual affection of "Jackie" and his blind grandfather who died leaving him homeless. Also the affection between Jackie and his dog that he found forsaken and half dead by the roadside. The climax of the story was when Jackie won, against many handicaps, the large prize for the best painting of any of the children in the town.

Rev. Edwin W. Crowdis gave an impressive address between the reels, in which he stressed the thought of doing for others and the great joy that comes for such service. He mentioned the late Russell Conwell as a beautiful illustration of one who spent his entire life doing for others and the great satisfaction he found by so doing. Not for others and the great satisfaction he found by so doing. The speaker urged all present to likewise give of their love and affection to others and they would have the right to expect reward. The films, said the speaker, show very clearly the unselfishness, the courage and the love of Jackie for those about him, especially his blind grandfather and his dog; his sacrifice for both should make us all desire to imitate his splendid example. After the showing of this picture the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Crowdis. The service was very impressive and one of the best ever held by the association.

HUGE SUM SPENT ON FARM AUTOS

For the operation and repair of farm automobiles in Connecticut last year, approximately $1,625,000 was spent, according to a computation made by applying to figures of the state motor vehicle department averages computed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The government has determined that it costs $86 a year to operate and repair the average farm automobile, and there were 18,884 cars that might be called strictly farm-owned motor vehicles in this state in 1924 of which 14,364 were passenger cars and 4,520 motor trucks. Rhode Island, Arizona, Delaware, Nevada and New Mexico had less.

A survey made by the department of agriculture among 402 families in Livingston County, N. Y., showed that the average farmer's family spent more on the automobile than on any other items of advancement. Where the family spent $86 a year on the automobile, it spent $36 on formal education, $14 for reading matter, $40 in contributions to church organizations, $13 for entertainments, and, $12 for other travel.

According to figures in the publication "Bus Transportation," 5,131 children are daily transported to rural schools in Connecticut by automobile, 2,941 in sixty-nine busses at public expense and 2,190 in other motor vehicles, most of them private passenger cars. Throughout the country, according to the same authority, 470,000 children are transported to rural schools daily in 19,656 busses.

FARM BUREAU TO HAVE POULTRY MEETING

The poultrymen of New London county will have an opportunity to enjoy a real treat on Tuesday, Dec. 29th. This treat will be in the form of a county poultry meeting to be held at the Buckingham Memorial. A very strong and interesting program has been arranged by the poultry committee of the New London County Farm Bureau which contains something of great importance to every poultryman.

The subject of poultry diseases is ever present in the minds of most men who are keeping flocks of any size. This program should help clear some of the difficulties.

Following is the programme for the meeting:

10.00 How I Produced 17,000 Pullets in one season, Mr. J. K. Shaughnessy, Mgr., Branford Farm, Groton, Conn.; 11:00 A five year program in testing for bacillary white diarrhea, Dr. Geo. F. Corwin, deputy commissioner of domestic animals for the state of Connecticut; 12.00 basket lunch, coffee furnished; 1.00 successful marketing of eggs, F. L. Kanahan, Lisbon; broiler marketing service, W. T. Clark, county agent; 1.30 Some up to date information about paralysis, Dr. L. C. Dunn, Storrs Experiment Station; 2.30 A county wide disease control program, R. E. Jones, Storrs.

SMALL GIRL KNOCKED DOWN BY MACHINE

Jennie Wielczek, 9, of 309 Asylum street, was injured Saturday morning about 11.15 o'clock when she was struck by the automobile driven by Richard Lane, who was driving at a speed of about 10 miles an hour along West Main street.

The accident occurred near the second bridge when the little girl ran directly in front of the machine. Mr. Lane stopped almost at once and this probably saved the girl's life. Mr. Lane picked her up and took her to the office of Dr. Louis T. Cassidy where her injuries were found to consist of a broken right leg, cut lip, broken tooth and bruised knee. The child was then taken to her home where she rested as comfortably as could be expected. She will probably be laid up for several weeks recovering from her injuries.

The accident was reported but Mr. Lane was held blameless as the girl darted directly in front of his machine and there was no chance to avoid the accident.

E. C. POWER COMPANY JOINS BIG MERGER

The Eastern Connecticut Power Co., with plant at Uncasville and main offices in this city is one of eight power and light companies in the state consolidating under the name of the Connecticut Electric Service company. Organization of the holding company was completed Saturday at Hartford. Commenting on the consolidation, R. W. Perkins, president of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., said Sunday evening that the consolidation will not affect the management of the E. C. Power company. The local office will continue to be the main office of the E. C. Power company. The charter for the new company was authorized at the last session of the General Assembly, and charter requirements have been complied with.

Randal Morgan of the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia is the president of the Connecticut Electric Service Company. The vice presidents are J. Henry Roraback of North Canaan and Irwin W. Day of Waterbury.

The board of directors will be composed of representatives of the Connecticut Light & Power company and the Eastern Connecticut Power Company. The Connecticut Electric Service Company will own all the common capital stock, excepting directors' qualifying shares, in the following companies:

The Connecticut Light and Power Company.

The Eastern Connecticut Power Company.

The Meriden Gas Light Company.

The Meriden Electric Light Company.

The New Milford Electric Light Company.

The Woodbury Electric Company.

The Westport Electric company.

In addition the Connecticut Electric Service company will own practically all of the capital stock of the Bristol and Plainville Electric Company.

The purchases of the Meriden, New Milford, Woodbury, Westport and Bristol and Plainville companies were made during the past year or so.

The formation of the Connecticut Electric Service company makes it the first public utility holding company in Connecticut. The territorial rights of the companies concerned are important and extend over wide areas through the state. They serve directly or indirectly 78 cities and towns of 645,000 estimated population.

The stock of the several companies to be owned by the Connecticut Electric Service company is appraised as in excess of $29,500,000.

During the 12 months ended November 30, last the output of electricity was 418,515,065 kilowatt hours and the gas sales aggregated 759,291,200 cubic feet.

Since acquiring control of companies recently extensive plant expansions have been projected. The Meriden Electric company, for instance was acquired in December 1924, and since then the Meriden service has been linked up with the Connecticut Light and Power company's steam and hydro-electric stations at Devon and at the Housatonic River by the construction of high-tension transmission lines.

Extensions hooking up the Bristol division are projected and ultimately other connections will be made whereby more constant and efficient service will be assured to the communities concerned.

Day, Berry and Reynolds acted for the companies inspecting the legal formalities. Putnam and Company, Estabrook and Company are the bankers.

GAVE PAGEANT AT THE COMMUNITY HOUSE

The Adoration of the Kings and Shepherds was the title of the pageant presented at the Community House, Sunday afternoon, when the Christmas Vesper service of the United Congregational church took place. The pageant was cleverly enacted and the service was most impressive.

The opening of the service was a Scripture reading by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church, who read the Scripture as he was escorted to the altar by two girls representing angels, the Misses Betty and Catherine Zumbro. Eight angels then appeared and marched down the side aisles and up the center aisle as the choir and congregation joined in singing, O Come All Ye Faithful and O Little Town of Bethlehem. During the singing of the last hymn, the Star of Bethlehem appeared above the manger and the angels, in pairs, mounted the platform and knelt beside the manger and then stood four on either side. Joseph and Mary appeared standing in the manger.

The next number was a solo, Away in a Manger, sung by one of the angels, Miss Betty Zumbro, this being followed by the singing of Silent Night, Holiest Night, by the choir and congregation.

During the singing of While Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night, by the choir four angels escorted the three wise men and their pages into the manger and they joined in singing The First Noel, with the congregation. The Wise Men then sang We Three Kings of Orient Are and this was followed by the singing of the hymn, As With Gladness Men of Old. As this piece was being sung by the choir a collection was received, to be given to the Near East Relief Fund.

The closing number was The Sanctus, sung by the choir and the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. Mr. Abbott.

The character parts were taken as follows: Joseph, Alfred G. Bliven; Mary, Miss Jean Cram; Wise Men, Walter F. Lester, Archibald Mitchell, 4th and Benjamin Brown; angels, Mrs. A. J. Sinay, Mrs. Joseph A. French, and the Misses Betty Zumbro, Catherine Zumbro, Marion Mitchell, Betty LaPierre, Evelyn Wheeler and Elizabeth Spicer. Two little angels attending the Christ Child, Miss June Olcott Roberts and Miss Hazel Gore; shepherds, Earl Whitehead, Oscar Mossessian and Charles Sargent. Pages for Wise Men, Ralph Sinay, John Dean and George Dibbis.

The committee in charge of presenting the Christmas pageant comprised the following: Mrs. Philip O. Roberts, Mrs. Edwin C. Coit, Mrs. Frederick W. Lester, Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Miss Elizabeth Smith and Mrs. William H. Dawley.

BIG ELM TREE IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE

The big elm tree that arches over the Pullman diner of James P. Hayes in the New Haven depot plaza is again in holiday decorations this year through the public spirited interest shown by Mr. Hayes in arranging to have the elm decorated with electric lights. Strings of lights in red, green, amber, blue and white, 200 in number, outline the form of the tree, making a very beautiful effect at night that draws admiring comment from the crowds of Christmas shoppers. This illumination of the tree adds a festive touch to the business section that is appropriate to the Christmas season.

CHRISTMAS SERMONS AND CAROLS

POWER OF CHRIST ON WORLD TODAY

For his Christmas theme, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of the Greeneville Congregational church spoke on The Wonderful One, taking for his text a part of Isaiah, 9th chapter, 6th verse. "And His name shall be called Wonderful." He said in part:

When preparing some special addresses one is handicapped by lack of material. But this is not so with the Christmas idea. The greatest trouble here is to make a proper selection out of the innumerable things that might be said, and it seems to the writer, ought to be said, at Christmas time. One cannot conceive a topic that admits of wider interpretation and application than the Christmas idea. It is therefore the wealth, rather than the poverty, of material that handicaps us at Christmas.

In the whole sixth verse there are five things said of the coming of Christ: "And His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."

The speaker put emphasis upon the following five points showing why the predicted should be called Wonderful:

It was wonderful that he should have been so clearly predicted.

The Hebrew nation was anxiously waiting for their expected Messiah, but he was not the Christ of Nazareth. He was to come with more than the regal splendors of Solomon. His world throne was to be at Jerusalem, the great capital city of the earth. This, however, was not the Redeemer foretold by Isaih. He was to be of lowly origin, meek and lovable who was to exalt Bethlehem among the tribes of Israel. The minuteness of this prophesy makes it wonderful.

Christ's advent was wonderful for its effect in measuring time. All civilized nations measure time according to the Christian calendar. All human events transpired either B. C. or A. D. His advent divided all history into two parts chronologically. Every event was either Anno Domini, in the year of our Lord, or before His coming. Was not this a wonderful honor to bestow upon the meek and lowly Jesus?

Jesus was wonderful in the sayings He uttered. "Never man spake like this man." As far as we know He never received any academic degrees, and did not dwell, like Plato and Aristotle in the atmosphere of universities. He did not establish any new school like many of the philosophers, and yet His sayings, spoken at random, have influence more geerations than all the philosophers put together. Was not this wonderful?

More wonderful was Jesus in His deed. Other men, notably Shakespere, have said things that will never die. But when it comes to deeds Jesus rises far above all comparison with other men. No other man has ever cured incurable diseases — and some diseases still baffle all human effort. But far more wonderful still Jesus was able to raise the dead, and except a few cases mentioned in the Bible, giving life to the dead is beyond man's supreme endeavor.

But most wonderful of all has been the influence of the Babe of Bethlehem on all subsequent history. The innumerable churches of Christiandom are His perpetual monument. The light that shone over Bethlehem's manger has been slowly permeating this human lump. It has taken a long time to outlaw war, but if Locarno has any meaning, at last its death knell has been sounded. But the most amazing expression of the Christ power is seen in changing the human heart from sin to holiness. Does not the Babe of Bethlehem merit the title of "Wonderful?"

An unusually attractive music programme by the choir and organist was a feature of the service. The choir comprises Mrs. L. C. Prentice, alto; William Douglas, tenor; Donald Gildersleeve, bass. Orchestra, Frank Benson, John Kukla, F. Bunce, organist, Mrs. F. G. Waters.

WILL HAVE CHARGE OF WORK FOR BLIND HERE

The State Board of Education of the Blind has changed the headquarters of its home teacher in eastern Connecticut from Willimantic to Norwich and has appointed Miss Hilda Weber to have charge of the work. Miss Weber succeeds Mrs. Mary E. Lovejoy who has resigned. Miss Weber will live in Norwich at No. 105 Cliff street, and will have charge of the work in homes of the blind in eastern Connecticut. She has already begun her visitation of the homes.

Miss Weber is a graduate of the Overbrook school in Philadelphia, and of the Pennsylvania School for Social and Health Work, and has had experience in settlement work, and also in home teaching work for the blind. The home teachers of the State Board of Education of the Blind visit the blind in their homes and teach them to read with their fingers and to make salable articles with their hands. These articles are collected by the board and are sold at retail prices and the full price which is paid for an article is given to the blind person who made it. In this way the state helps the blind to help themselves and provides some occupation for the tedious hours which a blind person finds so irksome. There are at present more than 800 blind people in Connecticut who are past fifty years of age.

The State Board of Education of the Blind is ready to interest itself in any person who is blind or who is losing his sight, or has seriously impaired vision. Inquiries directed to the board at Room 64, State Capitol, Hartford, will receive consideration. The state makes no charge for the home teaching service.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGE REMAINS UNCHANGED THROUGH YEARS

The Message of Christmas, was the topic of the Christmas sermon delivered Sunday morning, at the First Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. Edward C. Dunbar. Special music by the choir and organist, Dwight Richardson, added to the attractiveness of the service, which had a large attendance. Rev. Mr. Dunbar took his text from Luke 2:11—For there is born to you this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord. He said in part:

Bethlehem is the background of this picture. All is quiet and peaceful. Outside the walls the faithful shepherds their vigils are keeping through the long still hours. The purple light of the breaking down comes in its quiet march into the heaven above. Yes, all is peaceful. Suddenly, yet full of a peace that speaks of the divine presence, a voice speaks carrying in tones of love, joy and happiness, these words "For there is born to you this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord." More words of explanation follow. Then there is wafted over that peaceful morning air the voices of an invisible chorus singing with beautiful harmony, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace among men, in whom he is well pleased." Such was the message of the first Christmas day.

Nor has the message changed in all these years of repetition. Yet the setting is so different. The final rush is being made in preparation for a great holiday. Excitement and hilarity is manifest. Of course there is love, joy and happiness but there is also disappointments and unappreciated sacrifices. There are tired mothers, excited children and self satisfied fathers. Probably all this has its value, never-the-less I am minded to ask myself do we twentieth century folks hear the message of Christmas. Surely a few do, but on the whole do we not miss that peaceful quiet which comes from the knowledge of the birth of a Saviour who is Christ the Lord? Are we not in our excitement and hilarity in danger of accepting the husks and passing by the meat?

The age into which Jesus came was one which needed a Saviour. It had teachers, philosophers, religions with many gods yet it was not a happy world. Emphasis was upon wrong values. Human life was of low value. It was a discouraged world. Socrates said about four hundred years before Christ came, "Unless it please God to send us some one from him to instruct us do not hope ever to succeed in reforming the morals of men. The best course we can take is to wait patiently, yes, we must wait until some one comes."

We cannot yet say that our age does not need a Saviour too, even after the Christmas message has come year after year for centuries. We live in a world of hate, intolerance, strife, lawlessness, and an hundred and one forms of selfishness. We have teachers, philosophers, noble souled leaders, yet we need a Saviour.

We need a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord. The incarnation teaches us the lesson of a man seeking God. Writers tell us that humans are God seekers. This does not alter the fact that we need a man seeking God. Job cried in his perplexity, "That I knew where I might find him! That I might come even to his seat!" But it is the Good Shepherd who goes out into the darkness to seek the lost sheep until He finds him, and takes him into his arms. We need not travel to any Mecca, to any Jerusalem or to any shrine. He stands at the door and knocks.

At this Christmas time he is trying to be born again in every heart, and the message comes to us moderns as it comes to the shepherds of long ago, "For there is born to you this day, a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord." That is the message of Christmas, pause a sufficient time to allow it to register within our souls.

The members of the choir are: Sopranos, Mrs. Wheeler, Miss Stamm; altos, Miss Willey, Miss Browning; tenors, Mr. Lockhart, Mr. Cowan; basses, Mr. McNeely, Mr. Robinson; organist, Dwight Richardson.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS AT ALMS HOUSE

Following out a prevailing custom for many years, Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters of Norwich Town, brought cheer to the members of the Alms House Sunday afternoon, when Christmas carols and a religious service conducted by Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, together with a visit from Santa Claus, made the hour bright for these shut-ins. Rev. Mr. Bailey told the Christmas story about the Shepherds feeding their flocks, etc., as found in the second chapter of Luke and offered prayer. Miss Bessie M. Grant accompanied at the piano for the Christmas carols, which included Hark the Herald Angels Sing, Come Thou Almighty King, It Came Upon A Midnight Clear, etc.

Miss Sadie J. Dawson finely impersonated Santa Claus, in distributing to every one in the home a box of candy and an orange. Those who were unable to attend the service, were visited in their rooms, where the spirit of Christmas was manifested by those present which included twelve or more.

The committee in charge of the service comprised Mrs. Michael Buckley, chairman; Miss Jessie E. Hyde and Miss Rose K. Durr.

PARK CHURCH SCHOOL HAS CAROL SERVICE

Immediately following the regular Sunday morning service at Park Congregational church, the annual Sunday school Christmas carol service was held. The members of the Sunday school singing carols, marched in a body into the church from the chapel. Many members of the congregation remained for this beautiful service which took the place of the usual Sunday school hour.

MINE WORKERS ACCEPT INVITATION TO SCRANTON

Are Ready to Meet the Anthracite Operators in Conference Today—Operators Refuse to Enter Conference Until Assured That the Workers Are Willing to Enter Into Negotiations Without Reservation—Mayor Durkan of Scranton Has Temporarily Abandoned Hope For Conference Today.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The United Mine workers late today accepted the invitation of the mayors and burgesses of the hard coal fields to meet the anthracite operators in conference in Scranton at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

After the miners' acceptance had been wired to Mayor Durkan, word came from Scranton that the operators refuse to go into conference until the mayor can give written assurance from the mine workers that they are willing to enter a conference on the basis of the mayor's invitation without reservation.

The mayor, in a telegram to John L. Lewis international president of the union said:

"Your wire agreeing to attend a conference tomorrow is received. The operators have declined to meet under the provisions outlined in today's call for a conference. It would be useless therefore to make the trip."

In announcing his telegram to Lewis the mayor made little comment on the situation other than to express hope that a meeting would finally be arranged. "We are simply carriers of a message," he said, referring to his committee of mayors and burgesses, "and creatures of the Harrisburg conference. It is not within our domain to praise, criticize, condemn or extol."

HOPE FOR CONFERENCE TODAY IS TEMPORARILY ABANDONED

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Mayor John Durkan, chairmah of the committee of executives, endeavoring to arrange a conference between anthracite operators and miners' union officials here tomorrow, temporarily abandoned hope of such a meeting tonight.

MOVEMENT TO AMEND TREATY OF VERSAILLES

LONDON, Dec. 21—(AP)—A strong movement has been launched in England to supplement similar efforts made in France this summer to eliminate articles 231 and 227 from the treaty of Versailles. These are the articles in which Germany acknowledges guilt for bringing on the war and which fix upon Germany the accusation of having committed offenses against international morality, the sanctity of treaties and the customs of war.

A petition has been signed by more than one hundred persons of eminence, including university professors, high dignitaries of the church and writers who declare that they have been deeply moved by the similar petition signed last July by one hundred French men and women of distinction. The petition says:

"We regard these two articles, which were forcibly imposed upon a defeated nation under the most terrible threats, as having expressed a state of mind in the allied and associated powers which has now largely passed away. We believe that they are manifestly unjust and constitute a grave obstacle to international understanding.

"Consequently we urge the governments concerned either to amend these articles with no further delay, or if amendment of the treaty prove too long and cumbersome a proceeding, to announce severally their intention to disregard them."

Among the signatories of the petition are Arnold Benett, Muirhead Bone, St. John Ervine, Sir Johnston Forbes, Robertson Lady Glaistone, Julian Huxley, J. Maynard Keynes, Gilbert Murray, George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells and Israel Zangwell.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Colonel William Mitchell testified before the Shenandoah court.

The senate debated the world court while the house discussed prohibition.

The administration's cooperative marketing bill was introduced in the senate and house.

Chesapeake and Ohio minority stockholders attacked the nickel plate merger plan.

An investigation of the British rubber monopoly was ordered by the house.

The south was given representation of the interstate commerce commission.

Extensive improvements for Pearl Harbor were recommended by a special house committee.

DISSATISFIED WITH THE MITCHELL COURTMARTIAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21—(AP)—Major Robert R. Morgan, reserve officer in the army quartermaster corps, today telegraphed the resignation of his commission to Washington, because of dissatisfaction over findings of the court martial that tried Colonel William Mitchell.

In his telegram Major Morgan accused the general staff of incompetency and said that "I have lost all respect for and care in my superiors that should be held by all soldiers."

Major Morgan said in the message his attitude was caused by "the Fabian policy displayed by the war department toward national defense." He termed the conduct of the Mitchell court martial as "asinine."

BAPTIST BUDGET FIXED AT $6,360,000 FOR THE YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—The finance committee of the Northern Baptist convention has approved a denominational budget of $6,360,000 for the fiscal year beginning May 1, 1926, $1,000,000 more than the budget of the current fiscal year, Dr. W. H. Bowler, executive secretary of the board of missionary cooperation, announced today.

Marked improvement in recent months in the missionary receipts of the denomination justified the increase, Dr. Bowler said upon his return from Chicago where the finance committee met.

HARRY C. SMITH TOLLAND COUNTY COMMISSIONER

HARTFORD, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Harry Conklin Smith, of Rockville, was appointed county commissioner for Tolland county today by Governor Trumbull, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of former Commissioner Rufus H. Leonard.

BANK ROBBERS GOT $30,000 CASH AND LIBERTY BONDS

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 21—(AP)—Armed men robbed the First National Bank at Strawn, southwest of here, of $30,000 in cash and Liberty bonds late today and escaped.

HOUSE TO INVESTIGATE CRUDE RUBBER PRICES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—A charge of "bad faith" was made against Great Britain today as the house ordered an investigation of alleged manipulation of crude rubber prices by the English colonial governments.

Representative Hull, of Tennessee, former chairman of the Democratic National committee, made the charges and declared England "is openly proclaiming that it intends to collect four billion dollars from us in increased rubber prices to pay its war debt."

The resolution ordering the investigation was approved without a record vote after a brief debate and Chairman Parker of the interstate commerce committee, which will conduct the inquiry, announced he would start hearings about January 5.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican leader, who proposed the investigation after a conference with Secretary Hoover, told the house that rubber consumers were paying $700,000,000 annual tribute to Great Britain because of its control of the rubber prices."

The scope of the resolution was increased to include besides rubber, investigation of monopolistic control of coffee, silk, nitrates, potash, quinine, iodine, tin, sisal, quicksilver, pulpwood and other "important raw materials."

The course of the investigation has not been outlined, but Chairman Parker indicated he would ask Secretary Hoover as well as some of the leading users of these products to appear before the committee.

The pulpwood phase involves relations between this country and Canada where a movement has been started to have the Canadian parliament establish an export duty on pulpwood from Canada to the United States.

WIDOW SEEKS TO OPEN WILL OF ROBERT W. SCOTT

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Dec. 21—(AP)—Saying she did not know her husband had died until her allowance of $350 monthly from him stopped, Mrs. Virginia C. Scott, widow of the late Robert W. Scott, wealthy knitting machinery inventor, began an effort today in Suffolk county surrogate court to open a decree admitting to probate her husband's will, from which she was excluded. She had been separated from her husband for nine years before his death last February.

Mrs. Scott alleged her husband was incompetent at the time he made his will and had been unduly influenced by Mrs. Ruth A. Eldridge, at whose home in New York he died. Mrs. Eldridge and her son, Robert W. Scott, Jr., adopted son of the millionaire, were among the principal beneficiaries of the $2,000,000 estate.

Attorneys for the estate said due notice of her husband's death had been mailed Mrs. Scott at her home in California. The wife's attorneys were given until Monday to file an answer to the defense at the close of today's hearing before Surrogate R. F. Pelletreau, who admitted the will to probate last April.

CHARGES AGAINST ALLING DISCUSSED BY JUDGES

HARTFORD, Dec. 21—(AP)—The charges against Arnon A. Alling, state's attorney of New Haven county, brought by women of that county charging him with drinking and frequenting places where liquor is alleged to have been sold, were discussed by judges of the supreme and superior courts when they met in New Haven today.

No statement as to the conclusions reached by the judges was made.

"There isn't anything to give out," said Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, when asked what action, if any, had been taken on the charges against Alling.

The charges against Alling were first made to the judges about three months now and have been the subject of investigation by them. They are before the judges because the judges have the power of appointment and removal of state's attorneys.

WINSLOW M. LOVEJOY WEDS MISS BETTY STODDARD

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Winslow M. Lovejoy, 1924 Yale football captain and son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Lovejoy, of Montclair, N. J., was married today at St. Thomas church to Miss Betty Stoddard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Stoddard.

The ceremony was performed by Bishop Ernest M. Stires, of Long Island, formerly rector of St. Thomas. Mrs. Hayden Smith, of Washington, a cousin of the bride, was matron-of-honor and Mr. Lovejoy's brother, Frederick Lovejoy, of Boston, was best man. The bride's father is an international polo star and president of the United States Polo association.

Appeal From Chile Has Been Received

Peruvian and Chilean Ambassadors Requested to Furnish Documents.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—Secretary Kellogg summoned the Peruvian and Chilean ambassadors to the state department late today to notify them formally of the receipt of Chile's appeal from the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission headed by General Pershing to President Coolidge, as arbitrator in the dispute.

The ambassadors also were requested to furnish the arbitrator certain documents, including speeches by their commissioners, and remarks before the commission at Arica.

The ambassador's whose governments have been at loggerheads for years over possession of the provinces, were received separately by the secretary. The appeal to the course of the plebiscitary commission with respect to the promulgation of voting regulations and the fixing of a date for the plebiscite.

FOUR YOUTHFUL BANDITS FACE HEAVY SENTENCES

BOSTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—Four youths ranging in age from 17 to 20 years, known as the "touring bandits" and the "roper gang," faced heavy sentences tonight. Three of the boys, Charles Mullen, 17, John Walsh, 20, and Frank Golding, 17, pleaded guilty today in superior court to an indictment charging robbery and Judge Bishop sentenced them to serve from 12 to 20 years in prison. The fourth, Charles Roper, 18 year old leader of the band was committed to the state hospital for insane criminals at Bridgewater as a "defective delinquent," and a "pathological liar."

Roper can never be paroled or pardoned, nor can he ever be freed otherwise unless a board of physicians testifies that he is normal and sane. The case of Roper recently caused a clash between Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, and State Representative John J. Fitzgerald. Goodwin charged that Roper had a lengthy criminal career and had been kept out of jail 15 times through the instrumentality of Representative Fitzgerald. Roper had told the police when he was arrested that he would not have to serve a day because he had a powerful political friend.

Three of the youths entered pleas of guilty today to the specific charge of robbing Charles W. Preston on November 28. Other counts are still pending.

STORMS AND COLD WEATHER IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 21—(AP)—Winter made its bow to the middle west officially tonight to the accompaniment of snow and moderately cold weather which weather forecasts indicated might be expected until Christmas.

While no severe cold was indicated, reports showed the moderate cold weather likely to continue over Wednesday. Tonight a covering of snow blanketed virtually all the mid-western states with cloudy skies, more snow flurries and variable winds predicted for tomorrow.

While snow has been general in the central states, little heavy damage was reported. Transportation facilities were not interfered with to any considerable extent, except where deep drifts blockd roads in some of the western states.

The storms and cold are traceable to three distinct disturbances, one centered over Ohio, another off the New England coast and the third in the Pacific ocean west of British Columbia.

SEX PLAYS ESPECIALLY ATTRACTIVE TO WOMEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—The popularity of sex plays lies in their attraction for women, Daniel Frohman, theatrical producer, is quoted as saying in an interview in the current issue of Collier's Weekly. All drama has sex appeal and must have this appeal to be popular, he said, but he would never produce a sex play "merely because of the matter sex."

Present day "stage boldness," according to Mr. Frohman, started when he presented Mr. and Mrs. Kendal in Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." Women attended furtively at first" and then stormed the theater when the play became fashionable.

"In my judgment," he said, "the sex for sex sake plays have been produced primarily because of their appeal to women. Many of them offend because they outrage good taste. Produce a play with good taste, no matter what intricate problem of sex it deals with, and you have sound, human drama—that is the art of the theater."

VIOLENT STORM ALONG THE COAST OF EUROPE

PARIS, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Violent winds in the channel and along the Atlantic coasts, have prevailed for several days and today swept over France. From various cities there are reports of the storm, while the melting snow and rising of the Grand Morin, one of the tributaries of the Seine, is causing alarm in Paris.

A heavy snowfall in the Alps is reported from Briancon, causing interruption of communications between that city and Grenoble for the last ten days, and of communications with Italy for four or five days.

VIGO, Spain, Dec. 21.—(AP)—A great storm raging along the coast has caused the closing of the port, thus holding ships in the harbor.

Three troop ships deferred sailings, the entire fishing fleet, which left at dawn, returned, while vessels anchored here were compelled to reinforce their anchorage, and many others sought refuge in port.

WOULD HAVE INAUGURATION OF PRESIDENTS IN JANUARY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—A constitutional amendment by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, to do away with "lameduck" congresses and provide for inauguration of presidents in January instead of March was reported today by the senate judiciary committee.

A new congress would begin its sessions in the January following its election, almost a year earlier than under the present arrangement.

The committee added a provision which would simplify the election of a president by the house in case of a tie in the electoral college.

To Permit Financing For Foreign Powers

Regardless of What Action Congress May Take on Debt Agreements.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—Foreign powers which have negotiated funding settlements here will be permitted to continue their financing in this country regardless of what action congress may take on the agreements, it was declared today at the treasury.

Officials see no reason for penalizing foreign nations or their citizens by refusal of loans in this country after they have entered into an agreement here upon apparent good faith.

This amplification of the administration's policy with respect to foreign loans was given in response to inquiries prompted by the slow progress being made toward ratification of the funding agreements in congress. The congressional situation has led some observers to believe that rejection of several of the settlements was a possibility, but it may be said that the treasury is confident of ultimate ratification of all of them.

The treasury recognizes that the foreign nations which have entered into funding agreements have acted in good faith, and it feels that if congress refuses to accept the terms which the American Debt commission thought were proper, there should be no action by the administrative authorities solely on that account.

Most of the agreements have been ratified by the foreign governments and similar action by the American congress is all that is needed to make them operative. Secretary Mellon regards the early approval of the settlements by the foreign governments as evidence of the sincerity of their purpose to carry them through.

Informal advices have been received from various quarters abroad indicating that large loans will be sought in the United States during the late winter and early spring. Some of them will be in the form of refunding operations for government account, while a larger number will come from industrial interests purposing to expand their facilities.

Mr. Mellon some time ago committed the treasury to the view that loans to the industrial interests should react to the benefit of the American government and citizens, inasmuch as any increase in the productivity of foreign industry would lead toward stabilization of world economic affair.

In setting forth their views respecting foreign financing, treasury officials made no mention of the French situation. Hints have been thrown out on several occasions of a tendency in some quarters to relax the restrictions against foreign nations which have not funded their debt but those indications were not confirmed by any official at the treasury, who insisted that the administration's policy remained unchanged with respect to the nations whose debts still are open accounts.

NO SPECIAL SESSION OF TEXAS LEGISLATURE

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 21—(AP)—Immediate prospects for a special session of the Texas legislature for investigation and possible impeachment of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson were quashed today by Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the state house of representatives.

Declaring that a special session of the legislature might complicate litigation started by Attorney General Dan Moody in connection with state highway contracts, Mr. Satterwhite declined to call the session as requested by more than fifty members of the house. Previously he had made known that the question of expenses for the legislators and any witn ses who might be summoned was a stumbling block.

The Texas statute provides that the speaker may call a special legislative session for investigation and impeachment only, and Attorney-General Moody ruled that such a session would lack authority to appropriate funds for expenses.

MOSUL PROBLEM WAS DISCUSSED IN COMMONS

LONDON, Dec. 21—(AP)—The Mosul problem occupied the attention of the house of commons today. The prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, introduced a motion seeking approval of the house on the action of Great Britain's representative at Geneva, and therefore approval of acceptance of the council of the league of nations award in the Anglo-Turkish dispute over that territory.

The laborites made strong objections to the motion, and eventually left the house. Mr. Baldwin, in defending his motion, argued that the government was only continuing the action taken by previous governments, including the labor administration of Ramsay MacDonald, which last September submitted an Irak treaty to the league, and he asked what would the world think of British professions of zeal for the league as an instrument of peace if Britain rejected the league's award.

FEAR DYNAMITING OF THE AMERICAN THREAD PLANT?

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21—Rumor was current here tonight that the officials of the American Thread Co. feared for the safety of the big plant in Willimantic, when the startling discovery was made that five cases of dynamite had been stolen from a shack at Hog's Pond near Phelp's crossing on the North Windham road. Dynamite was stored there by the Hurley-Grant hardware concern of this city and the theft was made some time between Friday and Monday by forcing a padlock. Enough dynamite to blow up a village was taken. Officials of the Thread Co. were thrown into a concerned state and deputies guarded the mills and company tenements during the night.

A strike was inaugurated at the Thread Mill last March.

MOVING PICTURES WERE SHOWN IN WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—One of the most elaborate moving picture entertainments given in the East room of the White House since the custom was established during the wilson administration, took place tonight, when a 23 piece orchestra was brought from New York for the occasion. President and Mrs. Coolidge invited a group of friends to view the production, a war picture, with them.

PROHIBITION IN THE HOUSE; WORLD COURT IN THE SENATE

Bill Introduced in House to Prohibit the Use of "Fraud, Deceit or Falsehood" by Prohibition Enforcement Officials in Securing Evidence—Senator Lenroot Gave Notice That After the Christmas Recess the World Court Issue Would Be Kept Continuously Before the Senate and Pressed to a Vote as Quickly as Possible.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Prohibition enforcement methods, which have been subject to vigorous attack recently, became a voting issue in the house today for the first time at this session.

Representative Tucker, democrat, Virginia, an avowed dry, initiated a move designed to prevent a repetition of the much-debated Hotel Mayflower incident, in which a dry agent masqueraded under the name of a member of congress to obtain evidence at a cost of more than $900 to the government.

The vehicle employed by Mr. Tucker was an amendment to the annual treasury-post office supply bill, which carries funds for dry law enforcement for the next fiscal year. A vote on the propisal was deferred until tomorrow.

The amendment, which was directed at a section of the bill making $250,000 available for procurement of evidence in the next fiscal year, would prohibit the use of "fraud, deceit or falsehood in the expenditure of any part of this sum.

Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee, which reported the bill, asked if the amendment was designed to prevent the purchase of evidence.

"If carried on by fraud or deceit, I say yes," replied Mr. Tucker.

When Mr. Madden interrupted again to ask if the amendment would prohibit an agent from stopping a truck on a highway and buying a "case" for evidence, he asserted that it was "intended to do what it says," calling attention that he had "stood for enforcement of the Volstead law and voted for appropriations to carry it out."

The amendment, as originally offered by Mr. Tucker, prescribed a punishment for any agent employing "fraud or deceit" in obtaining evidence. In this form, however, it was held out of order, and the punishment provision was eliminated.

Prior to the presentation of the amendment Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, recognized leader of the wet forces, succeeded in striking from the bill on a point of order, a provision to permit narcotic agents to use, on order of the court, motor vehicles confiscated in prohibition cases.

Mr. Hill contended the provision could not be carried in an appropriation bill without previous authorization, and, that if narcotic agents required automobiles, congress should provide the funds for their purchase.

Carrying on the general prohibition discussion that began last week, Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, asserted earlier in the session that successful enforcement could not be expected so long as Secretary Mellon had control of the machinery. He declared the secretary was not in sympathy with the law and therefore could not be expected to carry out a strict enforcement.

"I do not mean to criticize him," Mr. Blanton said, "if I went into that business, I'd probably feel the way he does."

He complimented Mr. Mellon as a financier without equal.

Representative Phillips, republican, Pennsylvania, also took a hand in the debate, declaring that "the lawless methods" of enforcing the Volstead act, and the "underhand" method used in gathering evidence in prohibition cases, had resulted "in crimes more shocking to th epublic conscience than the evasion of the law."

TO PRESS WORLD COURT ISSUE IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—After a third day of debate, notice was given today in the senate by Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, that after the Christmas recess, the world court proposal would be kept continuously before the senate and pressed to a vote as quickly as possible.

The Wisconsin senator, a leader of the administratoin forces working for ratification of the court protocol, said that whenever no senator was ready to speak on the subject, he would ask that the statute and the reservations be read for amendment and adoption.

American adhesion to the court was endorsed by two speakers, Senators Walsh, democrat, Montana, and Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania. The latter suggested three additional reservations relating to advisory opinions by the court. They would declare that the United States adhered to the protocol with the understanding that;

The rule and practice of the court would be against secret or confidential advisory opinions.

The signatory powers regard the decision of the majority of the court in the Easter Carelia case as the announcement of an acceptable and permanent policy against advisory opinions where one party to the case refuses to submit the question.

No advisory opinions shall be given on questions which directly concern the United States unless this country gives its consent.

TWO MEN MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT IN MERIDEN LAST NIGHT

MERIDEN, Dec. 21—(AP)—Two men were mysteriously and simultaneously shot here tonight in separate parts of the city.

Angelo Culmo, age about 25 years, of 35 Factory street, Ansonia, was shot twice, once through the left breast over the heart and once in the left hand, when two men pounced upon his car on the outskirts of the city near Undercliff sanitarium. He was found lying in the road by the driver of the truck belonging to that institution, who was on his way to the sanitarium.

He was taken to the Meriden hospital where his condition is thought to be serious. Police suspect bootlegging plot.

The other shooting occurred in the north part of the city. Ralph Macri, 34, of 74 Springdale avenue, was found lying on the sidewalk on Gracey avenue with a bullet in his chest, the shot having entered below the heart. He was found by his brother, Rocco Macri, who left home shortly after he did.

He was brought to the hospital where X-rays are being taken to determine the seriousness of his wound. Macri is married and is the father of three children. Police are working on circumstances revealed when Macri was previously allied closely with a shooting affair involving a love triangle. An arrest is expected tonight.

No evidence of the gunmen was found on either scene. Both were shot, according to reports, at about 7.15 o'clock.

"DAPPER DON" COLLINS ARRESTED IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—(AP)—"Dapper Don" Collins, well known figure in police circles thruout the country, was arrested as a "suspicious person" here today. He will be given a hearin tomorrow.

When arrested, Collins, whose name was mentioned in connection with several fatal shootings, a jewel robbery, and who was recently freed on a rum-running charge told officers who arrested him that he was on his way to visit George W. Coles, United States attorney, "concerning some trunks of mine which the federal officials seized some time ago."

Collins' arrest was but one of many made today by police in a pre-Christmas "round up" of known criminals and others whose actions arouse suspicion of the authorities.

HELD IN $5,000 BONDS ON RUM RUNNING CHARGE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 21—(AP)—Joseph Scarbrough of this city, was held in $5,000 bonds by a justice in Granby, Conn., today on a charge of transporting 200 gallons of alchol while John Zanetti and Robert Pasquale, also of this city, were held in $500 for having an automobile with mutilated engine number. Scarbrough was arrested by Constable Hotchkiss of Granby Saturday when his car broke down there and the constable investigated its contents. The other two were taken when they drove a car to the assistance of Scarbrough from this city. State police of Massachusetts and Connecticut are further investigating the case.

STATE TREASURY BOOKS NOT "FIXED" BY GILPATRIC

HARTFORD, Dec. 21—(AP)—A report flatly contradicting that of Hadfield, Rothwell and Saule, certified public accountants, that state treasury books showed evidences of having been "fixed" by Former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric to conceal his alleged misuse of state funds, was made by Deputy State Treasurer Thomas H. Judd at a conference today with Governor Trumbull and Attorney General Healy.

Mr. Judd had returned from an investigation in Boston and elsewhere during which he traced the course of Liberty bonds bought by the state of Connecticut through the First National Bank of Putnam of which Gilpatric was cashier. At the same time, Attorney General Healy had carried or an investigation of the legal phases of a claim that these Liberty bonds were bought by Gilpatric with stolen funds, during which investigation, Mr. Healy interviewed Walter Gilpatric, New York lawyer and brother of the defaulting banker.

On the strength of their investigations, it was concluded at today's conference that the state has in its treasury no bonds that it is not legally entitled to have.

Further than to make an announcement to that effect, Governor Trumbull declined to comment after today's conference. Attorney General Healy was quoted as saying: "If there are any claims against the state, they will have to be made through the courts. Personally, I don't believe any such claims will be made. The state got exactly what it paid for."

It was intimated that, having satisfied themselves that the state's bond holdings are legal, the state officials were agreed that they would be remiss in their duty if they were to give up funds in the state treasury on any authority short of a court order.

FIGHTING HAS CEASED ON THE YANGTSON FRONT

LONDON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—After a twenty-four hours' artillery duel ending Sunday night on the Yangtsur front, the fighting ceased, says the Daily Mail correspondent with the Chinese armies, Feng Yu-Hsiang, head of the national people's army, apparently made a final attempt to force the positions held by the troops of General Li Ching-Ling, civil governor of Chihli province, but failed.

Feng's losses are described as tremendous, the plains being covered with dead.

POST OFFICE FORCE KEYED TO BIG HOLIDAY EFFORT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21—Thirty or more clerks and carriers are being kept on the jump at the local postoffice since the start of the annual Christmas rush, which dates back several days. From Postmaster Frank M. Smith down to the special delivery boys, the entire force will be kept running to full percentage capacity to handle perhaps the heaviest Christmas mail business in local history. The rush of work is accelerated, due to the fact that there will be no city or rural deliveries Christmas Day and in addition the local postoffice is handling shipments of Christmas mail from the Hartford transfer point. Sunday afternoon Train No. 122 brought in 200 sacks of parcel post matter which was hauled to the postoffice in five trips by Mail Messenger Leroy C. Frederickson. Sunday morning some 50 sacks of mail arrived in the Norwich trolley along with shipments received Monday morning on trains from Hartford and New London. The office employes started out early Monday to sort the mail for the nine routes of the city. A five-ton auto truck was added to the truck in regular commission and Parcel Post Carrier Dennis F. Haggerty was given John Haggerty and Arthur H. Arnold as assistants. Norman Pultz was given charge of the regular parcel post delivery truck. That Postmaster Smith's request for early mailing was heeded to a considerable extent was manifest in the fact that an immense quantity of mailing matter was received two days previous to the usual arrival in former years.

Miss Gladys Hanson, daughter of Mrs. E. J. Hanson of 4 High street and William D. Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Potter of Moosup were married at the Methodist parsonage at one o'clock Monday afternoon by Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, the pastor. The double ring service was used. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Alice Hanson. Harry Potter, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore a gown of Alice blue canton crepe and a hat to correspond. Miss Alice Hanson was attired in pencil blue canton crepe with hat to match. At the home of the bride's mother later, dinner was served to members of the families and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Potter left later in the day on their honeymoon journey. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

E. A. WINTER MAY SELL HOTEL HOOKER TO N. H. BANK

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21—The Hotel Hooker, one of the best known hotels in New England in former years, is about to undergo another change of ownership, it was learned Monday, when E. A. Winter of this city arrived at an oral agreement with the Manchester Savings Bank of Manchester, N. H., for the purchase of the property. After figuring in a series of litigation proceedings for about two years the hostelry was taken over, December 7, by the Manchester Savings bank, as the result of a fore-closure action decided in favor of the bank at a sitting of the Windham county superior court in this city recently. The bank held mortgages estimated at $50,000 on the property. The legal actions against the hotel owners started shortly after the closing of the property by the Pillsbury family to Chicagoans.

Mr. Winter states that if the oral agreement with a representative of the bank is carried out to his satisfaction, he will sign papers for the purchase within a few days. Mr. Winter is a former owner of the hotel, having been engaged in the hotel business for the last 35 or 40 years. In 1908 he bought the Hotel Hooker from the late Chauncey Hooker and conducted it successfully for eight years.

John Collins, 70, who appeared in old time varieties shows as Tom Collins, champion harmonica soloist of the world and famous stump speaker, was taken to the town of Windham Poorhouse Monday following his discharge from St. Joseph's hospital where he had been recovering from an injury to his right foot. Several weeks ago a four-foot stick of wood fell on Collins' foot and he had been in the hospital since that time. For the time being he is a guest of Supt. Henry W. Chamberlain at the almshouse and later the selectmen of the town will reach a decision in his case as a question has arisen as to whether Windham or Chaplin is responsible for his support. Collins had bene a resident of Chaplin some years, but due to his advanced years had had difficulty of late to find employment. He was born in Norwich 70 years ago but had resided in this vicinity for over half a century. He lived alone in a small house in Chaplin for the past seven years. Collins still loves to "tickle" the harmonica and while in the hospital he delighted patients and nurses with his music.

With amazing rapidity workmen have whipped off the gutted third story of the Windham National Bank building which was visited by fire early Tuesday morning of last week and today the second story, which marks the new height of the repaired building is already reroofed. 3,500 square feet of roofing was laid in one day by twenty-five carpenters and helpers and the building is now safe from invasion by snow or rain. With favorable weather the second story will be quickly faced with limestone to match the first floor and the interior work of making the second story a part of the bank establishment will go on without a halt.

An impressive Christmas service was held at the First Congregational church at 4:30 Sunday afternoon. A quartet, Mrs. G. E. Williams, Mrs. R. G. Remington, Harry W. Standish and Arthur L. Clark sang What Child Is This? and Bethlehem Land. The male chorus of fifteen voices sang the familiar carols God Rest You Merry Gentlemen and We Three Kings. This was followed by the old Christmas song Good King Wenceslas, sung antiphonally by the male chorus and a chorus of young women. The choir and congregation joined in other carols. In other parts of the program Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock read passages of scripture to interpret the Christmas story. At the climax of the service the candles were lighted as the auditorium was thrown into darkness. The pastor lighted his candle from the altar and passed the light on to six deacons who spread it about to the congregation. When all the candles were lighted the people left the church in silence, carrying the candles on to their homes, to symbolize Him who is the Light of the World.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Jones were held from her home 64 Maple avenue Monday morning. In the solemn mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock, Rev. Henry E. Quinn was celebrant, Rev. Paul Bartlewski deacon and Rev. Charles M. Kelly, sub-deacon. Miss L. Monica McKeon and Arthur Roy sang Nearer My God to Thee as the body was borne into the church. At the offertory Miss McKeon sang Pie Jesu and Mr. Roy was heard in O Meritum at the consecration. The waiting hymn was "Farewell," by Mr. Roy. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance was at the organ. Attending in a body were members of St. Anne's Charitable Society of which Mrs. Jones was a member. The bearers were four nephews: Lawrence, Raymond, George and Raymond Noonan, of Manchester. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Kelley read the committal prayers. Relatives and friends were present from Benton Harbor, Mich., Hartford, New Haven, Waterbury, Manchester, Norwich, New London and Westerly, R. I.

Arnold Baunberger, 71, died at his home in Hebron Monday morning, after a long illness. He was born in Switzerland, March 19, 1854, a son of Jobert and Sally Boucher Baunberger. He leaves his wife and two sons, Rudolph of Hartford and Arnold Jr., of New Haven; two daughters, Miss Frieda Baunberger and Mrs. Emma Doubleday of Hartford; three brothers, residing in Switzerland and in the states of Washington and New York respectively and four sisters, two residing in California, one in Glastonbury, Conn., and one in this city.

Patrick Finn, 63, who died at his home, 21 Mill street, Greenfield, Mass., Friday from angina pectoris was a former resident of Hampton. The funeral was held from the home in Greenfield Monday morning followed by church services with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery this city at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Killourey Brothers had charge of the arrangements.

Funeral services for Mrs. Louis H. Ingraham were held Monday afternoon at one o'clock at the family home, 105 Pleasant street. Rev. Andrew S. Muirhead officiating. The bearers were Henry A. Bugbee, Ralph Burchnall, Eugene Hanna and Arthur J. Hanna. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. The J. C. Lincoln company had charge of the arrangements.

Funeral services for Mrs. Marietta Maria Bissell were held at her home in Hebron at two o'clock Monday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Malcolm officiating. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery, Hebron. The bearers were Frank Bissell, George Bissell, Winthrop Porter and William Syms. Avery and Van Zandt had charge of the arrangements.

Sophomore players snappily presented Teeth of a Gift Horse, at the Windham High school auditorium Monday forenoon, before the entire student body. The cast was: Florence Butler, Elizabeth McIntosh; Anna Risher, Ruth Clauson; Dexter Butler, Howard Reynolds; Devlin Blake, Kerman Lavigne; Kate, a maid, Helen Klososki; Aunt Marietta, Avia Kenfield. President John Nichols opened the meeting and Miss Bunny Thompson, secretary, read the minutes. Miss Janet Scripture announced the cast of the play.

A proud cedar, standing nearly forty feet was placed in full view of every portion of the business section, at Lincoln Square Monday. The tree is Willimantic's municipal Christmas tree and will be illuminated with five hundred vari-colored electric lights every night during holiday week. The tree was selected by Justice of the Peace Eugene E. Hickey, who was appointed by Mayor John C. Tracy to make the choice.

Roland S. Utley who left this city two and one-half years ago and went to reside in Eeau Claire, Wisconsin has climbed from the position of salesman to that of vice president of the Steven and Utley Lumber company which, up to recently was the Steven and Jarvis Lumber company. Mr. Jarvis sold out his interests and was succeeded by Mr. Utley.

Considerable damage resulted at 11:30 o'clock Monday forenoon when a Chevrolet car owned and driven by Raymond J. Moon, of 603 East Main street, South Manchester and a Buick touring car owned and driven by Herman Prag, 60 Maple avenue, this city, collided, at the intersection of Bank and Main street. Officer Peter Marrotte investigated the accident and took no action when Moon stated that he would settle all damage.

Charles A. Grant, a former resident of this city, was elected president of the New England Association of Railroad Veterans which held its annual meeting in Puritan Hall, Boston, Sunday afternoon.

Chief of Police Allan McArthur received a check of $100 Monday, the annual Christmas gift of the Rossie Velvet company, which is applied to the local police department's pension fund.

REV. AND MRS. F. C. WILLIAMS PRESENTED GIFT AND MONEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21—Parishioners of St. Paul's Episcopal church in this city and Windham Center gathered at the parish house Friday evening to express their appreciation of the rector and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Frederick C. Williams. The affair grew out of the medieval pageant participated in by a large part of the parish, directed by Mrs. Williams. Following the program of music and speaking, William E. Higgins on behalf of the parish, presented the rector and Mrs. Williams a beautiful buffet and a purse of money. In the purse was a note which bexan: "Your people of this parish and the Woman's Guild of St. Paul's church, Windham, have taken this time and means to show in a substantial manner something of their appreciation of our rector and his wife."

Rev. and Mrs. Williams responded saying that they appreciated the gifts and the spirit of co-operation and good will which prompted them. The program was followed by the serving of ice cream, cake and cocoa.

Wrinkles Disappear in Fifteen Minutes!

If you want to see wrinkles, age lines and sagginess completely disappear from your face in less than 15 minutes, just mix a spoonful of powdered tarkroot with a spoonful of lemon juice. Apply this soothing mixture to your face. Before your very eyes, while you watch in the mirror, the ugly marks of age will disappear like magic. It is most startling. Behold, now, what you looked like when young! Watch the "sagginess" correct itself! Enjoy the strange, delicious sensation of stimulation, support and plump, smooth firmness!

When you wash off the application, your face looks years younger. The effect is far better than that of a face massage. Tarkroot is so harmless you could eat it. From your druggist you can obtain a package containing enough to bring the cost of each treatment down below three cents.

GRREEK AND LATIN SHOW POPULARITY GAIN IN SCHOOLS

URBANA, Ill, Dec. 21, (AP)—Greek and Latin may be dead languages, but they show surprising vigor in resisting efforts to have them shoved off the college curriculum in favor of "practical" subjects, says H. V. Canter, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, University of Illinois.

Reports from widely separated sections of the country, he states, indicates a steady increase both in the secondary schools and in the colleges, of students taking these courses.

Coincident with this, is an urgent call for teachers of classical subjects and an inadequate supply of prepared teachers to answer the call.

"Last year," Dean Canter continues, "the demand for such teachers could not be met in New York, Missouri, Texas, Indiana, Iowa, Illinois and Ohio."

WINE SPILLED AT DINNER KING'S "GOOD LUCK" SIGN

An American senator travelling in the Balkans was invited to dine with one of the ruling monarchs. The American being of a somewhat nervous temperament, it is easy to imagine his dismay when, as toasts were proposed, his champagne glass slipped from his hand and the contents were spilt over the tablecloth. His royal host, however was more than equal to the occasion. He immediately touched the spot on the tablecloth with his fingers rubbed some of the spilt wine on the back of his ear and exclaimed, "You have brought good luck on my house!" As a matter of fact, the King was prompted by an superstitution. It is a well known slav saying that if wine is spilled by a guest good luck will attend the house.

MINK TAKEN IN KILLINGLY OF EXTRA FINE QUALITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 21—Numbers of mink have been taken within the limits of the town of Killingly and in neighboring towns during the present trapping season. Of interest is the declaration that mink caught in this vicinity are regarded as about the best in quality to be found in the eastern states. The mink hereabouts are particularly dark and are highly prized by manufacturers of fur garments. One dealer in town has supplied a number of mink this season to a Boston concern that has an order for a particularly fine mink coat.

PACO COMPANY EMPLOYES TO HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 21—A Christmas tree party for several hundred employes of a manufacturing concern is to be a novelty of the present Christmas season in Danielson. It is to take place Thursday afternoon at the Main street plant of the Paco Manufacturing company and is being looked forward to with pleasant anticipation by all who are to participate in it. The party will be a real Christmas eve event and will start at 5 o'clock.

During Sunday night the death of Mrs. Marie H. Duval, 73, a native of Canada, but many years resident in this country, occurred at the home of her son, Alexander, on Tiffany street, West Side. Mrs. Duval leaves her husband, Jaspard, four sons and two daughters.

It was stated Monday that up to that time F. S. Kennedy, owner of the building so badly damaged by fire at Dayville Saturday evening, had not definitely determined what action he would take as as to rebuilding the structure. It is very badly damaged and the loss upon it is well toward the value of the entire building insofar as replacement cost is concerned.

There is continued agitation for a revision of parking regulations in certain parts of the business area of the borough. Advocates of the changes contend that removal of the trolley cars has so changed the situation that certain revision in the rules can be made without working a hardship on anyone. The proposed changes would liberalize the rules. The subject is one that likely will be before the warden and and court of burgesses at some meeting in the near future.

Monday afternoon funeral services for Mrs. Laura A. Spaulding were conducted at her home on Main street by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Numbers of relatives and friends attended the service. Mrs. C. Alton Frost, soprano soloist at a Baptist church in Cambridge, sang Face to Face, All the Way My Saviour Leads Me, and For All the Saints. The bearers were Clifford H. Starkweather, Everett Colvin, John W. Gallup and John Moran. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery, Central Village. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The town hall is being devoted to a special purpose this week. Opening off that section of the building occupied for postal headquarters here, it is being used for sorting parcel post during the rush of Christmas week. The post office has insufficient space in which to expeditiously handle such a mass of parcel post as is now being sorted each day, so the big hall comes into service, as it did during the Christmas week of last year. It would appear that the postal business here during the present Christmas season will surpass all previous records at the Danielson office.

It behooves business men to keep a close watch for shoplifters during the holiday season. There is evidence that they have been at work in Danielson the past week and that they have managed to get away with merchandise for which they did not pay. With the crowds that are now being served during busy periods in the stores, it is difficult to detect shoplifters at work, but knowledge that they are about and special vigilance will help a great deal in discovering such dishonest people.

Those who were burned out in the fire at Dayville, Saturday night, are reestablishing themselves. Gladys Mills, who lost all her household goods, is making her home with her mother at Dayville. Bert Long, another tenant in the burned building, has gone to East Killingly to live. Mrs. George Barnes and members of her household are for the present staying with Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Kennedy. For the time being teats for the French table company, which had an office in the burned building, are being made by the company representative at Dayville, from a pole along which the lines run.

Providing the weather is not of great severity, there will be a great throng of people abroad in Danielson, Christmas eve, to witness the Community Christmas tree festivities on Davis park. Arrangements for this event have been carefully planned and worked out under the auspices of Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion. The tree will be brilliantly lighted. Music will be by the Dayville band and carol singers will be heard. After the exercises on the park the carol singers will go about singing in various parts of the borough. It has been suggested that homes about the borough be illuminated during the time the exercises at the park are going on and during the going about of the carol singers.

As is the custom each year, inmates at the town farm and at the county jail in Brooklyn will share in the joy of the Christmas holiday. Arrangements are under way to make the inmates happy by serving them special dinners and in other ways recalling that a happy period of the year is at hand.

PUTNAM

NUISANCE OF GOODS WHICH ARE SENT UNASKED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 21—The people of Putnam have become accustomed to the questionable methods employed by certain firms in sending unasked a consignment of products through the mails with the request that the recipient mail a check covering the amount of the sale price. Usually it has been a sample lot of men's neckwear, or men's shirts, or at Christmas a box of Greeting cards.

In the letter that accompanied these shipments it was stated that if, for any reason, consignee did not wish to keep the goods the return postage had been guaranteed. But in the past ten days the city has been flooded with bundles of tissue paper, many colored and of various sizes including a roll of gummed tape. The package required eight cents postage, but there was no return postage inclosed. On the circular that came with the paper was the following clause:

"If, by any chance, you do not want the assortment at only $1.00, place label enclosed over your address and remail to us. For your trouble and postage you may keep the gummed tape, a fifteen cent article not found in stores."

The pacake is a bulky one and to remail means more or less trouble but to ask the people who receive it to pay the postage of eight cents and take for their trouble and expense a roll of tape which was not asked for and is probably wanted by few, is unbusinesslike, unfair, and is possibly a violation of the post office laws.

There is one package which will not be returned if the necessary postage is not forthcoming. It is an objectionable custom and people here think it should be discountanced by the public and prohibited by the postal authorities.

WEDDING
Adelman-Leclair

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 21—Miss Arline D. Leclair was united in marriage by Rev. C. F. Bedard at St. Mary's rectory this morning with Martin M. Adelman, of Hartford. After a wedding trip they will make their home in Hartford, where the groom is engaged in the wholesale drygoods business. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. A. Leclair of Mill street. She was formerly chief clerk of the French River Textile company, of Hartford. Since the organization of the Citizens National bank, a little more than a year ago, she has been a member of its clerical force. She is very popular here and her wedding presents were unusually handsome.

Thursday evening, December 24, Grand Master Alfred L. Lilley and other grand officers will be with Israel Putnam lodge in this city on their official visit to this district. No. 76, in this district are included the local lodge, Quinebaug No. 34 of Danielson and Protective No. 37 of Central Village. The Grand Officers will discuss with local members matters of importance to every Odd Fellow in the state. A chicken supper is to be served at nine o'clock.

The following officers of Putnam Grange will be installed next month: Master, Mrs. Julia Dow; overseer, Stanley Johnson; lecturer, Mrs. Minnie K. Sharple, steward, Arthur Metcalf; assistant steward, Fred Moriarty; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian Lashway; secretary, Mrs. Victoria Durand; gatekeeper, Glen Dow; ceres, Mrs. Maud Bulger; Pomona, Mrs. Edith LePire; Flora, Mrs. Deline Mongeon; lady assistant steward, Miss Alice Willis. The grange is to hold a meeting December 28 which will be a Christmas party for the children connected with the Grange. There will be a Christmas tree and a Santa Claus.

Announcements have been received of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Cotton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barnett S. Cotton of Worcester to Benjamin E. Kurzman of Main street, Putnam. An engagement reception was held at the home of Miss Cotton in Worcester, on Sunday, December 20.

At the December meeting of North Grosvernordale St. Jean Baptist society the following officers were elected: President, Omer Loiselle vice president, Theodore Desilet; secretary Henri Carien; treasurer, Raoul Blanchette; perceptor, Philip Coderre.

Every member of Quinnatisset Grange, Thompson has been asked to give a ten cent present to be hung on the Christmas tree at a party to be held at the next meeting. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the celebration is Alexander Maitland, J. J. Bernklow and Miss Marion Bates. Parent-teachers' association for the

For selling the most tickets for the recent entertainment the first prize of $5 has been awarded the Seventh grade room in Israel Putnam school. The second prize of $2.50 went to Miss Ballard's room at the Smith street school. In the seventh grade Henry Tuttle sold the most tickets.

The Sunnyside Club is to meet at the home of Miss Edith Bowen on Laurel street Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock to fill baskets for shut-in friends and plan for their distribution.

During the past week Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, Jr., has been substituting in the commercial department at the High school for the regular teacher, Miss Bender, who has been ill.

At a meeting of the Junior class of the Putnam High school last week it was decided to hold the junior prom January 29.

The Tourtelotte Memorial High school at North Grosvernordale closed Friday afternoon for the Christmas holidays. The Putnam schools, public and parochial, do not close until Wednesday afternoon.

Elmer Moriarty who underwent a serious operation at the Day Kimball hospital a few days ago is much improved and gives every indication of a quick recovery. He is able to sit up and is steadily regaining his strength.

Sunday was observed as Christmas Sunday at the Methodist church. At the morning service there was special music by the organist, Mrs. Ellsworth Wilcox, also Christmas anthems by the choir. The Christmas concert was held in the church at 7 o'clock in the evening. The program follows: Opening exercises by the school, anthem "Calm as the Night" by the choir.

Primary department: We Wish You a Merry Christmas, Martha Shaw, Edith Evans, Grace Mansfield; recitations, Russell McNally and Raymond Smith; "A Song of Christmas," Margaret Evans; "A Christmas Song," Barbara Fox; recitation, Bertha Smith; "Wishes," Junior Devine, Russell King, William Stockdale, Francis Warren.

Junior department: Song, Miss Nichols's class; "Santa on the Train," Wilma Taylor; "Little Brother of All," Sylvia Miller and Zillah Evans; "The Little Christ Child," Merrill Hughes; "Santa Claus," Winifred Litchfield.

Intermediate department: "A Gift for the King," Elizabeth Hughes; "Christmas Questions," Dorothy Harvey; "The Christmas Song," Dorothy Harvey; Christmas Everywhere," Elizabeth Winslow; "Carry Christmas Through the Year," Rose DeCarlo.

Miss Frances Toohill sang and a short play, 'Have You Room for Me" was given by the following: Child, Arthur Watson; mother, Miss Phoebe Franklin; father, Wilfred Winslow; boy, Nelson King, girl, Juliette DeCarlo.

The Christmas tree and exercises will be held Christmas night in the church parlors.

Miss Esther Roure of School street has gone to Burlington Vermont to spend the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Elsa Rouse Durfee.

Judge George E. Hinman, of Willimantic, who has presided in court in Putnam was the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the Litchfield County Bar association.

Ensign W. J. F. Rafferty is at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Rafferty of Grove street, for the holidays. He is attached to the S. S. Utah now at Charleston Navy Yard but has been on detached duty for the past three months having just completed a course in the hanging of torpedoes at Newport, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Justin S. Greene were visitors at Providence today.

Miss Bertha Child and Miss Edith Child, both students at Simmons college in Boston are at their home on South Main street for the Christmas holidays.

Miss Sarah Barber, a junior at Connecticut college, New London, is at home with her mother, Mrs. W. R. Barber for the holidays.

RESTORE RIVERS TO OLD BEDS TO AID CHINA'S EDUCATION

PEKING, Dec. 20—Superstition has caused Kuo Chuen-yen, a Hongkong millionaire, to donate $200,000 for the restoration of two rivers to their original channels.

At Ni-Shan in Shantung province, birthplace of Confucius, the Chu and Sze are silting up thus, according to superstition, being responsible for a gradual decline in classical learning in China.

Mr. Kuo therefore decided to assist classical education by having the streams dredged and returned to their original beds.

RAILROAD TRESPASSERS

For those who are disposed to walk on the railroad tracks, or those whose children are in the habit of playing on such railroad property, there cannot be too thoughtful attention given to the statement which has been issued by the New Haven road concerning those who have been killed while trespassing on such dangerous places.

When it is shown that "exactly half of the fatalities on the New Haven system occurred to trespassers on railroad property" during the period of July, August and September there prevails therein not only a fair warning for the future, but the best of evidence that many of the railroad fatalities are needless and directly attributable to personal negligence.

The habit of using railroad property for highway purposes is as old as the hills, but that doesn't eliminate the danger. The public of course has no right on such property and it is necessary to carry on campaigns of prosecution in order to force individuals to protect themselves. But no stronger evidence of the need of keeping out of the path of engines and cars ought to be required on the part of the adults than the record of those who have been killed through disregarding their own safety.

Likewise nothing should force parents to give heed to the playgrounds of their children more than the same record of fatalities, where children have been killed while sitting on the tracks or walking in front of the locomotive. Children may be expected to continue to throw their lives away in that manner as long as their parents permit them to seek such places to play. The fact that they may live near the railroad doesn't justify the neglect that endangers their lives. It should in fact serve as all the greater warning of the peril that must be avoided by keeping the youngsters off the tracks and out of railroad yards.

If the lessons of the deplorable fatalities do not serve to better the situation there is certainly little that the railroads can do for greater safety.

DISARMAMENT

What this country is going to do in regard to the invitation of the league of nations to participate in an international conference to consider disarmament is still an open question. As yet it hasn't been accepted and it hasn't been turned down. Congress hasn't been directly asked to authorize the president to accept and name representatives, and it hasn't acted one way or the other. Neither has President Coolidge decided to do as he pleases regardless of the wish of congress, though there seems to be no question but what he can name unofficial observers without encroaching upon any congressional rights.

In his message he pointed out the difference between participating in an international naval conference and one that is concerned solely with the reduction of the military forces. We have followed the policy, as the president pointed out, of keeping out of such affairs when they involved Europe alone unless our assistance was requested.

Our army certainly does not constitute a menace to any nation. Other nations will have to do much curtailing before they get their army down to the relative army strength of this country, but inasmuch as disarmament is a movement in which we are deeply interested and in which it can be said that we took a leading part we might at least be expected to lend our moral support in the cause of general disarmament. We are not obliged to tell Europe what it must do. What we have done or are doing speaks for itself.

In the discussion which will occupy the time of the preliminary disarmament conference and at which a programme for the actual conference is expected to be mapped out this country will welcome whatever progress can be made. We are of course interested in the effort and our hope will be that it will succeed as a continuation of the steps that have already been taken in behalf of European and international peace. Disarmament is in the air and it is to be hoped that nothing will stand in the way of its ultimate accomplishment.

USING THE ROADS

Motor busses we have with us, and we are going to continue to have them. The number will be greater before it is less, but that doesn't mean that they have been given rights in the highways which are greater than possessed by others, and the fact that they are engaged in a transportation business and supposed to run on schedules does not give them rights as to speed and highway rules which are denied the drivers of pleasure cars.

Inasmuch as they use the common highway they must expect to make the best of the conditions that prevail without being permitted rights of way and special privileges. They must take their turn the same as others and they can hardly be regarded as having the right to speed, in order to keep up with their schedule, any more than any other car.

Out in Indiana the situation has apparently developed where the busses which are limited by law to a speed five miles slower than the pleasure cars, have been disregarding that regulation in order to make up for delays which they have been subjected to. That may be the common practice of transportation lines where a right of way exists and where there is no endangering of other transportation or an encroachment on the rights of others. But when it comes to speeding, crowding or cutting in by the busses it is evident that there is no more justification for it than there would be, for the big trucks to follow a similar course.

If here are handicaps to motor bus operation on the public highways they must be accepted, or advantage taken of the alternative of providing private lines of travel in the highway, and those will exist as long as he is being taxed to build and maintain them, it will be necessary for transportation lines to respect them. Only by so doing can there be maintained the proper degree of safety and the adequate protection of all users of the roads as well as all patrons of the bus lines.

CUTTING THE TAXES

When Congressman Rainey talks about tax reduction being put through by a well oiled machine, he undertakes to create the impression that no regard is being paid to requirements or the conditions that prevail, that there is a determination and the necessary strength to jam it through and that course is being followed.

The passage of the bill through the house has been rapid but it was because there is a nationwide demand for tax reduction and the belief exists on the part of the big majority of the members of the house that the measure which has been drafted by the ways and means committee is a sound and scientific one and ought to prevail. That being the case they are anxious to eliminate all needless delay in giving it their approval and giving the senate all the time possible for dealing with it.

One thing is certain, Mr. Rainey is not going to give the bill a black eye by declaring that it was put through by the machine. The measure is nonpartisan, it meets conditions and it has received opposition in the house only from that element which can be expected to be against what the majority stands for. With the Wisconsin members lined up solidly against it, is there any surprise that practically all the rest of the house was for it?

The real unfortunate part of it is that the bill is not going to get as quick treatment in the senate. There plans are already developed for hampering its passage and the disposition exists among certain ones to disregard the public demand for tax reduction in a manner that will bring relief and not furnish an embarrassment for the treasury department in the months that are to come. Tax reduction that means a deficit is not wanted.

MEXICO LOOKING UP

For years attention has been repeatedly called to the fact that Mexico was neglecting its opportunities, that the country was more interested in revolutionary activities than in peaceful business and industrial pursuits and that it would never succeed in rising from its position until the belligerent spirit was subdued or discarded.

Under its last two presidents Mexico has indicated a studied reform. The ability to keep down the revolutions has turned attention in other directions. There is more confidence in the government and while there are laws which still serve to handicap the country the tendency is toward a realization of the possibilities which have been frequently pointed out.

Speaking in this country Professor Carl Lopez declares that Mexico is devoting itself to agriculture and that banditry is a thing of the past. It is putting down new railroad tracks, building hard surfaced roads and introducing modern agricultural implements. This means that new influences are at work, and that for the time being the mistakes of the past are being appreciated.

If such a policy can but be continued for a generation or two Mexico will be a decidedly different country for along with it will go education and steady development, an in such a forward movement Mexico is bound to get the encouragement and assistance of other countries. Mexico can expect to get much help directly and indirectly by the restoration of confidence of other nations. Mexico is looking up instead of down.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A Christmas tree means a great deal more this week than it will a month from now.

Some of the hard things being said about soft coal are coming from those interested in hard coal.

The man on the corner says: If daddy hasn't tried all the mechanical toys already he will before the week is over.

When the president of the miners talks about continuing the strike till the fall of 1926 or the spring of 1927 there is an excellent tip to the producers and users of substitutes.

If that hike from Providence to Boston results in increasing interest in walking it will be a great thing for the many who think they must jump into an auto to cross the street.

The Pennsylvania legislature called into special session for next month has enough controversial matters before it to keep the talkfest going till next summer without reaching the coal strike problem.

One college professor says there are 10,000,000 morons and 25,000,000 dullards in this country. Perhaps that's why so many foreign agitators are anxious to land here and begin preaching their dangerous doctrines.

With the governor of Massachusetts declaring there will be no pardons this Christmas, as it is a bad time to be coddling criminals, his sentiments may well be shared by some governors who apparently have felt otherwise.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21—Congress will take a 13 day recess beginning tomorrow and running till January 4th. This is partly to give the senate a chance to fully organize its committees and get them in working condition although many senators who are not pressed with committee responsibilities will go home to spend the holidays with their families.

The house has beaten all records by passing the new tax bill before the recess, and sending it to the senate. Moreover the house will push through the post office and other measures at an early date, and so clear the field for legislation other than financial.

Though all will not find as smooth sailing as did the tax bill, which is recognized as bi-partisan to a degree, it is not expected there will be much controversy over legitimate bills, but that matters like the Mitchell case and several put in under controversial lineups will take much time in debate. Chairman Green of the ways and means committee is being congratulated on his wisdom in allowing no delay in getting that measure passed, for had it been set aside and controversial matters intervened there is no telling how personal animosity might have interferred with its passage.

Floor leader Tilson is making good by leaps and bounds. He has been on the floor every minute of the sessions, has put a fine programme in shape and is working tirelessly to have the administration bills come to the front and win by a good majority.

When the modification of the Volstead act comes up later on, it will be found that the women members of the house will support it. Mrs. Kahn of California, republican, has already made her course known in interviews and home declarations; Mrs. Norton, democrat, has gone a step farther and come out with a printed statement that not only will she advocate a modification but that by her course she hopes to induce others to be equally honest in expressing their genuine sentiments on the subject; Mrs. Rogers of Massachusetts, republican, does not wish to make a declaration of her stand until the matter is before the house, feeling until it is up for consideration she is not called on to do so, but it seems to be pretty well understood that she will also vote for a modification.

There isn't much chance of a modification passing this season, but a much larger vote in its favor than has ever yet been counted is predicted by all except those in charge of the dry measures. The same conditions exists in the senate as in the house, according to recent polls.

Congressman Tilson has introduced a bill to investigate the crude rubber situation in this country. Mr. Tilson believes the crude rubber supply so essential to American manufactures that a thorough knowledge of price, supply is very important, especially in manufactures of tires and other automobile necessities. Mr. Tilson's bill asks that a sub-committee of the interstate commerce committee conduct such an investigation.

The flood of bills introduced in the house during the first two weeks of the 69th congress sets a new record. The embryo statutes covered a wide range. There were two streams of prohibition bills, one to strengthen the Volstead act and the other to liberalize the enforcement. The measures ranged all the way from the legalization of light wine and beer, or repeal of the measure, to stringent measures that alike embraced bootleggers and diplomats.

The house hopper is jamed with bills touching on revenue, prohibition, coal, agriculture, use of the flag, pensions, immigration and aviation. One notable bill from an Arkansas democrat asked for a pension of $50 a month for life for every confederate soldier or the widow of one, together with a cash payment of $1,000.

The committee on census now has a New England chairman in the person of Representative Fenn of Connecticut. While Mr. Fenn would make no prediction as to the outlook for reporting an apportionment bill this session, Representative McLoud, ranking member on that committee said, after a conference at the white house that the president considered such action advisable. This indicates administration support for a move in the present congress to reapportion according to the census of 1920. It all depends on what the reapportionment bills decides as the number of members of th ehouse, but apparently it would be one that gave Connecticut an additional representative in the house.

In the recent reports submitted to congress by the army board of engineers, one finds names peculiarly significant of conditions in the wild west in former years, when the names must have originated. For instance Mud Sluce, Dog River and Corn-cake Inlet each have a formal report from that dignified and important board. From Rhode Island came a plea for improvement of the Quonochtontang river. But typical names that mark certain Maine streams or lakes, like Chemquasabamticook and Aboljackarmegassic are still waiting to be brought into the lime-light of formal official reports.

President Coolidge writes his speeches and messages to congress in his private study on the second floor of the white house, which is about the only place where he can secure absolute privacy and freedom from interruption. The study overlooks the Potomac, beyond which rise the Virginia hills. From its broad windows Arlington stands out in full view; the Washington monument looms close by and the warm sun streams in from across the beautiful lawns of the white house. The president dictates his messages to his stenographer and it is said that so carefully does he phrase even his first draught that scarcely a change of phraseology is made before they are completed. This room is the one Roosevelt used as a cabinet room before the executive offices were completed.

Senator Bingham is being warmly congratulated on getting his commercial aviation bill through the senate as the first bill to be passed in the 69th congress. The senator introduced it immediately on the convening of the congress, and secured it for first place in matter of consideration. It passed the senate with but trifling amendments all of which are satisfactory to Mr. Bingham. The bill when it reaches the house, will have the support of Chairman Parker of the military affairs committee and Mr. Bingham hopes it will run across no serious snags in that body. Naval and military aviation is still before the senate military affairs committee of which Senator Bingham is a member.

FOR THE BRIDE

"It's all wrong," said the girl who likes to talk, who had just opened a wedding invitation. "Wedding presents, I mean. If you are a relative or ancient family friend you can bestow a check and have the happy couple bless you estatically, but if you are merely a well-meaning friend you have to spend a whole day searching for a concrete gift that will turn out to be precisely what they don't want most, if you comprehend what I mean.

"You abandon the idea of a new fall coat and send them an oriental rug because the family had had you to dinner millions of times and you are greatly obligated and the bride has her rooms all planned with plain-colored chenille carpets and brilliant hangings that make orientals impossible.

"All the rest of her life she'll be scurrying around to drag your rug out of the closet and spread it down when she knows you are coming and if you arrive unexpectedly she'll mention in a strained voice that she supposes you miss seeing the utterly beautiful rug you sent them, but it's at the cleaners.

"If she is resolved to have an early American interior down to the last saltcellar you are fated to purchase for your gift a frivolous French lamp with taffeta frills that will look as out of place as a Ziegfeld Follies girl in a Quaker household.

"If her maiden aunt with money has bestowed upon her an outfit of household linen fit for a queen and sufficient for a lifetime you and everybody else will find your minds running to towels and bedspreads, napkins and tablecloths. Every package that the bride hopefully opens she lays down with a smothered wail. Apparently there is nothing in the mind of the entire human race but linen.

"Of course she is spared the pickle forks and casters of the old days, likewise the cutglass bowls. That is something! Nobody ever could use more than one cutglass bowl in his life, and the sensations of a poor young bride totally surrounded by nineteen assorted cutglass bowls that she didn't dare return or exchange was one of the heartrending sights of some years back, they tell me.

"And the pickle forks, which were the last resort of the harried and impecunious, she had to use when prying up windows, opening milk bottles, digging out odd corners, and even then there were so many left that her grandchildren, who sold them for old silver, could buy a fliver or take a trip with the proceeds. Why, in those days the pickle-fork factories were huge affairs and gave employment to thousands of worthy men!

"'What'll we give the Crepehangers' daughter, Josiah?' the worried wife would ask frantically. 'We can't afford to spend much money, but they'll certainly talk if we don't send a present.' Then she would ponder the matter thoughtfully, something useful, and yet that looks well, you know—something just right! Oh, I know—let's send a nice pickle fork!' That's what went on in hundreds and hundreds of homes.

"I think bridge lamps have taken the place of the ancient pickle fork these days. Any bride who doesn't count at least 30 odd and assorted bridge lamps among her gifts feels that something is very wrong and people don't care much about her. If she used them all her abode would be simply peppered with bridge lamps and if she is moving away from her home town and you never will know about it, the surplus provide her with wedding gifts to her own friends for years and years.

"It is odd how the average mind confronted with the necessity for a wedding gift runs the gamut and pounces on a bridge lamp as looking the money, as well as providing a bit of brightness for the new home. Why anybody would like a bridge lamp, of course! And there are so many other things they are likely not to like that it is useless to consider further. And nowadays it is entirely permissible to exchange one's gifts, so, altogether—"

"I suppose this invitation is for Cottonoil wedding," said the patient listener. "I haven't the remotest notion what to send—what are you thinking of picking out?"

The girl who likes to talk hesitated. "Well," she said, "it's so hard to select just the right thing—but I saw a peach of a bridge lamp in a window the other day, quite distinctive, and the price was all right, too! We'll look at it!"—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Christian Cannabich, a Great Musician

Christian Cannabich, the musician, more than equaled the work of his father, who was only a flute player.

"He'll be playing in the orchestra next," the elder Cannabich said one day when the boy was scarcely able to walk. The mother laughed kindly and looked all the more lovingly at the child. Throughout the house there were various musical instruments and among them several old flutes. One of these flutes the boy had taken from the drawer that he had found open, and now he sat trying to imitate his father. That was a famous moment in the life of the future musician a moment worth remembering for from that time dated the beginning of the fame of the composer. The father laughed at the boys ineffectual efforts to blow the flute, and after that frequently amused himself by handing a flute to the youngster and asking him to play it.

The boy grew older, but he went on trying imitate his father. Every day he saw a member of the orchestra—his father—play on the flute. Sometimes he saw the father seated in the orchestra, playing with the other musicians. Without knowing it was an ambition, the boy wished with all his heart to be a member of the orchestra and, if possible, of the very orchestra in which his father played. When the boy became old enough the father taught him to play on the flute and then on the violin. He watched the boy move from the first easy exercises toward the more difficult ones. Then, when Christian was a lad, he sent him to a good teacher. Christian Cannabich grew into manhood and became the leader of an orchestra—something better than being a mere member. Then he began to compose music and he wrote glorious symphonies and other compositions that carried on the spirit of music. When he died at 67 he left behind him the reputation of a great musician. He had more than imitated his father.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fair Play in the Sky.

Mr. Editor: It is inspiring to see in the east-by-south sky these evenings, at 9 o'clock and after, the emblem of Fair Play as portrayed by the Baseball diamond in the constellation "Orion," with its semi-surrounding stadium to the north, extending from the Pleiades to Sirius, and including in its curving, Procyon, Pollux, Castor, Menkalinan and Capella and on back to Alcyone.

"Fair Play" and "Baseball" are synonymous; else Baseball were not Baseball.

The emblem of Fair Play was placed by the Architect of the sky on the celestial equator where the entire world may see it—from Patogonia to Greenland and Iceland, and from Australia and the Cape of Good Hope to the North Cape.

More power to Fair Play both home and abroad.

Where Improvement is Needed

Mr. Editor: In the way of an improvement to the Rose of New England great benefit would arise from the removal of the unsightly barn at the corner of West Main and High streets. Automobiles coming down High street find it a very bad corner. I as a citizen would like to see this old building condemned and the place improved.

Arthur Woods, who has been named a member of the Opium Advisory Commission of the League of Nations, is a New Yorker who has held several important public positions in which he has displayed administration ability and a technique of getting results without fuss or friction. For more than ten years he was connected with the police department of New York City, first as deputy commissioner and later as chief commissioner. Backed by Mayor Mitchel he wrought a great change in the method and ideals of administration of the force. During the war he was called into service as a special assistant to Secretary of War Baker. Mr. Woods is a Harvard graduate and has had a varied experience as school teacher, journalist and business man.

Stories That Recall Others

Owl Always On the Dot.

You are privileged to your own opinions concerning this story which was told second handed.

Bill says this man noticed an owl fly over his yard one evening last summer. He thought nothing of it at the time, but the next evening saw an owl going in the same direction at about the same time. He took out his watch and noted the hour and minute. The third day the owl again appeared, this time a minute later than the day before. And so as the days grew longer the owl flew over a minute later than the day before. On the strength of the observation he began betting cigars with friends that an owl would fly over his yard at a certain hour and a certain minute, and he collected a considerable number of cigars.

Then as the days began to shorten the owl appeared one minute earlier than on the previous evening and never missed an evening until the coming of fall.

Some Rabbit Hunter.

"You can't miss him from here; shoot, Harry!"

"Sh-h, I'll knock 'im if he starts to run; come on," Harry whispered back as he crept closer and closer to the rabbit whose head projected above a clod in the corn field.

Bang! Harry let go with both barrels. A search began but all that could be found was a rabbit's head. "Gee, whiz, I must have blown the body to 'smithereens,'" lamented the incredulous hunter.

"I told you not to get too close, Harry."

Harry did not become suspicious until he missed a head from one of his earlier killed rabbits and found a bloody stick behind the clod on which the rabbit head had probably rested.

EXTENSION OF INTERNATIONAL BIRD PROTECTION

Extension of international protection of migratory birds to Mexico and all other countries of North America is expected to result from a conference to be held by official delegates from the governments of the United States, Canada and Mexico who will represent their respective countries at the Twelfth National Game conference to be held in New York city, December 7th and 8th under the auspices of the American Game Protective association.

The association inaugurated and aggressively conducted to successful conclusion the campaign for federal and international bird protection in the United States and Canada which has resulted in checking the rapid extermination of wild waterfowl from excessive shooting and disregard of fundamental measures necessary for their preservation. Prohibition of market hunting, protection in the breeding season and fixing of bag limits have arrested the destruction and, as investigations of the United States bureau of biological survey indicate, have actually resulted in marked increase.

"In order that the system may be complete and waterfowl fully safeguarded, it is necessary that all countries to which these birds resort in winter be included in the international compact for their protection. Many ducks and geese winter in Mexico where the same protection is not now afforded and where they are killed in excessive numbers. Mexico is now giving serious attention to game conservation and is believed to be willing to give consideration to joining the United States and Canada in migratory bird protection.

The National Game conference is to be regarded as the clearing house for all questions of game officials, sportsmen, game breeders and scientists of the continent.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

OVER 1,200 SACKS OF CHRISTMAS MAIL HANDLED AT LOCAL POSTOFFICE

Hundreds of people are due to receive their Christmas presents late because Norwich people would not heed the warning to mail early, the last minute rush, this year, being worse than that of past years. All day Monday three lines of people, their arms filled with packages, beseiged the windows at the local postoffice and the men at the windows were hidden behind large stacks of bundles. The line formed early in the morning and was still in formation when the windows were closed at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, the business in this department alone being over 25 per cent. larger than in any year previous to 1925.

Postmaster Casper K. Bailey stated that the rush began a week ago but that most people waited until Sunday to do up their parcels and as a result the office was swamped Monday, upsetting all previous records for a single day in the office and setting a record which will probably stand for several years. Assistant Postmaster William A. Wells, who has seen Christmas rushes for the past 47 years said, Monday night, that this year is the largest in the history of the office, all departments figured showing an increase of fully 25 per cent over last year, which broke all previous records.

One noticeable thing has been the decrease in the number of postal cards mailed and received by the local office. The new ruling that two cents is required on souvenir postals has practically done away with the sending of postals on Christmas. People are sending cards in envelopes this year in large number and this has been shown by the great increase in sale of two cent stamps. At the post office the sales of two cent stamps has increased over 300 per cent. over 1924 while the one cent stamps have dropped to a low figure. At the Boston Store sub-station the increase in two cent, stamp sales has been over 350 per cent. Money orders coming into the post office have increased nearly 25 per cent. this year and the C. O. D. packages have jumped up over double those of last year.

At 8:30 o'clock Monday night there were thousands of letters to be stamped, distributed and pouched for mailing this (Tuesday) morning, the men being unable to send them out Monday night. A let up is expected by Wednesday but today (Tuesday) is expected to be fully as big a day as Monday.

The increase has been general throughout the office, all rural carriers being loaded with parcels during the past few days. Five substitutes and the entire force at the office are working 14 hours a day to handle the rush of business. As far as the local post office is concerned it is figured that everything mailed will be sent out before Christmas. The office also hopes to deliver all mail before Christmas, as there is no delivery on that day, but it is feared that this will be impossible.

An idea of the vast amount of work being done by the postoffice force is shown when it is figured that 1,200 sacks of mail had been stamped, distributed and sacked, or received and distributed during Monday, this up to 3 o'clock in the afternoon. For the night trains there were 300 sacks of mail, three truck loads for the Central Vermont and the same number for the New Haven railroad. One mail during the day figured 220 sacks and the total list for the day ran close to 1,500 sacks, an increase of 25 per cent over any one day last year.

Towns which ordinarily had but one sack from this office are now receiving two or three sacks and the bigger cities are increased in proportion. On Sunday afternoon the train which usually brings a few sacks of mail into this city, left 222 sacks for the local office, this being nothing but Christmas mail.

All day Monday four big trucks, with a crew of eight men, were engaged in delivering parcel post matter and in the evening the basement of the office was still piled high with more bundles for delivery today (Tuesday), while the shute was crowded with parcels and the floor upstairs had hundreds more. The special delivery business had exceeded that of any past year, over 400 pieces being received Monday and delivered.

Only three more days remain for local delivery and if the volume of incoming mail continues as on Monday there is a likelihood that smoe parcels must be held until after Christmas, although everything possible will be done to deliver them by Thursday night. People well informed on the post office situation state that there is no chance of parcels mailed Monday night reaching any out of state towns before Carlstmas, unless they are on direct routes by rail. New York is swamped and all other transfer points are in a like situation.

Radio announcements last week informed the public that New York was nearly five days behind because of the rush and Boston is probably no better. Every office is having its troubles and those who have failed to heed the warning to mail early (this not meaning friends will probably receive their presents four days before Christmas) are destined to find that their relatives and friends early next week, certainly not on Thursday of this week.

SANTA CLAUS VISITS UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

Santa Claus visited the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, Monday evening, during the annual Sunday school Christmas tree party and entertainment and brought gifts for all the children and for a number of the grown-ups. In his usual jolly way Santa worked in a few jokes on the "older" youngsters, and these proved to be hits with the audience, provoking considerable laughter at the expense of the party receiving the gift.

Early in the evening games were played under the supervision of Miss Vilia Bussey and Miss Beatrice Green after which a delightful entertainment was provided under the direction of Mrs. A. N. Foster, the play entitled, Christmas at Finnegan's Flat, being presented by a number of the young people.

The play was in two acts, both scenes being in Finnegan's kitchen, the first act being The Christmas Spirit and the second act The Christmas Celebration. Members of the cast were as follows: Patrick Finnegan, Betty Pike; Prof. Baton, violinist, Thelma Bjurstrom; Dan Dooley, policeman, Virginia Disque; John, the chauffeur, Dorothy Parsons; Nellie, the pet of the flat, Eleanor Pike; Biddy Finnegan, Pat's wife, Helen Hannigan; Miss Neversmile, the lodger, Alice Parsons; Mary, little Nellie's sister, Stella Anderson; Miss Goodheart, Santa's agent, Helen Crandall; children, Betty Lamphier Ruth Banning and Marion Knouse.

Santa Claus appeared after the close of the play and the distribution of gifts took place. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and assorted wafers were served by the committee in charge of Miss Mary Rogers, who was assisted by teachers of the several classes of the Sunday school.

U. S. FINISHING EMPLOYES ATTEND PROVIDENCE DANCE

More than 2,000 employes of the American Finishing company's Pawtucket Silver Spring and Queen Dyeing plants and about 100 employes of the Norwich and Sterling, Conn., plants of the organization attended a special dance for the Mutual Benefits Association held Friday night at the Arcadia, Providence.

Harry Saul, employment director of the company, was in charge of the general arrangements, it was the first time, he said, that an effort had been made to bring the members of the plants together since the annual outing last summer. William A. Collins represented the Silver Spring plant while Earl Crook and William Conway were in charge of the arrangements at the Pawtucket and Queen Dyeing plants respectively.

A feature of the evening was the attendance at the dance of all the managers of the various plants of the company. The proceeds of the dance will be applied to the treasury of the Mutual Benefits Association to which more than 1,200 employes of the United States Finishing Company belong.

LEE & OSGOOD COMPANY HAS NOVEL DECORATION

The Lee & Osgood company has cleverly utilized the socket for the Shenandoah flag system in a novel form on Christmas decorating. A tree electrically lighted is set in the socket and was admired by all who saw it Monday evening. If the other merchants having the flag sockets in front of their places of business were to adopt the plan it would add greatly to the holiday aspect of Main street.

NINE STORE PROPRIETORS FINED IN CITY COURT

Overruling a demurrer entered by counsel in the cases of the nine store proprietors charged with operating gambling machines in their stores, Judge Henry H. Pettis fined each $2 and costs, at the city court session Monday morning. They all paid, the individual bills totaling $10.42. When the cases were called counsel for the accused entered a demurrer pro forma, which was joined by City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins, Deputy Judge Pettis overruled the demurrer and imposed a fine of $2 and costs in each case. There was some talk of an appeal and bond was fixed at $50 but a settlement was finally reached and each paid $10.42.

The accused were arrested late Saturday afternoon by state policemen from the Groton barracks, who visited Norwich and played nine slot machines, used for the vending of candy mints, in various establishments of Norwich. The store proprietors arrested were as follows: Peter Drosis, 36 Bath street; Shea's News Stand, Broadway; Louis Atkin, 42, West Side; Alfred Lapre, 22, East Side; Stanislaw Kiecolt, 50, North Main street; Michael Marr, East Side, George Glascopulos, 30, Chelsea Lunch; Philip Ladowski, West Side, Samuel Ehrenberg, West Side.

Previous to making his decision, Deputy Judge Pettis said that there was evidently no criminal intent and thus the fine was fixed at $2 and costs.

In talking over the case it was stated that the machines were trade stimulators and that an effort would be made to have them returned to their owners. Seven of the machines were owned by the Eastern Mint Vendor Co., while two proprietors owned their own machine. The attorney also stated that in various parts of the state the machines were not adjudged a gaming devise. He stated that in Hartford, one judge ruled that the machines were legal, while another judge, successor of the first, ruled that they were illegal. In other parts of the state there is an injunction out against the police restraining them from interfering with the running of these machines. These vending machines are common throughout the state, and can be seen in many stores, business places, etc., he said.

The seized slot machines were taken from police headquarters by the state police, and will be held at the Groton barracks until a ruling of law is made as to whether they can be destroyed or not. A hearing on the matter of the destruction of the vending machines is expected to take place within one week. One of the owners waived his rights to the machine and this will be destroyed.

The machines are valued at $100 each and when seized contained a quantity of mints, besides much cash in nickels. State officers estimated that the receipts in the machines will hover around $400, claiming that some of the machines are pretty well filled up.

The money in the vending machines goes half to the state and half to the county, the same process being followed as when a state policeman makes an arrest, when half of the fine goes to the state and half to the city. An exception is noted in motor vehicle cases.

Amen Abraham of Boswell avenue was fined $200 and costs and given a 10 day jail sentence when he pleaded guilty to actual sale of liquor. His was the sixth conviction on this count as a result of raids made last Friday by the state police.

Mrs. Effie Cooper Foster was given 10 days in jail, without costs, when found guilty of intoxication. William Anderson went to jail in default of bonds of $100, charged with breach of the peace. He is charged with striking Harry Foster, colored, on the head with a lamp, inflicting deep cuts, which caused Foster to be sent to the Backus hospital.

Five men charged with intoxication paid $5 and costs to gain their freedom and one man failed to appear and his bond was called. Winfield Robbins, Jr., of this city was fined $10 and costs on a charge of failure to grant a right of way. His arrest followed a collision with the car operated by Miss Julia Corcoran and owned by the United Workers. Five out of six violators of city ordinances paid $5 while the sixth, who lives out of town, had his case nolled.

RESERVED DECISION IN TWO DAMAGE CASES

In the $900 damage suit brought by Joseph Prunier of Norwich against E. G. Nettleton and M. G. Nettleton doing business as the Crown Trucking Co., of New Haven, Judge Charles B. Waller reserved decision, taking the papers, when the case came up in the court of common pleas in this city Monday. The plaintiff claims that on May 12, 1924, one of the defendants trucks ran into his automobile while it was parked on Broadway causing damage to the extent of about $800.

Judge Waller also reserved decision in the case of the Connecticut Machinery and Sales Co., of this city against E. T. Watrous of Groton. The plaintiffs claim damages of $250. The suit started over the sale of a 6- h. p. engine and pulley to Mr. Watrous March 16, 1925, for $175.

Claim was made by the defendant that the engine was to be adapted and suitable for wood sawing under the understanding that if the same was suitable for the defendant's purposes, and satisfactory that Watrous would accept the same and pay $175. On April 1, 1925, the defendant returned the engine to the plaintiff, who accepted it and agreed to change the mechanism so as to perform the services requir d of it by the defendant.

Changes were made in the engine by the plaintiffs who returned it to the defendant, but the same was not satisfactory and di dnot perform the duties required of it, and the plaintiff was so notified.

When Mr. Watrous was called to the stand to testify he declined to be sworn in by Clerk Lewis Crandall. When asked to take the oath of affirmation, the witness, who is a Quaker, refused also to affirm.

Witness stated that he wished to quote the Scriptures, but Judge Waller adjudged that Watrous should not testify, on the grounds that if the man would not affirm or take the oath, his testimony as to telling the truth, would be of no value. Watrous left the stand without telling his story.

SIX AUTO HEARINGS HELD HERE YESTERDAY

Six automobile cases were heard Monday afternoon at the city court room by Commissioner Melvin Snow of the state motor vehicle department. Cases were disposed of as follows:

John Kotarba, 30 Main street, Danielson, charged with operating under the influence of liquor. He was limited to drive for his employer only.

Andrew Klem, box 39, Quaker Hill, operating under the influence of liquor. His license was returned to him.

Bennie Sinkiewicz, box 41, Gales Ferry, charged with reckless driving had his license suspended for a period of 60 days.

Fred J. Mitter, 23 North Cliff street, operating under the influence a year ago this month had his license returned to him.

Joseph Daigle, 37 Happy street, Norwich, driving under the influence a year ago, had his license held up until he could file affidavits with the state department as he failed to appear with three witnesses as to his character.

Victor Svenberg, jr., 23 Evergreen avenue, New London, called in for a conference, told of being held up in Rhode Island for driving with improper brakes. His brakes are now fixed up and the Connecticut department did not see fit to take away his license.

SUSIE AND HER BOY FRIEND TAKE IN BASKET BALL GAME AT TAFTVILLE

The Boy Friend took Susie to her first basketball game last week and the dear girl writes her impressions of this indoor sport as follows:

Dear Sports Editor:

Say, didja ever go to a basketball game? Now, ain't that a fool question to ask a sportin' editor? O' course you have, but what I mean is didja ever take in one o' them games up in Garish hall, I think you call the place? Well, if you ain't do so 'cause you'll get a great kick outa it, I did. Gosh, I still got a crick in my back from laffin' and its nearly a week since I saw that game. It tain't the fellers playin' the game that makes you gigle, but its the birds what sits 'round the edges watchin' that gives you the thrills.

Now I don't know nothin' 'bout basketball but I guess I don't pull no more bumb cracks then a lotta them specters that pays good money to see it played. If I mishandled the American languige like some fellers and girls that was at that game anybody might think I ain't had no edication.

Well, last Tuesday night the Boy Friend hitches his tin chariot outside my house and comes boundin' up the steps like a five ton truck and seeing' me ruanin' to the door, thinkin' the old man's strayed again from the straight and narrer path, the boy says, all excited like, "Get your powder an' lipstick 'cause we're goin to a basketball game." "Who give you that bright idea?", I says, seein's how I'd planned to go shoppin' again." "We ain't goin' to no basketballs games 'cause you and me's goin' shoppin' egin tonight," I told him. "Guess agin, Sweetie," says he, "you ain't goin' to make a truck horse outa me agin tonight, once is aplenty." Well, seein's how near Christmas is I don't think its no time to argue with a feller what's goin' to give you a present, so I says "All right, let's go."

Well we gets in that bouncin' buggy of his and he starts that hit and miss motor and we wheezes and coughs along up to Taftville. Well, we gets almost to the Garish hall when the motor, if you call it that, gives a kinda consumptive cough an' dies on our hands. The boy friend steps on this and pushes on somethin' else but the darn thing don't show no signs o' life so we disembarks right in a sea o' mud. Gosh, I'd a give most anythin' to have web feet like a duck or a pair o' snowshoes like that fiddlin' Mellie Dunham makes. I coulda used a canoe or a mud scow too the mud was so deep. Believe, me that boy friend ain't no Walter Rawley, either, but maybe he'll give me a new pair o kicks for Christmas.

As we was mushin' our way to the hall I says to the boy friend, "Whose goin' to play tonight?" "Taftville and the Stafford Kaceys" says he. "Them Stafford Caseys ain't no relation to the Norwich Caseys or Sergt. Casey of the police force, is they?, I asks him. You see I know's the sarge pretty well cause he pinched the old man a coupla times. "You pull any more o' them dum wheezes an' I'm goin leave you flat" says the boy. I shuts up lika oyster, but ain't that just lika man, gettin' you wrong all the time?

Well, we gets into the hall and parks in a coupla seats along one side o' the room an' I can see right away where I'm in for a pleasant evenin'. Sittin aida me is a coupla fellers chewin' tabbacer and talkin' French. Gosh, between the chewin' and the French I couldn't make out what they was talkin' about but I guess they was makin' a bet on the game 'cause pretty soon they hands the boy friend a handful o' bills and tells him to hold 'em. I guess the boy friend didn't know much about the bat but he hangs onta the kale, all right, trust him for that.

Well, pretty soon out comes some fellers dressed in bathin' suits. Them fellers used their beans in comin' to that hall in them kinder clothes, if they hadda walk through the mud an' water like we did. Them fellers prances around throwin' a big football through a thing that looked lika crab net without no bottom. I asks the boy friend what it was and he says its a basketa. I tell him it ain't no baskets cause it ain't got no handles. He just looked kinda mean at me an' the feller next to me nearly choked on his tabacker. If that thing was a baskets then the boy's tin wagon is a Pullman train.

I didn't have no time to argue the matter 'cause a feller comes out and blows a whistle and the fellers all get in place, two in the middle of the floor and two in each corner. The feller with the whistle toots again and throws the ball in the air. Then things start. They's a wild scramble and the ball goes this way an' that and everybody's hollerin' like they did at the football game up in Boston. Pretty soon the feller with the chew stands up an' hollers "Shoots ze baskets through ze ball, Napoleon, shoots ze baskets." I guess Nap-musta did as he said 'cause the first thing I knew a feller wallops me on the back and I swallows the gum I was chewing.

"That Napoleon, shes a nice boy, ain't cha" says the big feller sida me. I gives him a dirty look wonderin' how that gum's goin' to agree with my stomach. Pretty soon the games gets goin' and the Casey boys gets the ball an' I stands up an' hollers. The feller throws the ball into the baskets and I clouts the big feller on the back mighty wallop, and says "That boy, she's a nice feller too, maybe, eh?" The big feller looks kinda sick and pokes and coughs and says somethin' about his tabacker and some more about the grin some place where its at. Gosh I thought I die laffin' 'cause pretty soon he grabs his stomach with one hand and his mouth with the other and runs right out on the floor an' out the door That's the last I saw of that feller

Well, the game goes on but I don't know who's ahead or who's losin' but I get a lotta fun outa watchin' the other folks. I'm watchin' a coupla fellers over in a corner when "Bang" somethin' hits me in the face lika ton o' brick. When I comes up for air the boy friend says "If you'd watch the game instead o' goopin' at the natives you wouldn't get hit with the ball." Gosh, I was glad to know it was a ball that hit me, I thought part o' the roof fell in on me. Well, that queered basketball for me and if I ever get my nose back in shape I'm offa basketball for life unless I can see 'em from behind a wire nets. That ain't all that happened to me 'fore that game was over. A big feller, who was playin' on the Taftville team, gets to wrestlin' for the ball right in fronta me. All of sudden he jumps up in the air and when he comes to earth agin one o' my feets is between his and the floor. That was the last straw what breaks the needle's eye. "Get offa my hoofs, you big stiff," I says polite like to the feller, "Just 'cause I walk on 'em it ain't no sign you kin." He smiles and begs my pardon an' right away I feels better but I ain't takin' no more chances so I grabs the boy friend and we heads for the exit. Well, we gets almost outa the door when some guy rushes past me and grabs the boy. Gosh, I thought he was pinched, but it was only the feller who had made the bet that the kid was holdin' for 'em. The kid coughs up the money and we beats it. Believe me, Mr. Editor, that was some evenin' an' if you ain't been to one o' them games, go, its a scream. But don't go in no bum fliver, unless you got rubber boots on. No, the darned old buggy wouldn't start so we comes home on the trolley. The boy friend says that the next day the garage feller says how flivers or Rolls-Royces don't run without no gasoline.

Well I sees where they declared Col. Mitchell ineligible so I guess I'll have to give him the gate on my All-American team.

Well, I wish you an' your readers a very merry Christmas an' I hope Sandy Claws is good to everybody this year.

Yours truly

SUSIE.

CELTICS TO PLAY ALL STARS ON CHRISTMAS DAY

For the preliminary game on Christmas day the Taftville Celtics will clash with Red Burelle's All Star team in the second game of the series, the All Stars winning the first game by the score of 25 to 24. Manager Burelle claims that he will again take the Celtics into camp but Manager Raymond says that they will have to be at their best to defeat the Celtics again. The manager of the All Stars has secured the services of the leading players around these parts. Included among them will be Provencher, now playing on the Baltic first team and Berberich, leading scorer of the fast Battery B team, to play as forwards; Prodell, who starred for the West Side Rovers to jump at center; Ellie Seigal, who has played on different teams and is now captain of the Y. M. H. A. team, and Brown, who the fans will remember as the man who defeated the Celtics by his fine defensive playing on Thanksgiving day. Red Burelle, who went in the last game, will again be seen in uniform.

The Celtics will present a regular team with the exception of a right guard, a new man being secured to take care of that position. In the forward position will be Cyclone St. Germain, playing against his old teammates and Yerrington, who has been the mainstay of the team, while Pingree will again be seen at center. He is fast developing as one of the fastest centers around. Eccleston, one of the best defensive men teaming with the dark horse. Lamothe and Phaneuf will act as subs and will be ready to take their places if needed.

TAFTVILLE VS. JEWETT CITY IN BANNER ATTRACTION

Tonight (Tuesday) at Bijou Hall, Jewett City, Taftville will try to annex the second of a three game series, Jewett City having romped home the winner in the first tussle. Taftville has bolstered up their lineup in the personage of "Dutch" Leonard, Hartford sky-rocket, who should aid the team considerably. The remainder of the Taftville lineup will include Coleman, the two Murphys and Gauthier.

Jewett City will have the regular array consisting of Captain "Bub" Benjamin and "Monty" Normandin at forwards, Harry Mills at center and Bridge, Barry and Joe Faber at guards. With a victory meaning so much to either club fans can rest assured that neither team will fail to give the best that is in them. This will be a worthwhile game that no true basketball fan should miss.

KID KAPLAN WANTS TO BOX IN JUNIOR LIGHTWEIGHT CLASS

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Permission to abandon his class and to box as a junior lightweight until a possible featherweight challenger has been developed will be asked of the New York state athletic commission by Louis (Kid) Kaplan, world's featherweight champion, according to an announcement today by Scotty Monteith, his New York representative.

Montcith claimed that unless Kaplan was allowed to compete in a higher division, he would be forced into inactivity by lack of opponents. He denied that difficulty in making the featherweight limit added to Kaplan's desire to tackle heavier foes, although boxing men here maintain that the Meriden, Conn., title holder has been compelled to adopt rigorous measures to keep within 126 pounds.

SUIT AGAINST FIRPO COMES TO SUDDEN END

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Trial of Andrew McCorkindale's $50,926 suit against Luis Angel Firpo, pugilist known as the "wild bull of the pampas" came to a sudden end today at the first session when McCorkindale, Firpo's former manager, admitted on the stand that Firpo did not owe him anything. McCorkindale had alleged in the suit that $50,926 was his share of $226,625 won by Firpo during his ring engagements here.

On McCorkindale's statement, Supreme Court Justice Tierney dismissed the case. The complainant admitted that the charges were made under the name of Alexander Scott. He told the court he did not want his parents in Belfast, Ireland, to know he was promoting prize fights.

Plainfield Afraid of Jewett City?

Mr. Editor: Despite the repeated challenges sent to Mgr. Salisbury of the Plainfield basketball team no answer has been received by the Jewett City management. Jewett City is very anxious to arrange a series with Plainfield but for some unknown reason Plainfield has repeatedly seen fit to disregard all of Jewett City's offers. It has been said that Plainfield does not think the Jewett City aggregation fast enough, but Jewett City is not in the habit of taking larger morsels than they can masticate. Plainfield may rest assured that the team that will represent Jewett City will be composed of the best men that can be secured. As for Plainfield being so fast, the writer watched the team play Friday and the brand of basketball exhibited failed to convince me that Plainfield is any faster than the usual run in eastern Conn. basketball.

ECKERSALL PICKS HIS ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

CHICAGO, Dec. 21—(AP)—Seven westerners are given places in the All-American football team announced recently by Walter Eckersall, football critic of the Chicago Tribune, popular referee and an All-American backfield star in his collegiate days.

Development of a strong and complicated forward pass attack, says Eckersall, resulted in Dartmouth, Michigan, Missouri, Washington and Alabama being rated the strongest teams in their respective territories and his All-American selections are chosen with that in mind.

Ed Weir of Nebraska, "Red" Grange of Illinois and Ernie Nevers of Stanford are again placed on the first team of All-Americans. Oberlander of Dartmouth, the most effective forward passer in the country last fall, was placed at right half, and Oosterbaan of Michigan, the most successful pass grabber, at left end. The difference of opinion on Nevers and Wilson of Washington is solved by putting Nevers at fullback and Wilson at quarterback, the latter because of his great defensive play in the games against California and Stanford, which Washington won.

Eckersall names Grange as captain of the first team, Tryon of Colgate leader of the second and Keefer of Brown the third.

The three teams picked by Eckersall as All-Americans follow:

FIRST TEAM

Diehl, Dartmouth ..... Left guard
McMillan, Princeton ..... Centre
Sturhahn, Yale ..... Right guard
Edwards, Michigan ..... Right tackle
Dilwer, Marquette ..... Right end
Wilson, Washington ..... Quarterback
Nevers, Stanford ..... Fullback
Oberlander, Dartmouth Right halfback
Grange (captain), ... Left halfback

SECOND TEAM

Hess, Ohio State ..... Left guard
Hutchinson, Nebraska ..... Centre
Walsh, Minnesota ..... Right guard
Parker, Dartmouth ..... Right tackle
Kassel, Illinois ..... Right end
Friedman, Michigan ..... Quarterback
Tryon, Colgate (captain) Left halfback
Slagle, Princeton ..... Right halfback
Hubert, Alabama ..... Fullback

THIRD TEAM

Thayer, Pennsylvania ..... Left end
Lindenmeyer, Missouri .... Left tackle
Buckler, Alabama ..... Left guard
Lowry, Northwestern ..... Centre
Mahan, West Virginia ... Right guard
Hawkins, Michigan ..... Right tackle
Sloane, Drake ..... Right end
Flournoy, Tulane ..... Quarterback
Keefer, Brown (captain) Left halfback
D. Harmen, Wisconsin Right halfback
Enright, Notre Dame ..... Fullback

JEWISH PAPER PICKS JEWISH ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 21—Five Jewish football stars from New York state colleges are named on an All-Jewish All-American eleven selected by the Jewish Advocate and published in the current issue out recently.

BROWN TO PLAY LEHIGH NEXT SEASON

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 21—(AP)—Brown university will play ten football games in 1926, according to the schedule announced recently by Manager E. L. Layton. Six of the contests will be in Providence, with three return games from the 1925 all-home schedule, and one game pending.

Lehigh displaces the University of Pennsylvania as the first major contest and Boston university is dropped. Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth will be met on their fields, with Colgate, Lehigh, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Colby and Bates as the Providence games.

The schedule follows:

Sept. 25, Rhode Island State at Providence, Oct. 2, Colby at Providence; 9, Lehigh at Providence; 16, Bates at Providence; 23, Yale at New Haven; 30, Dartmouth at Hanover, Nov. 6, pending; 13, Dartmouth at Hanover; 20, New Hampshire State at Providence; 25, Colgate at Providence.

GERMAN AQUATIC STARS TO TOUR AMERICA

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Eric Rademacher and Gustav Froelich, of the Schimmsport club Hellas, of Magdeburg, Germany, will leave for the United States the last week in January, to engage in a competitive tour. They will be accompanied by Kurt Behrens, of the same club, former American fancy diving champion. Rademacher and Froelich are the respective breast and back stroke swimming champions of Germany.

Rademacher holds several world breast stroke records.

Behrens won several championships in fancy diving while a resident of this country some years ago, when he competed for the city athletic club of New York. But he has retired from competition and will act solely as manager of the invading champions.

Fitchville vs. Combat Train

This (Tuesday) evening at the Armory the Fitchville All Stars led by Bill Kane will oppose the Combat Train baseball team of this city in what should be a fast game from start to finish. The battery for the visitors will show the strength of their lineup, Tim Coughlin will catch and Tracy Burdick. Others in the Fitchville lineup will be Nevius, Kane, Fogarty, Lynch and Shea.

The game will start promptly at 9:30 p. m.

BATTERY B BEATS TIGERS AND HOLDS LEAD IN INDOOR BASEBALL LEAGUE

In the 6:30 game of the Norwich indoor baseball league at the Armory Monday evening the Battery B baseball team swamped the Greeneville Tigers to the tune of 18 to 2 in a seven inning contest. The playing was rather even for the first three or four innings but from then on it developed into a rout for the Battery.

The stars for the winners were Lemieux, A. Berberich and Lewis while Tibbets, L. Mamil, Nevins and Chimikoski shone for the losers.

The lineups were as follows:

Battery B, c, Lemieux; p, Wilson; 1b, Saunders; 2b, Kobolenki; 3b, Berberich; Mish, ss; Eichelberg, rss. Lewis, lf; Prodell, cf; Bush, rf; Coleman, lf.

Tigers, L. Hamil, p; B. Labenski, p; Burke, 1b; Tibbets, 2b; P. Labenski, 3b Cimikoski, ss; Nevins, rss; Coughlin, lf; A. Tombari, cf; Hamil, rf; Welsh, lf.

The score by innings:

Battery B	0	0	0	3	0	1	4	1	—18

Stars Beat Nutmegs

In the 9:30 game at the Armory Monday evening the Nutmegs went down to defeat before Faber's Stars by the score of 12 to 9. The victors piled up an early lead and for the first innings it began to look like a walkaway. However, the Nutmegs came back strong in the late innings but fell short of tying the score.

For the Stars L. Cimikoski, Gilbert and Porky Blake were the shining lights. The luminaries for the losers were Jab Burns, Gil Kampf, Chubby Gibbs and Jim Falcone. Falcone pitched a good game but errors at critical times proved his undoing.

The lineups:

Stars, c, Brown; p. Faber; 1b, Tony West; Blake 2b; Smith, 3b; Robertson, ss; L. Cimikoski; Gilbert, lf; La Flamme, cf; S. Cimikoski, rf.

Nutmegs, c, J. Burns; p, Falcone; 1b, Kampf; 2b, Eichleberg; Berberich 3b; Gibbs, ss; W. Burnes, rss; Brown, lf; Couture, cf; Lambert, rf.

The score by innings:

ANOTHER FINNISH CHAMPION COMES TO THIS COUNTRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Clas Thunberg of Finland, Olympic speed skating champion, arrived today on the Leviathan to take up the ice of the United States and Canada the campaign which his compatriot, Paavo Nurmi, conducted on the track a year ago.

Thunberg expects to match strokes with the champions on this side of the Atlantic in five title meets. The first two will be at Madison Square Garden on Jan. 14 and 18 when he will be matched against Joe Moore, international indoor title-holder, and Charles Corman, Canadian champion, among others.

The Finnish marvel, who has been popularly referred to as the Nurmi of the ice, will then attempt to annex the world's outdoor championship at St. John's New Brunswick, in Canada. He will race there in a three-day meet from Jan. 26 to 28 under the auspices of the International Skating Union, facing the pick of American and Canadian skaters.

Exhibitions by Thunberg at Pittsburgh, Saranac Lake, N. Y., and Detroit also are planned. He expects to make his final American appearance in the latter city on Feb. 5 and 7, after which he will return to New York to sail immediately for home.

Thunberg was greeted upon his arrival by officials of the Finnish-American A. C., including Hugo Quist, who managed the tour in this country of Nurmi, and Albin Stenroos, a compatriot who holds the Olympic Marathon title.

MANCHESTER BEATS NORWICH IN VOLLEYBALL GAME

The volleyball team representing the Cheney Silk Co., of Manchester defeated the Norwich Y. M. C. A. team at the local gymasium last night. It was necessary to play five games before the visitors won the necessary majority, as the local aggregation showed a large improvement over their recent performances. The games were closely contested and marked by excellent teamwork and fine sportsmanship. Scores were 13-15, 17-15, 15-13, 10-15, 15-6.

The Cheney team consisted of E. Vondeck G. Gibbons, V. Lupien, E. Vondeck, W. Brock, J. Mahoney and A. Van Hone. The local local 'Y' was represented by Harold Robbins, John Evans, E. C. Dunbar, James Osten, Al Charnesiski, Ben Palmer and Warren Sharples.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, will train indoors for his championship bout with Tommy Milligan of Scotland next month. It will be Walker's first test of gymnasium conditioning. He arrived at his home in Rumford, N. J., Sunday after piling logs, and hauling them in a Canadian lumber camp.

Archie Stark, center of the Bethlehem Steel soccer team in the American league, created an American professional record Sunday at Harrison, N. J., when he scored five goals the margin of his team's victory over Newark.

Edouard Horemans of Belgium, 18.2 nikline Billard champion, has joined with Jake Schaeffer in the attack on Willie Hoppe's 18.1 title. The winner of the coming challenge match between Horemans and Schaeffer for 18.2 honors is likely to be Hoppe's opponent.

Canadian universities propose to send five athletic teams against the United States Naval Academy on February 27. Their boxers, wrestlers, fencers, gymnasts and swimmers hope to win at least one meet from the Middies and break a long string of defeats.

Reports that Cahuey Stoneham, ruler of New York's Polo grounds, has offered $500,000 to Jack Dempsey to meet Harry Wills in New York next July 4 are news to Paddy Mullins manager of Wills. Mullins said Sunday night that so far as he is concerned there are no new developments in the Dempsey matter.

New York boxing must have undergone a change. Everybody agreed that Kid Kaplan defeated Bebe Herman Friday night, except perhaps, Herman himself, and he has remained silent.

THREE PLANS PROPOSED FOR SEWER CONNECTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—The city council this evening took up, on the application of Sidney Sulman the matter of giving sewer connection to a stretch of land on Broad street, near Colman street. Mr. Sulman intends to erect duplex garages in that vicinity and desires sewer connection. The sewer department had canvassed the situation and offered three plans of procedure, one being by way of Broad street, the other through Cedar Grove avenue and the third the extension of Colman street sewer. The department favored the Broad street plan though it will cost more than either of the other plans, being estimated at $16,000. The other plans are a little less expensive. Manager Holt recommended the adoption of the Broad street plan with the statement that it would sewer a section that had not had that benefit in the past and which would need it soon. He said he believed it to be the proper thing to do as such a sewer would take care of a section that would be developed eventually. The Sulman scheme was one that should be given prompt action, Mayor Fox declared, as the matter went to the committee for consideration and report.

Councilor Murray, for the finance committee, recommended the adoption of recommendations made by White & Alexander, the auditors of the city, for a change in the methods of keeping accounts in the water and tax commissioners' offices. The change will cut off some of the work now necessary and will be for the greater convenience of the departments. The cost of making the change is estimated at $1,500 to $2,000. The recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Only two applications for permission to build were presented to the council and both were adopted.

MONTAUK AVE. LIGHTING SYSTEM TO BE CHANGED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—A recommendation that a street light be placed on Montauk avenue near Mitchell court, brought a report from the city manager to the effect that there is in contemplation the changing of the entire lighting system of Montauk avenue and the relocation of lights on that important thoroughfare. The city manager said the location of lights now was not what was needed. He said he never had considered the arrangement what was necessary. Now the Connecticut Power company is to make a new contract with the city, and a change desired will be effected. The recommendation of the city manager was recorded for future action.

The Pequot Realty company, through its president, Frederick W. Mercer, offered to deed to the city five feet of land at Lower Boulevard and Pequot avenue, that the street corner might be improved, if the city would bear the expense of changing the tracks of the street railway company. The matter was referred to committee with the understanding that the change will be approved by the council. The work must be done at once, it was intimated.

WESTERLY

RED STONE QUARRY BOUGHT BY HENRY C. DAVIS OF BOSTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 21—Howard C. Davis of Boston, a former Westerly boy on Monday purchased the Red Stone Quarry in Westerly, north of the railroad tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and east and south of the new Hopkinton-Westerly state road. The purchase was made from the heirs of the James Gourlay estate. The quarry has been operated during the past twenty years under lease from the estate by the New England Granite Works, which has had offices in Hartford. Mr. Davis recently purchased "Stoneridge" the estate of Charles P. Williams, between Stonington and Mystic, after the latter had taken up his residence in Newport, R. I. His plans as to the quarry's operation or disposition have not been revealed.

Granite from this quarry, claimed to be the best known red granite quarry in New England, has been used for the material in the construction of many buildings famous for their beauty, as this stone resists the wear of the elements and does not tarnish with age as is the case with other colors of granite. Examples of the appearance of the stone can be seen in the Westerly town hall and court house building and the Travellers Insurance building in Hartford, now under construction, in addition to the original building, the highest office building in Connecticut. The monument to James G. Batterson in the Hartford cemetery is another example of its use in construction work.

Attorney John Ferguson, Jr., has represented Mr. Davis in the purchase of the property while Mr. and Mrs. Davis are on a business trip to England planning to return to this country about Christmas time. During the world war the Batterson Red Stone quarry was the most actively worked of any in its history, for at that time the Travellers' granite was being quarried and some of this stone is now being cut by the Smith Granite company of Westerly. The prices paid the quarrymen averaged higher than those paid to war-time ship yard workers with the exception of the overtime, so that when there was a week of no overtime in the shipyards, the following week saw the same workmen employed at the Red Stone.

A short session of Stonington town court was held by Judge William A. Wilcox, of Pawcatuck, Monday morning in borough hall, Stonington. William Holden, 58, of Noyes avenue, Pawcatuck, presented on complaint of Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna, charged with trespassing on the property of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, pleaded guilty, Dec. 7th from 5.20 to 7.15 a. m., o'clock, Capt. C. A. Kelly and Sergeant Marks of New London of the New Haven railroad police were stationed on the west end of the Pawcatuck river bridge, just west of the Westerly station and Holden was among the number stopped who have made a practice of crossing the railroad river bridge to go to their work on the Rhode Island side of the bridge.

Judge Wilcox fined Holden $1 and costs, amounting to $9.06. The costs were paid and the $1 fine was remitted. It is the intention of the railroad police and Stonington authorities following complaint from locomotive engineers concerning the use of the railroad bridge by pedestrians, to have this case serve as a warning to future offenders.

Samuel Macanio, 17, of Pawcatuck, intercepted the same morning as he was crossing the bridge to his work in the Martin Cafe, was also given a hearing on a trespass complaint, in which the railroad police was represented by Capt. C. A. Kelly who was present in the court room. He was fined $1 and costs of $9.56, there being one continuance of this case. The $1 fine was remitted. Railroad police have stated that when two trains pass at the same time on this bridge, it means instant death to anyone walking on it.

In a hearing at 10 o'clock Sunday evening, before Judge Michael J. Turano, in a special session of Third District court, Alexander Habereck of Hope Valley was arrested by Deputy Game Warden Frank Knight Sunday morning when alleged to have been found setting wire snares near the road leading from Hope Valley to Woodville, was admitted to $800 bail, Tony Piascik, becoming surety. The case was set down to be tried at the regular session of Third District court, Friday morning, Jan. 8th.

Miss Emma Wilson, R. N., of Detroit, is the guest over the holidays of her sister, Mrs. Lena Collins and family in Pawcatuck, before leaving for Johnston City, Tenn.

Lester Lonergan, a summer resident of Westerly who occupies the farm on the Shore road formerly owned by Ward Sherman, and is playing in "Accused," with E. H. Southern, which began its run in a Boston theatre this week, made a stop-over visit in Westerly while the company was making the trip from New York to Boston.

Albert L. Saunders returned to Boston Monday morning after a week end visit with his father, Capt. William P. Saunders and sister, Miss Carrie L. Saunders, at "Winnapaug" farm, Shore road.

Joeph H. Stedman left Monday morning for a business trip to Boston.

Lieut. and Mrs. Reginald L. Dean of Ithaca, N. Y., where Lieut. Dean is an instructor, are visiting Westerly friends and relatives over the holidays.

Frank J. Robertson, a student at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia arrived Thursday to pass the holiday vacation with relatives and friends in Westerly.

Before Judge James O. Watts, in the Second District court at Wakefield, on Monday morning, James L. Panciera of Westerly pleaded guilty to the operation of an automobile without proper number plates and was fined $5 and costs. His arraignment followed his arrest by Deputy Sheriff Fred Bull of Kingston and released on $100 bail a week ago.

Palmer chapter, No. 22, Royal Arch Masons, of Pawcatuck, Ex. Arthur E. Thompson, high priest, held a regular convocation in the Masonic rooms on High street Monday evening. There was work in the Past Masters' degree.

Sunday afternoon at the First Hopkinton Seventh-day Baptist church, at 2 o'clock there was held the funeral of Alfred Bailey Burdick, who died in Hollis, R. I., and whose body was brought to Westerly Sunday noon, Rev. Alva L. Davis, pastor of the church, conducted the services. Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Farnsworth sang Asleep in Jesus, and Blessed Hope. Burial was in Oak Grove cemetery. The bearers were A. Julian Crandall, John S. Burdick, William Burdick and Frank Hill. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Relatives from Hartford, Hollis, L. I., Baltimore, New Jersey, Rockville, Hopkinton, Westerly and Bradford were present.

Alfred Bailey Burdick, 81, a native of Ashaway, died Thursday evening, Dec. 17, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Richard Starr, in Hollis, L. I., having been in failing health for several years. Mr. Burdick, son of Horatio Nelson and Thankful Lucinda Kenyon Burdick, was born June 25, 1844, in the old Burdick homestead at Ashway, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis F. Randolph. He was baptized by Elder Joshua Clarke and united with the First Hopkinton Seventh Day Baptist church, June 25, 1859. He served as church clerk from Aug. 27, 1869, to January, 1888, and was ordained a deacon in August, 1879. In September, 1893, having changed his place of residence to New London, he transferred his church membership to the Waterford Seventh Day Baptist church, of which he remained a member the rest of his life. He was ordained a deacon of that church in 1893.

Mr. Burdick married Lucie Crandall of Rockville, March 1, 1866. They had five children, Alena, now Mrs. Richard Starr; Eddie, deceased; Alfred A., L. Charles N., and G. Rowland. He also leaves a brother, Marcus L. Burdick.

Mrs. Burdick died several years ago in New London, where the family moved from Ashaway about 34 years ago. Mr. Burdick was employed for years as a traveling salesman by Daniel, Cornell Company of Providence, and later managed that company's store in New London. About five years ago he moved to New York city and from there went to live with his daughter in Hollis, L. I., three years ago.

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriet Foster Collins, widow of Albert B. Collins, were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, 5 Pleasant street. The service was conducted by Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church. Burial was in River Bend cemetery. The bearers were Louis Burlingame Collins, P. J. Hamill, Horace E. Litchfield and John Farnsworth.

LEDYARD

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Barrett, who formerly lived in this town and who own the Turn of the Road farm, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. George Garapye, were guests Saturday and Sunay of Mr. and Mrs. Garapye. They also visited some of their friends here on their brief visit. Mr. Barrett is foreman for the American Bridge Co. and has just completed building a bridge in Waterville, Conn.

The Ledyard Get-Together club met at the home of one of its members, Freddie Allyn, Friday evening Dec. 11, the meeting being a surprise to Mr. Allyn on his seventeenth birthday. Richard Geer one of the members in a clever speech presented Mr. Allyn in behalf of the club, a handsome scarf. Mr. Allyn responded for the gift. Games of various kinds were played by the young people and refreshments were served. A pleasing feature was a large birthday cake with seventeen candles.

AMERICAN COMMONS PROVE POPULAR AMONG FRENCHMEN

PARIS, Dec. 21 (AP)—France has gone in for American commons and the first will be thrown open here next spring.

M. Forestier, on a visit to the United States, was greatly impressed with the system of commons in vogue in some of the larger cities, especially in Boston.

Returning to France, he entered negotiations with the National Committee on sports and as a result Bagatelle, located in the beautiful Bois-de-Boulogne and heretofore devoted to polo, was selected for development into a common.

MYSTIC

ELDRED K. EARNSHAW DIES AT NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MYSTIC, Dec. 21.—News of the death of Eldred K. Earnshaw, Sunday morning at Uncas-on-Thames, was heard with profound sadness. He was born in Richmond, R. I., Oct. 31, 1898, the son of Oscar and Ruth E. King Earnshaw. His parents moved here when he was six years old. He attended Broadway and Stonington High school and served in the World War. He was a member of the Union Baptist church and the Sunday school class of Deacon E. F. Wilcox, a young man of good habits and lovable character. He was an honorary member of the W. C. T. U. He was employed at the Post Boat shop. Besides his parents, he leaves two uncles, Herman E. Earnshaw of Mystic; George King of Holyoke, Mass., and an aunt, Mrs. Thomas Clark of Kenyon, R. I. His only brother died a year ago last March and Mr. and Mrs. Earnshaw are now left childless.

In the vestry of the Union Baptist church Saturday afternoon were assembled the children of the primary and kindergarten of the Sunday school and many parents, so the foom was filled. A Christmas tree was laden with gifts and prettily decorated. Mrs. C. H. Wolfe, who has been superintendent for nearly 30 years was in charge with her teachers to assist her. The following program was given: Song, Welcome, Eddie Kearney; Christmas Rule, Ovis Brown; recitation, Tillie Startz, Santa Claus knows, George Denison; Why We Love It, Thelma Strible; Exercise, Miss Doda's class; recitation, Lois Way; song, Class of Boys; Kitty's Present, Emily Stoddard; A Day of Joy, Lois Miner; Christmas Joy, Helen Lewis; recitation, Barbara Chapman; exercise, Mrs. Van Pelt's class; A Little Star, Aletta Wilson; The Christ Child, Priscilla Johnson; A Brief Speech, David Wilbur; Jesus Once Came Down to Earth, Elsie Hewlitt; Song by the school; Christmas Wreath, Mrs. Hammond's class; recitation, Annie Anderson; On Christmas Day, Fuller Lathrop; Christmas Fairy, Marion Morrow; Giving and Receiving, Eddie Gardner; exercise, Mrs. Chapman's class: song, Franklin King; exercise, Mrs. Bennett's class; Merry Christmas, Alice Decker; My Best, Arthur Griswold; My Broadcast, Laurence Wilson; Advice to Santa, Eugene Bogue; Christmas Wish, Thurston Dahlgren; Giving to Grandma, Doris Irons; Just a Little Boy, Bertha Anderson; Merry Christmas, Betty MacDonald; What Will Christmas Bring, Frances Thorp; Remarks by Rev. J. G. Osborn; song, school. Bells were heard and Santa Claus arrived to the delight of the children. Gifts and candy were given all the children present.

At the Baptist church Sunday morning Christmas authems were sung and there was a well delivered Christmas sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. G. Osborn. His topic for the evening sermon was Tableaux and Parcels. Owing to the remodeling of the church the usual decoration and exercises were omitted.

Fireman Roger spent the week end at Spring Hill.

Mrs. Gladys Musante is visiting in Bridgeport.

L. Thompson is spending a few days in Norwich.

The boat Eleanora Capt. H. Buckingham is being painted at Rogers' boat shop.

A large crowd went down to the north dock Sunday afternoon and inspected Capt. Chris Christiansen's new boat. The craft is 41 feet long. It was launched at Post's boat yard in Mystic. It has an oil engine made in Boldor, Sweden; it took seven weeks for the engine to come across and it is the first engine of its type ever seen in Noank. Capt. Christensen will use the boat for fishing.

Phil Steele has returned from East Lyme, after a visit.

Miss Dorothea Chester, after a visit here has returned to Cambridge, Mass.

Many Christmas trees from the woods were brought in by children Saturday.

PLAINFIELD

SCHOOL PUPILS ENTERTAIN A LARGE AUDIENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 21—The annual entertainment, by the children of the public school, was held Monday evening at the Community House. There was a splendid programme and good attendance. The proceeds were given to the Parent-Teacher association.

Wednesday afternoon the Mission Band is to hold its Christmas tree and entertainment, in the vestry of the Congregational church. Mrs. Percy Wilcox, superintendent will be in charge, assisted by a committee of two, Ernest Veit and Ernest Plassman.

Mrs. Lena Pipher is to entertain the Camp Fire Girls, at her home Wednesday, at 4 o'clock. They will hold a Christmas tree party, and play games.

Ray Greene was a week end visitor at Worcester, with relatives.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church realized $226.13, from the recent Christmas sale.

The Camp Fire Girls, in charge of Miss Rose Beaudry, assisted by some of the men, of the Lincoln club, are to erect a Christmas tree on the town of the Congregational church, to be decorated and illuminated.

Monday, a Christmas tree party and entertainment was held, for the Cradle Role, in the vestry of the Congregational church. Refreshments were served, and each baby was presented a little Christmas gift. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Cecil Butler, the superintendent.

Mrs. Lee Rainey, started Monday for Florida to join her husband, who left here a few weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. George Holland, of 208 Community avenue had their daughter christened at St. Paul's Episcopal church, Sunday by Rev. George Browne. The baby's name is Margaret Ellen.

The M. M. Society was entertained at the home of Mrs. Sidney Mathewson Saturday night. Following a short business meeting, whist was played at three tables. The prizes were awarded Mrs. Wallace Paine and Miss Helen Gallup. A Christmas tree, decorated with packages added to the enjoyment and an elaborate assortment of beautiful gifts was revealed. Apple pie, a la mode, fruit and cocoa were served by the hostess. Twenty members were present.

Ernest Palmer is working upon two handsome red cedar chests for which he has cut the material on his father's farm, had it sawed at a nearby saw mill and planed in Westerly.

Almost every house in Deerfield, Mass. has its special industry, numbering many. If all country homes had a specialized product, life in country communities would not only be more interesting but be more widely sought. "He who builds a better mouse trap than his neighbor will find a beaten track to his door," (Emerson) has said. Mrs. Clifford Thompson is an expert in basketry.

Friends welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frink of Jewett City at the church services Sunday morning.

Beautiful December days are compensating for earlier wild and windy weather.

TRACE SILENT STRUGGLE OF EXISTENCE MADE BY PUMPKIN

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 21—(AP)—The silent struggle for existence and the lengths to which a thirsty beet or pumpkin may go are made known by Prof. J. E. Weaver and Dr. Herbert C. Hanson, who have conducted an intimate inquiry at Lincoln, Neb., into the private lives of these and other vegetables.

They propose to make their findings public before the American Association for the Advancement of Science here, Dec. 28-Jan. 2.

Plants, such as beets carrots, parsnips and turnips frequently send their roots down ten feet, these scientists have discovered. The roots of pumpkins and squashes, often growing at the rate of 2 to 2.5 inches a day, reach as far from the base of the plant as the widely spreading vines, often fifteen to eighteen feet.

The lettuce also is shown to be a thirsty plant, its roots reaching depths of six to seven feet. The tap root of only a half-grown beet were found to have shot downward five feet, the root branches spreading three feet on all sides.

These scientists, in conjunction with F. E. Clements, also found a high mortality in the struggles of plant to gain a livelihood. Observing plants shooting up from the Nebraska prairie, they discovered that their crowding occasionally has resulted in mortality as high as eighty to ninety-eight per cent.

"Thus the old struggle of existence going on quietly and quite unnoticed, is vividly portrayed," the scientists state. "The ultimate object of pitting various kinds of grasses and herbs in these battles for supremacy is to trace out what has actually occurred in the past and to account for the present grouping and interrelation of plants."

Disturbance in a Local Theatre

The patrons of a local show house were very much disturbed and annoyed by the continuous coughing of a person in the audience. Don't be a nuisance because you have a cough or cold. A few doses of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND taken promptly will bring speedy relief from coughs, colds and hoarseness. Mrs. W. T. Clary, White Plains, Va., writes: "We have used FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND for colds and bad coughs with splendid results." Lee & Osgood Co.

COLONEL MITCHELL GAVE TESTIMONY BEFORE SHENANDOAH NAVAL COURT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The charges made by Colonel William Mitchell in connection with the fatal flight of the dirigible Shenandoah in the middle west last September, were based upon information from what he considered reliable sources and his own deductions, he testified today before the naval court of inquiry into the Shenandoah disaster.

Testifying in spite of the advice of his counsel that the five-year suspension hanging ober him gave him special status, Colonel Mitchell submitted to a two-hour examination by Major Henry Leonard, judge advocate of the court, who directed his questions at assertions the air officer had made in the San Antonio statements which precipitated his court martial, and to statements along similar lines made during that trial.

These statements included assertions that the Shenandoah was 50 per cent. overweight, that it had carried a corrosive anti-freezing mixture and that a whitewash board was inquiring into the case for the navy.

Apparently at the last minute changing his decision to abide by the advice of counsel not to testify at this time because it might prejudice his legal rights in the court martial case, Colonel Mitchell testified at the urging of Mrs. Mitchell, who desired that he conclude, if possible, his involvement with the Shenandoah court. At the end of his testimony, he assured Read Admiral Hilary P. Jones, president of the court, that he had always wanted to appear before the court and throw what light he could upon the Shenandoah case.

The general situation surrounding Colonel Mitchell developed during the day additional expressions of views at the capitol, both Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the democratic house leader, and Representative Banton, democrat, Texas, denouncing the outcome of the court matrial.

The sentence of suspension for five years without rank, duty or pay, Representative Garrett declared on the floor, was "cruel and unreasonable," and he charged that Colonel Mitchell was being punished for the aviation shortcomings of the republican administration. He described Colonel Mitchell as one of the country's ablest officers.

Representative Blanton called for the abolition of all courtmartial in peace time and declared the Mitchell court had "shanghaied" the aviation officer.

Meanwhile, the Shenandoah court proceeded to final arguments, with Major Leonard and Professor William Hovgaard of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, technical aid to the judge advocate, presenting their summaries. While Major Leonard spoke briefly, presenting the case to the court "without summation, without argument, without comment," Professor Havgaard went into technical details at length, asserting that it appeared the Shenandoah broke up primarily because of an excessive sagging movement caused by a violent upward gust. Other contributing causes, he said, might have been factors in the disaster.

He expressed belief that no excessive gas pressure was experienced, although some of the automatic gas valves apparently did not function properly, permitting an uneven condition to develop in several of the cells.

Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl is to present the summing up argument for the survivors tomorrow, with representatives also speaking for the commanding officer of the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., and for the navy bureau of aeronautics, after which the court will take the case under advisement.

IN ACCURACY IN REPORTS OF AUTO FATALITIES

Unfairness to Connecticut jckies in national compilations of motor vehicle fatalities has been brought to the attention of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce by the state motor vehicle department of Connecticut. Certain cities of this state have suffered by reason of the fact that reports of the deaths occurring in hospitals within cities as a result of injuries caused by accidents elsewhere are chalked up in some of these national surveys as fatalities occurring in the cities.

The difficulty arises from the fact that most of the national compilations of this character are based on reports obtained from the health departments or bureaus of vital statistics in the cities listed. These municipal departments and bureaus are not officially interested in the location of the accident which caused a death in a hospital within their city. The simple fact that a death occurred in a certain hospital of injuries resulting from an automobile accident is usually sufficient for the purposes of these agencies.

Under that system, however, a man might be fatally injured in an accident in Branford and be taken to the New Haven General hospital, and when he died the fatality would be listed under New Haven and not Branford. This practice is thought by the motor vehicle department to account for the fact that the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce survey for the first nine months of this year shows 27 fatalities for New Haven, whereas the records of the motor vehicle department and the New Haven police show only 13. Lesser discrepancies are shown with regard to Bridgeport and Hartford.

The difference in the systems employed is believed to explain the fact that reports of fatalities shown to have occurred in Connecticut cities frequently varies in state and national compilations.

When the Connecticut motor vehicle department called to the attention of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce its inaccuracy, it was forthwith admitted that there was some injustice in the method and the claim was made that since health department records are the only ones available to this body in many cities, those will have to be taken in Connecticut for the sake of uniformity.

The motor vehicle department records for the state of Connecticut show an exact distribution of these fatalities. So that in Connecticut at least here is no reason for inaccuracy or injustice to any cities.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has agreed to carry a foot note in the future which will show how many of these accidents now charged up to Connecticut cities, actually occurred outside city limits, that information being taken from the motor vehicle department records.

JEWETT CITY

ASHLAND COTTON CO. INSURES OPERATIVES IN ITS MILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

The Acco Smile, is published for the operatives of the Ashland Cotton Co., in Jewett City, by the Ashland club. Prentice W. Chase, is the editor. Mr. Chase, is Welfare Superintendent for the Ashland Cotton Co. He is a live wire in the position he occupies for the company and no less as an editor.

Mr. Chase, as well as the company for which he is employed, is interested in group insurance for his mill operatives. The Acco Smile starts out this month on its 4th year, improved, efficient and entertaining. The following notes from the current Smile, is of general interest:

At this time of year, when peace and happiness should abound, it gives us a feeling of satisfaction to know that the majority of the employes of the Ashland Cotton Company who have been with us three months have been provided with group insurance. We trust that the feeling of future security will help make their Christmas happier, and that their New Year will be prosperous and fruitful.

A real wild west runaway was staged on Main street at one o'clock Monday afternoon. A pair of heavy team horses, attached to a farm wagon, became frightened, when one of the bridles dropped off, and the horses started out at a wild pace on their own hook. The owner is the tenant on the Rojeski farm, a mile above the town.

Scouts of "Whoa there" didn't avail, until "Hap" Blake rushed out and did the Tom Mix act, in true border style. Gripping one of the runaways by the snout, he steered the team into Liberty Hall square, where they were stopped at the near-by fence.

The heavy wagon swung into an automobile belonging to a Providence, R. I., printing Co., putting the sedan completely out of business. Several narrow escapes from injured were reported.

The volume of parcel post mail received at the local office, within the last few days, is giving evidence that patrons are realizing the value of early mailing.

Beginning Monday morning Postmaster William T. Crumb has his entire force on duty.

A branch of the Railway mail service, seen and realized by only a few, is to be noted in the two big night postal expresses, trains 29 and 30, that come no nearer to Jewett City than New London. Every night now they leave New York and Boston with double crews of postal clerks performing extra service.

They will leave either city at 11 p. m. Train 29 is the main mail artery of New England, while train 30 is the eastern gateway for trunk line mails from the west and south. Each morning at 2 o'clock, when the majority of people are sleeping they will be leaving tons of mail at New London, destined to gladden the hearts of hundreds of Jewett City people, as well as thousands further up the line.

A good many local people searched the nearby woods and swampy track last week, in the hope of finding a few red winterberries for small Yuletide window bouquets.

This bush with its beautiful scarlet berries, is the (one time) common black alder, the ilex verticillata, of the botanies, and in this section a few years ago it was rated as plenty. Not so, however today. Searchers are returning with very little, and one must go far afield and leave the travelled highways well behind, to come upon an unmolested habitat of this once common and beautiful shrub.

Tadpole pond a mile above the town, was once a prolific locality. In early fall a few years ago it used to present its entire circumference, beautifully tinted with scarlet ilex. Passing automobile parties did the trick, not to rather a few, with some thought for the next fellow, but foliage hogs were seen to fill their machines with root and branch. Local people have not appreciated to any extent its money value. In New York last week, a local man saw small bunches, numbering five or six little twigs, with a sparse showing of berries, finding ready sale at a quarter each. Figuring at that rate, five years ago, Tadpole pond had enough winterberries every fall to have bought the Metropolis, from the Battery to Harlam.

GOV. TRUMBULL URGES SUPPORT IN SEAL SALE

Urging a final rally in the Connecticut effort to raise a $100,000 anti-tuberculosis fund by the 18th annual Christmas Seal sale, Governor John H. Trumbull praised the state's record of achievement in checking the ravages of the disease, and expressed belief that the Connecticut citizens would respond to the call to finance the work of tuberculosis units for 1926.

Dr. Stephen J. Maher of New Haven, chairman of the state tuberculosis commission, which is directing the campaign, said in announcing the item that the governor's appeal was most timely because of report from several parts of the state that the campaign is lagging and that renewed hope will be given to the fight against the disease by the enthusiastic support to the campaign of the chief executive of the state.

Governor Trumbull's statement follows:

"For years past it has been customary to sell Christmas seals the proceeds of which being used to combat the ravages of tuberculosis. It is fitting that the sale should be conducted during that time of the year when our hearts and thoughts are directed to the happiness and welfare of our fellowmen. It is the season of gifts and joyous thanksgiving for the benefits we have received during the year and each year because of the generous public support it has been possible to present life's choicest gift to thousands of our fellow citizens who have been afflicted with tuberculosis and it has been found possible to ward off and relate to a marked degree the affliction itself.

"Connecticut has reason to be proud of its record in the fight against tuberculosis. The death rate from this disease alone has been reduced from 185 per hundred thousand persons in 1908 to 89 in 1924, in other words this remarkable achievement is due to the organized effort inaugurated eighteen years ago. The campaign is carried on with untiring efforts and annually one thousand lives are saved.

"The success of the sale in Connecticut has always been gratifying and our state is second to none in this praiseworthy work. The campaign exhibits tuberculosis workers, public, state and municipal officials and private, health and civic organizations aggressively united to raise the funds to carry on their work for another year. The state is proud of the high standard maintained and results achieved at the five sanatoria, located at Hartford, Shelton, Norwich, Meriden and Crescent Beach. The prospect of soon carrying out the expressed wish of the legislature of constructing a new and spacious sanatorium for healing crippled children at Crescent Beach is near at hand.

As the improved health of the state depends in a large measure upon the success of the sale of Christmas seals and in order that this worthy work may go on to still greater heights of achievement, I earnestly ask the whole hearted, generous and liberal support of the citizens of the state."

NAVAJOS CROSS BREED SHEEP TO GET COLORS FOR WEAVING

SHIPROCK, N. M., Dec. 21—(AP)—The Navajo Indian, a stalwart nomad of the Painted Desert, has gone far afield to improve the strain of the sheep which provide wool for the famous Navajo blankets.

Successful experiments with Karakul sheep, imported from Asia, have led to steps taken to renew the Karakul blood among the native sheep of the reservation by the importation of more of these rare animals.

The Karakul sheep is the source of a valuable fur known to furriers as Broadtail, Persian Lamb, or Astrachan. The cross between the Karakul and native Navajo sheep has produced an animal bearing a beautiful wool, not too fine for rug weaving, ranging in shades through tan, yellowish brown and reddish brown.

The Navajo sheep owner, as a rule, sells his entire clip of wool to the traders of the reservation, regardless of color of the wool. The trader sorts the "off" colors and stores them in the wool room. Later the Navajo women, who are the weavers of the blankets which have made the tribe famed throughout the world, visit the wool rooms at the trading posts. They select and repossess themselves of such portions of the "off" colored wools as they may need for weaving purposes.

Although many attempts have been made among eastern manufacturers to color wool artificially for weaving, in imitation of this natural product, the dyed wools fall by a wide margin to bring the prices demanded for the rugs and blankets fabricated from the natural product.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

December has shown a decided falling off in the number of permits issued for new buildings and alterations and additions according to the report of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. During the first three weeks of the month there have been only five permits granted, one the first week in the month and four others last week. The total valuation of the work called for in the permits is less than $4,000 which is lower than practically any one week in the year.

The permits granted by Fire Marshal Stanton are for garages and additions to present buildings, there being two of each.

Fairly good progress has been made on local building projects in the past week and several of the dwelling houses have been brought to the completion stage. Outside the city work has also progressed rapidly on new buildings that are being erected. Between Occum and Baltic on the Baltic road there has been a noticeable activity in building and many new dwelling houses have been erected. In other sections of the town there also has been a marked increase in the number of new buildings erected.

The building permits issued by Fire Marshall Stanton are as follows:

To Frank A. Skinner to erect a two car garage 20x20 on Hedge avenue for Mrs. Jennie McDowell. The garage will be erected on concrete piers with plank floor.

To Anthony M. Nowakowski to build an addition to the present building at Central avenue and 3rd street. The addition will be 10x24 feet and of frame construction.

To Joseph Ladyka to erect a frame garage 8x20 feet on Second street for himself. The building will be of wood with metal roof.

To Mrs. Delia Duffie to add to present frame building on Tenth street. The addition will be of frame construction 11x32 feet and will be used as a garage and storeroom.

November Building Report

November this year showed a marked improvement over the eleventh month of 1924, in building permits issued and plans filed according to the survey made by S. W. Straus & Co. A loss of 13 per cent last year was this year turned into a gain of 26 per cent, 402 cities and towns reporting. While this was the highest number of places ever reported to the survey, the gain in November was not assisted by the greater number of places recording their building permits, as the increase in the 25 leading cities was 50 per cent.

Building activity is, therefore, apparently again transferred to the larger center of population. Every region of the country, except the Pacific west, showed a gain over November 1924; the south leading the regions with an increase of 53 per cent. The east had a 40 per cent gain and the central west 10 per cent.

A total of $340,500,000 reported from 402 places in November brings the total of permits well over $4,000,000,000. Assuming that December will record even as large a volume of permits as last year and allowing for more than a hundred or more places which do not yet report their building activities, the entire country will, as Mr. S. W. Straus predicted some months ago, have a "Six Billion Dollar Building Year."

The following is the tabulation of the value of new building and alteration permits issued in the larger cities of the state in November 1925, showing comparisons with November 1924 and October 1925:

	Nov., 1925	Nov., 1924	Oct., 1925
Bridgeport	$303,746	$148,404	$492,009
Danbury (15 per cent)	100,770	51,655	185,125
Hartford	1,740,343	1,453,600	2,938,868

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past year there were 5 sales of real estate as compared to 13 sales for the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $46,900 and $123,600.

There were 30 sales of real estate in New London last week, a record for the year, as compared to seven sales for the same week a year ago. The The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $92,400 and $13,675.

State Building Permits

Building permits were issued this week in the leading cities of the state to the number of 241, comparing with 268 permits issued in the like week of 1924, and 224 permits issued in 1923. The cost of new construction for the current week was $1,014,419, while in 1924 the cost of new buildings amounted to $3,568,214 and $2,146,086 in 1923.

New London

The permit has been issued to Johnson and Leeds for a frame apartment building on Maple avenue. From plans prepared the building will be 85x35 feet, arranged for eight apartments of four and five rooms each. The estimated cost is $15,000.

The bid sumbitted by M. J. Doyle & Son, Blydenburgh avenue, of $1.15 a cubic yard for furnishing the city with 2,000 cubic yards of soft coal cinders for street work, was the lowest of four received.

Plans have been prepared for a cottage at 740 Williams street for Raymond H. Stearns, 674 Williams street. The house will be 30x30 feet, with an ell 11x20 feet, and will be arranged for one family. All improvements will be provided.

Ground has been broken on Briggs street by Andrew C. Miller, Ledyard street, for a frame cottage. From private plans the dwelling will be 24x26 feet, with the usual conveniences. It will cost about $5,000.

Work has been started on a house on Montauk avenue for Nathem Pumerantz, 313 Montauk avenue. The contract for the house has been awarded. The proposed dwelling will be arranged for three six-room flats with steam heat and other conveniences.

The plans are being figured for two duplex garages on Broad street, for Sidney Sulman, 2 Shapley street, and Abraham Rakosky. The proposed buildings have been described before in these columns. The combined estimated cost is $40,000.

Building Permits

Johnson & Leeds, apartment building, Maple avenue, $15,000.

Jacob Lazerow, garage, Prest street, $200.

Raymond H. Stearns, dwelling, Williams street, $7,000.

MISSING BARS IN PARISIAN CABARETS ARE EXPLAINED

PARIS, Dec. 21—(AP)—An American night carabet without that indispensible accessory, an "American bar" is the latest novelty in the entertainment line to be offered to the visiting tourist in the side-streets leading up to the hill of Montmartre.

Not that the drinks commonly retailed across an "American bar" are found lacking in the establishment in question; far from it. But since the introduction of "student" or third-class passages on big ocean liners has caused an influx into Paris of Americans with more or less meagre pocketbooks, it has been found by the astute hosts of Montmartre that the bar privilege has been greatly abused.

American collegians, off for a summer vacation with a limited allowance, the hosts point out, will station themselves before a glass of beer at a bar, enjoy the hospitality of the dance-floor and whatever unattached partners may be found thereon, and pass the night away for something like the price of a third-rate moving picture show back home. Hence, the departure of the bar.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR BITUMINOUS COAL

The campaign of the New England Governors for the use of low volatile bituminous coal by householders has resulted in a heavy demand for this coal, according to a report made public by Eugene C. Hultman, Massachusetts fuel administrator and vice-chairman of the New England Governors committee.

As a result of the demand, retail coal dealers have ordered large stocks of bituminous coal. There were 333,472 tons of bituminous coal in the yards of the retail dealers on December 1, according to the report.

Help to the people of New England in securing bituminous coal from West Virginia has been given by the Interstate Commerce commission, which put into effect on October 15 an all-rail rate on prepared sizes, which permitted shipments of this coal at reasonable rates. As a result, over 100,000 tons of prepared sizes have been shipped to New England from the New River and Pocahontas fields in West Virginia. Also, there has been a heavy tonnage of run of mine shipments from these fields to the seaport cities of New England.

Mr. Hultman says that the householder in ordering bituminous coal should be sure to get low volatile bituminous and should learn how to burn it. He says, "This office has received complaints from some householders of dissatisfaction with bituminous coal, which, upon investigation, was found to be high volatile. In these cases the coal was sold by the dealers as No. 1 Domestic Bituminous "Selected Domestic Bituminous" and under various other names, which misled the consumers into thinking that they were obtaining the coal recommended by the fuel administration. Householders should see to it that their retail dealers specify on the bills that the coal furnished is low volatile bituminous."

To aid in educating the people how to burn this coal, Mr. Hultman recommends to the local fuel administrators the opening of local demonstration stations, where people can see low volatile bituminous coal burning and obtain information as to its use.

Governor Fuller, who organized the campaign of the New England Governors for the use of low volatile bituminous coal in the homes, also believes in the importance of showing people how to burn this coal. The governor officially opened the demonstration station on Boston Common established two weeks ago by the smokeless coal operators association of West Virginia. The station has proved very popular and there has been a daily attendance of about one thousand persons.

Several weeks ago the association established a New England service bureau in the Boston Chamber of Commerce building, where calls are being handled from householders who are using bituminous coal for the first time, and demonstrations are being made at the request of local fuel administrators, industrial establishments and civic and neighborhood organizations.

A new feature in the educational campaign will be put in operation next Saturday, when a demonstration mounted on an automobile truck will start on its trip throughout New England, giving local demonstrations.

PROVE POPULAR MASTERS OF HOUNDS IN ENGLAND

TIVERTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—Eve as as master of fox hunting packs has proved a tremendous success in England and one reason is the fact that by her tact and charm she has been able repeatedly to placate surly farmers when men have failed.

One of the best know women masters is Miss Kathleen Styles, of the West Kent fox hounds, which is one of the favorite packs of Prince Henry.

At present, there are at least eleven women masters of fox hounds, eighteen women honorary secretaries of clubs and about twenty women masters of harriers and beagles.

Fox hunting now is on in full tilt throughout the country. Princess Mary and the Duchess of York having participated recently in several clashes in this vicinity. Another keen follower of the hounds is Lady Jean Douglas Hamilton, who frequently hunts all day and then attends a theatre party or a ball in London in the evening.

It doesn't matter much whether a man remains a bachelor or gets married—in either case he is very apt to regret it.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Norwich people were interested in the discussion concerning a reduction in postal rates in 1850, when there seemed a possibility that drop letter postage might be reduced to two cents Opposition met the introduction of this bill in the house, at Washington, several representatives holding out for a five cent or three cent rate.

Items in brief, taken from the Courier of 1850, are as follows:

Tuesday, December 17, 1850—A mad dog, which had run loose in Norwich for nearly a week before it was noticed and killed, has caused a scare in the city. Dog owners have been requested to muzzle their dogs and the common council is to meet and pass some sort of an ordinance to make this compulsory, as there is no state law requiring this to be done. Several dogs are known to have been bitten by the mad dog, they have been muzzled and are being watched for any symptom of the dread disease.

The people of this community were shocked to learn of the death of Capt. Bela Peck, one of the oldest and wealthiest citizens of the city. Capt. Peck, held for many years, the office of high sheriff, and was well known throughout the county. Next to our venerable citizen Capt. Erastus Perkins, he was the oldest man in Norwich, being in his 93rd year.

The census just completed shows that the population of the state of Rhode Island is 147,543, being an increase of 38,712 since 1840, nearly 35 per cent. Providence now has a population of 41,513, being an increase of 19,341 since 1840, nearly 50 per cent of the entire population gain in the state during the past ten years.

The senate of South Carolina has passed a bill for convention, and giving $300,000 to be applied to military purposes.

Jenny Lind netted over $40,000 in her four concerts given in Washington during the past few days.

Thursday, December 19, 1850—The state ticket has been announced as follows: for governor, Lafayette S. Foster, of Norwich; for lieut. governor, Green Kendrick, of Waterbury; for secretary, Roger H. Mills, of New Hartford; for treasurer, Thomas Clark, of Coventry; for controller, Selah Strong, of Milford.

In the house at Washington, yesterday, the postal bill took up the greater part of the time and measures were introduced to make the rate on drop letters two cents. Other senators argued against this, holding out for either three or five cents. Newspaper rates were also discussed and it was decided that a lower rate would increase postal receipts. Adjournment was taken before any action was taken on any of the proposals.

Saturday, December 21, 1850—One of the larger state papers writing about the New Haven and New London railroad, comes out strongly in favor of having the road go through Norwich. Besides mentioning the shorter distance by rail the important feature brought out is that all places names concerning the Norwich route have large manufacturing plants while there are none between the Connecticut river and New London. It also says that New London has little to offer itself to take the railroad there as its chief commodity is whale oil, which of course is more cheaply carried by water.

In closing, the article says that $40,000 remains to be subscribed in New London, whereas Norwich business men have the $100,000 ready at a minutes notice.

Jenny Lind's farewell concert at Washington was on the 19th and was attended by the president, Messrs Webster, Clay, Hall and other notables. She sang Hail Columbia for the first time. At the termination Mr. Webster rose and bowed acknowledgments and Jenny Lind gracefully returned them.

The city highway surveyor is wanted by many people who claim that he should be on his job to see that deep banks of snow are cleared from sidewalks.

Shipping is now at ebb tide in Norwich, this port having but few ships in during the past week owing to the approach of winter.

The Boston and Worcester railroad has a reserve income $57,000 after all dividends and expenses, plus new equipment, have been paid.

LATTER DAY SAINTS TO DEDICATE NEW TEMPLE

PHOENIX, Ariz. Dec. 21—(AP)—The small town of Mesa, Ariz., will be the gathering place next year for thousands of worshippers who will dedicate the new temple of the Latter Day Saints.

Church authorities believe that fully 25,000 adherents of the Mormon faith will take part in the ceremonies. The structure, to cost more than $600,000, will be completed about January 1.

For some time the outer temple will be kept open for public inspection, but after dedication it will be closed to all but Mormons and even they must come recommended by officers of the church before being permitted to enter.

The inner temple will be a shrine never revealed to the public. It is known, however, that some of the best artists in the country have helped in the decoration. Large paintings will depict Joseph Smith preaching to the Indians and the scene at St. George, Utah, when the entire Shiwit tribe was baptised.

OBSCURE GRAVE OF MAN WHO FIRED FIRST YORKTOWN SHOT

YANCEYVILLE, N. C., Dec. 21—(AP)—In a small, heavily overgrown rural cemetery in Caswell county, not far from Yanceyville, is a mound covered with vines—no effort to mark the spot is apparent, other than the tombstone—under which lies the body of the man who fired the first shot at the battle of Yorktown.

The man's name was Starling Gunn. The cemetery is little visited, and few people even in the vicinity, know that the little cemetery contains a historic grave.

On the headstone, barely legible, appears these words:

"Here lies the body of Starling Gunn, who fired the first cannon at the battle of Yorktown, and who was an eye witness of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis."

The grave is overgrown with periwinkle and other vines, and is more prominent than other graves in the lonely little cemetery only by virtue of the fact that the headstone is somewhat larger than the others.

The existence of the historic grave has been recognized only once, other than in a casual way by individuals. A few years ago the Daughters of the American Revolution asked for earth from historic spots to be used in planting a tree, to be taken from Yorktown and planted at Arlington. At that time, a bit of dirt from Gunn's grave was supplied.

NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA TO STAGE CHESS GAME BY RADIO

HAVERFORD, Pa., Dec. 21—(AP)—North and South America will fight a chess battle by air during the winter.

The northern continent will be represented by Haverford college and the southern by the University of Argentine. The plans are to carry on the match by radio.

Last year the Haverford college chess players started a radio match with Oxford university but did not complete it, the British government holding that the university radio men's licenses permitted transmitting for experimental purposes only. The distance to be covered in the South American match is greater than that of last year's contest with the British players.

Mothers—Children Like This Epsom Salts Pill

This wonderful old remedy, heretofore shunned by children and adults alike because of its disagreeable taste, may now be had in a pleasant, sugar-coated pill. One pill equivalent in action to a heaping tablespoonful of salts. Unlike large, stick-in-throat tablets, Kuhn's Ep-sum Pill holds strength indefinitely. Quick results. Less wearing on system. Best for children because not gripeing. Money back if not completely satisfied. Only 35 cents at any of following druggists: G. G. Engler, The Lee & Osgood Co., Andrew McLaughlin, J. A. Morgan, Geo. M. Rathbone and Chas. C. Treat.

Hooty the Owl Sees a Prize

Use your ears and use your eyes
If you hope to win a prize.
—Hooty the Owl.

Hooty the Owl sleeps much of the day, but for all that there is little going on in the Green Forest of which Hooty is not aware. He knew when Paddy began that new dam. But perhaps this is not to be wondered at, for you know Paddy works at night, and of course that is the very time when Hooty is abroad. He sees a great deal, does Hooty, a great deal more than most folk suspect he does. He sees, but is himself unseen, because of his ability to get about on soundless wings. No shadow moves more silently than does Hooty the Great Horned Owl. It is very handy at times to be able to move about freely without making a sound, very handy indeed. Especially is this true at night when one is less likely to be

Now, Hooty was not particularly interested in what Paddy the Beaver and his family were doing. He had no idea of a Beaver dinner. No, indeed, Paddy was too big for Hooty to dream of attacking. And Paddy's children were now too big. Could he have caught them when they were little it would have been a different matter. But Hooty likes to keep up with the times, as the saying is, so every night he visited that part of the Green Forest where the new dam and new pond were being made. He knew that curiosity would bring other little people there, and some night he might have good hunting there.

So Hooty knew all about the new dam and the new pond, and what they were for. He wondered when the Beavers would begin cutting trees and floating their food supply down to the old pond. So every night he flew that way, to see if anything was doing. Thus it happened that he arrived over near the dam on the very night that the first logs were floated down and taken to the food pile in the old pond. But he didn't get there until after the first logs had been taken over the dam. When he got there no one was in sight. But Hooty's big eyes didn't miss anything. He saw bits of bark on the dam where the logs had been dragged across, and as he already knew that the cutting of poplar trees had begun, he was sure that some logs had been taken down. So having nothing more important to do, he decided to wait a while. He perched on the top of a tall dead tree which he had more than once used as a watch tower, and there he looked as if he were a part of the tree itself. If Peter Rabbit hadn't happened to see Hooty alight there I fear that Peter might have furnished Hooty a fine supper. But Peter did see him, and so kept quiet right where he was.

Now Hooty has very wonderful eyes, as you all know. They are eyes intended for use in the dusk, and they are large and round and cannot be moved. No, sir, those eyes of Hooty's cannot be moved. They are fixed, and so he must turn his whole head. Sometimes as he sits on watch he moves his head very slowly, moves it around until he is looking straight behind him. If you should see him that way he would look as if his head was on backward. Sometimes he turns it so quickly that he looks as if he turned it all the way around. If he did that of course he would twist his head off.

But whether turning his head slowly or quickly, Hooty is always looking, and what he is looking for is something that moves. In that light there isn't a chance to really see clearly a thing like a small animal or bird, so Hooty watches for something that moves. Then on those noiseless wings, those great wings which make no sound, he floats, or seems to, right over to that moving thing, and then strikes quickly. As a rule, he catches something worth catching. But now and then he makes a mistake.

This night as Hooty was turning his head slowly around he saw something moving. It was on top of a big gray, old rock. It was too dark for Hooty to see clearly what it was, but whatever it was, he was sure it was something to eat. It was a prize, whatever it was. Hooty spread those broad, silent wings and headed straight for that rock, and his great cruel, curved claws ready to strike.

WM. OSBORN, PORTER ON N. Y. LINE BOAT, DIES SUDDENLY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—William Osborne, about 50, employed as porter on the New London line steamer New Hampshire, died suddenly aboard the boat this afternoon, death undoubtedly resulting from a weakened condition of the heart, aggravated by acute indigestion. Mr. Osborne ate his dinner about 2 o'clock and immediately afterwards was seized with severe abdominal pains. A physician was summoned, but before he arrived Osborne expired.

Mrs. Everett Tourjee and infant son, of Montville; Mrs. Ernest Abshure, East Lyme, and Jacob Friedman, Mystic, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. John Tramscone, of Groton; David Bridgeman, Old Lyme, and Mrs William Falk and infant daughter, of Groton, were patients dismissed today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Now London has been fortunate thus far this winter in that no really cold weather has prevailed and there has not been any snow. If the city gets through the week without intense cold and some snow, it will be favored beyond any winter in the recollection of man.

There has been a crush at the post office all day with a chance that the business there will exceed that of any year in the history of the office. And what is the experience of the people who seek to patronize the mail there is true in the volume of mail going by trains. The station platform is absolutely choked up with mail bags and parcels, several carloads await handing there. Much of the mail that moves away from or to the suburban offices in this section goes through the New London office, so that the volume of business transacted there is very large. The sub-base, the coast guard and the forts all get their mail through New London.

Automobile traffic was very heavy in the city this evening, for the weather was so mild that anyone who desired to get out was enabled to do so. The stores were all open for business this evening also and that attracted buyers.

A. B. Prentice, 141 Mohegan avenue, this city, was before Deputy Judge Charles F. Willard in the Groton town court this morning on a charge of reckless driving. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, the latter amounting to $12.1. Prentice was detected speeding through Thames street late Sunday afternoon by Captain of Police Andrew McCarthy, who requested the New London authorities to order Prentice into court.

Carl Brown from Gales Ferry, was charged with intoxication and drew a fine of $5 and costs. Brown was taken into custody by State Police Officer Frank Schwelkert late Saturday afternoon when found asleep beneath the Groton approach to the Thames River highway bridge.

MISS ANNA RISCH ABLE TO LEAVE THE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—Miss Anna Risch, of 12 Clover court, a member of the automobile party injured Thanksgiving eve, when Miss Risch and other students attending a dance at Bulkeley High school, were thrown from an automobile on the Hartford turnpike, was able to return to her home this afternoon, having been under treatment at Lawrence hospital since the accident. Miss Risch was the most seriously injured of the party, sustaining a fractured pelvic bone.

There was an unusual number of drunks in the police court this morning and several who attributed their presence there to the use of liquor. Sailors were conspicuous in the fifteen accused persons. They were drunks generally. Fines were meted out to the most aggravated offenders, while other bluejackets were allowed their liberty under the impression that they would have to pay the penalty of overstaying their leave when they returned to the state pier, or to the submarine base. One fellow declared that he would take a pledge not to drink for a year if he was given the chance so to do today. Judge Prince believed his case worthy of trial and allowed him his freedom unpunished. Another fellow who said he "took a little too much" and whose face was scratched by contact with a sidewalk, was let off with a fine of $10. He was promised more when he came again for a penalty. A Norwich man residing on Quarry street was given the chance to pay a fine of $5 or to go to jail. He chose to pay. Three violators of the parking ordinance provisions were presented for carelessness, but they were not penalyized, as they claimed there were cars ahead of them where they pulled up and stopped.

Fred Gardner was fined $100 for operating a car while under the influence of liquor. Gardner would not admit that he was drunk, but he conceded that the arresting officers were correct in charging him with having been drinking liquor. He ran his car into a taxi at the head of State street, and it was strongly suspected that his car was in collision with a team on Howard street. So Gardner will do the wise thing if he does not try to again mix alcohol with gasoline.

A negro who was a stowaway when the steamer Richard Peck reached port from New York was charged with having evaded the payment of his fare. He was not in funds so it was declared that New London would be better off without him and he was allowed to leave the city. The fellow traveled on the assumption that, as he worked for the steamboat company at one time, he was entitled to transportation now.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucie E. Taft, wife of Edwin L. Taft, late of Waterford, was held this morning at 10.30 o'clock at 48 Chappell street, the services being conducted by Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of the Waterford Baptist church. The body was forwarded to Whitinsville, Mass., for burial.

An automobile owned and operated by John Siaglo, of Fog Plain road, Waterford, was damaged Sunday night when the machine skidded and collided with a telephone pole. Siaglo was driving his car on Main street and following a trolley car. When Siaglo attempted to drive the car past the trolley car, the automobile skidded and before it could be gotten under control, the machine plunged across the highway and against the pole, the automobile being wrecked. Siaglo escaped injury.

An unidentified automobile struck a team owned and driven by Harris Rasowsky, 52 Summer street, Sunday night on Howard street, the driver of the automobile being guilty of evasion of responsibility for he speeded his machine away from the location of the accident without stopping to ascertain the extent of the damage he had caused. The wagon was damaged, but Rasowsky escaped injury. The police made an effort to locate the driver of the automobile, but were not successful in finding him.

Mrs. Beth Clemons, assistant town clerk, resumed her duties at the municipal building today having been ill at her home on Blackhall street, for several days.

The flag on the municipal building was set at half-mast today as a tribute to Charles Prentis, whose death occurred Sunday evening. Mr. Prentis had served the city as an alderman and charity commissioner for a number of years.

The condition of Police Sergeant Patrick Murphy, who has been confined to his home in Ledyard street, for a week, threatened with pneumonia, is considerably improved and it is believed that he will be able to resume duty the latter part of the month.

Chris Sauers this afternoon was taken into custody on a warrant issued by the authorities of Hazelton, Pa., charging him with non-support and desertion. Sauers is being held pending the arrival of an officer from Hazelton to escort the prisoner back to that city for trial. Sauers is a member of the United States Coast Guard and was taken into custody at the state pier.

Sam Silvester was apprehended this afternoon by Patrolman William Graham and William Riordan charged with breach of the peace and upon complaint of his wife. Silvester will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Walter Zolkowski, 19 Tenth street, was taken into custody when State Police Officer Frank Kulowski and Patrolmen William Graham, Michael Dorsey and Braxton Hill raided the place, about 3 o'clock. A considerable quantity of liquor was found by the searchers. The accused was held for trial in bail of $1,000, which he was unable to furnish.

Annie Santer, 165 North Bank street, was apprehended on a charge of violation of the liquor law. Although no evidence was found at the place by the raiding force, the woman was held in bail of $1,000 for her court appearance tomorrow. Mrs. Esther Lubchamisky qualifying on the Santer woman's bond.

THREE LIQUOR RAIDS RESULT IN PROMPT ARRESTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—The state police were active in this city this evening, when they raided three places and took into custody the proprietors, on charges of violation of the liquor law. At two of the places evidence of the violation of the law was obtained.

Shortly after 7 o'clock State Police Officer Bernard Kenerson and Patrolman Edward Riordan visited the lunch room of Sawa Skrigan, 138 North Bank street, armed with a search warrant issued by Judge S. Victor Prince. As the officers entered the place Skrigan was in the act of supplying a customer with a drink of "white mule." Skrigan having poured the drink from a pitcher into a glass. Just as Skrigan was about to hand the drink to the customer, Officer Kenerson appeared behind him and compelled Skrigan to turn the glass of alcohol and a pitcher containing another quantity over to the officer. Skrigan, to the surprise of the officer delivered the booze without hesitancy or without endeavoring to destroy it. At the police station Skrigan declared that it was his first detection in the sale of liquor. He furnished a surety in Louis Elfenbein on his bond of $1,000 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

WORTHLESS CHECK FRAUD ARRESTED IN WASHINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—Harold Terhune, who is also known under several aliases, is under arrest at Washington, charged with passing fraudulent checks and evading hotel bills. During his stay of ten days in New London last month, Terhune also passed a worthless check, negotiating a check for $35 on the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, and negotiating it with Robert R. Rutherford, Lyme. Today Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky issued a warrant for Terhune's arrest and turned it over to the state police to be served.

FIREWORKS SNAP AND SPUTTER AT CITY COUNCIL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—The city council held the liveliest meeting this evening it has yet held, in that members shared a disposition to talk back to each other. Councilor Streeter brought the matter up of securing a change in the rules that had been adopted by the council for the government of its members. He referred by numbers 6, 10 and 12. He declared that as to No. 6 he intended to violate it insofar as it became necessary to defend his conduct and reply to utterances that he deemed to be an insinuation as to his own conduct as a member of the council. He declared that rule 10, which related to reference of matters to committee had not been conformed to, and that No. 12, referring to reports on matters by appropriate standing committees had not been lived up to. He stated in so many words that it was his intention to violate No. 6 if improper remarks were made and to question the right of any one to make them.

Mayor Fox declared that stand to be unique and a strange one for a member of the council to take. He said that Mr. Streeter made wild, chimerical and unfounded statements at the last council meeting.

This brought the reply from Mr. Streeter that he was "willing to back up any statement" he had made.

Mayor Fox said the remarks of Mr. Streeter did not come within the meaning of the rule at all. He said that the imputation that members of the council were responsible for newspaper articles was without foundation in fact. The matter was not one in which the members of the council were concerned. He did not believe that any member of the council did what Mr. Streeter imputed to him. The mayor said there had been no secret meetings of committees and he asked Mr. Streeter to name a date or a place at which a secret meeting had been held.

Mr. Streeter was on his feet in an instant and declared that a secret meetin, was held after the Monday night meeting of the council.

This brought Councilor Fox to the floor and he declared that the statement of Mr. Streeter as to that was "absolutely false." He said the city manager and himself (chairman of the police committee that has the report that is being considered in hand) met at the office of the city manager as he (Mr. Scott) left the council chamber but there was no secret meeting. "But," he said, "the city manager has the right to confer with any chairman as to matters in committee." He went farther and accused Councilor Streeter of eavesdropping and said that had he (Streeter) not forgotten his gloves, he would not have seen the city manager talking to him (Scott).

City Manager Holt then participated in the discussion and said that he was known to all members of the council, as he had lived in New London all his life; he had met the chairmen of all committees of the council to talk over affairs, and that he met them at their convenience generally. He said he had met Councilor Scott, of the police committee, on various occasions and at times on holidays, as Mr. Scott was a busy man. He had met other chairmen in this same way, but as for secret meetings, he never held any. He decrared absurd, the statement of Mr. Streeter that "secret" meetings had been held.

Mayor Fox declared that the statement of Mr. Streeter that the mayor, whom he designated as a stickler for open meetings, had attended or countenanced secret meetings was false. The mayor said he never attended a secret meeting and did not intend to attend such. He said that Mr. Streeter owed an apology or retraction of his statements to the council. Mr. Streeter volunteered that he would gladly make such if he was in error. He held that statements were given to a newspaper by some one in the water department of the city and that what was said there was added to by the newspaper publishing the statement.

Mayor Fox interrupted to say that the council was not concerned in articles which appeared in that newspaper. He pointed out that rules 10 and 12 were based on Cushing's Manual and were not changed in adapting them to the new London council. He also declared that it was the duty of members to conform to rules that had been adopted by the council. In all legislative bodies the manual prevails, they are binding upon the members and they should be adhered to as regards statements that will respect the feelings of others. He said that arraigning the motives of other members of the council was clearly out of order.

PROWLER AT STATE FARM SQUEALS ON GRACE SMITH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—Grace Smith, colored, of 16 John street, was arrested this evening by State Police Officer Fred Caron and Officers Edward Riordan and William Graham charged with being a lascivious and lewd person. In default of a surety on her bond of $200, she was placed in a cell to await the convening of the police court tomorrow morning.

The Smith woman's arrest came about through an unusual circumstance. Edward Fetherson was found roaming about the premises of the State Farm for Women at East Lyme this evening and complaint was made to the state police. Officer Caron went to the farm and upon finding Fetherson there, questioned him, with the result that Fetherson declared that he had spent practically the entire day at the John street house and frankly narrated his conduct there. Fetherson was brought back to New London and after the Smith woman had been arrested, he was placed in a cell to make sure that he would be a witness against the accused, when she is presented in court.

WANT REGULAR LAWYER FOR CITY'S BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—The resignation of Director of Law Whittlesey brought a recommendation to the city council at its meeting this evening looking to the employment of a competent attorney on full time to attend to the city's legal business. Councilor Whiton pointed out that the city had had the services of three attorneys who had resigned within a short time because, as they stated, the city's business in the law department was such as demanded too much time from their private practice. Mr. Whiton proposed that the city managed endeavor to ascertain whether a competent attorney could be induced to take the whole of the city's legal business and attend to it all the time. He declared that if occasion arose there could be additional services from attorneys employed, but he believed that it was time for the city council to consider the matter and ascertain what could be done in the direction indicated. He asked that the matter be referred to the administration committee for investigation of the situation and report to the council. The matter was referred, as suggested by Mr. Whiton.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Official winter opens today.

Forty-five years ago today died George Eliot (Mary Ann Evans), the famous English novelist.

Fifty years ago today the people of Richmond, Va., were alarmed by severe shock of earthquake.

Frank B. Kellogg, President Coolidge's secretary of state, is in line for congratulations today on the beginning of his 70th year.

Railroads throughout the country will begin the running of special trains today for the accommodation of thousands of students going home for the holidays.

Congress will recess today until January 4 and senators and representatives will leave for their homes to spend the Christmas and New Year holiday period.

ANNOUNCEMENTS COMPLETE ARRANGEMENTS FOR COLLEGE BRIDGE

Monday evening the committee of arrangements for the Connecticut college endowment bridge and whist to be held at the Wauregan hotel met at the home of Miss Dorothy Pasnik, No. 79 Williams street, at which time plans for the bridge and whist were completed. The committee in charge comprises Miss Constance Clapp, Lincoln avenue, chairman; Miss Marcia Stanton, East Great Plain, Miss Lois Latimer, Broad street, Miss Lucy Gilman, Bozrahville and Miss Dorothy Pasnik, Williams street.

The hotel has donated the use of the ball room, Mayor Milo R. Waters has donated the tickets, and tables and chairs have been donated by the armory and Undertakers C. A. Gager and Church and Allen.

INSURANCE POLICIES FOR SCHWARTZ BROS. EMPLOYES

The Schwartz Bros. Co., Inc., the well known Main street furniture dealers, is again this year making Christmas presents to its employes in the form of life insurance policies which are taken out through the local office of the Prudential Life Insurance Co. This is the third year that the furniture company has carried out this Christmas plan.

HAROLD E. SPICER WITH THE PLAUT-CADDEN CO.

The many friends of Harold E. Spicer will be interested to know that he is now connected with The Plaut-Cadden Co., of this city as watchmaker and engraver. Mr. Spicer is well known in local business circles, having been associated for many years with the jewelry business. Prior to his connection with The Plaut-Cadden Co., he was with F. W. Guild, former well known local jeweler.

Palace Theatre.

The bill at the Palace the first half of this week is of the finest. Barger, Miller and Co. open the vaudeville with a novelty roller-skating act performing many daring and new tricks. Ed Mulcahey is a tenor and sings his way into the hearts of the audience. Ed is very good at story telling. Ward and Raymond have a knockout hokem act which keeps the audience in one continuous howl. John Haw and Co. in a singing and dancing act with an Egyptian and Indian atmosphere. Their costumes and scenery are most lavish.

Motion picture audiences are in for a real treat of considerable magnitude! They have the opportunity of enjoying a "best seller" among books reproduced, to the last thrill and gasp of dramatic romance, on the screen at the Palace theatre.

"Recompense" is the name of the picture that held the audience fascinated in their seats last night. The Warner "Classic of the Screen" was translated into pantomime from Robert Keable's sensational sequel to "Simon Called Peter" and tells the gripping truth of a tremendous love that held a man and woman fast.

From the mad confusion of afterwar, the hellish, primitive wilderness of South Africa and the mutual morass of inward struggle, Peter and Julie emerge wide-eyed and open-handed, ready for the beauty they had won.

"Recompense" is a picture that motion picture audiences cannot afford to overlook. It is great — absorbing entertainment.

Broadway Theater

Twenty years ago when divorces and motor cars were first beginning to be used—when publicity was notoriety—the great Gathway scandal began. It seems Nadine Gathway, then a young, beautiful, and tempestuous girl, was aroused by the narrowness and rigidity of her studgy, middle-aged, millionaire husband to desert him and her baby daughter Joyce.

The scene shifts. Twenty years later! Joyce Gathway, lovely and high-strited daughter of Nadine, has come into the prime of young womanhood with the heritage of her mother's misstep. Nevertheless she is the pet and leader of the younger set at Palm Beach, the celebrated "coast of folly."

Such is the situation Gloria Swanson, playing the dual role of both mother and daughter, finds herself in her newest Paramount starring picture, The Coast of Folly, which opened at the Broadway yesterday. Allan Dwan, who directed Gloria in Manhandled, Wages of Virtue, etc., produced the picture from Forrest Halsey's adaptation of the novel by Coningsby Dawson.

Other subjects include a new Kinograms and kid comedy that is a flor of fun called Fire Flies.

Watch for Thursdays announcement of grand Christmas festival of joy in the B. F. Keith Vaudeville bill.

POETRY

THE NEW GAME
(A Christmas Rhyme)

Suppose one truly tried each day
To do at least one deed
To make another's life more gay,
Or fill his lack or need—
Suppose one really sought to see
This way the world to bless—
Why, just think, you or I might be
That man of happiness!

Suppose we made of it a game—
'Twere surely easy done—
At care and tears to take our aim
And shoot them one by one;
To set a weary face a-smile
A sport might be—confess.
As title does it not beguile—
A man of happiness!

'Twould need no racket, nor a ball,
Nor mallet, nor a bat;
A kindly, willing heart were all,
My friend—just think of that!
To go about a-sowing joy
On others who have less—
You could not help but be, old Boy,
A man of happiness.

For game laws none need give a hoot—
Leave them for deer and bear;
There is no lack of game to shoot—
The world is full of care;
And aching hearts are all about,
In spots where few would guess,
Who crave, and crave beyond a doubt
A man of happiness.

'Tis surely worth experiment,
So let your will incline,
And try one day with firm intent
This small idea of mine.
Nor appetite, nor sleep will wane,
A drowsy bed you'll press,
And credit in the sky you'll gain,
O man of hapiness!
—By Samuel Minturn Peck in The Autumn Trail.

What the Toymaker Thinks

I wonder just what the Toymaker thinks
As he sits by his fire and nods and blinks
At the close of day, when his toil is done
And he dreams and rests till another sun

I wonder if he, as he sits and rocks
Gives ever a thought to Jack-in-the-box;
To drums or horns, or the simplest toy
That gave him a thrill when he was a boy.

All day, in his shop, he has rushed about
To get his orders from Santa Claus out
And how well he knew he must get them done
Or there would be tears where there should be fun

So I always wonder just what he thinks
As he sits by his fire and nods and blinks.
Does ever the wish find way to his heart
That children would tire of his magic art?

Just think what a gloomy old world 'twould be
If Santa's toymakers should ever agree
To leave off their work and scurry away,
Or go on a strike for an eight-hour day;

It just couldn't happen! It never has yet,
So why need we worry and fear and fret?
For centuries past each toymaker born
Has had a glad part in some Christmas morn.

I've even been told they take a great pride
In helping old Santa get ready to ride.
And, what I like best—they tell me they hear
The children are all growing "gooder" each year!
—William Herschell, in Indianapolis News.

He—I suppose that's why she always had her picture taken in a track suit.—Dartmouth Jack-o-Lantern.

Crawford—So you can't understand why your boy in college flunked in all the foreign languages?

Crabshaw—No; it's a mystery to me. He passed up all the college yells in no time.—American Legion Weekly.

Woman in Auto—Good heavens son, we've just run over a poor man! Stop! Stop!

Driver—Keep still mother, you'll make everyone think this is the first time we were ever out in an auto.—Paris Le Rire.

Lily—My mother is frightfully strict.

Anna—So is mine!

Lily—But you seem to do what you like!

Anna—Oh, she isn't strict with me!

Lily—Who is she strict with, then?

Anna—Father!—Kartoffeln Christiania.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New York.

Stocks irregular: Fleischmann issues at new highs.

Bonds steady: Profit taking checks advance in rails.

Foreign exchanges mixed: French francs react ten points.

Cotton barely steady: Easier spot markets.

Sugar higher: Foreign buying.

Coffee firm: Better Brazilian market.

Chicago.

Wheat weak: December liquidation.

Corn lower: Bearish visible.

Cattle steady.

Hogs lower: Shipping outlet broad.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (By the A.P.) —Reactionary prices tendencies predominated in today's stock market which showed a marked falling off in volume due to the approach of the Christmas holiday. Heavy profit taking, usual at this time of the year, was apparent throughout the day with some professional selling probably inspired by the marking up of the call money rate to six per cent. Failure of the directors of the Chrysler Corporation to take dividend action at today's meeting precipitated heavy selling of that stock, which broke nearly 10 points to 183 3-4 closing within a point of the bottom. Other automotive issues held relatively steady with the exception of Stewart-Warner, which fell over two points on profit taking. Hudson closed fractionally higher at 102 1-8 after having been bid up to 105 3-4 early in the session.

Rubbers were hard hit on selling presumably influenced by the recent break in crude rubber prices. United States Rubber common dropped nearly five points to 76 3-4, and then rallied to 77 1-2, and Goodrich closed about 3 points lower at 60 1-4. Oils failed to follow up the rally started in the closing days of last week, Pan-American B., General Asphalte and Pacific each losing about a point.

Reports that the Interstate Commerce Commission expects to hand down its decision in the "Nickel Plate" merger case next month failed to stimulate the demand for the rail shares although Southern Railway was bid up to a new high record for all time at 130. Net declines of 1 to 2 1-2 points were recovered by Atchison, Chicago and Eastern Illinois Preferred, Illinois Central, Pere Marquette, Reading, Frisco Common, and preferred and Seaboard Air Line Preferred.

American Can closed fractionally higher at 260 after having sold as high as 263 5-8, but most of the other standard industrials lost ground. Baldwin reacted 1 3-4 to 128 and United States Steel common closed three quarters lower at 132 3-4. Weakness cropped out in American Safety Razor, Commercial Solvents A, General Electric, National Cloak and Suit and United States Cast Iron Pipe, all of which showed net losses of 3 to 6 1-2 points.

Bullish operations were again successfully conducted in a number of specialties. Postum Cereal was bid up 7 points to a new record top at 115 in further reflection of the recent purchase of the Jell-O Company, but lost nearly half of its gain before the close.

Fleischmann, old stock, soared over 30 points to 171 1-2 on rumors of large contracts for 1926. New 1925 peak prices also were established by Art Loom Common and Preferred; Ace Threshing Machine, Jewel Tea Preferred, Mathieson Alkali, Standard Milling and Vivaudou.

Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent., and then advanced to six the highest rate since September 30, due to the increased demand for funds in connection with the end of the year requirements.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity markets were reactionary, in the grain market an early advance, based on unfavorable Argentine crop reports was lost in the afternoon. Cotton held relatively steady in view of the large ginning report.

A break of over 10 points in French francs, based on unconfirmed rumors that the new finance minister Doumer would quit the French cabinet, was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling eased slightly to $4.84 11-16 and most of the other European exchanges moved within rather narrow limits.

TAFTVILLE

Postmaster D. C. Murphy stated Saturday that the outgoing mail at the local postoffice was very much below normal, and that he believed that many people were neglecting the mailing of Christmas cards and packages until the last possible moment. If this is so, there will be a heavy rush toward the end of the week and mail will not reach its destination by Christmas.

Mrs. Walter W. Kellner and children William and Virginia of Preston have been recent guests of Mrs. Kellner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Thomas L. Sharples of Lynn, Mass., has been spending a short time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Sharples of South Second avenue.

There was special Christmas music at the morning service at the Taftville Congregational church, Sunday morning, the choir singing two anthems, Sing O Heavens, and There were Shepherds, under the direction of Miss Nellie S. Howie, choir leader and organist. The decorations were of evergreen and hemlock. It was announced that the annual Christmas exercises of the church school would be held at the church Wednesday evening at 7:30, followed by a Christmas tree and visit from Santa Claus in the vestry. In the evening Miss Fidelis Krodel led the meeting of the Young Peoples society of Christian Endeavor in the lecture room.

SPECIAL BOYS' MEETING AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

Over a hundred boys attended the rally for boys in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. when an impressive moving picture was shown. After the scripture reading by Boys Secretary Emery Davis and the prayer by the general secretary, seven reels of "The Boy of Flanders" were shown. The films pictured very strongly the power of love, as shown between the boy hero of the pictures, Jackie Coogan, and his old blind grandfather and his dog. Mr. Davis who was in charge of the services gave the boys a brief talk in which he stressed the lessons to be gained from the pictures.

You noticed, said Mr. Davis, the faithfulness to duty on the part of the dog. This is something that every boy needs to learn. The courage that the dog demonstrated should teach every boy the beauty of courage. Then the sacrifice displayed by the dog certainly appealed to us all, and every boy should be willing to make sacrifices for others. We owe it to others to do so. The boys were evidently greatly interested in both the pictures and the talk and doubtless many of them learned needed lessons.

State in 21st Place

During the past fiscal year the number of government life insurance applications approved and classified for Connecticut was twenty-first highest in the country and second highest in New England, according to figures issued by the director of the Veteran's Bureau.

In Connecticut 462 such applications were approved and classified, the amount being $2,051,462, bringing the total number to June 30, to 6,730, amounting to $21,806,195.

DUWELL CLUB PLANS TO ENTERTAIN 1,000 PEOPLE AT ELKS HOME TONIGHT

Fully 1,000 people are expected to attend the Duwell Club's Christmas social to be held at the Elks home, Main street this (Tuesday) evening. At 7 o'clock this evening the Duwell club and the teachers of the Bishop school will give the children of the East Side their first community Christmas party.

For three weeks the people on the East Side, children and grownups alike, have been planning for the Christmas party. When the plans were put in shape it was evident that the party was going to be a big event, but not even the most ardent boosters anticipated the proportions the affair was to assume.

Collecting stations were established last week where people could leave gifts for the children and Monday night when the final collections were made it was estimated that over 500 gifts had been donated, enough to provide gifts for all the children present. In addition to these gifts the Duwell club members will also provide a gift for each child.

A very attractive programme of music, vaudeville, recitations and Christmas carols, has been arranged by the committee. Announcement was made that owing to the fact that Santa Claus is a mighty busy man these days, he will not be able to arrive at the Elks home until about 9 o'clock. The programme arranged for the evening is as follows:

Music, Thumm's orchestra; address of welcome, Judge Nelson J. Ayling; prayer, Lord's Prayer in unison; singing of Christmas carols by Kindergarten Grades 1, 2 and 3; recitation, The Star, Kindergarten, Grades 1, 2 and 3; recitation, The Night Before Christmas, Howard Randall; recitation, A Letter From Santa Claus, Gladys Gomond; recitation, December, Anna Pedace; recitation, Christmas Day, Jane Grenier, Inez Smith, Annie Johns; song, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear.

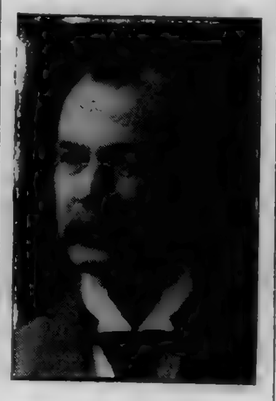
Singing of Christmas Carols, by Grades 6 and 7; recitation, A Forecast, Marion Knouse; recitation, A Southern Christmas, Eleanor Pl[illegible]; music, Thumm's orchestra; La Montague, magician; A Wee Bit O' Scotch, Fred Powers; accordion selections, Tristis; novelty dancing, Hooker and Cosana; recitation, The Stocking, Kindergarten, Grades 1, 2 and 3; song, Santa Claus, Kindergarten, Grades 1, 2 and 3; arrival of Santa Claus and distribution of gifts.

The committee announced Monday evening that the children of the Bishop school must be in their places by 6.45 o'clock while the children attending other schools and residing on the East Side, will meet at the Duwell club at 6.40 o'clock.

Children from other sections of the city who wish to attend must be accompanied by their parents or guardians.

W. G. HENDERSON SERIOUSLY INJURED IN FLORIDA

While alighting from a trolley car at St. Petersburg, Fla., recently, William G. Henderson, formerly agent of the Falls and Shetucket mills, this city, was hit by a speeding automobile. He was knocked 40 feet along the highway and received compound fractures of both legs and a broken collar bone. Mrs. Henderson, who was with him, narrowly escaped being hit by the machine as it sped past the car. Mr. Henderson was taken to a hospital, where at last reports he was resting comfortably. Word of the accident was received here in letters to Norwich friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henderson.



WILLIAM G. HENDERSON

Mr. Henderson was a resident of Norwich for 18 years during which time he was agent of the Falls mill and the old Shetucket mill, since gone out of business. Mr. Henderson left Norwich about 12 years ago for the south where he managed successfully several southern mills. Disposing of his mill interests several years ago Mr. Henderson has since led a retired life at St. Petersburg.

COAST GUARD HIT BY COAL SHORTAGE

Members of the crews of the Coast Guard patrol boats operating from the New London Base were Monday facing the prospects of going with cold food, as the coal bunkers at the state pier gave up their last shovelful of coal. Although gasoline is used for fuel aboard the patrol boats the stoves on which the food is cooked are dependent upon coal.

Officials of Section Base 4 have been striving for the last several weeks to obtain sufficient coal to replenish their bunkers, but as yet their efforts have proved fruitless and the situation has now reached an alarming stage. The officials realize that the men manning the patrol boats cannot get by in the cold off shore vigil on cold food, and they are now engaged in experimenting with the use of soft coal and wood in the galley stoves in an effort to tide the boats over until such time as the hard coal situation is relieved.

MOOSE GET TEN MORE MEMBERSHIP APPLICATIONS

Ten more applications for membership in Norwich Lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., were received during the past week bringing the total up to 30, for the New Year's eve initiation. The committee has every thing all set for a big time New Year's evening.

The gold pen and pencil to be given to the member bringing in the largest number of applications is now on display at the Moose Home. The regular meeting will be held Wednesday evening, this week, owing to the fact that the regular meeting night occurs on Christmas. Important business is scheduled to come before the meeting and a large attendance is expected.

CITY TREASURER AVERY 80 YEARS OLD MONDAY

A few of the "boys" at the Arcanum club got wind of it that City Treasurer Charles S. Avery was four score years old on Monday so that he found the day filled with constant reminders of his 80th birthday. Cards, messages and greetings kept showering in upon him at various times during the day, with congratulations to the former state senator and hearty wishes that he may enjoy many more birthday anniversaries.

MAYFLOWER SOCIETY NOTES FOREFATHERS' DAY

About 50 members of the Mayflower society of New London county held a luncheon at the Mohican hotel, New London Monday, to observe Forefathers' day. The luncheon was arranged and planned by a group of Groton members and was a successful affair.

Mrs. George Maynard Minor of New London and Waterford, guest of honor of the society and past president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, gave an interesting address on the fountain unveiled at Plymouth last June for the Pilgrim mothers, which was erected by funds contributed by the D. A. R. and plans for which were started while she was president general. Mrs. Edward P. Calvert of Groton, accompanied by Miss Beatrice Hatton on the piano, sang charmingly a group of songs: As in a Rose Jar, I Hid My Love and Charming Chloe.

In attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Crandall, Mrs. C. F. Chaney and guest, Mrs. Percy Coe Eggleston, Mrs. George Maynard Minor, Miss Elsie B. Fengar, Mrs. C. B. Fengar, Mrs. Fengar, Mrs. Frank S. Greene, Mrs. W. H. Hayes, Miss Fanny Potter, Mrs. Calvert, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lovell Smith, Miss Hatton, Mrs. F. M. Smith and guest, Mrs. G. T. Waite and guest and Mrs. Charles B. Whittlesey of New London, Mrs. Charles M. Adams, Mrs. Warren B. Burrows and guest, Mrs. B. A. Copp and guest, Miss Rachel and Miss Betsy B. Larrabee, Mrs. Archibald M. Main, Mrs. George O. Miner, Mrs. Sanford Meech and guest, Miss Adelaide Randall and Miss Addie Thomas, all of Groton; the Rev. Allan Shaw Bush and Miss Alice Satterlee of Gales Ferry; Mrs. William Osborne and Miss M. B. Smith and guests of Waterford; Mrs. William H. Fitch, Mrs. Benjamin F. Lewis, Mrs. Hezekiah Perkins and Mrs. Leslie Brewer and guest of Norwich; Mrs. Leroy Ludwig and guest of Stonington; Miss Mabel Holman of Saybrook and Mrs. George A. Haskell of Jewett City.

The committee in charge was headed by Miss Betsy Larrabee, assisted by Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Burrows, Miss Rachel Larrabee, Mrs. Main, Mrs. George O. Miner, Mrs. Meech, Miss Randall and Miss Thomas of Groton.

STONINGTON RELATIVES CUT OFF BY WILL

The will of Lewis Bartholomew Woodruff, who died of typhoid fever at the Charlotte Hungerford hospital, Torrington, Conn., and was a cousin of Rita Babcock Palmer and Harry W. Babcock, both of Stonington, Conn., on file for probate in New York in the surrogate's court, without any explanation why, cuts off two aunts and 16 cousins. Among the awards listed are:

The residue to Yale university of New Haven, Conn., for its usefulness of its Museum of Natural History and Department of Natural Science.

The Children's hospital at Birmingham, Ala., $5,000 as a permanent and tangible memorial to his late wife, Helen S. Woodruff, for the benefit of his wife's book, Mr. Doctor Man.

As yet no date by Surrogate John P. O'Brien has been set for the proving of the document, which was executed on February 2, last, and witnessed by Charles Albert Perkins, Watson Washburn and A. A. Scarparti, all of New York city. The will names, without bonds, James P. Woodruff, as executor, the Farmers Loan and Trust company as trustee, and directs all inheritance taxes to be paid out of the residue and orders any contestant to forfeit his or her intended or non-intended bequest and to receive nothing at all.

Mr. Woodruff, an ornithologist, was the son of the late Charles Hornblower and Catherine Sanford Woodruff. He was 37 years old nad had a summer home at Litchfield, Conn. Just how large an estate he left will not be known until the estate is appraised for inheritance taxation.

LEGION AUXILIARY ELECTS MRS. WILLIAM F. BOGUE

The Woman's Auxiliary of R. O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, held their annual meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Alvin Fairbanks, Laurel Hill, with a good attendance. The meeting was presided over by the retiring president, Mrs. Louise Leopold. Following the hearing of the usual reports which were accepted as given, the auxiliary elected officers for the ensuing twelve months.

The officers elected are: President, Mrs. William F. Bogue; first vice president, Mrs. John B. Oat; second vice president, Mrs. Leon P. Raymond; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Kimball; secretary, Miss Evon M. Broadhurst.

After the meeting refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the hostess.

PAY DUE COLCHESTER MAN, 13TH U. S. TREASURER

A bill for the relief of James Gilfillan of Colchester, which was introduced on Dec. 10 in the United States senate by Senator George P. McLean, reveals the fact that in its citizen, Mr. Gilfillan, Colchester claims the residence of the 13th treasurer of the nation.

The bill was originally introduced by Senator McLean, April 4, 1917, and read as follows:

"A bill for the relief of James Gilfillan.

"Be it enacted by the senate and the house of representatives of the United States of American in congress assembled, that the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to pay, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to James Gilfillan the sum of $4,750, the same being due him as salary for services as treasurer of the United States from July 1, 1878, to April 1, 1883."

The bill was read twice and referred to the committee on claims.

Former Treasurer Gilfillan, who 90 years of age and at present residing with his son-in-law, John S. Churchill, of New York city and Colchester, and with his unmarried daughter at Colchester is a native of Massachusetts. He does not require eyeglasses to read and is in apparent good health.

He believes the present bill is simply a renewal of the bill of 1917. The bill is in reality for services rendered by Mr. Gilfillan as commissioner of the sinking fund of the District of Columbia, congress having abolished said commission, being composed of the governor of the District of Columbia and its four principal bankers. Then without consultation, their duties devolved upon the treasurer of the United States, who at that time was Mr. Gilfillan.

Congress neglected to appropriate compensation for such services, Senator McLean's bill in 1917 was referred to the committee on claims, though it was a claim. Had it been paid its adjustment would have been a reparation.

"Whether the reason for non-payment was from its being a reparation or from my being the 13th treasurer of the United States seems uncertain," said Mr. Gilfillan.

INVITES PUBLIC TO CHRISTMAS EVE SERVICE

Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ Episcopal church has issued invitations to all church people of the city, no matter the creed, and their friends, to attend the carol singing at Christ Episcopal church on Christmas Eve.

The service is to start at 11:45 p. m. with carol singing and the Choral Eucharist is to begin at 12:05 Christmas morning. Altar vestments are to be in white and lighted candles and an artistically decorated church, with a reproduction of the manger, will make the service most impressive.

There will be special music by the vested choir, with accompaniment by orchestra and among the carols and musical numbers are included Adeste Fideles, Come All Ye Faithful, Christians Awake, Salute the Happy Morn, Shout the Glad Tidings, Angels from the Realms of Glory, It Came Upon a Midnight Clear, Holy Night and Hark the Herald Angels Sing.

These hymns sung by the vested choir, with orchestral accompaniment will add a new charm to Christmas day and the midnight hour will create the happy spirit, is the belief of Rev. Mr. Budlong, who, in announcing the program, also invites people to attend the Sunday evening service when the pageant, The Nativity, will be presented.

Announcement has also been made that the annual Christmas tree and entertainment for the church school, would take place on Monday evening, Dec. 28th in the church chapel.

A plain Eucharist will be held at 10:30 o'clock Christmas morning.

Visiting K. of C. Councils

Supreme Auditor John F. Dalley of the Knights of Columbus is visiting various councils of the order in Connecticut, making a survey of conditions prevailing in fraternal circles. Mr. Dalley supervises 328 councils in New England and in addition to inspecting the books of various units of the organization addresses the members on different features of the work of the Knights. During the past week he attended meetings of Sheridan Council, Waterbury, and Silver City Council, No. 2, of Meriden, giving a review of the accomplishments of the order and a detailed history of the development of the insurance plan.

Bonus For Employees.

Announcement has been made that a bonus of 5 per cent. of their yearly salary is to be paid to all day and piece workers of the International Silver Co., who have been in the service of the company for five or more years. The bonus amounts to $111,000.

NORWICH TOWN

Friday afternoon at 3:30 it was discovered that the pines and underbrush on the Jewett property, in the rear of the property of Rock Nook Children's Home had caught fire.

The scouts of Troop No. 20 found when they arrived, that if the fire was allowed to spread to the pines and juniper trees at the side and rear of the home property, serious results would follow. The first thought was to work against its spreading. The boys worked zealously for about two hours. About three acres of scrub land and underbrush was burned over and a few of the pines were severely scorched before the boys were able to protect them. Much praise was given the scouts for their ability to take in the situation and realize the proper places to begin operations, in order to prevent the fire from doing damage to more valuable property.

Mrs. Francis Gilman of Washington street, who has been ill with grip for the past two weeks, is still confined to her bed, although resting comfortably at present.

Miss Margaret Chapin a teacher at Unionville has arrived at the home of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Chapin, of Town street, to pass the holiday.

Miss Florence Sterry from Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, is spending the Yuletide season at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Sterry, of Lee avenue.

Miss Doris Browning a student at Brown college, Providence, is spending the Christmas recess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Browning, of New London turnpike.

The store of Charlie Costules is gaily decorated for the holiday season with elties and two large red bells. In one elties and two large red balls. In one of the windows a Christmas tree is lighted by colored electric bulbs.

For unto us a child L born, unto us a son is given. First clause of the sixth verse of the ninth chapter of Isaiah was the text used by Rev. J. B. Aldrich, Sunday morning at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich Town.

Sitting in deep thought over the affairs of his country and the dangers that confronted it Isaiah speaks of a day when a leader shall be born a son given. About seven hundred years go by, years of waiting and watching for the Messiah. At last the prophecy of Isaiah comes to pass. A little child is lying in a manger in Bethlehem. Luke tells the story of the shepherds and of the song of angels, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men," while Matthew tells of the wise men from the east with their gifts to lay at His feet.

As we come to this Christmas time may we not study the life of this child as He comes to manhood. He has developed physically, intellectually and spiritually. He commences his work—the saving of the lost.

Who are the lost? If we look carefully we will find that the lost are not after all merely those who roam about the streets on Christmas eve, the vagabond and the destitute. Some may sit at Christmas feasts and not recognize this child as the saviour of the world. First the master tells of the sheep that was wandering without a leader; the coin that was lost—it was in the wrong place. Christmas was a lover of nature. He speaks of the lily, how the Father has clothed it with beauty. He taught the love and care of the Father. Christmas will be a day of feasting. Shall we ask our Saviour to be a guest at our table, or shall we be lost, without a leader?

Twenty or more from the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First Congregational church, attended the impressive candle light service Sunday evening, at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist) in response to the invitation issued from the latter church.

The Christmas entertainment of the First Congregational Sunday school is to be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the chapel. A programme of recitations and songs will be given by the primary department, and there will be a tree laden with gifts, for the members of the school. Following the entertainment and before the arrival of Santa Claus, Christmas carols will be sung. The committee in charge comprises Miss Rose K. Durr chairman, Miss Marion L. Bailey, Miss Louise P. Bailey, George F. Hyde, Kenneth Gimbel and Ralph Barber.

Mr. and Mrs. George Tague of Waterford were week end guests at the home of Mr. Tague's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Tague of McClellan avenue.

GEN. BUTLER RELIEVED AS SAFETY DIRECTOR OF PHILA.

Mayor Kendrick Late Yesterday Requested the Resignation of General Butler, With the Stipulation That the Marine Officer Would Be Relieved of Duty at Noon Today—George W. Elliot, Assistant Director of Public Safety, Will Become Director—Dismissed Official Indulges in a Display of Temper—General Butler Has Been Summoned to Washington Before Any Action is Taken on His Resignation From Marine Corps.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22—(AP)—Brigadier General Butler has been asked to resign as director of public safety, but he refuses to quit. The resignation, asked for by Mayor Kendrick, is effective December 31, but the general will be relieved of his duties at noon tomorrow.

The mayor had a stormy interview with General Butler in the forenoon during which Mr. Kenderick told the director he should have informed him of his intention to resign from the marine corps. He also told him that he did not want him in his cabinet "as a resigned officer because he did not want any other action misunderstood by President Coolidge," who had refused a further leave of absence to the general.

After the interview the general publicly announced the position of the mayor.

"If the mayor fires me, I'll be nothing after January 1," the general said. "I'll be neither marine nor a policeman. But I can still spit in their eye."

The request for the resignation came late in the day. It was brief and as follows:

"In the view of what happened this morning, I herewith request your resignation to take effect December 31, 1925. You will be relieved from duty tomorrow, Wednesday, December 23 at 12 noon, and will turn the office over to assistant director George W. Elliott. I deem this action necessary."

Replying to this letter, General Butler wrote the mayor:

"Your letter of December 22 has just reached me, and I am replying at once to inquire of you the reason you request my resignation to take effect December 31, 1925, and why you would relieve me from duty tomorrow, December 23, at 12 o'clock noon, as I know of no reason why I should do either as I have done nothing to justify such a request or demand on your part."

After the mayor announced to General Butler that he would not retain him "as a resigned officer" and before he was dismissed by the mayor, General Butler mailed his formal resignation to Washington, having apprised his superior officer in the national capital by telephone last night of his intention. It is understood that Major General LeJeune, of the marine corps, will confer with General Butler before any action is taken on the resignation.

General Butler came to Philadelphia as public safety director at the beginning of Mayor Kendrick's term in January, 1924. He had obtained a one year's leave of absence. This leave was extended by President Coolidge to the end of 1925, and a further extension of two years to the end of Mayor Kendrick's four year term was recently refused.

General Butler confirmed the report of his resignation early today and then went to the funeral of a murdered policeman, announcing he would issue a formal statement when he reached city hall. When he arrived he found a summons from the mayor.

The interview was short and when General Butler came out, he announced the mayor did not want him any more. "Now we see who is smoked out," he exclaimed. "I have been dismissed by the mayor. Now we are in the open."

General Butler said the mayor took him to task for not informing him of his intended resignation before making it public. To which General Butler said he replied that Mr. Kendrick was not available when he made his decision last night to quit the marine corps. The mayor then informed him that he did not want him as a resigned officer.

During the afternoon a formal statement was issued over the mayor's signature. The statement embodied the two letters written by President Coolidge to the mayor regarding General Butler's leave of absence. One was written a year ago in which the president extended General Butler's leave from one year to two years.

In the second letter, written last October, Mr. Coolidge refused to extend the leave beyond this year and drew the mayor's attention to views he expressed in his first letter. The mayor in his statement then told of General Butler's informing him that he must return to the marine corps and that he was arranging transportation to San Diego, and of the mayor's making the tentative Elliott appointment.

The mayor said he thought nothing further of the matter until he read of the general's resignation, and then sent for him.

"I frankly told him," said the mayor, "that I did not think he was treating me with the proper respect, as the mayor of Philadelphia, and I should have been consulted before an action of that kind took place, and that as a resigned officer I did not want him as director. I made this statement because I felt that any other action on my part might be misunderstood by the president, and this I would not permit under any circumstances.

General Butler said that he had resigned "in a flash" after he had received a letter from the secretary of the president to which it was stated that any further conference on the subject of an extension of the leave of absence would be of no use.

"I feel that General Butler has made a grave mistake in acting as hastily as he did. He has built up a splendid reputation in the marine corps and, because of this fact, I requested Assistant Director Elliott, who has been General Butler's friend to advise him to recall his hasty resignation as an officer of the marine corps.

"There will be no change in my policy and I will see to it that his successor enforces the instructions which I gave to General Butler at the beginning of my administration. The police department will continue to be divorced from crime and politics, and will continue to give my best efforts in the interest and for the welfare of the people of Philadelphia.

EFFORTS TO KEEP GEN. BUTLER IN MARINE CORPS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—(AP)—Efforts to keep Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler in the marine corps were begun here today as soon as news was received from Philadelphia that he had announced his intention to resign.

The resignation had not been received when the government offices closed for the day, but, without waiting for it, Major General John A. LeJeune, commandant of the corps, got in tough with him by telephone and asked him to come here for a conference.

The commandant intends to urge General Butler to remain in the service. The latter did not indicate whether he would recall his resignation but agreed to come here in a day or two to discuss the matter.

General LeJeune said he could not consider with equanimity the thought of General Butler leaving the corps because of his long friendship for him and the value of his services.

The resignation, if insisted upon, will be transmitted to secretary Wilbur with a recommendation by General LeJeune, and in turn sent to the White House by the secretary with a recommendation. The presidential custom has been to accept resignations of marine corps or navy officers in peace time, if approved by the chief officers of the department.

SCIENTIFIC EXHIBITS FOR PUPILS IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 22—(AP)—New Haven grammar school pupils in the seventh and eighth grades are to receive the full benefit of the scientific exhibits, including the evolution displays, at the new Peabody museum through a series of tou and lectures arranged by the Yale university authorities with the approval of the municipal board of education. The course will commence January 1 under the direction of Miss E. W. Parmelee.

Half of one of the museum halls has been set anart as a children's room, and has been provided with small chairs and benches to facilitate classwork.

Two private schools have also made requests for lectures, and science teachers of the New Haven high and commercial schools have prepared syllabuses of their biology courses so that lectures may be arranged suitable to their programs.

NEWS OF INTEREST TO DEMOCRATS OF THE STATE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 22—(AP)—State headquarters of the democratic party will be changed from Hotel Garde, State Chairman James J. Walsh, of Meriden, indicated today although he did not say where the new offices will be. The offices will remain here probably and will be located "uptown."

Mr. Walsh has named former Senator Alton Miner, of New London, John Crary of Waterbury and Mrs. Mahoney, of Shelton, a committee to prepare resolutions on the retirement of E. M. Yeomans as chairman, and of Homer S. Cummings and Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, from the national committee.

The democratic committee will meet early next month to complete organization and thereafter headquarters will be opened and work begun on plans for next fall's campaign.

HEAVY CASUALTIES IN FIGHTING IN CHINA

LONDON, Dec. 22—(AP)—The army of Li Ching-Ling, governor of Chihli, is in full retreat to Tientsin, says the Daily Mail's correspondent on the Yangtsun front. By a terrific attack today, Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang's troops of the National Peoples army drove Li's forces back to their main defenses and this broke through this line also. The casualties on both sides were very great.

Feng Yu-Hsiang's circular stating that although he has ben in the right, his heart bleds for the suffering caused by civil war, and he wishes peace, the correspondent declares, proved a typical example of Chinese bluff. During the night he brought up huge reinforcements, after having failed to force the positions held by General Li, and launched a great attack regardless of loss of life. General Li's army was swept before it to the main defense line.

Subsequently Marshal Feng made a succession of urther advances, and Li's troops were soon in retreat.

Tientsin, says the correspondent, whose despatch is of curent date, has not yet been entered, but the defeated forces are expected there at any moment. Further determined fighting is expected, and factional treachery is looked for.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 22.—(AP)—One fireman was known to be dead and four injured in a fire which was raging tonight in the grain elevator of Steen Brothers at Austend and Warner streets. Captain Harry Jones, assistant to Fire Chief August Emerich, was killed

At 10:30 the flames were raging throughout the structure but efforts to confine them to the one building apparently were successful.

Finding Adverse to Trolleymen's Claims

Board of Arbitration Decides That Sixty Cents an Hour May Be Considered a Fair Living Wage.

HARTFORD, Dec. 22—(AP)—Finding the claim of the trolleymen that the present basic rate of sixty cents an hour is not a fair living wage, cannot be substantiated when investigation on one division showed that thirty-two per cent of the "blue uniform" men own automobiles, the board of arbitration considering the claims of the trolleymen for higher wages and those of the Connecticut company for reductions, filed its award today, disturbing in only one instance the present wage scale by awarding an additional three cents an hour for operators of motor busses—establishing a differential of ten cents an hour for bus operators over the basic rate, instead of the present seven cents differential. The award is retroactive to June 1, 1925.

The request of the trolleymen that the right of seniority be extended to include the operation of motor busses was denied by the board on the grounds that "it would result in great injustice to the present motor bus operators if their right to maintain their present jobs should be taken away x x x," and further that "the offer of the company to extend the right of seniority to the trolley operators in all cases where any vacancy hereafter occurs in existing bus lines and to all new busses hereafter put in operation, is an eminently just and fair one and is hereby sustained."

The award of the board effected another slight change in wages, concerning only about 20 men, in that it established that all shop and power station employes, some of whom are now receiving less pay than others for the same work, should be paid an equal amount and that this should be the highest rate now paid by the company in these various lines.

The decision was written by Charles Kleiner, of New Haven, neutral member and chairman of the arbitration board which included Joseph F. Berry, of Hartford, representing the Connecticut company, and James H. Vahey, of Boston, representing the trolleymen's union. Mr. Berry added his signature to the finding which was signed by Mr. Kleiner, and the award with its requirement of two signatures becomes final.

Mr. Vahey did not sign the findings and within two or three days will file a minority decision, Mr. Berry said tonight. Mr. Vahey's report will probably severely attack the finding, in the opinion of Mr. Berry.

An unusual feature of the award is that the bus operators, receiving the only wage increase, made no demand for a rate of pay higher than the one-man trolley operators. In the arbitration last year between the trolley men bus operators were given the same rate of Rhode Island and their employes, of pay as the two-car operators.

THREE CHILDREN TRAMPLED TO DEATH AT ERIE, PA.

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 22—(AP)—The laughter and mirth of five thousand children attending a pre-Christmas performance in the Erie arena, late today suddenly changed to cries of fear as a small bench on which three of the youngsters were seated broke, causing a panic in which three children were trampled to death and seven injured, one seriously.

The children screamed as they fell to the floor and this was the signal that sent the others into a wild dash for the exits of the arena, an enclosed structure. The dead:

William Wagner, five years old.
Eileen Rickrode, 8.
Raymond Kupotzinski, 12.

The seven children injured ranged in age from 9 to 15, and it was said at the hospital to which they were taken that all would probably recover.

BOYS TO PARTICIPATE IN FORESTRY PROGRAMS

HARTFORD, Dec. 22—(AP)—The boys of the Connecticut Junior Republic at Litchfield, are to co-operate with the state in one of the most ambitious forestry programs yet inaugurated at any institution. State Forester Austin F. Hawes said today that the boys are to transplant and care for hundreds of young trees, which will be sent from the state nurseries, until the trees are old enough for planting in the state forests of Litchfield county.

The trees to be sent to the institution will all be about two years old. The boys will transplant them on the institution ground and have agreed to give them the best of care for a year or more until the young trees have reached the sturdiness required for forest planting.

WALTER STRANG FOUND DROWNED IN DANBURY

DANBURY, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Walter Strang, seventy eight, of Brewster, N. Y., for many years a trainer of horses with many circuses, including the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey, was found drowned today in a canal in the rear of the American Assembly Works, Groton Falls, N. Y. Strang disappeared from his home two weeks ago.

A search was started for him immediately after but all traces were lost. He was found by Howard Elliott, an employe of the factory.

Crude Rubber Prices Arouse Resentment

Sec'y Hoover Calls Upon the Public to Cut Down Sharpley Their Consumption of Rubber.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—(AP)—Another onslaught on the high price of crude rubber, in which the voluntary co-operation of the American automobile-using public will be enlisted, was begun today by Secretary Hoover, with the backing of the National Rubber association and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Garages, service agents, and car owners everywhere will be solicited and encouraged to cut down sharply their consumption of rubber in tires, with the object of combating what Mr. Hoover has repeatedly called the extortionate policy of the East Indian rubber combine, which has obtained support from the British government in putting a figure of $1 a pound on its output.

The public co-operation sought through the new campaign will supplement the congressional attempt to cope with the situation, which has taken the form of an investigation of the basis of the rubber combine, the control of coffee prices in Brazil, and of other foreign monopolies of important raw materials, together with the Canadian pulp wood situation.

Mr. Hoover, reiterating today that the rubber combination was taking $700,000,000 more than a fair price from the American public for the present year's rubber supply, emphasized that the increase was purely artificial, due to the legalized restriction placed on exports by the British government two years ago at the request of the plantation owners. He hopes the congressional investigation will make it possible for American rubber buyers to combine their purchasing through a single agency, which could counter the efforts of the producing group.

HOUSE VOTES APPROPRIATIONS FOR "DRY" ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—(AP)—Dry members of the house today successfully defended all appropriations carried in the annual treasury-post-office supply bill for prohibition enforcement for the nxet fiscal year.

On the first showdown of the session on prohibition, an amendment to prohibit employment of "fraud deceit and falsehood" in the use of funds appropriated for the purchase of liquor as evidence, was defeated by a vote of 139 to 17.

The remainder of the enforcement funds, slightly more than appropriated last year, were approved without change or serious opposition as reported by the appropriations committee.

Representative Tucker, democrat, Virginia, who consistently has supported dry legislation, offered the "fraud" amendment, which provoked one of the most heated prohibition debates of the session. A number of members, both wet and dry, opposed the motion, among them Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee, who declared that, although he voted against the eighteenth amendment, prohibition was now the law and he would insist on funds to enforce it.

Describing as "a disgrace" the recent hotel Mayflower incident in which an agent spent nearly $1,000 to trap two employes, who later were acquitted of conspiracy charges, Mr. Tucker declared:

"It isn't a question of what you think of prohibition; it is a question of whether lying, stealing and cheating are necessary to enforce the laws."

Opposing the Tucker amendment besides Mr. Madden, were a number of members including Representatives Byrns, of Tennessee, Hill, of Alabama, and Barkley, of Kentucky, all democrats, and Representative Linenberger, republican, California.

In addition to the $250,000 item for purchase of evidence, appropriations in the bill having to do with prohibition enforcement included $24,213,000 for the coast guard, an increase of $3,615,000 over current funds to provide for addition of 1,580 men to the enlisted personnel and to maintain the present fleet engaged in operations against liquor smugglers; a direct appropriation of $9,306,000 for the enforcement machinery in the treasury and $50,000 for prohibition posters.

CHANGES ANNOUNCED BY NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Announcement was made tonight by the passenger traffic manager of the New Haven railroad of changes affecting the baggage, mail and express departments of the road, and becoming effective December 16.

George A. Morton is made baggage, mail and express agent with headquarters at New Haven, and the positions of general baggage agent, traveling baggage agent and general agent of the express department are abolished.

In the consolidation of the various departments, E. B. Dodge, formerly general agent of the express department, becomes assistant general baggage, mail and express agent with offices at New Haven and Boston.

Mr. Dodge will continue to devote his attention to the express situation at Boston as well as broadening out the scope of his activities in the New Haven and Connecticut districts.

It was further announced that J. B. Hackett, formerly traveling baggage agent, is appointed assistant to the general passenger agent with headquarters at New Haven.

FUNERAL AT SALEM, MASS. OF PROF. EDWARD S. MORSE

SALEM, Mass., Dec. 22—(AP)—Large wreaths from the Japanese embassy in Washington and from Japanese residents of Boston lay among the floral tributes at the funeral today of Professor Edward Sylvester Morse, the noted zoologist and former professor at the Imperial University at Tokyo. Simple services were held at the First Unitarian church. The body was cremated.

Prominent citizens of Salem, including Frank W. Benson noted artist, were honorary pall bearers.

Professor Morse was decorated by the emperor of Japan in 1898 with the Order of the Rising Sun, a distinction never before conferred on an American.

DEATH OF FRANK A. MUNSEY ENDS AN ENERLETIC CAREER

Died From Peritonitis, Following an Operation For Appendicitis—Aged 71 and Unmarried—Rose From Farmer Boy to One of the Leading Publishers in the Country—Mr. Munsey's Death Brought Messages of Condolence From President Coolidge and From Men in Many Professions all Over the Country.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Frank A. Munsey, who rose from farmer boy to one of the leading newspaper and magazine publishers of the country, died today in the Lenox Hill hospital after a stubborn fight to recover from peritonitis which followed an operation for appendicitis.

His death, ended an extensive career in the publishing field during which he had owned almost a score of newspapers and magazines, but at the time of his death he held only two newspapers, the New York Sun and the Evening Telegram. Until the time of his fatal illness he remained actively interested in his publications. He was 71 years old and was unmarried.

Funeral services will be held in the cathedral of St. John the Divine on Thursday morning. The place of interment has not been announced.

Mr. Munsey's death brought messages of condolence from President Coolidge and other high public officials throughout the country. Mrs. Allen W. Mansfield, a grandniece, was the only relative at his bedside when he died. Of chief interest following his death is what disposition will be made of his vast properties.

At the publisher's own request his sister, Mrs. John M. Hyde, of St. Pet-

DINNER OF NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—World peace depends more upon the continued friendship of the English-speaking nations than upon any other one thing, for as a war preventive, "no league of nations can compare to it, and beside it the world court is but a gesture," General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, said tonight in an address at the 120th annual dinner of the New England Society of New York.

With "New England and Old England" as his subject, he traced the relations between the two from the colonial days of New England—when "the colonists were orderly and lawabiding to a degree that seems almost curious and quaint in this day of vice and Volsteadism," and old England was torturing debtors while New England tortured witches—to the present and the alliances which have cemented the relations strained by the revolution and the war of 1812.

"It has become a cardinal policy of the British foreign office," he said, "to do nothing which can impair the friendship of the United States," and to preserve that amity, old England, for a hundred years has given her moral support to the Monroe doctrine, has abrogated the Anglo-Japanese alliance, and in 1921 did her share toward disarmament.

The future "will bring an increasing mutual respect between the new and the old England he concluded.

Lawrence F. Abbott acted as toastmaster and other speakers included Dr. John M. Thomas, president of Rutgers college, and Dr. Wallace Buttrick, chairman of the general education board.

Among the guests of honor were: Governor Trumbull of Connecticut; Major General Summerall, commander of the second corps area; Thomas Denny, president of the Sons of the Revolution; William H. Child, treasurer of the Society of the Mayflower Descendants; Howland Davis, Dr. Edward L. Partridge, Clarence W. Bowen, and Albert H. Wiggin, former president of the New England Society.

FRANCE IS EXPERIENCING VIOLENT SOUTHWEST GALE

PARIS, Dec. 22—(AP)—A southwesterly gale of unprecedented violence is raging throughout France, causing immense damage and loss of life, squalls often exceeding 100 miles an hour have uprooted houses and uprooted trees, hurling chimneys on the heads of passersby. As most of the telegraph lines are down the full extent of the destruction is only approximately known.

The wireless antennae on Eiffel tower was carried away tonight in the midst of a broadcasting concert. It is unsafe to walk abroad in Paris, as numerous persons have found to their cost. The super-structure of a new building which is being erected in one of the boulevards was blown down.

The same tale of disaster comes from the provinces, where falling walls at various places injured many people.

Atlantic and channel seaports report many vessels missing and others driven ashore. The harbors are full of stormbound craft of all sizes. Fishing is at a complete standstill, no boat daring to face the mountainous waves.

At Royan the beach is strewn with barrels of wine and cases of merchandize, leading to the belief that a ship or ships have foundered. A lifeboat is kept cruising at the mouth of the Gironde.

PAROLE HAS BEEN GRANTED MISS MAUDE E. TEFFT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 22. 22.—(AP)—The Rhode Island board of parole this afternoon granted a parole to Miss Maude E. Tefft, former cashier of the now defunct Kingston Trust company, Kingston, R. I., who was convicted of embezzlement in connection with the failure of the bank and sentenced to 18 months in the state prison on March 13, last. She became eligible for the parole on December 1.

In its decision to grant the parole, the board took into consideration the impaired state of the woman's health and the fact that she had done everything within her power to assist state authorities in their prosecution of persons implicated in the failure of the bank.

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN THE ANTHRACITE COAL STRIKE

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The anthracite mine strike was without development within the region today. Mayor Rurkan, who endeavored during the past two days to bring the operators and miners' representatives together in a conference here announced that he had not given up hope of ultimately working out a plan upon which both parties could agree.

Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the anthracite operators' negotiating committee, reported the situation unchanged tonight.

The committee, headed by Herbert S. Hadley, chancellor of Washington University, St. Louis, and formerly governor of Missouri, will make definite recommendations to be considered by the executive committee of the commission.

The other members of the committee are: Judson Harmon, former attorney general of the United States and former governor of Ohio; Charles S. Whitman, former governor of New York; United States Senator Charles S. Deneen; Dean Roscoe Pound, of the Harvard University law school; Dean John H. Wigmore of Northwestern University law school; Edwin R. Keedy, former judge advocate of the United States army and president of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology; Dan K. Moody, attorney general of Texas; Ulysses S. Webb, attorney general of California; George M. Napier, attorney general of Georgia; Oscar Haiam former judge of the supreme court of Minnesota; Marcus Kavanaugh, judge of the superior court, Chicago; and Philip S. Van Cise, former district attorney of city and county of Denver.

RESCUED AFTER DRIFTING AT SEA FOR FOUR DAYS

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Rescued after drifting at sea in a disabled motorboat four days with but a scant supply of food and water, William Brush, Hotel man of Florida and Havana, Cuba, and two negroes were brought into this port today aboard the steamship Orizaba. The three were exhausted when they were rescued Sunday by officers of the Orizaba.

Brush said he left West Palm Beach last Wednesday for Miami, accompanied by the two negroes, Samuel Caldwell and Michael Dames.

The batteries on the motor boat went dead, he said, and they drifted seaward. The first evening out they ate bread and salmon but were unable to sleep during the night because of a rough sea.

The next day they rigged up a sail from the tarpaulin. By Saturday they had drifted to within fifteen miles of the Bahamas, but an adverse wind kept them from making shore. Their food and water supply had in the meantime been exhausted.

Six ships passed them Sunday without rendering assistance despite the fact they were flying distress signals, consisting of a white shirt and handkerchief. The Orizaba finally came to their rescue.

CENSUS GIVES NEW YORK CITY POPULATION OF 5,873,356

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 22—(AP)—New York city has a population for 1925 of 5,873,356, an increase of 252,308 during the past five years, census figure made public tonight by the secretary of state's office show. The rate of increase is about the same as that of period between that 1910 and 1915, but before the rate of growth in the five years preceding 1950.

Large gains are shown as having taken place during the last five years in the Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens. The borough of Manhattan indicated by the federal census of 1920 as losing population during the preceding year period, is still shown as increasing. This is attributed to restricted immigration as well as to a constantly expending business section which envelops residential districts and brings about an exodus of population.

During the four fiscal years from 1911 to 1914, inclusive, 1,174,747 immigrant aliens admitted to this country gave New York state as their intended place of uture residence. For the four fiscal years from 1922 to June 30, 1925, the total of such immigrants aliens coming into the state amounted to 456,697, a decrease of 718,050 from the 1911-14 period.

FIRE BROKE OUT IN A MINE AT SHADYSIDE, OHIO

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Fire broke out tonight in the Webb mine, at Shadyside Ohio, one of the largest and best equiped mines in the Ohio valley. Wheeling police were informed by telephone in a request for a mine rescue car. Seventy five to one hundred men at work were reported leaving the workings through an air course.

Only meagre details of the fire were available here. The Webb mine while located only seven miles south of here and about two miles from the town of Shadyside, is located on roads that are almost impassable at this period of the year. Efforts to reach the mine by telephone following the first call for assistance proved futile. The mine is the property of the George M. Jones Coal company, Pittsburgh.

REV. A. S. WHEELOCK GIVES CHRISTMAS TALK FOR ROTARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 22—Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock led in a simple, impressive Christmas service, at the weekly meeting and luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club held Tuesday noon in the Y. M. C. A. President John F. Ahern was in charge. Rev. Mr. Wheelock, known in Rotary as Parson Wheelock opened the service with the Christmas hymn, "The Three Kings," given by the Congregational church soloists, Raymond A. Parker, Harry W. Standish and Ellison S. Smith, Parson Wheelock gave an interesting review of the history of Christmas, tracing it from the holy birth in the manger at Bethlehem to the fourth century when its observance developed into a celebration. In this light he told how we received the mistletoe from the Druids, the yule log and Christmas tree from the Germans and the carol songs from Italy. He dwelt on the evolution of Santa Claus, the mythical gift-man of today, inheriting his name and characteristics from St. Nicholas, who was a Bishop in Judea in the fourth century and became the patron saint of little children. Christmas had been observed on various dates in different countries until the Roman church fixed the date as December 25.

The club voted to accept the invitation of the Willimantic Exchange club to attend a joint evening meeting of the service clubs in Windham Center January 13th, when a program and supper will be arranged at the school building. A suggestive treatise on the opportunity to do good which service clubs have, contributed by Dr. C. E. Simonds, president of the Exchange club, was read by Secretary Gerard E. Boisell. John T. Quinlan was at the piano during the meeting. The members enjoyed cigars, the gift of Dr. William E. Hendry. Adjournment was taken at 1 o'clock, in accordance with the holiday schedule.

With but a few shopping days left, practically all the merchants of the city agree that the 1925 Christmas business is rapidly approaching a new high level, most gratifying to many who had suffered from dull trade this year due to the industrial strife. Thousands of residents of surrounding towns, making Willimantic their shopping center, have joined the ranks of local shoppers and merchandise is moving rapidly from shelf to counter and out to customers. The stores are open evenings up to nine o'clock this week to accommodate the many who would prefer or are obliged to shop during the evening.

DR. KEATING HOLDS OVER AS CITY HEALTH OFFICER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 22—The discovery was made Tuesday that the appointment of Dr. Michael D. Riordan to the position o city health officer in conjunction with the city appointments made at the common council meeting Monday night by Mayor John C. Tracy was illegal. This is due to the fact that Dr. W. P. S. Keating, the incumbent of the office was appointed by the late Hormisdas Dion at the opening of his administration or a term of four years, which is the period of years called for in the charter. Dr. Keating's term does not expire until March, 1928 and it therefore became necessary to rescind the appointment of Dr. Riordan.

Postmaster Frank M. Smith stated Tuesday that the revenue at the local postoffice and sub-station Monday eclipsed any amount for any one day in the history of the office. This statement is indicitive of the large amount of postal business which is crowding the twenty-seven employes at the office. Assistant Postmaster Daniel A. Sullivan, a veteran of the office, said that the business this year would break all records. Another glimpse of what the rush is can be gotten from the fact that from 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon to 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, 11,180 letters went through the stamping machine. The volume of other class mail matter compares well with the amount of first class material.

Funeral services for Mrs. Adelaide M. Ashley were held at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Hampton Congregational church, Rev. W. L. Mutart officiating, assisted by Rev. Charles Lilly. The bearers were George Raymond, William Raymond, Amos Avery and Edward Ashley. Burial was in the North cemetery. Avery and Van Zandt were the funeral directors.

An enthusiastic meeting of the committe of arrangements and others interested for the first annual poultry, trade exhibit which will be held at the pigeon, cat, dog and pet stock show and state armory here under the joint auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association and Company C, 169th Infantry, C. N. G., was held at the armory Tuesday evening. Final plans for the affair were discussed and arrangements completed.

John R. Pickett, Lawrence S. Casey and Arthur J. Dubreuil, comprising the board of assessors are now literally buried in their work of compiling the returns of tax payers on the grand list of the town of Windham. They are facing a larger number of divisions than in previous years. Over 2,000 automobiles have been entered on the grand list, about 400 more than last year

Miss Dora Boulais was tendered a miscellaneous shower Monday evening at 17 Spruce street in honor of her approaching marriage with Lucien Vertefeuille of this city. The bride-elect received many gifts of linen, cutlery, aluminum and silver. Music, dancing and games entertained those present. Mrs. Joseph Boulais served refreshments.

Mrs. Gertrude Crane and Mrs. Rufus Worden were hostesses at the whist party of the Windham Girls' club held Monday evening. Eight tables were in play, thep rize awards being made to the following: Miss Alice Peterson, first; Mrs. Rathbun, second, and Miss Henrietta Hall, consolation. Mrs. A. P. Benner, Mrs. R. E. Dimock, Mrs. Williams and Miss Minnie Peterson were awarded the door prizes.

Mrs. Eileen Recicot has returned to her home here after attending the annual meeting of the Dancing Teachers' club of Connecticut, held in Hartford.

Checks or $100 were recived Tuesday morning by Chief of Police Allan McArthur and Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley from the Windham National bank in recognition of the splendid work of both of these departments during the recent fire which badly gutted the bank building.

WHO STOLE THE DYNAMITE? FIVE CASES MISSING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 22—The mystery of the theft of five cases of dynamite from a brick shack at Hop's Pond, near Phelps' Crossing on the North Windham road remained unsolved up to late Tuesday. The dynamite, which was owned by the Hurley-Grant company of this city was said to have been of a low grade. The explosive, however, possessed sufficient power to cause considerable unrest, especially among officials of the thread company. Sergeant Russell I. Harmon of the Stafford Springs barracks was notified and Officer Henry Heinold was detailed to investigate the theft. The location of the break is in the town of Mansfield and out of the jurisdiction of the local police. The opinion was advanced that the dynamite had been taken by some outlaw contractor. A crowbar was used to rip off a heavy lock which was set into the door.

JEWETT CITY

DEARNLEY'S STORE AGAIN VISITE DBY BURGLARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 22—R. W. Dearnley's store was entered again last night. No money was taken, because there was none in the cash registers. It has been impossible to tell what amount of merchandise was stolen.

A Jewett City girl had her pocket picked, losing her pocket picked losing her pocket book containing five dollars, in the Woolworth store at Norwich, Saturday afternoon.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' CIRCLE HAS NOVEL CHRISTMAS PARTY

Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters spent a most delightful evening at a Christmas party given at the home of Mrs. J. H. Tracy Monday. The social committee, Miss Grace Olin, Mrs. Tracy, Mrs. E. B. Cheney and Miss Mabel Wilcox, assisted by the leader Miss M. A. Burdick also by Ralph Wilbur as electrician, carried out the decorative scheme planned by Miss Olin. The effect was a delight to the eye, in the center of the parlor was a Christmas tree, gay with vari-colored lights and glittering ornaments. It stood on a snowy base on which small snowballs lay, and held gifts for each member and guest. A most realistic fireplace all aglow, was guarded by two fat, snow men. Numbers of roll stockings hung over the fire. All about the room on the curtains and walls were Christmas bells, Santa Claus, holly, stars, and every conceivable Christmas emblem Christmas scenes were over the windows and doors. One of the prettiest parts of the scheme was the red festoons on which Christmas bells hung at the doors and in the bay window. Red and green streamers floated from the tree to the corners of the room. A large basket of poinsettias was upon the piano, and green boughs were in flower-holders upon the walls. All the lights in the rooms were shaded in red. Christmas bells and decorations were in the living and dining rooms. The dining room table was covered in red and white. Christmas napkins, raspberry jello with whipped cream and punch carried out the color scheme of red and white and cake was a part of the menu. Conspicuous among the decorations shown were large silver crosses on a purple back ground, the emblem of the Order. The exercises opened with a brief devotional service, all in the Christmas spirit, Miss Burdick read A Christmas Thought, which was followed by Victrola selections of three Christmas songs.

Mrs. E. H. Hiscox read a Christmas prayer which was followed by The Lord's Prayer, and singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" Miss Mabel Wilcox read Christmas Eve at Hunter's Lodge There were church organ selections of Christmas carols on the Victrola. Ethel Fisk gave a reading entitled You Beautiful Christmas Tree. Games were interspersed among the other program numbers.

First was the drawing of candy favors from an immense snowball which stood in the bay window. A huge house on the wall afforded much amusement, when blindfolded members tried to pin Santa Claus on the chimney Mrs. Alice Anthony received the first prize, a basket of tulips, and Miss S. K. Adams the consolation award a toy accordian. Wreaths hung in a doorway were the objects which tested the guests marksmanship. Snowballs were used to throw through the wreaths. Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst made the highest score and recived the large wreath. There were so many who did not throw any through the wreaths that lots were drawn and the prize, a Cumbac, went to Mabel Wilcox The snow, men contributed theri part, for each one's hat held numbers which, when drawn, gave an autograph album to Faith Gager and a boutonnierre to Miss S. Nelle Johnson At the close each one went to the fireplace and took a stocking, which was numbered. Then rfom outside the jingling of sleigh bells was heard, and Santa Claus pranced into the room dressed in regulation style. He was cleverly impersonated by Miss Clara Wells, who distributed gifts from the tree calling the numbers. There were thirty-one present. Mrs. George H. Prior, the international president was a guest of honor.

GALES FERRY

A special Christmas musical program was given by an augmented chorus choir, in the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning.

The order of exercises was: Prelude by C. A. Kerns. doxology, invocation, hymn, Joy to the World, responsive reading for Christmas day, choir anthem, following the offertory—O Come to My Heart, Lord Jesus! With baritone solo, by C. E. Colver. The Meaning of Christmas, was the theme taken by Rev. George Smith Brown, for his sermon, the text, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Postlude, by Kerns. Mrs. Eugene La Fontaine was organist and director of the music.

At the Sunday school session at noon there was a large attendance, the Men's Bible class increasing rapidly in membership. The Christmas festivities were announced including the Community Christmas tree for Monday evening the 21st, under the auspices of the Village Improvement association at the Country Club house. The Christmas tree and entertainment of the sunday school is to be held in the vestry the night before Christmas Thursday evening when Santa Claus is expected.

The leader of the Sunday evening Epworth League service was Mrs C. E. Colver, with a Christmas Carol service. Rev. Mr. Brown concluded the service, speaking on the topic.

Following this service, a rehearsal of the cantata, The Christian King to be given by an augmented choir of this church assisted by John Swahn cornetist, John Dougherty, violinist, and W. C. Noyes, all of Norwich, was held. The cantata is to be given Sunday evening the 27th in the church

Mrs. C. E. Colver of the Submarine Base entertained for her daughters, Misses Helen L. and Margaret S. Colver, the Queen Esther society and its leader, Mrs. P. Irving Hurlbutt, for the December meeting Friday afternoon from 5:30 to 9 o'clock. The affair took the form of a birthday party, to observe the anniversaries of three of the members, whose birthdays occur in December, as follows: Em-Bee Bennett, fifteen years; Marjorie Gates fifteen years, Margaret S. Colver, thirteen. Games and the grafanola with singing was much enjoyed. The girls received many pleasing gifts, each getting a birthday cake, with lighted candles, from the leader, Mrs. Hurlbutt. Mrs. Colver served to fourteen a supper which included, tuna fish salad, rolls, peas, ice cream, cake and cocoa. Others present were: Mrs. R. I Hurlbutt, Misses Bennett, Gates, Gertrude Allen, Ida Erickson, Ethel Main Rose Norcross, Myrtice Coman, Dorothy Birch, Margaret Parker, Dorothy Saudro, ar Mathilda Harold.

The closing exercises of the grammar school, Miss Evelyn E. Whipple, teacher and the primary school, Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt teacher, were held Friday afternoon at the school building, before a large attendance of parents and friends. From a tree, each pupil received gifts. The following well rendered program was given: A Christmas Wish, Christine Maynard; Santa Claus' Son, William Davidson. Harold Hurlbutt, Frank Jennings, Jay Pierce, Louis Jennings. Robert Duffy; On Christmas Eve, Carol Norman; The Christmas Tree, Anna Mae Duffy; Winter Birds, Barbara Irwin; Christmas Card, John Buckman; Christmas Bells—Jay Pierce; A Christmas Wish Edith Hartung; The Robin, Louise Howard; Christmas, Elizabeth Main; Christmas Bells, Ruth Main; Just Before Christmas, Joseph DeRusho; A Christmas Pessimist, Richard Latimer; There Are Signs of Christmas Earl Coman; Expecting Santa, Ruth Allyn; 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, Maraget Parker; That's Christmas, William McNaught; The New Fashioned Christmas Playet, Billy—Grace Maynard; Polly—Rose Norcross; Betty—Ruth Allyn; Harry—William McNaught; Jack—Richard Latimer; Mrs. Santa Claus—Helen De Rusho; Santa Claus—Dorothy Baudro; Jack Frost—John Buckman. The songs given were: Silent Night, It Came Upon a Midnight Clear, O Little Town of Bethlehem, We Three Kings of the Orient Are.

Numbers by the primary children were: A Greeting, Thelma Jennings; Christmas Cheer, Warren Waught, Otis Rogers, Carl Norcross, James Abbott, Lyle Crandall; A Story, Barbara Hamilton; song, Old Santa Claus; exercise, The Same Old Santa, Madelin Rogers, Frances Maynard, Calvin Hartung, Raymond Main, May Crandal, Richard Howard.

Lysle, Ernestine and May Crandall of the primary school were in the honor roll for the term, while two others, Ruth Hurlbutt and Madelin Rogers were absent but one day.

Mrs. Delphine Fish, left Saturday, to spend the winter in Hartford at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Brooks.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

GARAGE RAID YIELDS VARIETY OF WET GOODS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 21—State police officers from the local barracks, in charge of Sergeant Harmon raided the place kept by Paul Geihold on West Main street last evening and secured a large quantity of liquor, including eleven pints of gin one quart of rye whiskey and 10 bottles of beer. They also found a crate containing 8 1-4 dozen empty pint bottles and other containers. Geihold conducts a garage on West Main St., and as a side line keeps a pool room and confectionery store. When the raid was made a number of boys were caught in the pool room. Geihold was presented in the borough court Monday morning charged with violating the liquor laws. He was also charged with keeping open a pool room on Sunday and allowing minors under 18 to loiter in and about the pool room. He asked for a continuance in order to secure counsel and Judge Heald granted a continuance until Jan. 6th Geihold secured bonds of $600.

PASTEUR TREATMENT FOR 12 FOLLOWING MAD DOG BITES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 21—Further investigation of the antics of the mad dog on East Main street, Friday morning indicate that at least 12 persons were bitten. They are all being given Pasteur treatment with a view to preventing complications. The analysis of the dog's head by the state department of health shows that the animal had a very bad case of rabies. Dog Warden William O. Eldredge has taken the matter up with the state commissioner on domestic animals and all dogs in town will have to be muzzled or confined for at least 30 days.

The funeral of Frederick Faulkner was held at the Congregational church Monday afternoon at 1:30. Rev Levi Rees officiated. The bearers were Freeman F. Patten, F. G. Sanford, Hannibal Alden, William H. Heald, Robert W. Smith and Charles B. Pinney.

Joseph DeCarli was arrested by State Policeman Willis Monday charged with using improper brakes on his automobile. He ran into a car which came out of the driveway of the Hudson Garage last Wednesday and both cars were considerably damage. Judge Heald imposed a fine of $5 and costs amounting in all to $16.31.

DANIELSON

WESTFIELD CONG. CHURCH CALLS REV. H. W. GAYLORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 23.—The Westfield Congregational church has unanimously voted to extend a call to Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Grand Avenue Congregational church, New Haven, to become its pastor. Rev. Mr. Gaylord preached at a service here a week ago Sunday and made a highly favorable impression. He is a graduate of Yale Theological school, is a young man, is married and has one child. The pastorate of the Westfield Congregational church has been vacant since Rev. Walter E. Williams resigned and left here last fall to accept a call to a church in California.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Dayville has come into possession of a book that would be very interesting to the average taxpayer who had the time and inclination to scan its pages and the records set forth thereon. It is the record of taxable property in the town of Killingly in the long past year of 1868, and lists the taxpayers and the amounts assessed against them.

It is pleasant to contemplate that the tax rate in Killingly that year was 10 mills on the dollar, and not painful at all to consider that the assessments were on valuations of about one-half the present assessed valuations of properties that still figure in the tax lists. Things were different in those days. Not so much money was required to maintain the town as is absolutely necessary today.

In view of the manner in which the price of all commodities and rendered service has increased, Killingly has little to complain about as to its tax rate, only 18 mills in the current year. Of course, the town's grand list is far greater than it was in 1868, and the property valuations are higher.

Chester Howe was the tax collector for the town in 1868, and the board of selectmen was made up of Isaac B. Ballard, Samuel Hutchins, Tenner Burlingame, Isaac Tillinghast and Esquire B. Miller. The signatures of all these appear on the tax collection warrant given Mr. Howe on the first page of the tax assessment book.

In addition to collecting the property taxes Mr. Howe was charged with the duty of garnering for the town the military commutation and dog taxes. In this connection it is interesting to note Mr. Howe's written comment as to getting one dog tax. "Dog died," the record reads in his hand writing, and the assumption is that let the dog owner off from paying.

The record of taxpayers listed for 1868 in Killingly reads like a necrology list today. Gone are practically all of those whose names are written there. Many of them were for years among the town's most prominent citizens. Edward S. Carpenter has the distinction of being among the very few living today who are listed in the record.

The book recalls firms long since out of business, manufacturing concerns that have vanished from present day tax records here and individuals not recalled in many years.

Manufacturing concerns did not get off so easily, as to their taxes, back in 1868. The Attawaugan company was assessed for $152,428. The Williamsville Mfg. Co., their plant now occupied by the Goodyear Mills, Inc., was paying on $131,875. At East Killingly the Elliottville company was paying on $38,716, John L. Himes on $21,470, the Whitestone company on $74,475, Ebenezer S. Young on $24,000 and William Robinson on $13,000. On such property as it had on the Killingly side of the river the Quinebaug company was paying on an assessed valuation of $,300.

Tuesday afternoon the funeral of Timothy Dwight Robins, who died in Canterbury, was held at the Congregational church in Brooklyn, Rev. John Pratt officiating. Burial was in the Witter cemetery in the western part of the town of Brooklyn. The bearers were A. T. J. Clark, Stephen Coffey, Christian Kerr and Michael Shea. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Members of the Women's Catholic Welfare council remembered pupils in St. James' school with Christmas gifts a room to room distribution being made.

For Christmas Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy will have as guests, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Comiskey of Worcester, and Miss Nellie Sullivan of Hartford.

With the temperature at 55 in Danielson Tuesday afternoon, there was little suggestion of Christmas weather and barely a promise of a white Yuletide.

The sidewalk along the north side of the new bridge, over the Assawaga river, at Main street is now being used, but the roadway is still incomplete.

Byron H. Shippee recently underwent a surgical operation at a hospital in Worcester.

A feature at Goodyear for years, the New Year's party now being arranged will be the greatest ever, it is announced.

When it is available at all, anthracite coal is bringing as high as $20 a ton in town.

In some of the schools of the town there will be little programmes suited to the Christmas season prior to the ending of the term on Thursday.

In getting away to a good start by defeating the Mechanicsville Boys' club team in the opening game of the season, Killingly High School basketball team sees prospects of a successful season.

Of special interest here was the announcement in The Bulletin's Willimantic news Tuesday of E. A. Winter's negotiations relative to the Hooker House property. Mr. Winter was for a number of years proprietor of the Central House in Danielson and it was one of the best known hostleries in this corner of the state.

This (Wednesday) evening the Christmas tree exercises are to be held in the Community house at South Killingly. Miss Ruth Spaulding is in charge of the programme.

Beginning next Sunday New York motorists may drive with 1926 registrations on their cars if they wish to do so. Local officials have been notified of this arrangement, which will be recognized by the Connecticut motor vehicle department. Connecticut registrations for 1926 may be used on December 31 this year.

Charles Heath, a brother of Henry Heath of the Valley district of the town, died recently in Los Angeles. Mr. Heath visited in town in 1924.

Joseph C. Howard of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

To assist as many people as possible in their Christmas shopping, the Windham County National bank will be open Christmas eve, December 24, from 7 to 8 p. m.—adv.

Harry E. Back, student at Yale university, is spending the Christmas season with his parents, Attorney and Mrs. Harry E. Back.

Hundreds of calendars are being distributed by local concerns to patrons and friends.

A white pet dog owned by Tyler Andrews of Riverside was killed when struck by an automobile.

Christmas cards by the thousands are being handled at the post office in one of the greatest rushes of business ever handled here. Some employes are remaining on duty up to 15 hours a day.

Representatives of the Danielson Federation of churches will distribute baskets of Christmas cheer in needy homes this morning. Funds contributed here during the past few weeks will be used to meet the cost involved.

Like Putnam, Danielson is afflicted with the nuisance of mailed merchandise not ordered or wanted. Buffalo is one of the cities from which the offending parties operate and not a few snappy letters have gone back to them from Danielson with the goods they sent here.

Killingly grange held its Christmas meeting Monday evening. There was the usual distribution of gifts among the members.

Arthur C. Pelky of Montreal is in Danielson to remain with friends through the Christmas season.

For Christmas Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson of Allen Hill will have their children and grandchildren to the number of 38 at their home.

Grand officers of the I. O. O. F. were at Putnam Tuesday evening for a district meeting at which Quinebaug lodge of Danielson and Protection lodge of Central Village were represented.

Earl F. Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wood and a member of the faculty at Brown university, is to spend part of the Christmas vacation period with friends in New York.

Members of the Nazarene church were at the George Paine place, on the Green Hollow road Tuesday evening, for a cottage prayer meeting.

WKAQ, San Juan, Porto Rico, was one of the broadcasting stations heard here Monday evening at about 8.30. Ocasionally this station is heard on local receiving sets, but not frequently.

CLAIM "O" NUMBER CARS ARE DOING JITNEY BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 22.—Now here's another little matter having to do with transportation in this town and in other nearby towns. Since the removal of the trolleys there have been, it is alleged, daily violations of the rule forbidding motor vehicles carrying "O" registrations from operating as though they had what is termed a jitney license. The charge is being made that cars with "O" numbers are taking individual fares and making stops for passengers along any given route they may cover. Frankly, if the charges can be substantiated, the practice grows out of the desire and in some cases the need of people to get where they want to go in the most convenient manner. Wauregan, for instance, is not too well pleased because the motor coaches of the Connecticut company do not run down into the village. Again, there is no established transportation service between Danielson and East Killingly, or between Goodyear and Dayville. These things make for inconveniences for many people and they are not averse to overcoming it if the opportunity presents itself, which it is alleged has occurred.

All of this, of course, does not relieve "O" drivers of even owners of pleasure cars from being prosecuted for violation of the motor vehicle regulations if they are apprehended doing a jitney business. It is not known that formal complaints have been entered or investigations asked for, but the subject is one receiving considerable attention and discussion just now.

HOPKINTON

The ladies of the First Hopkinton Baptist church held a salad supper at their parish house in Hopkinton city last Tuesday evening. The patronage was not large on account of prevalent colds and a cold night.

Mrs. Thomas H. Greene, confined to her bed with a fractured leg at the home of John S. Cole, for more than five weeks, was removed to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Pauline Biddles in the Westerly ambulance last week. She was accompanied by a physician and nurse. Mrs. Biddles resides at Lafayette, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo P. Kenyon visited the former's brother, Albert Kenyon, in Westerly Friday.

Glendon Perrin and Alexine Perrin have been confined at the home of their parents Clifford E. and Annie Perrin for several days because of severe colds.

Miss Frances Andrews is having a vacation from her studies at Connecticut college for women.

Miss Clara Pashley will spend the Christmas vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Pashley.

The huge tank on the premises of the Stillwater Worsted Mills is nearing completion.

BALTIC

Council, No. 188 of L'U. St. Jean Baptiste, D'A. held its regular and annual meeting Monday evening in the rooms on High street. The following were elected officers for 1926: Chaplain, Rev. William T. O'Brien; honorary president, Remi Gauvin; president, Philip Cardin; vice president, Napoleon Belanger; secretary, Ernest Gauvin; assistant secretary, Joseph Boucher; collector, Hubert Guillot; treasurer, Leo Lacroix; master of ceremonies, Teleste Fortier; marshals, Harry Fortier, Edouard Desautels; auditors, Joseph Boucher, Ferrier Bienvenue; dean, Arthur P. Cote. Cigars were passed and lunch was served after the election.

Mrs. Louis Bebeau and Mrs. A. P. Cote were in Central Falls at the week end, attending the funeral of J. B. Beauregard of Jenck street in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Simoneau were sponsers for the infant daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henri Tibeau, at her christening.

PUTNAM

WHY WOODSTOCK BUS LINE APPLICATION WAS DENIED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 22—As the outcome of the hearing held in Putnam September 30th, the public utilities commission has granted two more permits to the New England Transportation Co. (the subsidiary of the New Haven Co.) to establish bus lines through Putnam, one for the Connecticut portion of the line from Providence to Springfield, one from Putnam to Worcester. These are parts of a proposed interstate service.

A third application for a bus line through the Woodstocks was denied. The decision says that this application was not filed in time to be considered in connection with the applicants heard September 30. Whether this means that there will be another hearing on this particular application is not clear.

Regarding the first permit, the board says that the existing train service would either be supplemented or superseded by the proposed motor bus service. The decision states that "the witnesses at this hearing expressed a desire for a service that would connect with the steam railroad service and be operated by the subsidiary of the railroad company and effect a coordination of the two kinds of service."

It was hoped that the board would recognize the need for a complete and reliable transportation service through the Woodstocks preferably with Quinebaug and Putnam as the termini in Connecticut. But, as stated the finding of the board is not definite as to what is to be done about this very important matter.

THE GILPATRIC CASE AGAIN ROUSES INTEREST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 22—There was keen interest today in the Bulletin's announcement that George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank will take no step toward bringing suit against the state of Connecticut for moneys that may be due the bank through the alleged misappropriation of bonds by G. Harold Gilpatric until he is so advised by the comptroller of the currency.

To judge from the reports given out at Hartford, it is difficult to decide whether Gilpatric used money belonging to the bank or to the Gardner or Cutler estates or Dr. S. B. Overlock, or not. The state's funds are intact, it has all the money to which it is entitled and it is easy to understand Governor Trumbull's position that it will not surrender any of its money except on court order. On the other hand Judge Lucius F. Robinson, attorney for the receiver says that he sees no reason why the state would not be party to a friendly suit to determine whether any of its bonds had been bought with stolen money. Mr. Coffin in answer to a question as to what action he intends to take, said that it was wholly dependent upon the advice of his counsel.

"As the situation is today, continued Judge Robinson, "the comptroller of the currency cannot advise what action to take. Until the accountants who have been engaged in check up the affairs of the bank and the state treasurer's office have made a report on what has been learned to date, the work is not complete and until it is complete it would be useless to seek instructions from the comptroller."

Mr. Robinson outlined the position of the receiver in the investigation of the operations of G. Harold Gilpatric as treasurer of the state and as cashier of the bank. He said it had been hoped by the receiver as by the other interests concerned, that a check up of all accounts be made, and if when the work was completed it was found that the claims of the receiver that property of the bank is now held in the state treasury, a friendly suit could be instituted for the purpose of having the courts determine whether the bank could recover the securities from the state.

About 150 attended the dance given by Putnam high school athletic association at the high school auditorium. Dancing was enjoyed from eight o'clock until midnight and refreshments were served. The affair was a financial success and a substantial sum was added to the treasury. Music was by the Lyric orchestra of Willimantic.

P. H. S. ALUMNI COM. TO HONOR FOOTBALL TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM Dec. 22—Putnam high school alumni committee appointed by the president, Archibald Macdonald, Jr., has met with a hearty response for the testimonial to the undefeated Putnam high school football team. The committee has now about $200 for this purpose. Their plans have not been divulged but it is thought that a banquet will be given the gridiron heroes with perhaps personal gifts to each member of the team. Sixteen won their "P" and are the first in the history of the school to win the letter untarnished by defeat.

Using two raw oysters as his agents, Santa Claus visited Mrs. Irving Hill at Thiells, N. Y., while she was preparing dinner and made her a Christmas present of two pearls. Friends with a knowledge of gems valued them at about $100 each.

MYSTIC

The annual meeting of the Ladies' society of the Union Baptist church was held at the home of Mrs. C. H. Wolfe, Elm street, Monday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Julia B. Coats. The secretary and treasurer's report was read as follows: "The past year has been a very quiet one on account of the repairs to the church. Our suppers have been discontinued since May. The death angel entered our midst taking one of our oldest members, Mrs. Fanny Packer one of our most active members as long as she was able to come. The sudden death of Mrs. Carrie Latham was a shock to us all; although not living here she never gave up her interest in the church and was a contributor and when living here she was interested in all the work of the church. We have paid to the trustees for repairs from our fund we had in the bank for repairs 1450 and $150 for the shrubs set in front of the church leaving $275.21 on hand." The report was accepted. The election of officers followed, the choice being president, Mrs. Julia B. Coats, vice presidents, Mrs. J. W. Phillips, Mrs. R. H. Hiscox, secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. H. Wolfe, Miss Susan L. Fish, who was president for thirty-eight years, is honorary president.

OLD MYSTIC

The Old Mystic Social Circle had a Christmas tree in the Methodist parish house Monday evening a tree decorated with tinsel, bright ronaments and colored electric bulbs was in the corner when the room lights were turned out the tree was a beautiful sight. Leslie Harley had charge of the program which was as follows: Recitations, A Fine Secret, Edna Pierce; a Fairy Artist, Katherine Keeley; solo, Holy Night, Leslie Allyn; recitations, A Christmas Story, Betty Chapping; Modern Version of Night Before Christmas, Clifford Holmes; song by the circle, It Came Upon the Midnight clear. Miss Florence Johnson presented Mrs. Christine Green who was married recently, a framed Wallace Nutting picture, a gift from the circle. It was a surprise to the bride and she cordially thanked the donors. After the program the gifts were distributed according to the number given each one and each had to open the package and show his or her prize, which created much fun. All later were seated at tables and were served ice cream and cake and coffee. Forty five were present.

RELIEVING THE COURTS

There are many occasions when it is proposed to submit various propositions to congress for the purpose of obtaining new legislation in accordance therewith. Some of these efforts are actually made. Others get no further than the talk about them.

Recently there was suggested to a county grand jurors association in New York by Judge Grossman the desirability of dealing with the crime situation by having available for service certain members of the bar who could be called upon for service upon the bench in case emergencies prevailed, whereby the existing judges were unable to cope with the situation. This developed as the result of a study of the crime conditions and the frequently repeated statement that the courts are unable to meet the situation being handicapped by lack of judges.

Judge Grossman takes the position that something ought to be done to remedy the clogged condition of the dockets, to deal more promptly with criminal cases and to have the means of meeting such situations without being obliged to wait every time it develops until congress can be gotten to act upon it.

In his assertion that it is proposed to introduce a bill in congress for the purpose of obtaining such relief it is to be realized that such would concern the federal courts, and federal courts are suffering from the very conditions complained of in many instances. Because the one judge in this federal district is unable to handle the business efforts are already underway for the appointment of another.

By the Grossman plan there would not be a restriction to one additional judge apparently, but several qualified to act would be available to remedy clogged conditions, and when conditions returned to normal they would go back to the reserve list until needed again. The idea is one that may have its defects, but it indicates that some consideration is being given to the situation that exists and that actions of some kind can be expected as the result of the demands that are being made.

GENERAL BUTLER

Developments in regard to General Smedley D. Butler, who has been director of public safety in Philadelphia for the past two years, have taken a surprising turn when it was supposed that everything had been settled at least a month ago that Butler was to go back to the marine corps and that he was unwilling to resign therefrom to keep the job in the Quaker city.

When President Coolidge was urged to persuade him to remain another year in the office General Butler was quoted as being willing to remain as such, but that he would not resign his commission in order to continue the job as a civilian. That alternative was before him and he turned it down. The proposition that was made to the president was likewise turned down. That meant that Philadelphia must obtain a successor and that seemed to have been settled by the announcement that the assistant to Butler would be named for the position, he having been schooled in the work and the Butler ideas. The change was to take place January first with General Butler returning to the marines.

Thus his resignation from the marine corps and the statement of his willingness to remain on the job in Philadelphia meant a complete and unexpected upsetting of all the plans. It was an eleventh hour reversal of what had been regarded as settled. Had the general intimated such a possibility or taken such a stand at the time the president refused to continue his loan to the Pennsylvania city, little would have been thought of it. For it to come about now has apparently been regarded by the Philadelphia mayor as too late, while this change of mind is open to the interpretation of yielding to the salary involved and therefore reducing the Butler prestige.

After President Coolidge's decision General Butler had two courses open to him. Now he has only one, that of recalling his resignation and returning to the marines, unless he prefers to launch out in some other civilian undertaking.

THE COAL DISPUTE

There have been times when the hardships from the shortage or lack of fuel has brought great pressure upon both sides of the coal strike. Such does not exist today. It has been found that where other fuel than anthracite is needed it can be obtained and results that are satisfactory in meeting an emergency can be secured. Thus the cry for the resumption of hard coal mining from the consumers this winter is not what it has been in the past. Preparation for the situation helped materially and substitutes have furnished the rest of the needed assistance.

Getting together on the part of the operators and the miners is apparently not going to be accomplished unless there is a clear understanding on the part of the respective sides as to what basis a conference is going to be held. This situation ought to be easily met. There is no need of quibbling one way or the other.

If each side is ready to talk business and has no reservation in regard to such a parley it can be stated in such a manner that there will be no misinterpretation. If on the other hand one side will not consider certain propositions, or will not enter a conference unless a certain plan is used as a basis there ought to be no attempt to indicate otherwise. Nothing is going to be gained by getting the miners and the operators together under misrepresentations, regardless of the side from which the misrepresentations come, and apparently the operators are firm in their determination to have a clear understanding concerning a conference before they will agree to meet the miners. Such an attitude may serve to hasten a solution of the dispute. Certainly another conference that could make no progress because of the misunderstanding that might arise concerning a basis for discussion would be time wasted. It might just as well be not attempted until there is the needed understanding. Indications are that the time is approaching when that will be reached but it may not be this year.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSIONERS

Two appointments to the interstate commerce commission have been made by the president to fill vacancies. Action upon the nominations rests with the senate.

At the last session opposition was raised by the democrats against the naming of Thomas F. Woodlock to that commission under the claim that the south was entitled to the appointment. Consequently Mr. Woodlock has been serving under a recess appointment and confirmation is sought from the present senate.

By the resignation of Commissioner McChord of Kentucky, a democrat, the opportunity to give the south the representation sought has presented itself and the president has named R. V. Taylor of Alabama, the third member the south will have had upon the commission in a half century if he is approved.

In either, or any case, there are the best of reasons for believing that the president has made his selections on the grounds of fitness. That was evident when he named Commissioner Woodlock and yet the question of locality loomed larger in the minds of some senators. By the change of events, certain southern leaders, including Senator Underwood, are satisfied with the representation the south will get and the character of the representative. It should be sufficient to remove the opposition which has prevailed concerning Commissioner Woodlock of New York, eminently qualified for the commissionership, and yet it is unfortunates that such insistence upon strictly regional representation should be allowed to stand in the way of fitness for so important a position. The way for the senate to redeem itself has been provided.

FRANK A. MUNSEY

For more than a generation the name of Frank A. Munsey has been widely known throughout the country in magazine and newspaper activities. Like many others who have risen from the position of a poor boy, with no other prospects than his strong determination to succeed, to a multi-millionaire, he has known the meaning of hard sledding, failures and reverses but he met them without discouragement. His ability to rise above such conditions and to surmount difficulties figures prominently in his progress along the road of success.

When he realized that the restrictions of a telegrapher's life were not suited to his yearnings there were no prospects beyond his confidence in himself. That trait was conspicuous throughout his career.

Frank A. Munsey was not one of those who made everything succeed to which he gave his attention. He was a man of vision and he made history in many line and newspaper circles by the surprising and unusual moves which he made. He was able to make headway against great odds but when the time came that he saw that progress was not being made he did not hesitate to change his course and some of these changes were revolutionary especially in connection with newspapers. If he couldn't make them succeed he could reduce competition by consolidation and he did it. His career in the publishing world is an outstanding one.

And the same may be said concerning his other ventures, his chain store system and his building projects. His death removes a national figure, a master mind and a man whose indomitable will to do will long stand as an example of what can be accomplished by the poor boy. His death will be widely regretted.

DIFFERENT KIND

"My wife's mother is coming to visit us," announced the fat man at the noon luncheon.

"Heavy condolences," said the wit of the party. "And all that sort of thing, dear boy!"

"Huh?" blinked the fat man. "How do you get that way? This isn't a comic strip—she's not that kind of a mother-in-law—"

"None of them are," remarked the thin man shaking his head. "They are perfectly lovely women who intend to let the children strictly alone to paddle their own canoe and then they just can't resist speaking to Mamie about the number of cigars John smokes or the careless way he throws things on the floor for her to break her back picking up, to say nothing of her always letting him have his own way.

"The Flitters across the hall have a mother-in-law visiting them and she was in the other day. She says it breaks her heart to see how Jim is taking all the sweet girlish spirit out of Chlorine. Whenever Chlorine tries to talk to him brightly and tell him what the girls wore to the bridge club the brute just sort of relapses into his newspaper and merely grunts. And how, she asks you, how can a woman be a real companion to her husband and keep pace with him mentally if he won't even listen to her?"

"H'm", the fat man chortled. "You ought to hear my mother-in-law when Jean interrupts me! 'Leave the boy alone,' she tells her, 'can't you see he's busy reading? And what does he care about Daisy's new wallpaper. Use some sense!' That's the way she talks! And——"

"There's some catch in it," the thin man persisted darkly. "They're worse when they're devoted to you! They make you do things for your own good no matter how deeply it pains them, and I claim one of the joys and rights of adult years is indulging yourself when you know perfectly well you shouldn't!

"My mother-in-law says, 'Henrietta, don't give John such a big serving of strawberry shortcake when you know strawberries are bad for him! Give it to me.' The worst of it is she's right but I hate her for twenty-four hours after I am deprived of the shortcake. When I want to sit up till 2 o'clock to finish a prime detective story she reminds me that I have to see an important man the next morning at 8:30 and want a good night's rest so as to have my wits about me—and so I do, but darn it all, I'd pull through somehow. All the while the important man is telling me why I should do something he wants me to and I don't, my mind is distracted wondering whether Ardine escaped the clutches of the heavy villain and if the mine really was dynamited by Peter the Frog."

"Or else," insisted the wit of the party, "the mothers-in-law go through your bureau drawers, making clicking sounds of pity with their tongue and teeth and proceed to mend and sew on buttons and put things in order. You can't find your summer underwear until September, your golf hosiery is a total loss because it has been neatly put with your winter wools, and your particular pet work clothes are sent to the heathen because it is ridiculous for a man of your standing to wear such looking things! And most always they want to know what on earth you can see in that dreadful Tom Tompkins you chum around with so much!

"When you were 10, your mother would tell you for goodness sake not to play with that grimy little Betts boys from across the tracks, and you would look at her dumbly, unable to explain that little Betts was an altogether wonderful person—and so now, you retire fiercely with your Tom Tompkins, of whom your mother-in-law disapproves immensely. Well, so long—I don't suppose any of us will see you while she is here!"

"Well," said the fat man triumphantly, "she wrote my wife that she wanted to get up a supper for my crowd while she was here because it had been a long time since she'd had any hungry men to cook for——"

"Say," said the thin man, "maybe there's something in this, but I'm mighty afraid of a catch of some sort!"

"Some men do have all the luck," said the wit of the crowd indignantly. "You can set the party date right now!"—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Juan de Pareja, a Great Artist

One of the prettiest romances in all the history of art is the romance of Juan de Pareja, the slave of the great painter, Velasquez. That romance ended its course in 1670, when the "slave" died at the age of 64, leaving behind him an immortal name. He and his master alike, as well as all their patrons, have long been dust, but in the great picture galleries in Madrid, one of the proudest capitals in Europe; in the galleries in Petrograd that the Russians filled with the art treasures of the world; in the great galleries in England and elsewhere one finds the work of Velasquez, the haughty Spanish painter, and also the work of Juan de Pareja, who was only a slave. Velasquez was a famous painter, a proud Spaniard, one who had won his way by his devotion to art, one who had the favor of the King and who knew the people of the court. Velasquez maintained studios where he worked and where he could show his pictures to admiring circles of friends and patrons. One of the men who lifted the heavy pictures about, who placed the easels, and who brought stools for the patrons to sit upon, was a black man, a Moor, a slave named Juan.

No one paid the slightest attention to Juan, the black slave. "Only a Moor!" a man said, with a curl of his proud lip, as some one asked who it was who was moving about in the inner room. But the Moor, the black man, the slave, was in reality one of the best pupils of Velasquez. He watched the master paint; he heard him instruct aristocratic students; he saw how he mixed his colors. Then when Velasquez threw his cloak about his shoulders and went out, the Moor put the studio in order and at once sat down to try to paint pictures. Secretly, carefully, lovingly he worked for several years, and slowly he felt his power grow. He erased his pictures, tried again, and worked harder than ever, made new successes. After a long time he felt the glow of achievement. He painted a picture into which he threw his whole soul. In his eyes it was good. He hid it behind a curtain in the studio.

Then no less a man than the King came to see Velasquez's work. As if by accident the slave exposed his own painting. "Beautiful!" cried the King to Velasquez. "Why do you hide your best pictures from me?" "It is not mine," answered Velasquez.

"Where did it come from?" Juan told of his efforts and pleaded for mercy. To the glory of Velasquez, the great Spanish painter forgave the slave, took him for his pupil, taught him more, and so developed the genius of the black that Juan de Pareja became one of the immortals. That is one of the most beautiful stories in art.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Oscar S. Straus, who celebrates his 75th birthday anniversary today, has had a career of peculiar distinction. Born of Bavarian immigrant parents, he was destined to become one of the merchant princes of the New World, and to be called to positions of high trust by five different presidents of the United States. After studying law he entered on a mercantile career with his brothers in New York. As wealth came he turned to philanthropic pursuits. Under three different administrations he served as United States ambassador to Turkey. From 1906 to 1909 he was secretary of the department of commerce and labor under President Roosevelt, being the first Jew to have a seat in the cabinet. In 1912 he was chosen by the progressive party as candidate for governor of New York and two years later he helped to negotiate the wage dispute between eastern railways and their engineers. He was a founder of the National Civic Federation and has been identified with many other public welfare movements.

Stories That Recall Others

So He Kept It Himself

A crowd gathered as a man attempted to deliver a lost Christmas package to its rightful owner. It was dropped in a crowd at the corner and the man picked it up. Looking about someone pointed to a man in front of him. The finder ran after the supposed owner only to have him deny ownership. Then someone pointed to a woman ahead. The finder offered it to her.

"I should say not!" she said as she tossed her head in the air and went on.

Then he tried another woman, still farther ahead, and received only a stony stare, and she continued her shopping trip.

"Well, I'll keep it myself," the finder said and the crowd, which had witnessed his rebuffs, applauded.

Had a Poor Teacher

He has been to an insane hospital and allowed to go home. The relatives were desirous of having him returned and it appeared they were after his property.

The result was an examination to see what had better be done in the examination instituted by the relatives he was making an excellent showing as he quickly answered question after question. There was of course no limit to the questions that could be asked and the lawyer for the relatives, who may be called Smith was jumping from one subject to another with disturbing rapidity.

Finally the farmer seemed to tire under the strain. Smith shot a question at him, but there was no reply. The farmer seemed to slump down in his chair. Smith was quick to analyze the situation and demanded, "Answer that question."

"I'm sorry you asked me that," was the mumbled reply.

"Why," was the sharp query tinged with a note of triumph.

"Because" said the farmer suddenly straightening up, "I am somewhat handicapped in my education. If you remember Mr Smith I used to go to school where you taught."

The examination was immediately halted.

ORIGINAL LINCOLN TOWN WAS IN ILLINOIS

Of the 34 cities in the United States which bear the name of Lincoln this city alone took the name during the life-time of Abraham Lincoln and when he knew no fame, historians here say. He christened this city with two watermelons.

When the railroad, which later became the Chicago and Alton, was laid through Illinois in 1852, Robert Latham, Virgil Hickox and John D. Gillett all famous pioneers of Illinois, purchased a section of land adjacent to the railroad right of way, as a prospective town site and county seat.

They were personal friends of Lincoln, who was traveling circuit lawyer. He was their legal advisor in the location of the proposed town. In Lincoln's office in Springfield on Aug. 24, 1853, the pioneers discussed a name for the proposed town.

One of the proprietors said:

"Let's name the town for Abe and call it Lincoln."

The other agreed. Lincoln's usual modest humor then rose to the occasion and he said:

"All right boys, go ahead—but I think you are making a mistake. Nothing named Lincoln, as far as I know, ever amounted to much."

Five days after the new town was named, a sale of lots occurred on the new town site, at which the future president attended. At the noon hour Lincoln purchased two watermelons at a vendor's booth. With a melon under each arm, he called the proprietors of the new town to the proposed court house square, cut the two melons in half. He gave a half to each proprietor and retained a half himself, with the remark:

"We will now proceed to christen the new town."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

VIEWS CONCERNING A UNITED STATES OF EUROPE

GENEVA, Dec. 22—(AP)—Extraordinary interest has been created here by the replies which members of the council of the League of Nations have made to a query propounded by a Geneva journalist—"Will there come a United States of Europe?"

Though varying in views concerning the desirability of the political unity of Europe, practically all the councillors questioned were of the opinion that an economic union was inevitable, thus confirming the impression held widely in Europe that the Locarno security conference meant a European economic federation.

M. Paul Boncour of France, answered bluntly: "Yes, we are headed towards the constitution of a European union and confederation of the United States of Europe. What was achieved at Locarno and what we are achieving at Geneva constitute the first step toward this goal."

Paul Hymans, of Belgium, said he did not believe in the probability of a political entity like the United States of America, but thought that an European unino would take the form of a series of ententes based on peace and cooperation. This meant the creation of an economic understanding through the destruction of the economic barriers dividing the nations of Europe.

Dr. Edvard Benes, Czecho-Slovakia, thus replied: "The Locarno accords, the general extension of arbitration and the political and social reorganization which has marked Europe in recent years all tend toward the constitution of a United States of Europe. No one can predict its political or judicial form but remember this—constitution is not the goal, but the success of what we are doing now."

Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary was vague, contenting himself with remarks that the Locarno agreements strengthened the league of nations.

Vittorio Scialoia, of Italy, flatly rejected the idea of a European political federation and favored a kind of second Pan-American union. But as this seemed impossible among the old countries of Europe he foresaw a union based on common interests and economic arrangements.

WOMAN OVERCOME BY SMOKE AT TAFTVILLE FIRE

The Taftville boarding house was damaged to the extent of about $5,000 Tuesday morning, when fire broke out in the cellar and for a time threatened to spread throughout the entire four stories of the brick structure. Quick work held the damage to a minimum, most of it being from water, used to extinguish the flames.

Central fire station received a call about 10.30 o'clock, Agent F. B. Ricketson, agent of the Ponemah Co., requesting the local department to be held in readiness. Chief Howard L. Stanton decided to go at once rather than to wait until the fire spread. With Engine 2, of Greeneville, he went to Taftville and when they arrived the building was threatened with destruction.

The first work of the local organized firemen was to throw open the windows and clear out the smoke from hallways and rooms, thus allowing them to get at the fire from the inside. The Taftville apparatus was at work soon after the fire was discovered by Postmaster Dennis J. Murphy, and had laid six lines of hose, water being poured into the building from these lines.

The fire was located in the rear of the cellar, near a large pile of cord wood, and the flames were eating through to the first floor. Quick work soon drowned out the flames and the fire was held to the cellar for most part, some damage occurring on the first floor in the kitchen.

The cellar is used for storage of wood, and coal, the heating plant and quarters for the Lafayette and Old Gent's clubs. All these places were somewhat damaged by fire and water, the latter being over a foot in depth in many places.

The post office escaped damage and business was continued as usual immediately after the fire was in check. Miss Julia Holtz, of Talman street, a chambermaid at the boarding house, who was on the top floor of the building, was overcome by smoke and was carried from the building by the Taftville firemen, recovering almost immediately.

Actual damage by fire is estimated at $2,000, the remainder of the damage being solely from water.

LOCAL BANK DETECTS FAKE $20 BILL

People are warned to be on the lookout for a counterfeit $20 bill as one of these has been discovered in this city by a cashier in one of the banks. The bill is serial number K-57060019, is of the series of 1922, C, plate number 656, with the names of H. D. Spellman, registrar of the treasury and Frank White, treasurer of the United States, with a portrait of Washington.

The counterfeit is well executed on lithographic plate of bleached genuine paper. Printing on the face of the note is blotchy, obliterating the fine lines of the lathe work and in the back ground of the portrait. The counterfeit is hard to detect and notes of this series should be carefully examined.

Among the students enrolled for the winter term in the Spokane night schools are two women who have attended regularly for more than six years. Their studies have included English, French, Spanish, geology, electricity, public speaking, penmanship, business law and typewriting.

TWO NEW DAMAGE SUITS BROUGHT IN THE COMMON PLEAS COURT

In an action brought in the common pleas court for New London county, George E. and Elmer E. Pitcher, Norwich civil engineers and architects, doing business under the name of George E. Pitcher and Son are suing Abraham J. Agranovitch of this city for damages of $600. The plaintiffs allege that about August 1924, they were employed by the defendant to survey a building lot in Colchester, to draw plans and specifications for a one story building to cost between $12,000 and $15,000 and to supervise the erection of the building. It was agreed, the plaintiffs claim, that they would be paid five per cent of the cost of the erection of the building, for their services.

It is claimed by the plaitiffs that they survey the lot, and drew up the plans, but that before the contracts for the construction of the building were signed, the defendant sold the building lot and the plans as prepared by them. They claim that their services were reasonably worth $450.

Frank G. Benson Brings Suit

Frank G. Benson of this city has brought suit in the common pleas court against Henry Pukallus of this city, for damages of $600. It is claimed that the plaintiff and defendant on October 1st of this year, entered into an agreement whereby the defendant leased of the plaintiff a two apartment house with garage on the Joseph Perkins road and agreed to pay $140 rent each month, due on the 15th of each month.

The rent due November 15th is unpaid. It is also claimed that on October 3, 1925, the plaintiff and defendant entered into a written agreement whereby for consideration Mr. Pukallus would on or before October 15, 1925, deliver to Mr. Benson a deed for the premises on the Joseph Perkins road.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that he performed his part of the agreement but that the defendant has neglected to carry out his part of the agreement. Damages of $600 are asked.

CHAMBER ESSAY PRIZES DISTRIBUTED TO WINNERS

The directors of the Norwich chamber of commerce have been busy during the past week in visiting the various schools throughout the town and awarding the prizes given by the chamber in the recent essay contest. On December 11th, during the absence of President James L. Case in Washington, Dr. Donohue presented the prizes and badges of honorable mention to the Academy students. Dr. Donohue also presented the honorable mention badges to the students of St. Patrick's parochial school on the 18th. Abner Schwartz on this same day visited the Laurel Hill school and gave out the prizes last Monday morning. William H. Collins, assistant manager of the U. S. Finishing Co., presented the prizes to the children of the Greeneville school. Monday morning also Dr. Brophy presented the prizes to the children of St. Mary's parochial school. Monday afternoon President James L. Case visited the Broadway school from which he graduated and awarded the prizes to the children of that school Monday afternoon also, Roy D. Judd gave the prizes to the children of the Bishop school on Main street. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell awarded the prizes to the children of the Elizabeth street school on the 16th. Louis J. Fontaine visited the Sacred Heart school in Taftville and St. Joseph's school on the 22nd and distributed prizes at both these schools. During the afternoon, Prof. Henry A. Tirrell visited the Broad Street school and J. Nelson Weymouth the Town and West Town Street schools. Today (Wednesday) William G. Park will award the prizes to the Occum and Wequonnoc schools which will complete the schools throughout the city.

The directors were highly pleased with the quality of the essays and the splendid knowledge that the children have of the manufacturing, commercial business, educational, recreational, and transportation features of Norwich. They also showed their keen interest in the buildings, the streets, police and fire departments, and the government of the city and town. Much knowledge of the colonial history and the prominent people of Norwich who have contributed to the history of this country was shown by the pupils in their essays. The philanthropic and charitable institutions and organizations were not overlooked by the children in their essays.

The directors gave a short address at each school to the children and urged them to pursue their studies vigorously in order that they may lay the foundation for a successful career later on in life.

The chamber donated cash prizes of five dollars, first prize; three dollars, second prize; and two dollars third prize for the children of the grammar grades and likewise for the Academy students. In addition to these prizes neat blue ribbons suitably stamped in gold lettering were furnished to the prize winners and to those who received honorable mention as a token of their efforts in this contest. The winners of the essay contest in the Academy were first prize, George Hodges; second prize, S. Zimmerman and third prize, Louise Case. Those receiving honorable mention were Catherine Zumbro, Otis Fellows and M. M. Cotton. The prizes awarded in the grammar schools were, first prize, John Tingley, Broadway school; Olive Rathbone, second prize, Elisabeth St. School; Sophie Cimikoski, third prize, Greeneville school. Honorable mention ribbons were distributed to the pupils in all the schools of the 6th, 7th and 8th grades.

The purpose of the essay contest in the schools was to have the children take a real interest in the town that is spending so much money annually on their education and what is true of the town is also true of the four parochial schools in the town. The result shows that all the school children of Norwich appreciate what is being done for them and the quality of the essays indicates in no small degree, the splendid instructions that the teachers of Norwich are giving to the children. It furthermore proves that all the schools of Norwich are conducted on a high standard.

PUBLIC WELCOME AT MIDNIGHT SERVICE

The programme for the midnight service to be held at Christ Episcopal church Christmas Eve, Thursday, has been completed. Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of the church, has issued an invitation to everyone in Norwich to attend the service.

The carol singing at the opening of the service at 11:45 o'clock will help to get all those present in a spirit to take part in the wonderful choral Eucharist early Christmas morning. The decorated church and brilliantly lighted altar will add much to the effective service with choir and orchestra.

Everyone in Norwich, all classes and creeds, will be welcome to attend the service, said Rev. Mr. Budlong. Sunday, December 27th, at 7 o'clock a pageant, The Nativity, will be given and there will be the manger service at the church. The Christmas tree and entertainment for the members of the church school will take place Monday evening at 7 o'clock in the parish rooms. A plain Eucharist will be held Christmas morning at 10:30 o'clock at the church.

COULDN'T PAY FINE SO WENT TO JAIL

In the city court Tuesday morning Judge Arthur F. Libby fined William Anderson, 24, the sum of $21.16, including costs, on a charge of breach of the peace. Lacking the necessary money Anderson went to jail.

Anderson pleaded guilty to striking and assaulting Harry Foster, colored. It is alleged the assault took place during a drunken row at the Foster home, Anderson hitting Foster with a lamp, inflicting a cut on his head.

One violator of the traffic rules was before the court and his case was quickly disposed of by Judge Libby.

OVER 50 TABLES AT COLLEGE BRIDGE PARTY

Over fifty tables were in play at the Connecticut college endowment bridge and whist, held at the Wauregan hotel, Tuesday night, and as a result a substantial sum of money was netted for the endowment fund which is being raised to bring about increased salaries for the faculty at the college. Play started shortly after 8 o'clock and continued until 10.30 o'clock, when delicious refreshments were served. Announcing of the prize winners followed the serving of refreshments.

Winners at bridge were as follows: Ladies, Mrs. Clarence G. Thompson 2009; Mrs. Leslie Brewer 2000; Mrs. Daniel Lamitie 2810; Miss Helena Wolfe 2802; Miss Isabel Leonard 2662; Mrs. Henry Vignot 2546; Miss Lillian Crumb 2536; Miss Edith Tirrell 2307; Mrs. Emma Thompson 2452; Miss Clara Evans 2028.

Gentlemen, Harry Ford 2767; W. Manley Eastwood, Jr., 3732; M. Earl Mathewson, 2479; Dr. Frederick Schenck 2386.

The prize for whist was awarded Miss Rose Sullivan, whose score for the evening was thirty-three.

Patrons and patronesses for the party were Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. Alex M. Pasnik, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Latimer and Mr. and Mrs. Nathan A. Gilman.

The hostesses were as follows: Mrs. Robert Agnew, Mrs. Kenneth Church, Mrs. Frederick Schenck, Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell, Mrs. Earl Mathewson, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. Edwin Sevin, Mrs. Howarth Collins, Mrs. John R. Tarrant, Mrs. William H. Oates, Mrs. James Morton, Mrs. Herbert H. Willey, Miss Helen Browning, Mrs. Robert James, Mrs. Harry B. Ford, Mrs. Frank W. Clapp, Miss Mary Higgins, Miss Helena Wolfe, Miss Helen Mung, Mrs. Arthur L. Peale, Miss Helen Tirrell, Mrs. John D. McWilliams, Miss Frances Coit, Miss Emma Thompson, Mrs. Edward J. Graham, Mrs. Charles Carpenter, Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, Mrs. Charles W. Frink, Mrs. Max Rabinovitch, Mrs. Joseph Burns, Mrs. Alexander Manes, Mrs. Herman A. Bruckner, Mrs. Charles Gilbert, Mrs. Casper Graff, Miss Marcia Bruckner, Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, Miss Millicent Disco, Miss Helene Crawford, Miss Helen Land, Mrs. Benjamin Lahn, Miss Phyllis Brewer, Mrs. Leslie Brewer, Miss Elizabeth Smith and Miss Rose Sullivan.

In making the endowment bridge and whist party a success the committee appreciates the cooperation of Norwich people, whose assistance and contributions made the affair possible. The use of the spacious ball room and the chairs, was the gift of the Wauregan House management, additional chairs being furnished by C. A. Gager, Church & Allen and Shea & Burke. Tickets were presented by Mayor Mile H. Ware and the beautiful prized were donated by Bellas Spa, St. Clair, The Bushk Co., Miss Maude Buckingham, John B. Stanton, Faust-Cadden Co., Albert Boardman, Mrs. Herman Sears, Mae Hanover, Miss Mary Coughlin, Eagle Clothing Co., Miss Helena Wolfe and The Tanney Corp.

The committee in charge of arranging for the affair was as follows: Miss Constance Clapp, chairman, Miss Marcia Stanton, Miss Lois Latimer and Miss Dorothy Pasnik, all of Norwich and Miss Lucy Gilman of Bozrahville.

HELD CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR SILK MILL EMPLOYES

Over one hundred employes of the Schwarzenbach Huber company enjoyed a Christmas party in the recreation room at the company plant, on Mechanic street, Tuesday evening, the affair proving one of the most enjoyable ever held by the employes. The hall had been tastefully decorated for the party, red and green streamers running from all parts of the hall, while a line of large, red Christmas bells ran down the center aisle. The Christmas tree, prettily decorated and brilliantly lighted, was placed on a platform in the front of the hall and the gifts were piled high beneath it. The gifts were opened by those holding the tickets and considerable fun was had at the expense of those drawing prizes.

The programme opened with remarks by Morris L. Bergstresser, superintendent of the plant, after which the following delightful programme was rendered: Group of musical numbers, Let Me Call You Sweetheart, Brown Eyes, and Moonlight American Roses, by Miss Mary Mileski, piano, and Ralph Marsh, violin; vocal solo, Gypsy Love Song, Miss Minnie Mingo; remarks, Christmas Spirit, James Jackson; duet, Silent Night, Miss Mary Mileski, soprano and Lewis Aldrich, bass; remarks in Greek, Thomas Philips; vocal solo, Anchored, Lewis Aldrich.

At the conclusion of the programme games were played and a good time for all was in style. Santa Claus then appeared and the distribution of gifts took place. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the refreshment committee.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, the music being furnished by Miss Mileski and Mr. Marsh.

The affair was a great success and it is planned to make it an annual event for the employes. Committees responsible for the success of the first Christmas party were as follows:

Committee on arrangements, Lewis Aldrich, Miss Elsie Sourbier, Ralph March and Pantelis George. Refreshments, Miss Mary Savard, Miss Jermaine Rochette, Miss Jeannette Rochette and Miss Margaret Moreau. Decorations, the Misses Elsie Sourbier and Mary Mileski, Lewis Aldrich, Ralph Marsh and Pantelis George. Music, Miss Mary Mileski and Ralph Marsh.

JEWETT CITY TAKES SECOND GAME FROM TAFTVILLE BASKETBALL FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 22—Jewett City once again proved its superiority over the Taftville basketball team when the Jewett City Five sent the Taftville team down to defeat 31 to 21 in Bijou hall here tonight. This was the second game of the series between these two fives, Jewett City having won a previous contest. Taftville, in an attempt to capture this contest, had imported Dutch Leonard of Hartford to strengthen the guard positions but even Leonard was unable to hold the Jewett City boys.

Taking the lead in the early minutes of the game the Jewett City team aided by the accurate eye of Capt. Bub Benjamin, never gave up their command and steadily forged ahead until the final whistle. The Jewett City, well aware of the reputation of Leonard kept close guard over him and he was never dangerous. The Hartford lad played a good guard game but he failed to figure in the scoring.

Harry Mills at center also contributed largely to the Jewett City attack getting three baskets and also caging a brace of fouls. For the Taftville team Jimmy Murphy and Tom Coleman were the leaders of the attack.

CASE AGAINST TENNIS PLAYERS IS DISMISSED

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Appearance of six nationally known players, including William T. Tilden, in an unsanctioned tennis tournament for a Christmas fund here last Saturday was dismissed today without punitive steps by the advisory committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

The incident was closed with a letter to the contestants by Jones W. Merserau, president of the association, characterizing the infraction of the rules as due to a "misunderstanding," expressing his regret over the publicity given the affair and warning the players against engaging in such competition in the future. Approval of his views was signified by the advisory committee.

Mr. Merséreau pointed out that failure to seek sanction for the event until the "eleventh hour" had been largely responsible for the refusal of Louis B. Dailey, chairman of the sanction committee, to approve the tournament, in which Tilden, Vincent Richards, Dr. George King, Francis T. Hunter, Mrs. Molla Mallory and Miss Margaret K. Browne took part.

Declaring that he "appreciated the worthiness of the cause" but that he could see no reason for "any change on what has been the policy for a number of years," Mr. Merserеau said it had been decided at the time as "inadvisable to insist that the matches be called off, as obligations had been incurred."

He denied that "the trouble had to do with 'official red tape,' supporting Mr. Dailey's contention that both the players and the association have been embarrassed by requests for exhibition matches, some of which were not considered worthy. He pointed out that the general rule required that such sanctions be granted to clubs affiliated with the association and that, where receipts are charged, the money must be devoted to tennis purposes, had been deemed necessary to protect the association and the players from exploitation.

"For the future," he adds in the letter, "I will ask that the individual players who are asked to take part in exhibition matches satisfy themselves that the matches are properly sanctioned."

WESTERLY TO PLAY AT BALTIC TONIGHT

Westerly brings a fine array of stars to Baltic tonight with the avowed purpose of breaking Baltic's winning streak. On Friday the Connecticut team minus the services of their star center, Red Charron, just nosed out South Manchester for the third victory of the season but with Charron again in the lineup Baltic has a fine chance of continuing the string of victories. Westerly will be represented by Handy Ralph, former Wentworth institute star, C. Stenhouse, A. Diome, Hopwood, the six foot center, McCloy, former Battery E star, Fred Clark, Rhode Island State college guard, and S. Stenhouse. This outfit should give the local team a hard, if not disasterous tussle.

Baltic will have the regular lineup of fast and light men. Capt. R. Robertaille and Swanson at guards, Red Charron at center, Coady and W. Robertaille in the forward berths. Provencher, who clearly showed his ability last week will be held in reserve. A fast preliminary between the Baltic Bantams and the Ponemah Wheel club of Taftville will be played.

COLLEGE STARS HOME FOR CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

Several college athletes are at their homes in Norwich for the Christmas holidays. These include Lawrence (Chick) Stanley, star outfield of Catholic university team, George Mullen, star tackle of the Middlebury football team, William Ringland, who played the infield with Tufts, and Johnny Murphy, a member of the Holy Cross track team.

M'GRAW TO HOLD GIANTS TOGETHER FOR 1926 SEASON

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—In marked contrast to the steps for reconstruction taken by the Yankees and to his own policy of former years, Manager John McGraw today indicated that the team with which he fought a losing battle against the Pirates for the 1925 National league pennant will be retained substantially intact to renew the championship drive next season.

MICHIGAN GOVERNOR WILL NOT SANCTION BIG BOUT

LANSING, Mich., Dec. 22—(AP)—Prospects for a championship fight in Michigan between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, flared up brightly a few minutes today and then fizzled into a complete d. d.

A Mackinac Island hotel owner wrote the attorney general requesting an opinion as to whether the proposed ten round bout could be held there, presumably next summer. According to his letter, the match was to be promoted by Floyd Fitzsimmons, and about all that was needd to make the affair certain was the state's approval. Governor Groesbeck took a hand in the matter by stating that the fight will not be countenanced in this state.

"These championship fights are just auctioned around among the states to shake down the public," he said. He wondered whether Mackinac Island would do any better toward making expenses than, Shelby, Mont.

Sometime ago, the governor announced that no championship or outdoor arena fights would be allowed in Michigan. In fact he intimated that with very few exception, match permits would be granted only to American Legion posts or similar organizations. This rule still stands, the governor said.

GEORGETOWN RUNNER SHOWS WELL IN TRACK MEET

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—George Masters and Johnny Holden, former Georgetown athletes, and Eddie Barry, formerly of Cornell, showed good form tonight in the Christmas fund track games in Brooklyn, the first indoor event of importance this season.

Masters, running from scratch, captured the mile in 4 minutes, 35 seconds. The veteran, Abel Kiviat, who also started at scratch, finished fourth. Holden took the half in 2 minutes, 2-5 seconds, while Kirby registered in the two-mile starting 145 yards behind the Olympic champion, Albin Stenroos. Stenroos quit the race after 1 1-4 miles. Kirby's time was 9:51 2-5.

Willie Plant, American walking champion, dropped out after 1 1-2 miles of the two-mile walk. Harry Hinkel of New York, with five seconds' handicap, taking the event in 15.42.

Cecil Cooke of Syracuse failed to appear for the 440, a handicap affair in which Jimmy Burgess of Georgetown had to be satisfied with third place. Franklin McClain of Georgetown, with four yards advantage, won in 52 seconds.

Carl Christenson of the Newark A. C. captured a special 60-yard high hurdle event from Herb Meyer and Tom Farrell in 8 3-5 seconds.

RICKARD HAS SIGNED THREE BOUTS FOR NEW YEARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Promoter Tex Rickard today completed a card of three ten round bouts for a show to be staged in Madison Square Garden on New Year's day, the main event of which will bring together Dave Shade, California welterweight, and Roland Todd of England.

Sailor Friedman of Chicago, who recently extended the welterweight champion, Mickey Walker, in two keenly contested title fights, will oppose Willie Harmon of New York in the semi-final, the third match will pit Joe Dundee, Baltimore lightweight, against Sammy Baker of Mitchell Field.

McGraw Gets Decision

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Phil McGraw, of Detroit, recived the decision in a 12 round bout with Luis Vicentini of Chile here tonight. McGraw weighed 135, Vincentini 125 1-2. It was McGraw's second victory over the South American.

LEATHER PUSHERS READY FOR RING ENGAGEMENT AT THE GARDEN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Pugilists of the Far West, the south and the east were gathered here today to engage in intersectional ring battles at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night for charity. Heavyweights, light-heavyweights and flyweights, including the new 112-pound champion, Fidel La Barba of Los Angeles, are on the card, which has been arranged in aid of a local Christmas fund.

La Barba will make his initial appearance here, unrecognized by the New York State Athletic commission as champion, despite his conquest of the former title-holder, Frankie Genaro, in a decision bout on the Pacific coast and recognition elsewhere as ruler of the flyweights. La Barba's contest with Law Perfetti of New York has been limited to six rounds under a commission rule because he has not yet reached 21 years and will not involve his title. It will be the semi-final to a ten-round match between Mike McTigue, former light-heavyweight champion, and Tiger Flowers the negro battler from Georgia.

A second ten-round match will bring together George Godfrey, Alabama negro, recent victor by a knockout over Fred Fulton in five rounds, and Martin Burke, Louisiana heavyweight. It will mark their second clash, Godfrey having gained a close verdict over his white foe last summer on the Pacific coast.

Izzy Schwartz of New York and Ernie Jarvis, English flyweight, will be opponents in an international contest of ten rounds, marking a renewal of their feud after a fast bout of two weeks ago, which was won by Schwartz.

Added interest attached to the main bout between Flowers and McTigue, owing, to a promise of Promoter Tex Rickard that the winner will be in line for a championship go with Paul Berlenbach. Flowers ruled a slight favorite today as a result of his victory last week over Frank Moody, British heavyweight, who was floored three times by the southerner.

Douglas Sues for $100,000

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 22—(AP)—Phil Douglas, former Giant pitcher, entered suit for $100,000 her late today against Joe Ward, a Pittsburgh sports writer, charging that Ward wrote an alleged libelous article about him. The article Douglas said was published in the baseball magazine in its issue of January 1926.

Basketball Challenge

The Eagle basketball team of Taftville has organized for the season and would like to play any team in Norwich or vicinity averaging 16 years of age. They would like games with the Y. M. H. A. Juniors at Norwich. For arrangements write to Mgr. Leodore Phaneuf, Box 58, Taftville.

BARBER SUGGESTS THREE CORNERED TOURNAMENT

Frankie Barber of Danielson, king of the Eastern Connecticut pin-crashers, in a talk with the Bulletin on Tuesday evening expressed himself as anxious to start something in the bowling line among the three leading bowlers of the eastern part of the state. Roy Fillmore of Norwich, Chip Dugas of Taftville and Barber himself.

Barber brings forth a plan for a three-cornered tournament which looks good as a bowling attraction. His plan is to have a tournament in which each of the three bowls 99 strings. With this odd number of strings there is little or no chance for a tie. He suggests that thirteen matches be rolled on the bowler's home alley, thirteen on his opponents alleys and thirteen on what would be termed as neutral alleys. By neutral alleys Mr. Barber means that he would roll Dugas on Fillmore's home alleys, Fillmore and Dugas would bowl thirteen of their matches on Barber's alleys and Fillmore and Barber would roll on Dugas alleys. This would give none of the trio any advantage of a break in the schedule.

He also suggests that thirteen strings be rolled in each match, five in the afternoon and eight in the evening. He also suggests a sizable cash prize the winner of the tournament to take all. He would welcome suggestions from either Mr. Fillmore or Mr. Dugas.

ANGELOPOLIS WINS MEDAL FOR ALL-AROUND ATHLETE

As a feature of the closing session of the fall term of the intermediate boys gym class at the Y M C A, an all round physical ability test was conducted among the boys in the gym yesterday afternoon. Demosthenes Angelopolis winning the medal award with 233 points, closely followed by Cecil Henschel who totaled 231 points. Other close competitors were Thomas Lynch, Howard Lickerman, Parcheski, Anthony Golembieski, John Ryan McClosky, Winfield McDonald and S Sheridan.

The test included such activities as have been taught during the past few months and included apparatus exercises marching tactics, rope climb 60 yard swim, hurdle race and volleyball and basketball ability.

A similar test is to be conducted in the junior boys class when it meets in the gym this afternoon.

STRIBLING NOT TO FIGHT IN RING AFTER MARRIAGE

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 22—(AP)—W. L. ("Young") Stribling announced here today he would not do any more fighting after his marriage to Miss Clara Kinney, Macon, Ga., society girl.

"At least not for a while," he added."

Stribling declined to announce the date of his marriage.

Giants Beat Bruins

BOSTON, Dec. 22—(AP)—New York defeated the Boston Bruins 3 to 2 in a National Hockey league game here tonight.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Jack Bentley's name again appears in the baseball trade market with the return to New York from Florida of the Giants' manager, John McGraw. The Giants need an outfielder who can stand a season's campaigning in order that George Kelley may remain at first base. Three clubs are understood to be seeking Bentley, one of them the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Russians will not support Bogoljubow, winner of the recent Moscow chess tournament, in a challenge match with Jose Capablancha of Cuba for the world's championship. This is the opinion of Capablancha, who arrived in New York Monday. He left Tuesday for Havana.

Jimmy Burkett, former manager of Indianapolis in the American association, once told a young infielder, Joe McCarthy, to "grab that bat bag and cart it to the clubhouse for you are no good for anything else." McCarthy, now manager of the Cubs, intends to carry heavy bats next season, for his assistant is Jimmy Burke.

Benny Leonard and Rocky Kansas will meet once again for the lightweight championship, according to Kansas' Manager, Dan Rogers. Leonard said recently that he would return to the ring when a worthy lightweight happened along but that Kansas was not the man.

Dave Shade, Pacific coast welterweight, may meet Roland Todd of England, at Madison Square Garden January 1.

H. B. Wells of Harvard, Robert Kaufman of Yale, Irving Sampson of New York University, Caesar Tone of the University of North Carolina and Edward Jacobs of Baltimore City College are among the entrants for the national junior indoor tennis championships starting in New York Monday.

Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, finally has escaped legal shackles. The suit brought against him by Andrew McCorkindale, his one-time manager, was dismissed Monday when McCorkindale admitted that Firpo owed him not a penny. Papers in the case showed that Firpo had gained about $203,500 in his

TRYON WILL PLAY WITH TRI-STATE TEAM AGAINST PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 22—Wednesday night at the Plainfield Community house the Tri-State Champs of Pittsburgh will clash with the fast Plainfield Town team. The coach of Grove City college whom this team represents barred some of the players from making the trip but the management absolutely guarantees the appearance of Fay, Robb, Flemming and Eddie Tryon. Fay, captain of the team, is the fastest man in Pennsylvania. He stands six feet three inches high and will play center against Norris of Manchester. The guards will be Robb and Flemming, the best pair of guards obtainable from Pittsburgh. Flemming has signed up to play second base for the Boston Red Sox next year. Guerin, O'Brien and Tryon are the possible forwards. If not, these berths will be filled by two men from Sharps physical training school of Buffalo.

Plainfield will be represented by the same team it has had throughout the season, Benson and Bissell, guards, Noria, center, Normandin, Dissinger and Thorton forwards.

There will be extra seats to accommodate the large crowd and there will be no advance in prices. In the preliminary the Plainfield Buddies will mix it up with the Celtics of Taftville.

BRIDGEPORT'S STABBER RESUMES HIS ACTIVITY

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 22—After a few weeks of inactivity on the part of Bridgeport's "phantom stabber" who has terrorized young girls during the past several months, he again made an appearance tonight. He made an unsuccessful attempt to stab Miss Bertha Bylinski, 17, of 714 Railroad avenue, a short distance from her home. The young girl fought her assailant off and escaped from being stabbed. Twelve other young girls had been stabbed when the fiend made his appearance on other occasions.

A flash received at headquarters from the third precinct where the attempted stabbing was first reported sent the patrol wagon containing Superintendent of Police Patrick J. Flannigan, Captain of Detectives John H. Regan and a score of plain clothesmen and policemen to the scene, but as on the other occasions, the stabber had completely vanished into the darkness.

Miss Bylinski had left her home on Railroad avenue alone to go to St. George's church on Park avenue and when she neared South avenue, a man approached her and threw his arms around her body. When he had clasped his arms around her body he held aloft in one hand a knife, the girl said, and muttered and muttered a threat that he was going to stab her. The girl struggled to free herself at the same time crying loudly for help. The man becoming frightened when the girl screamed, loosed his hold and disappeared, leaving her suffering from the shock of fright.

The description given to the police by Miss Bylinski does not tally with those given by other victims of the stabbing fiend, and the police are endeavoring to correlate the cases.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Why Yowler Yowled

If Nature meant that you should yowl
How foolish if you try to howl.
—Yowler the Bob Cat.

Yowler the Bob Cat was crouched on the top of a big, gray rock midway in the dam of Paddy the Beaver. It supported and strengthened the dam. Paddy had been smart enough to build his dam so that it would. Now, as Yowler crouched there, he was so nearly the color of the rock that had you happened along there you might have passed close to him and not seen him at all. You see it was night, and though the moon was shining it was difficult to see outlines clearly.

Yowler was facing down the Laughing Brook. He was watching for the

it was straight into the water, and Yowler hates water return of Paddy the Beaver and his family. He was sure that they would return, for it was still early and he was sure that they would try to get some more logs from that new pond down to the old pond where the winter food pile was. So he kept his fierce eyes, those glaring, yellow eyes, downstream.

"If one of those Beavers will cross this dam within jumping distance what a feast I will have," thought he. "I have a feeling that one will. With this fine place to jump from I can jump a long distance. I don't like to think of getting wet, so I must wait until one is wholly out of water and then jump so straight and true that I'll pin him down right there. It wouldn't do to allow him to get in the water, for I might not be able to hold him there."

So Yowler laid his plans and dreamed of the Beaver feast that should be his if everything went as he had planned. He paid no attention to other things. So it was that he didn't see Hooty the Great Horned Owl alight on his watch tower, a tall dead tree, near at hand. He didn't see Hooty, for those wings, those great broad wings, are noiseless. So Yowler knew nothing of Hooty's presence. It would have made no difference if he had known, for Yowler was not afraid of Hooty. Of course not.

Peter Rabbit sitting still so that Hooty would not know that he was about wondered how long, it would be before Paddy and his family returned. Peter was fairly burning up with curiosity. You see, he had heard Mrs. Paddy when she gave the warning after she had heard Yowler in the tree above her, but Peter hadn't seen Yowler and was aching to know what had happened. So when he saw Hooty he was quite upset. He wouldn't dare show himself to ask the Beavers what the trouble had been about. How Peter did wish that Hooty would fly away.

By and by Yowler saw for down the Laughing Brook a silvery moving line. Then he saw another silvery line, and then two more. Yowler grinned. Those Beavers were returning. Nearer and nearer they came and the fierce glow in Yowler's yellow eyes became even more fierce. It was all he could do to keep still. He couldn't keep wholly still. You know he has just a stub of a tail. It isn't enough of a tail to call a tail. But it is enough to twitch, and when Yowler is excited he twitches that tail. He began to twitch it now as he watched those Beavers drawing near. The nearer they drew the faster he twitched.

Suddenly Yowler yowled. My goodness, such a yowl! At the same time he made a mighty spring. But it wasn't on one of those Beavers. Oh my, no! No, indeed! It was straight into the water, and Yowler hates water. That is, he hates to get in it all over. You should have seen him turn and make for that dam. You should have seen him scramble out, shake himself and then speak along that dam for the shore. And as he did it he kept looking over his shoulder, as if he expected some enemy to spring on him from behind. If ever there was a scared Bob Cat that one was Yowler. Yes, sir, he was one scared Cat.

What had happened? Haven't you guessed? Why, Hooty the Owl had seen that twitching tail without seeing what it was or whose it was. On silent wings he had flown over and struck at what he was sure was a prize. Too late he had discovered what it was. But by that time those great, sharp, curved claws of his had sunk in Yowler's flesh at the root of the tail. That is what had made him yowl and spring straight into the water. And by the time he had turned, those silent wings of Hooty's had taken Hooty away. So to this day Yowler doesn't know what hit and hurt him that night by Paddy's new dam.

COMMUNITY TREE AT UNION SQUARE

A handsome Christmas tree is being erected at Union square for the holiday season by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce. Mayor Milo R. Waters has given his approval and the gas and electric department is co-operating in the wiring, etc.

The tree decorations will be unique in that five streamers of varied colored lights will be run from the surrounding standards to a large star on the tree. The star is loaned by the Eaton Chase company.

Bigots are always dead sure of something they know nothing about.

POETRY

Shine, O Christmas Star

When Santa tiptoes o'er the roof
Where reindeer gaily caper,
When Christmas trees are gleaming bright
With tinsel, toys and taper,—
When night-gowned kiddies by the hearth
Hang up the Christmas stocking,
And carols sweet ring through the street
Where Christmas crowds are flocking,—
On happy children near and far,
Shine bright, O blessed Christmas Star!

When holly red and mistletoe
The gay rooms are adorning,
When ribboned packages are spread
For grown-ups Christmas morning,—
When Grandma eyes the gifts she bought
With each well-hoarded penny,
And all the pretty Christmas cards
Tell friends both true and many,—
On kindly grown-ups near and far,
Shine bright, O joyous Christmas Star!

Where loneliness and sorrow dwell,
And joy has long departed,
Where, at a word, the teardrops well,
And Love seems brokenhearted,—
There, with your rays benign and calm,
By Heavenly grace descending,
Bring to the sufferer healing balm,
Love, comfort, peace unending:
On lonely souls both near and far
Shine bright, O tender Christmas Star!
—Elizabeth Minot in Boston Transcript.

'Bout Christmas

The kindling's all cut, and the basement swept,
And everything is where it should be kept.
In lesson's he's most perfected,
Does other things least expected!
That's my Son,
On the run
For his dad,
'Bout Christmas!

I have never to look for a coat or hat,
Neither to wonder where's this or that;
My ties hang neatly on the rack,
And my soiled linen's in the sack.
That's my Girl,
She's a pearl
For her dad,
'Bout Christmas!

My slippers I find beside my chair,
Kind attentions for me there—
At times I feel "Almost a King,"
So petted o'er, and everything;
That's my Wife,
Det your life,
"Dear Old Dad!"
'Bout Christmas!

—Woodward Pemberton.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He—"Bill's a three letter man."
She—"Baseball, football and track, I suppose."
He—"No. I. O. U."—Williams Purple Cow.

Bank Robber — Quick! Hand out the money.
Terrified Clerk—C-o-cer-tainly, sir. H-how would you like it.—London Gaiety.

"Every bone in my body aches," grumbled the pessimist.
"Then you ought to be glad you're not a herring," responded the optimist.—The Progressive Grocer.

Clerk—We can't cash this check for $5 until you are identified.
Stillson—That's fierce! Only one man in town can identify me and I owe him four.—Life.

A prominent clergyman says the vanity box is responsible for many evils.
He evidently thinks that the Dumbdora's box is almost as bad as Pandora's.—Boston Transcript.

Wife—What's the matter, dear?
Hubby—Can't get this confounded self-starter to work. I think there must be a short circuit somewhere.
Wife—How annoying. Can't you lengthen it?—London Mail.

Angry Alice—"That insolent creature asked me if I remembered how dreadfully cold it was in 1887."
Catty Carrie — "Oh, she didn't mean anything—very likely she doesn't know what a bad memory you've got."—Judge.

Teacher—What were the different ages in history?
Willie—The stone age, bronze age, iron age.
Teacher—What age are we living in now?
Willie—The hard-boiled age.

INSTALLING MACHINERY FOR NEW INDUSTRY IN THIS CITY

Through the efforts of the Norwich chamber of commerce, a new industry, to be known as the Norwich Manufacturing company, has been secured for Norwich. The company which comes from New York, will be located in the Majestic building and will occupy about 4,000 feet of space.

The company will manufacture pajamas and men's night shirts under a well known trade name and will employ about 50 persons, mostly girls. The pay roll will run from $700 to $1,000 a week. The machinery is now being installed by the company and it is expected that manufacturing will start about January 1st.

News that another industry is to locate in this city will be welcomed by the citizens in general, especially in these days when so many people find it difficult to find positions.

ARRESTED ON WARRANT ISSUED LAST AUGUST

After serving four months in Brooklyn jail for obtaining goods under false pretenses, Henry C. Russell, of Farmington, Conn., was taken into custody Tuesday by Officer Charles Smith of the Norwich police force and will appear in court this (Wednesday) morning to answer to a similar charge.

The warrant for Russell's arrest was made out and served and he was locked up in the local police station to await trial. According to the warrant against Russell the specific charge drawn up by City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins is that he did deceitfully represent to Mr. Henschel of the Henschel Tire and Rubber Co. Inc., of Norwich, that a certain Gardner automobile then bearing Connecticut registration N-5044, was owned by him, free and clear of incumbrances and upon such false and knowingly fraudulent representations did induce said Henschel to sell him on credit merchandise to the total value of $25.67 and by such false pretense did defraud the said Henschel Tire and Rubber Co., Inc., of the value of said merchandise. The warrant is dated Aug. 15.

DR. KERNAHAN AGAIN VISITS NEW ENGLAND

Dr. A. Earl Kernahan, known as director of visitation evangelism, who has conducted evangelistic campaigns in this city, has been in New England for the last few weeks directing a series of campaigns in Providence, Pawtucket, Central Falls, R. I., and Pittsfield, Mass.

Dr. Kernahan is now directing a campaign in Pittsfield, Mass. Workers from four churches and a community chapel won one hundred and fifty four people for Christ and the church in one hour and thirty minutes Sunday afternoon December 13. Dr. Kernahan directed campaigns across the continent last year and he has a similar schedule for this year.

After the Pittsfield campaign the following cities appear upon his schedule, New Bedford, Mass., Philadelphia, Penna., Washington, D. C., Hartford, Conn., Amsterdam, New York, Baltimore, Maryland, Kansas City, Mo., Pasadena, Calif., Riverside, Calif., and other cities upon the Pacific coast.

CENTRAL FIRE STATION HAS CHRISTMAS TREE

Central Fire station has a beautifully lighted Christmas tree all its own. The fir tree planted on the lawn at the station has been decorated by men at the station and its many colored lights make a pretty spectacle every evening.

Three foreign students were among the six prize winners announced by Dr. Fannie Fern Andrews in Boston in the annual world essay contest conducted by the American School citizenship league.

WESTERLY

NEW HOSPITAL ENDOWMENT FUND WILL BE $260,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 22—At the Washington Trust company building yesterday afternoon was held the first annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Westerly hospital when the incorporators were also in attendance. From the reports submitted it was learned that the hospital will have an endowment fund approximately $260,000. The cost of hospital construction, equipment, furnishings, nurses' home construction, garage, grading and preliminary work totals $551,707.56. Gifts and pledges total $812,136.66. Such an endowment would aid materially in helping to meet operating expenses. Construction cost of the hospital building was $367,590.41, while that of the nurses' home, which was made possible by an additional gift of Charles P. Champion, not in the original fund, was $93,211.47.

Treasurer John O. Mills presented his report as follows:

Receipts, cash gifts, 1923, $34,863.75; 1924, $6,388.04, 1924, $2,905.57; C. A. Morgan $100,000.00; C. P. Champion $55,000.00; Foundation fund $80,000.00; card pledges $532,679.30; total $812,136.66.

Expenditures, hospital $367,590.41; nurses' home $93,211.47; equipment, furnishings and supplies $65,453.62; garage (unfinished) $5,209.42; grading $12,731.08; preliminary work $7,461.56; total $551,707.56.

Paid on garage since report was made up $2,169.04.

The president's report and the report of the superintendent were also presented, and the board voted to have all reports printed in pamphlet form for distribution.

Officers were re-elected as follows: President, Charles Perry; treasurer, John O. Mills; secretary, Edgar P. Maxson.

At present the hospital is faced with the problem of transporting nurses and employes to town and back to the hospital. It was left with Harvey C. Perry, one of the incorporators, to make suitable arrangements to care for this matter. For the extension of the roadway from East avenue to the hospital grounds to confer with the Westerly Highway Commission, Thomas McKenzie and C. B. Utter were named a committee.

Funeral services for Santo Angello, 35, were held Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from his home, 99 Stillman avenue. Requiem high mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Michael's church by Rev. Michael Keating. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends.

Burial was in St. Michael's new cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Fr. Keating. Mr. Angello was born in Italy, but came to this country when a small child. He has been a resident of Westerly for about 30 years. During his residence here, he worked in several mills and was employed at the New England Silk Mill when taken ill a short time ago. He is survived by his wife, Angelina Angello, and five small children.

Capt. Amos Dickens and Henry Sargent of Lower Pawcatuck left Westerly Tuesday to visit over the holidays with Ralph C. Woodward, in Grafton, Mass.

John Lynch of Boombridge, North Stonington, was a Westerly business visitor Tuesday.

Peleg B. Briggs left Tuesday morning for Boston and will return home by automobile.

Rhode Island State Trooper William E. Riddell returned to Providence on Tuesday noon after being the guest of his parents in Westerly.

Joseph Coduri was a business caller in Boston Tuesday.

Rufus F. Stiles of Pawcatuck left Tuesday morning for a visit in Boston.

Herbert Sisson is confined to his home on the Watch Hill road by illness.

Clayton Smith returned to Boston Monday after being the week end guest of Westerly friends.

The facade of the Dixon street entrance to the parochial school of the Immaculate Conception parish recently erected at the corner of High and Dixon streets, is rapidly being placed in position.

Frederick B. Agard, a student at Brown University, is passing the vacation with his mother, Mrs. Harry B. Agard, in Westerly.

Deborah Chapter, No. 9, Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Eleanor P. Mitchell, worthy matron, observed Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock with a Christmas party for the children, gifts were distributed by Santa Claus and this was followed by the serving of refreshments.

Mrs. John Champlin will leave Westerly Christmas day for Wayne, Pa., to visit her daughter, Mrs. Francis Lathrop.

HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS REPORT SUCCESSFUL YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 22.—The tenth annual report of the Westerly highway commissioners, Charles F. Perry, Elihu H. Chesebro and Harvey C. Perry, Adolph H. Leon, highway engineer, for the year ending, Dec. 31, 1925, is summarized as follows:

The end of the fiscal year is close at hand, so operations in the highway department have ceased for the time being, except for a few necessary maintenance operations.

I feel that the taxpayers of Westerly will be more satisfied with the report for 1925 than they have been for some few years past.

Financially we are much better off, having paid all of our obligations and having a small cash balance.

To start off the year, there was a deficit of $24,000, unpaid bills of 1924. On top of this we had to replank and paint the Stillmanville bridge, rebuild throughout with long leaf yellow pine boom bridge, and purchase the old car barn on Beach street for a place to put out machinery. Then we had the shoulders on the Watch Hill road to take care of where the street railway tracks came out. Wells street, from Beach to the hospital entrance was also an added project, as was the increased length and size of the storm drain from the intersection of John and Elm streets to the river.

The construction of 1925 was carried out as far as the money appropriated on each project would go. Ocean View highway was constructed from the entrance to the Golf Club for a distance of 2,300 feet towards Clark's Corner with an 18 inch penetration road and the balance made passable. Neptune road at Watch Hill was subgraded and oiled, the shoulders on Sunset and Acquidneck avenues, were put into the curb with penetration.

Pierce street was graded and penetrated from High street to Pond street, and Pleasant street was graded, a concrete curb built on same, with a stone sub base from High street to Mariott Ave. The surface is to be put on in the spring of 1926 of Hot Mix.

Bowling Lane at Brdaford was also constructed with a penetration for 800 feet in length twenty-four feet wide.

To this amount of new highways a concrete sidewalk was built on the west side of Elm and Beach streets from Cross to Clark streets.

Atlantic Beach also came in for its share of work done by having the stretch from Weekapaug bridge to the Atlantic Beach Casino dressed over with crushed stone dust and oiled, making a fairly good surface.

Every street in the center of Westerly, which the sewer department was not going into, was surface treated with oil.

The streets through which the sewer department laid sewers, must necessarily remain as they are until the spring of 1926, when we can put them in a safe and passable condition.

We must bear in mind that the tearing up of street surfaces is an absolute necessity when underground construction is being done and we must bear in mind that we are unable to wreck and rebuild simultaneously.

I can say in all frankness that never has so friendly a feeling existed between the sewer and highway departments, and to my knowledge no work has been unnecessarily done by this department on any street in which the sewers were to be laid.

Taking the season of 1925, I can only see that progress is being made in the right direction and sincerely hope the 1926 season will prove as well with the same proportion of improvement.

Conditions on Railroad avenue between Canal street and the state armory on Dixon street, shall be improved, before any serious accident occurs on that stretch of highway. Following the installation of sewer pipes and the ripping up of the tracks of the Norwich and Westerly electric line on that short section the surface of the roadway has become rutted and in wet weather the holes become filled with water. With the increase of heavy trucking which passes over it since the new Hopkinton-Westerly cement state road was opened every passing truck wheel showers the sidewalks on either side. In dry weather this surface is a fine white powder which rises in clouds. It would not require much work from time to time to keep the holes filled and a slight oiling would keep down the dirt and dust.

Filed in the office of the Westerly Town Clerk are the following property transfers:

Dec. 22.—Washington Trust company, executors et al as sole executor to the last will and testament of Jessie M. Gourlay, the heirs being Jessie G. McLaren, Grace M. Nye, Fremont Nye Thomas H. Gourlay, 2d, Emma Gourlay Elizabeth M. Peck, Linus E. Peck Beatrice M. Burdick, Edward J. Burdick, Jean L. Bryson, John J. Gourlay and Myrdele M. Gourlay, to Howard Clark Davis, five parcels of land included in properties known as the "Red Stone Quarry." (The stamp cancellation was $12 which might mean $12,000 consideration.)

Helen S. Leslie to Nelson W. Himes and wife an undivided one-half interest in a certain lot of land with buildings and improvements in the east side of Spring street.

The residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Langworthy, 35 Elm street, was crowdde with mourners street, was crowded with mourners funeral services for Nathan L. Langworthy, whose death occurred in Providence Friday. Rev. Samuel H. Davis a former pastor of Pawtucket Seventh-day Baptist church, officiated in the services. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, the bearers being Dr. Albert H. Spicer, Charles D. Maxson, Dr. Edwin Whitford, Karl G. Stillman, Thomas B. Pendleton and William H. Browning.

Following an illness of six days with lobar pneumonia, the death of Edgar Eugene Lanphere occurred Monday night at his home, 21 Granite street. He was born in Pawcatuck (Stonington), January 7, 1861, son of the late Stephen A. and Lydia E. Corey Lanphere and when a young man entered business for himself. At the time of his death he had parlors in the Washington Trust Company building.

Mr. Lanphere was one of the oldest violin players in town. For a number of years he gave violin lessons also conducted an orchestra under his own name.

His wife, Etta L. Chesebro Lanphere, whom he married October 16 1909, survives, besides two sisters, Mrs William W. Bromley of Jewett City Conn., and Mrs. Ellery D. Crumb of this town. His mother died about three months ago, and his father, Stephen A. Lanphere, died two years ago.

COOLIDGE STUDIES DISARMAMENT PLAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—(AP)—President Coolidge is hopeful that a way can be found for the United States to accept the invitation of the League of Nations to participate in the preliminary discussion of a disarmament conference plan.

This was made clear at the White House today, where it was said he was making a constructive and affirmative study of the Geneva invitation. No indication was given as to when a reply would be formulated.

As the president continued to consider the questions involved, resolutions were introduced in both the senate and house dealing with the disarmament project. Senator King, democrat, Utah, took the lead in this direction in the senate submitting a resolution for participation in the projected conference, while the house proposals, that the invitation be accepted, were put forward by two members of the foreign affairs committee —Representatives Fish, republican, New York, and Moore, democrat, Virginia.

It previously had been indicated at the White House that the president might be inclined to seek congressional sanction, either through an appropriation for the expense of American participation or adoption of resolutions expressly approving the proposal, before taking action which would given the United States a voice in the forthcoming discussion.

Late today the president had a lengthy conference with Secretary Kellogg, who had confered earlier with two of his predecessors in office —Charles E. Hughes and Elihu Root both of whom had a leading part in the Washington Arms Conference as members of the American delegation Mr. Hughes also had been a luncheon guest at the White House.

While it appeared that the Tacna-Arica question was involved in the talks Mr. Hughes had with the president and Mr. Kellogg, it is presumed that they both sought his views on the disarmament resolutions. Senator King asked that his measure, which would authorize the president to name delegates to represent the United States, be laid aside temporarily, while in the house the routine procedure of referring resolutions to committees was followed.

DEATH OF FRANK MUNSEY, PUBLISHER

ersburg, Fla., was not summoned to his bedside because of her age. A number of Mr. Munsey's editors and business associate were present, however.

Mr. Munsey leaves a large estate, estimated at several million dollars which includes his two newspapers, three magazines, Argosy All-Story Weekly, Munsey's Magazine and Flynn's Detective Story Magazine as well as other extensive interests including it is understood, a chain grocery system in New York. No intimation as to how the estate will be distributed has been obtained.

Messages from men in many professions all over the country paid tribute to Mr. Munsey's high ideals, singleness of purpose, his strength and his indomitable will to succeed. For these were the characteristics which stood out through all his climb from a poor farm boy to the commanding position which he reached in the publishing and financial worlds.

Starting his career alone and without finances, he continued to the end to work alone. He never had a controlling partner, either in business or political effort. He never had a financial backer. Speaking of his early adventures in the publishing profession, Mr. Munsey once said:

"I bought paper on time. I bought everything I could on time. The very audacity of it all gave me credit and more and more credit all the while. But merciful heavens, how the bills fell due!"

Mr. Munsey's climb to success was as romantic as any of the fiction stories of Horatio Alger, Jr., one of which was published in the first magazine put out by Mr. Munsey.

Leaving the farm to become a post office clerk and later a telegraph operator, the boy Munsey came into contact with newspaper publishers, and from them received his ambition to become a publisher himself. Coming to New York with a suitcase full of manuscripts and $40 in cash, he induced a publishing house to issue the Golden Argosy, a magazine for juvenile readers, of which Mr. Munsey became editor.

Upon the failure of his publisher, Mr. Munsey received the good will of the magazine in lieu of unpaid wages, and with that as a stepping stone began his climb toward fortune and fame.

The name of the Golden Argosy magazine was changed to the Argosy and then to the Argosy-All Story magazine, and another magazine, Munsey's Monthly, was brought out.

Other magazines followed. Some of them lived only a short time, and only three of them have survived to this date. Altogether nine magazines and 11 while in the hands of Mr. Munsey. Other papers were bought and sold by him to new interests which have continued them.

On his so-called ruthlessness in the slaughter of magazines and newspapers Mr. Munsey once said:—

"The same law of economics applies in the newspaper business that operates in all important business today. Newspapers that disregard this economic law are inviting disaster and are fixing a charge that could and would be reduced if we have fewer newspapers."

At another time, when announcing the merging of the Sun and the Herald, he said: "If I had yielded to sentiment and pride I should have entered the fight to continue it (The Herald), but pride has no place in economics."

Also it was said by many that just as with the impediment of his various establishments, so with the personnel, to a certain extent, Mr. Munsey considered that long and faithful service entailed no sense of responsibility. The same persons readily admitted that where the sense of obligation did exist, no human soul could be kinder or more considerate.

Mr. Munsey had his eccentricities which sometimes made themselves felt in his newspaper offices. Once he saw a fat man who was on the staff. He immediately ordered the dismissal of the man, stating that he [illegible] fat men on his payroll. The man was not discharged, however, and later, when he wrote a story that especially pleased the publisher the latter ordered the man's salary increased.

When in the city, Mr. Munsey lived at the Ritz Carlton hotel, where he had a suite. His rooms, although fully furnished, were masculine to the last degree. In addition he had a country home at Manhassett, Long Island, comprising 1,000 acres, and another country house at Elizabethtown, N. Y. In recent years he spent a large portion of his time abroad. President Coolidge, in a telegram to William T. Dewart, Mr. Munsey's general manager said:—

"The death of Frank Munsey has taken one of the outstanding publishers of our time. He started as a poor boy in Maine. Through energy and an indomitable will to succeed, typical of our true American spirit, he conquered all obstacles in his path. As an editor he reached a position of influence in the country. His support of measures appealing to his judgment was strong and unfaltering."

Governor Alfred E. Smith telegraphed to Albany ordering all flags on state buildings to be flown at half-mast until after the funeral.

"The state of New York loses one of its foremost citizens," Governor Smith said. "I grieve not only for that but for my personal loss."

The governor had planned to return to Albany today, but announced that he would remain in the city until Thursday, to attend the funeral services.

Julius Miller, president of the borough of Manhattan, who ordered the flags on all municipal buildings to be half-masted in tribute to the publisher said Mr. Munsey had been a constant worker for municipal and civic improvement, and that the loss of his counsel on traffic problems would be greatly felt.

From the ranks of Mr. Munsey's own profession, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press expressed his regret for the publisher's passing.

"I am personally deeply affected at the death of Mr. Munsey, whom I not only admired, but whom I held in sincere and affectionate regard. I had come to know him in recent years with friendly intimacy. In the Sun, as he had published it, he expressed the highest type of journalism," Mr. Cooper wrote.

Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, said, in part: "He was a man with a high conception of honor and a gentleman in the true sense; x x x he was an ardent patriot and a valiant promoter and defender of the public welfare."

Other messages came from Charles G. Dawes, vice-president of the United States, William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States, Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, Harry S. New, postmaster-general, United States Senators James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, Reed Smoot, of Utah, Arthur Capper, of Kansas, George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, George W. Morris of Nebraska, Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, and from many others.

Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler was requested to come to Washington to talk over his resignation.

President Coolidge worked on a reply to the disarmament conference invitation in an effort to find a way to accept.

"NICKY" ARNSTEIN ON WAY TO JOIN HIS FAMILY

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, Dec. 22—(AP)—With thoughts for his wife, Fanny Brice, vaudeville actress and musical comedy star, and their two children, Jules "Nicky" Arnstein today was on his way to Milwaukee to join his family following his release from the federal penitentiary here today.

Arnstein, a central figure in a $5,000,000 bond theft in New York city, had been a federal prisoner since May 16, 1924. For obeying the prison rules he received an allowance of seventy-two days on his two-year sentence.

TROUBLE OVER FINANCIAL POLICY IN FRANCE

PARIS, Dec. 22—(AP)—The franc, which lately has shown acute sensitiveness to the developments of the political situation, suffered another setback today on the disquieting news of dissensions in the cabinet on the financial policy. M. Doumer, finance minister, like all his predecessors of the past year and a half, is encountering serious opposition to his projects. The exchange market reacted at once, and the franc lost all the gains made on the favorable impression created by the industrial leaders' offer, pledging their property to guarantee a loan in the United States or elsewhere, the dollar closed today sixty centimes higher than yesterday.

The leaders of the groups of the left bloc appear determined to accept no other solution of the financial crisis than their own, which includes a capital on business turnover, which M. Doumer tax levy and excludes an increased tax favors.

The finance minister conferred on the subject with members of parliament most interested, but was unable to give a definite indication of his plans at the cabinet meeting today. M. Doumer, who has the reputation as a man who sticks to his task, is fighting stubbornly against the radical and socialist influences, arguing that the financial policy of the radical-socialist coalition has already been rejected twice by parliament and that he is not willing to take up their plans and invite the same disaster as happened to M. Painleve and M. De Monzie.

The impression in the chamber lobbies is that the question will remain in suspense until after the holidays.

NATHANIEL HILL WAS KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING

GEORGETOWN, Conn., Dec. 22—(AP)—Nathaniel Hill, sixty-five, divisional director for the state highway department in this section, was instantly killed by the Pittsfield Express of the New Haven railroad, at Miller's Crossing shortly after five o'clock tonight. An automobile which Hill was driving, was demolished.

Hill was returning to his home here from the Redding road, where he had been working during the day, when his automobile was struck by the express. He was thrown clear of the machine and his body was found about 50 feet, north of the crossing.

HEAD OF "COW BOY GANG" GETS FROM 10 TO 20 YEARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Frank Tessler, the 25 year old head of the notorious "Cow Boy Gang" of robbers, was sentenced today from 10 to 20 years in state prison for robbery by Judge Talle in general sessions.

"Cow Boy" Tessler still fates a murder indictment brought against him in October for the alleged shooting and killing of Abraham Peska, a downtown furrier.

Other members of the gang confessed to various depredations and were sentenced to prison for varying terms. Tessler pleaded guilty to the robbery charge.

ATTLEBORO AN UNUSUALLY LAW-ABIDING COMMUNITY

ATTLEBORO Mass., Dec. 23.—(AP)—That this city is an unusually law-abiding community, and has an extraordinary clean police record is indicated in the annual report of Police Chief Terence E. S. Flanagan to Mayor George A. Sweeney, which says there has been no serious hold-up, robbery, or assault, and not one fatal automobile accident during the past year.

LOVE OF "MOLLY" TURNED IN PRINCE OF WALES' ABSENCE

LONDON, Dec. 23—(AP)—The Prince of Wales does not often lose friends, but as a result of his prolonged absence during his South African and South American trip, a canine friend has turned from him, despite all the blandishments of His Royal Master.

This is his cream colored cairn terrier "Molly," a pet of two years, which the Prince left with Lady Burton, who breeds Cairn terriers, when he started his long journey.

Lady Burton made a pet of Molly, and on the day of the Prince's return took the dog to York house when the Prince went to greet Molly she would not even look at him. For several days he tried to regain her friendship but in vain. The dog became quite unhappy, would not eat, and had to be returned to Lady Burton's kennels.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

CAREER OF PUBLISHER FRANK A. MUNSEY, 71

Frank Andrew Munsey was 38 years old and a telegraph operator when he arrived in New York one cold, bleak day in the winter of 1882. He had come down to the metropolis from Maine, bringing all his property with him. It consisted of a grip-full of manuscripts, the clothes he had on, and $40 in cash. He was going to start a publishing business.

Seeking a focussing point for what he felt certain, even at that time, would one day be a great enterprise, he engaged a little room for an office, bought an eight dollar table and a couple of cheap kitchen chairs, some pens and a bottle of ink, and the $40 was gone. Frank Munsey was broke in the world's greatest city, where even the mighty must fight to hang on.

LANE'S
COLD TABLETS
for Colds and Grip

With all his troubles ahead of him, he started to work, and two months later appeared the first number of the Argosy Magazine—then an illustrated weekly paper of eight pages for boys and girls. Horatio Alger, Jr., was one of the contributors. This was the beginning of a struggle which has had few if any parallels in the publishing world.

Forty years later, after one of the most remarkable demonstrations of hewing success out of failure ever seen in that particular business, Frank Andrew Munsey had become one of the foremost publishers in the United States, numbering his newspapers and magazines by the score and his wealth by the millions. It had been a fight every step of the way, and not once did luck lend a hand with the burden.

His most notable achievement in the newspaper field came in February, 1920, when he acquired the New York Herald, one of the oldest newspapers in the country, and merged with it the New York Sun, the Herald's senior by two years, which Mr. Munsey had purchased in 1916 and consolidated with the New York Press. The elder James Gordon Bennett had founded the Herald, and Charles A. Dana developed the Sun. The merged publication was called The Sun and the New York Herald for a time, then changed simply to the Herald. At the same time the Evening Sun, another Munsey newspaper, was changed to the Sun.

The early life of Mr. Munsey, as he forged gradually ahead in spite of countless disappointments and bitter reverses, was not unlike that of an Alger hero, although his ultimate success out-did the imagination of even that famous writer.

Born in the little town of Mercer, Maine, August 21, 1854, he has been described as "one of those many barefooted country boys who start life with more in their heads than in their pockets." He attended the public school of Mercer for a while, but soon felt the urge to make money. His first job was in the country store, where he served as general utility boy.

From there he went to a telegraph office, learned to handle a key, and was sent to Augusta, then an important publishing center. His work became an obsession, and he hated it. He knew he could do big things. The four walls of a telegraph office, he wrote years afterward, "were to me as the cage to a tiger yearning for the boundless freedom of the jungle."

"I was so sure of myself," he continued, "that I would willingly have given 10 years of my life, without compensation, for a chance with some of the big concerns of the country—railroading, steel-manufacturing, shipping, banking, or any of the great staple industries."

Gradually the publishing germ entered his blood. He drew up elaborate plans for a magazine and submitted them to various persons with money, but "an enterprise so hazardous as publishing, and managed by a man who had no practical experience, did not appeal to them."

Finally, his scheme was laid before a man more daring than the rest—a stockbroker—and arrangements were made to begin publication of The Argosy. The broker agreed to supply $2,500, and Munsey, having $500 which he had saved, promptly invested it in manuscripts. With these he started for New York.

When he had opened his little office, he drew one of his new kitchen chairs up to the eight dollar table and wrote for the $2,500. A few days later he collapsed over that same table. The broker up in Maine had changed his mind. He would keep his money. This Mr. Munsey described as "jolt number one."

Next he took his scheme to a publisher, who offered to bring the magazine out in his own name, retaining Munsey as editor and manager. Two months later the first number appeared, and three months after that the publisher failed. This was "jolt number two."

The insolvent publisher owed the editor and manager of The Argosy something more than a thousand dollars in salary, which the latter took for the good will of the infant weekly paper. Writing of this period, he described it as "the beginning of a struggle such as no man is justified in undertaking." He had no capital, and no means of raising any. Many advance subscriptions had been received and the money spent. No one had any faith in the magazine, and it could get no credit.

Borrowing $300 from a friend in Maine, he fought on to keep what little life the publication had. In the winter of 1886 he wrote his second serial story for The Argosy. It was called "Afloat in a Great City." He ground out 6,000 words a week by candle-light, after long days of struggle at the office. When he had finished this, he looked back on the four years of drudgery that he had lived through since coming to New York. As a reward, he found that his debts amounted to about $16,000. This was "jolt number three"—the worst of all.

His serial story, however, had helped the circulation, and money started to come in. He increased the size of the magazine and raised the price. As fast as the money arrived, it was used for advertising. In five months he spent $95,000 and distributed 11,500,000 sample copies of The Argosy. It was then called "The Golden Argosy". He had 20 men on the road east of Nebraska, distributing samples. In New York he had no bookkeeper, no editorial force, no stenographer or no typewriter. They were luxuries which he could not afford.

At the close of this campaign, in 1887, the magazine had attained a circulation of 115,000 copies and was paying a net income of $1,500 a week. He wrote a third serial, grinding out another 6,000 words a week. It was called "The Boy Broker," and added another 20,000 to the circulation.

But something was wrong. The circulation soon began to fade. The trouble seemed to be with juvenile publications, all of which were rapidly failing. In 1891 he started Munsey's Weekly, hoping to get it under way before The Argosy went completely down. In a few months he put $100,000 into the new venture, and still it lost. He changed it to Munsey's Magazine, at twenty-five cents a copy, but it would not sell. By 1893 he had two magazines, both losing money and was more than $100,000 in debt. In attempting to lower the price of his publications, he brought on trouble with the great news distributing company upon whom he was dependent for circulation.

Determining to go over the head of the company, he sent out thousands of circulars direct to news dealers all over the country, telling of his enlarged magazine at a lower price. The circulars did the work. The news company received orders by the basketfull. They went to Mr. Munsey with an olive branch and met his terms. The first number of the new Munsey's Magazine reached 40,000 copies. Before it stopped the rapid climb it had passed the 700,000 point.

This marked the beginning of success for Frank Munsey. He had been willing to give 10 years of his life for a chance to get started. He had actually given more than 11 years—and owed $100,000. Six months after Munsey's Magazine blazed the way, The Argosy shook off its juvenile cloak and entered the field of adult publications. Since that day it has made several fortunes for its owner.

In addition to the two publications whose histories are so closely bound up with his early life, Mr. Munsey acquired "The Scrap Book," "The Railroad Man's Magazine," the "All Story Magazine," "The Ocean," and others, and owned newspapers in New York, Washington, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore. He also had extensive investments in other fields, and never permitted his capital to remain idle.

Mr. Munsey never married. He lived for many years at one of New Yorks fashionable hotels, and also maintained a country estate at Elizabethtown, N. Y.

Comptroller Craig disclosed that each taxi office in New York has been equipped with tear gas apparatus as a precaution against criminals.

CARGILL TRUST COMPANY ROUNDS OUT SUCCESSFUL YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 23—Indicative of the manner in which Putnam is buoyantly recovering from a train of unfortunate industrial reverses and the collapse of one of its banks—The First National—in August of last year, is the remarkably fine showing made by the Cargill Trust Company in its first year of business.

The company one of eastern Connecticut's newest financial institutions which received its charter from the state bank commission and opened for business November 12th, 1924, has just rounded out its first fiscal year. It has been successful from its very opening and has fulfilled its mission in Putnam's industrial and financial structure.

In spite of extraordinary expenses incidental to its organization it declared July 1st, its initial dividend at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. At the directors' meeting the past week its second dividend for the period ending December 31st was declared at the same rate, namely 5 per cent and in addition a Christmas dividend at the rate of 1-2 of 1 per cent per annum was voted.

The report submitted to the directors by Treasurer Boyce showed that the dividend had not only been earned but a very substantial amount will be left over to carry to the profit and loss account. One of the directors said that this would amount to at least $10,000. Such being the case it is quite evident that the institution has had a most successful year and has proven itself worthy of taking its place with eastern Connecticut's financial institutions.

Byron D. Budbee for many years a successful retail dry goods merchant has been president of the organization since the charter was granted L. M. Keith, another of Putnam's successful business men is Vice President Clarence A. Boyce, for many years a banker, has served most efficiently as secretary and treasurer.

The trust company's quarters though small have taken on a very busy appearance during the past few months, more particularly so during the past ten days on account of new enrollments for the 1926 Christmas club. Already it is reported that the company has twice as many members in the new year's club as in the 1925 club. All this will be reflected in the building up of Putnam's business institutions and restoring it to its former place as one of the most prosperous cities in eastern Connecticut. When it is time for the dispersal of another Christmas club the weekly savings which have been put away by the individuals in the new Christmas club will surely find their way into various stores, at the end of another year.

CHINESE STEAMER WAS CAPTURED BY PIRATES

HONG KONG, Dec. 22—(AP)—The steamer Tungchow, bound from Shanghai for Tientsin, has been captured by pirates.

The Tungchow had on board several passengers including Mr. McAfee of the American Oriental Bank, Mr. Sharp of the British American Tobacco Company and H. G. W. Woodhead, editor of the Perkin and Tientsin Times.

The Tungchow was taken by the pirates 300 miles south of Weihaiwei and run from there to Bias Bay in South China, a noted pirate resort. There the pirates took off a quantity of specie and other valuables and permitted the ship to proceed to Hong Kong.

The pirates had boarded the Tungchow as passengers at Shanghai and did not reveal their true character until they had proceeded some distance northward in the China Sea. They then took possession of the ship, shot and wounded the captain and held up all the passengers.

The pirates then put the ship about and made for Bias Bay, a run of nearly 1,000 miles from where they took her over. Bias Bay is about 60 miles northeast of Hong Kong and the ship was permitted to proceed there after the pirates had unloaded their loot.

THREE NEW LONDON BOOZE-SELLERS FINED $200 EACH IN CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—The state and local police, aided by Prosecutor Hollandersky and Judge Prince, put three booch sellers out of business in which they have been making a lot of money, when the police court convened this morning. Eddie Jones, who claims to be a textile worker out of a job, was the instrument used for the detection of the law violators. He is in the employ of the state police and went about buying drinks at 25 cents each. He said he bought two drinks on two occasions at the place of Annie Santer, in North Bank street, two of the drinks last evening early and the others last week Wednesday. Eddie claimed he worked in Hallville two years ago, then went to the mill in East Lyme and finally dropped out of a job. He has been living with his sister, Mrs. George Reisch, at Norwich. Eddie was given a marked dollar and sent to the Santer house where he entered the kitchen. He was not trusted even by his employer for he was searched before he went in, to see that he had no liquor on his person and to make sure that he had only the marked bill that was given to him to make his purchase. Eddie was quite positive as to what he did and what he saw. He was in the act of necking his second drink at the Santer place when Officers Caron and Hick invaded the place. Eddie carried a small sponge given him for the purpose and instead of swallowing the last drink he allowed the sponge to absorb it by placing the sponge in the glass in which the liquor was served and then he squeezed the liquor out of the sponge to save it as evidence. He has been about New London several days and has not been idle. Notwithstanding that he has been engaged in mopping up considerable of the stuff that goes for whiskey he is still going strong and thinks he can hold out at the business sometime yet. If he isn't served with a dose of something that isn't liquor he will be fortunate, provided he now remains in the game of seeking intoxicating liquor and then exposing the parties from whom he obtains the stuff. It is barely possible, now that he is known that he will be given a dose of some beverage that will affect him when more seriously than does the liquor he buys.

The case against Mrs. Santer was what the village cut a cinch for the prosecution. There wasn't a particle of doubt as to the guilt of the accused. Judge Prince gave Mrs. Santer to understand that she was getting away pretty easy when he fined her $200. He told her he was disposed to send her to jail, as she had before been convicted and fined and was then given to understand that she would go to jail when she appeared again in court and was convicted. The fact that Christmas is only a few days away was what saved her this time. That was the statement made to Mrs. Santer. A jail term imposed today was suspended for six months. Her attorney was disgusted with the case and told the court that he appealed from the decision, that the woman might raise the money to pay her fine. He appealed with the understanding that she would settle before the next return day for the common pleas court. If she did not settle her lawyer, Max Meyer, declared that he would decline to appeal for her in the appellate court.

Sawa Skrigan, another booze-dealer in North Bank street threw up his hands when he came to a trial. He was represented by an attorney who demurred to the complaint. Sawa was fined $200 on one count and given a suspended sentence on another. He produced the cash and settled.

Walter Toukowski was the third offender. He also demurred to the complaint and was given exactly the sentence that Skrigan received. He, too, produced the money to settle.

Christ Sauers, a coast guard sailor, a held as a fugitive from justice in Pennsylvania, where he is wanted at Hazelton for desertion and non-support of his wife. He is to appear in court Wednesday to answer, unless an officer comes here for him in the meantime. Sauers has a paper, which he claims was issued to him by the court in Hazelton in which his wife disclaims that she has any right to support in any way from him. He declares that he is willing to return to Pennsylvania at once, upon the arrival here of an officer.

John Rudit was fined $10 for intoxication. The court was disgusted with John because he told a fanciful story of having a father who is 100 years old, that being the same yarn he related to the court last July when leniency was shown to him that he might get to Niantic. He went to jail instead of to Niantic today, and said there wasn't much difference between the places.

Sam Silvester and his wife do not agree always, so yesterday the disagreement became such that the man struck the woman and she asked for his arrest. Things took a different turn today and the woman did not desire the prosecution. The case was continued for three months in the hope that a lasting reconciliation might be accomplished. Then he told of his experience and Grace was brought under the attention of the police. She says her home is in Louisville, Ky. and she declared that she came here to meet a friend who is on a government ship, though she is married and expects to again meet her husband.

Mrs. Ida Williams, formerly a resident of Pequot avenue, died late yesterday at Norwich State hospital, where she had been under treatment some time. Mrs. Williams is survived by a brother, John C. Dennis of Bridgeport.

Fortunato Fella, of the American-Italian hotel and a resident at 46 Moore court, who was struck by a Connecticut company trolley car on Bank street, near Division street, last evening, was reported as resting comfortably at Lawrence hospital today. Fella's injuries are a fractured jaw and bad lacerations of the face and scalp.

Mrs. John Sweezy, of 50 Hempstead street; Mrs. Andrew Ciavaglia, 87 Walbach street; Mrs. Jacob Linicus and infant son, Glenwood Park; John Letkowsky, 25 Lincoln court, and Martin Rice, United States Coast Guard, local section base, No. 4, state pier, were patients discharged today at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriet Simons, widow of Stephen Simons, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 43 Shapley street, Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James Episcopal church, reading the service. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Charles Prentis took place this afternoon, a prayer service being conducted at 2 o'clock, at Mr. Prentis' residence, 273 Huntington street, by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. At 3:30 o'clock public services were conducted at Brainard lodge, Masonic temple, by Worshipful Master Charles F. Potter and Chaplain J. Romeyn Danforth. The bearers were Edward Prentis, Jr., Carey Congdon, George R. Morris, Arthur B. Calkins, George E. Watters and Alfred H. Pollock. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of George S. Chappell, former car inspector in the employ of the New Haven railroad, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 9 Brooks street. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, and were attended by many mourners, among them a large representation of railroad employes and a delegation of members of the Loyal Order of Moose. Members of the order also acted as bearers. Interment was in Flanders cemetery.

The condition of Hugh McPartland, Jr., son of Hugh McPartland, Tilley street, ill with pneumonia at Lawrence hospital, is very slightly improved today for during this forenoon the crisis occurred and barring unforeseen complications it is anticipated that the patient will recover.

John Neary, formerly of New Lon-don, now located in Jersey City, N. J., is in this city and will remain over the holiday as the guest of relatives.

James Elliott, painter, of 16 Kenomoc street, was seriously injured Saturday, being knocked from a ladder while painting a building of the New Haven railroad at the Fort Neck yard, when an automobile truck owned by David Tourtellotte, 35F Union street, collided with the ladder. He is reported this evening at Lawrence hospital, as being considerably improved and it is believed that he will be permitted to leave the institution within a few days as he did not suffer a fractured skull, as was at first feared.

News has been received of the death at Indianapolis, Ind., of John Joseph Cuddy, 32, a former resident of New London.

Peter L. Akers, 79, Poquonoc road, Groton, was arrested late this afternoon by Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh charged with violation of the automobile laws, failure to have registration and failure to obey traffic signal at Bank and Howard street. Akers was allowed his liberty on his own recognizance for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

The body of William Osborne, a colored porter aboard the New London line steamer New Hampshire, who died suddenly of acute indigestion and heart trouble yesterday afternoon while aboard the steamer at the New London line pier, was forwarded to Washington today for the funeral service and burial.

Complaint is heard of the reckless-ness of automobilists in driving about the much travelled streets of the city. This evening on lower Bank street at a point where there have been several accidents because half a dozen streets converge there, a driver came tearing along while a woman and child were crossing the highway. The autoist tooted the horn, but he did not slow down the speed of his machine as he should have done. Policeman T. C. Sullivan witnessed the danger of the pedestrians and made an effort to ascertain who the autoist was, but the machine sped on too rapidly for him to take its number.

Building appears to have slackened materially in this city, now that the end of the year is at hand and cold weather is apt to set in any day. Last evening there were but two applications before the city council for permits to build. These were both granted, but the work is not of much consequence.

Merchants report the sale of toys to be larger this year than ordinarily and they say that the women are larger buyers than the men. That is to be expected since the Christmas holiday is a children's time of pleasure.

There is a very general feeling of re-gret in this city because of the death of Frank A. Munsey. He did as much as any one man to put New London in the forefront of New England cities, because of his erection of the Mohican hotel, a public house now known from one end of the country to the other. Mr. Munsey advertised it in his newspapers and he maintained it at efficiency that is not found in hotels generally. What change the death of Mr. Munsey will make in his New London properties no one can tell, but it is only natural that some and important changes should occur. Few men could handle such a vast realty proposition as Mr. Munsey handled what he owned here.

TWO RUM SCHOONERS SEIZED OFF BLOCK ISLAND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—Two rum-laden schooners were brought into port late this afternoon by the rum-chasers assigned to the local United States sectional base, coast guard, state pier. The boats were seized off Block Island and are laden with liquor, supposed to have been intended for distribution during Yuletide celebrations. Both craft were taken to the state pier and moored and the masters and members of the crews are scheduled to appear before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran at the customs house tomorrow, although it is a possibility that that the craft and their respective crews will be taken to New York for trial.

BACK TAX COLLECTION TO BE EFFECTED AT ONCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—When the proposition of Alexander & White, to change the method of bookkeeping in the tax collector's office, a start will be made to collect back taxes. That will mean that a considerable sum will be added to the income of the city. There would seem to be no reason why property owners should not arrange to pay the city what is owed, as they do to pay what they owe to individuals, or to lodges and societies. Their property represents earnings for them either in rentals or in providing a place for them to live without paying rent. There is a considerable sum due to the city in back taxes and now the effort is to be made to collect this money.

WESTERLY WOMAN BURNED, PATIENT AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—Mrs. Maud Gutherie, 44, of Westerly, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, being in a critical condition as a result of burns suffered yesterday when her clothing became ignited at her home.

Mrs. Gutherie was attempting to start a fire in one of the stoves when the flames leaped to her dress, the flimsiness of which caused it to ignite rapidly and in an instant the woman was enveloped in burning clothing. Before the flames could be extinguished Mrs. Gutherie had suffered severe burns about the body, head and shoulders. She was given first aid treatment and then rushed to the New London institution where she is now on the danger list.

PETROLEUM INDUSTRY MIGHT PRODUCE RUBBER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 23.—(AP)—It costs the petroleum industry nine millions a year to get rid of chemicals which might be producing synthetic rubber worth $168,000,000 asserts E. P. Stevenson of Cambridge, Mass. He is to be one of the speakers before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which meets here on December 29, and synopsis of his prepared address was made public today.

Synthetic production of rubber is a highly important industrial problem, Mr. Stevenson showed, since this nation consumes seventy per cent., of the world's production of rubber, all imported and exacting an annual tribute of close to a billion dollars. Synthetic rubber has not only been realized in the laboratories but was produced in Germany during the war.

"Synthetic rubber can be made from certain classes of hydro-carbons known as diolefines through a process known as 'polymerization,'" he said, "in order to remove these bodies, produced in every refinery in the United States the petroleum industry suffers a loss close to 30,000,000 and destroyes diolefines equivalent to 180,000,000 pounds of rubber."

Frequently an apt quotation is better than an original remark.

PLANNING AIRPLANE EXPEDITION TO NORTH POLE

DETROIT, Dec. 23—(AP)—Unexplored land in the region of the North Pole will be sought, and the North Pole may be crossed by an airplane expedition planned for next summer under the auspices of the Detroit Aviation society, it was announced here today. The expedition will start from Point Barrow, Alaska probably in March next year.

Under the direction of E. S. Evans, Detroit banker and adventurer, Captain George Hubert Wilkins, famous Australian explorer and aviator, with another man as yet unnamed, will hop off from Point Barrow in a Fokker three-engined monoplane in an effort to fly the 2,000 miles to Spitsbergen, the route going directly across the geographical North Pole.

If land is found between Point Barrow and the Pole as many explorers believe, the plane will return immediately and report the fact. Two planes will then be sent out to establish a landing place and to claim the territory for the United States.

All scientific data gathered by the participants will be turned over to the American Geographical society. At first it was planned to ask the army and navy to aid in the proposed expedition, but after other conferences, it was decided to make the Detroit Aviation society sole supporter of the venture.

William B. Mayor, chief engineer of the Ford Motor company, is president of the society and this led to reports yesterday that Henry Ford was back of the expedition.

Members of the board of control working out details of the flight includes Dr. Isiah Bowman, president of the American Geographical society; Harold H. Emmons, former president of the Detroit Aviation society; Major L. H. Pickering of New York city and Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, as well as Mayo, Evans and Wilkins.

TO QUARANTINE DOGS IN STAFFORD AND SOUTHINGTON

HARTFORD, Dec. 23—(AP)—The dogs of two towns have been put under quarantine by Commissioner of Domestic Animals James M. Whittlesey and it is expected that a third town will be included in the ban tomorrow. In what is considered the most serious outbreak of rabies in Connecticut in several years. The quarantine was established in Stafford on Monday, an order for the same restrictive regulations was issued today for Southington, and if a report of a mad dog in Bristol is verified by the commissioner tomorrow that city will also be included in the quarantined areas.

In both Stafford and Southington serious situations have been developed because of single mad dogs which were at large for some time before being killed and are thought to have widely distributed the infection. Analysis in both cases proved positive cases of rabies.

One dog also has been the cause of the trouble in Bristol, having bitten several other dogs beore being killed. Commissioner Whittlesey is of the opinion that this case may be a development from the Southington epidemic.

The quarantine proclaims that "all dogs or other animals known to have been bitten by a rabid dog or other animal shall forthwith be mercifully killed, by the dog warden unless the dog so infected had previously been given a vaccination treatment known as the anti-rabies vaccination."

TO CONFER ON GILPATRIC'S CONDUCT AS STATE TREASURER

HARTFORD, Dec. 23.—(AP)—John F. Carpenter, counsel for the directors of the First National Bank of Putnam, wrecked by the defalcation of former state treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric, will confer in a few days with Governor Trumbull with respect to recent developments bearing on Gilpatric's conduct as state treasurer.

Mr. Carpenter wrote Governor Trumbull requesting an interview and has been notified that the executive will give an interview to him at any time he desires.

The governor was in New York today for the New England dinner, Mr. Carpenter who originally engaged the auditors, Hadfield, Rothwell and Soule, of Hartford, to help untangle the maze of financial manipulations left by Gilpatric, and who made the request, through State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne, that Accountant Frank E. Soule be permitted to examine Liberty bond certificates in the state treasury in an effort to determine whether funds taken by Gilpatric from the Gardner estate were used to buy bonds which Gilpatric was required to deliver to the state treasury.

FRIEDA HEMPEL EXPECTS AGAIN TO APPEAR IN OPERA

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Frieda Hempel, concert and opera singer, returned on the White Star Liner Majestic today with the announcement that after a five years' vacation from opera she expects to appear in opera next year in Germany and with the statement that she would like to start "a big drive against women smoking."

Miss Hempel was met by her husband, William Kahn, New York banker. She denied the report of a separation.

GIFTS TO MAYOR OF NEW HAVEN AND HIS WIFE

TODAY'S EVENTS

Check up your Christmas list today! One hundred and twenty years ago today was born Joseph Smith, the founder of the Mormon church.

Greetings to Oscar S. Straus, son of a Jewish immigrant who has risen to be one of America's foremost citizens, and who is 75 years old today.

Emiliano Figuerca-Larrain will be formally installed as president of Chile today in succession to Arturo Alessandri, who recently resigned.

A statue of Nathaniel Hawthorne will be unveiled today in Salem, Mass., with which place the famous author was intimately associated during his lifetime. The unveiling ceremony will be performed by Rosamond Mikkelson, of Danbury, Conn., a granddaughter of Hawthorne.

Broadway Theatre.

The management of the Broadway theatre is going to make this a real Christmas by giving local theatregoers an astonishing and extraordinary show of B. F. Keith vaudeville. As an example as to what will be seen, one of the acts comes here direct from B. F. Keith's Hippodrome, New York city, Jean McCoy and Ralph Walton in "A Few Moments With the Spirit," is guaranteed to be a riot of laughs. Just watch for the other acts and a surprising announcement in this paper tomorrow.

Breed Theatre

Another scandal starring Lois Wilson, which heads a double feature program at the Breed Theatre today and Thursday, is a Vine screen treatment of Cosmo Hamilton's great novel of the same name.

It is a story of marriage and brings out the fact that a girl may be a wife and a mother and still not have outgrown her "girl stuff"—and that the average man doesn't understand this a bit.

When Beatrix Pelham had a temperamental spree and sent her husband away from her, May Beamish stood waiting to take advantage of the rift in the lute. Any man would fall for May—providing that he was the "falling" kind, which is exactly what Pelham wasn't. Nevertheless, it took a good deal to squelch "our wee friend, May," and she very nearly succeeded in making an ideal marriage end in disaster.

The picture is an engrossing one because it is so human and is so excellently acted. Lois Wilson as the wife, Holmes Herbert as the husband, Ralph Bunker as his friend, and Flora de Breton as the little thing who has no success with her vamping, are perfection. Most others who do good work are Hedda Hopper, Bigelow Cooper, Zeffie Tilbury, Ralph W. Chambers, Harry Grippe and Allan Simpson.

Credit should go to G. Marion Burton who made the screen adaptation, and E. H. Griffith, director, for so finely branding out the thesis of Hamilton's book.

This is a domestic drama taken from a new angle, and a very interesting one. Be sure and include this on your list for this week.

Bruce Gordon in the picture play which covers cleanup days is full of big scenes will enjoy seeing "The Demon," Blue Streak Western which is the second feature on this program at the Breed with Jack Hoxie as the star. According to previews it is a fast action story giving the popular western star every chance to display his ability both as an actor and horseman. Lois Todd, William Welsh, Jere Austin and Georgie Grandee are in the cast. The picture was produced under the direction of Cliff Smith.

Palace Theatre.

Today is your last chance to see Recompense the daring sequel to Silton Call Peter, and an excellent bill of vaudeville. Recompense is all that was advertised and it has received very favorable comments from all the patrons of the Palace during the last three days. The management announces an exceptionally strong holiday programme of good cheer with the good luck star on the screen, Thomas Meighan in a picture that the critics all agree is the best Meighan picture of the season, Irish Luck. This is the picture that the famous Thomas went to Ireland to film and some very interesting shots of the Emerald Isle are shown including the famous lakes of Killarney and the Blarney Stone. Another big showing of this picture last week in Boston and New York all the daily papers congratulated Meighan on his success in getting back to the role that he so ably portrays. Continuous shows on the holiday and Saturday, starting to 1.30 until 10.30. A big merchants' nite Thursday nite. Ten bank books will be started for the lucky ones in a Christmas club.

TO RESUME NEXT SPRING ATTEMPTS TO SALVAGE S-51

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Attempts to salvage the United States submarine S-51, sunk in a collision with the steamer City of Rome off Block Island last September, will be resumed next spring, it was indicated today by orders received at the naval station here from the navy department at Washington.

The orders, which came from the bureau of navigation, directed that all the personnel actively engaged in the previous efforts to raise the wrecked submarine be kept intact with the view to resuming the work as soon as weather permits. While the men will be assigned to various duties during the winter, they will pay particular attention to the study of problems concerned in the salvage work, the order directs.

NO TRACE OF AN EDWARD JOHNSON IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 23.—(AP)—There is no trace of an Edward Johnson having been in Bridgeport, police said tonight, when informed of the confession of a man who gave that name, to a murder which was committed in Newark, N. J., 14 years ago. It was suggested by local detectives that if Johnson had been in Bridgeport, he might have been a laborer with the circus, or engaged in one of the various excavation of construction projects in this vicinity.

BERNARD E. LYNCH TO BE EXTRADITION COMMISSIONER

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 23.—(AP)—"Bernard E. Lynch, extradition commissioner of the United States court for the district of Connecticut," will be the official title of Commissioner Lynch tomorrow when Judge Edwin S. Thomas makes the official announcement of the appointment. It is a long time since the state of Connecticut has had such an official.

The appointment is the result of a case in federal court in which the jurisdiction of Mr. Lynch was questioned it being contended that the matter should have come before an extradition commissioner. The case involved deportation and extradition action against Francisco Cimino wanted in Italy to serve out a sentence for murder.

SUICIDE OF DANIEL H. SUGRUE IN NEWTON, MASS.

NEWTON, Mass., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Daniel H. Sugrue, former private secretary to Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred Boston attorney, committed suicide by shooting today at his home here. He had been ill health. He was a prominent figure in the proceedings which led to the disbarment of Coakley, Joseph C. Pelletier, William J. Corcoran and Nathan Tufts.

Sugrue was indicted with Coakley in 1924 for conspiracy to extort money from wealthy men. He defaulted and went to Canada, and when he returned Coakley and other defendants had been found not guilty by a Middlesex county jury.

STEAMER ABANDONED OFF COAST OF NEWFOUNDLAND

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 23.—(AP)—An unknown steamer tonight reported by radio that the steamer Marina had been abandoned off the coast of Newfoundland.

Sixteen men from one of the Marina's lifeboats were said to be aboard the steamer which sent out the radio. Another lifeboat containing 18 persons was reported as not having been seated.

RADCLIFFE TO CONDUCT FOREIGN AFFAIRS SCHOOL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Radcliffe college will conduct a school of foreign affairs here next month in co-operation with the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, it was announced today. All citizens of this and other states are eligible for the sessions, which run from January 12 to January 15, inclusive.

HURT CHRISTMAS TRADE OF DERBY DEPARTMENT STORE

DERBY, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The Howard and Barber department store, Main street, lost most of the night's Christmas trade and possibly part of its stock tonight when the store was deprived of its lights for more than three quarters of an hour, following the blowing out of the fuses in the rear of the store.

The blowing of the fuses, for which no cause has yet been discovered, occurred about 8:10 o'clock, when about 1,100 customers were crowding at the counters doing their shopping. The store management immediately notified the electric lighting company, but almost an hour elapsed before the current was restored.

THREE NEW LONDON BOOZE-SELLERS F.NED $200 EACH IN CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—The state and local police, aided by Prosecutor Hollandersky and Judge Prince, put three booch sellers out of business in which they have been making a lot of money, when the police court convened this morning. Eddie Jones, who claims to be a textile worker out of a job, was the instrument used for the detection of the law violators. He is in the employ of the state police and went about buying drinks at 25 cents each. He said he bought two drinks on two occasions at the place of Annie Santer, in North Bank street, two of the drinks last evening early and the others last week Wednesday. Eddie claims he worked in Hallville two years ago, then went to the mill in East Lyme and finally dropped out of a job. He has been living with his sister, Mrs. George Reisch, at Norwich. Eddie was given a marked dollar and went to the Santer house where he entered the kitchen. He was not trusted even by his employer for he was searched before he went in, to see that he had no liquor on his person and to make sure that he had only the marked bill that was given to him to make his purchase. Eddie was quite positive as to what he did and what he saw. He was in the act of necking his second drink at the Santer place when Officers Caron and Hick invaded the place. Eddie carried a small sponge given him for the purpose and instead of swallowing the last drink he allowed the sponge to absorb it by placing the sponge in the glass in which the liquor was served and then he squeezed the liquor out of the sponge to save it as evidence. He has been about New London several days and has not been idle. Notwithstanding that he has been engaged in mopping up considerable of the stuff that goes for whiskey he is still going strong and thinks he can hold out at the business sometime yet. If he isn't served with a dose of something that isn't liquor he will be fortunate, provided he now remains in the game of seeking intoxicating liquor and then exposing the parties from whom he obtains the stuff. It is barely possible, now that he is known that he will be given a dose of some beverage that will affect him much more seriously than does the liquor he buys.

The case against Mrs. Santer was what the vulgar call a cinch for the prosecutor. There wasn't a particle of doubt as to the guilt of the accused. Judge Prince gave Mrs. Santer to understand that she was getting away pretty easy when he fined her $200. He told her he was disposed to send her to jail, as she had before been convicted and fined and was then given to understand that she would go to jail when she appeared again in court and was convicted. The fact that Christmas is only a few days away was what saved her this time. That was the statement made to Mrs. Santer. A jail term imposed today was suspended for six months. Her attorney was disgusted with the case and told the court that he appealed from the decision, that the woman might raise the money to pay her fine. He appealed with the understanding that she would settle before the next return day for the common pleas court. If she did not settle her lawyer, Max Goyer, declared that he would decline to appeal for her in the appellate court.

Sawa Skrigan, another booze-dealer in North Bank street threw up his hands when he came to a trial. He was represented by an attorney who demurred to the complaint. Sawa was fined $200 on one count and given a suspended sentence on another. He produced the cash and settled.

Walter Youkowski was the third offender. He also demurred to the complaint and was given exactly the sentence that Skrigan received. He, too, produced the money to settle.

Christ Sauers, a coast guard sailor, a held as a fugitive from justice in Pennsylvania, where he is wanted at Hazelton for desertion and non-support of his wife. He is to appear in court Wednesday to answer, unless an officer comes here for him in the meantime. Sauers has a paper, which he claims was issued to him by the court in Hazelton in which his wife disclaims that she has any right to support in any way from him. He declares that he is willing to return to Pennsylvania at once, upon the arrival here of an officer.

John Rudit was fined $10 for intoxication. The court was disgusted with John because he told a fanciful story of having a father who is 100 years old, that being the same yarn he related to the court last July when leniency was shown to him that he might get to Niantic. He went to jail instead of to Niantic today, and said there wasn't much difference between the places.

Sam Silvester and his wife do not agree always, so yesterday the disagreement became such that the man struck the woman and she asked for his arrest. Things took a different turn today and the woman did not desire the prosecution. The case was continued for three months in the hope that a lasting reconciliation might be accomplished in that time. The pair have children.

Grace Smith was fined $50 as a lascivious person in manner and speech. When she was put to plea she declared that she was guilty and "threw herself on the mercy of the court." Evidently Grace is not a stranger to court proceedings. She didn't get leniency in such degree that it hurt her to carry it, for she went to jail. It was related of her that she fell in with a white farm hand who got into New London from Waterford and though she is black the farm hand accepted her invitation to her home and her bed. Yesterday the farmer got into East Lyme and was found trespassing on the grounds of the State Farm for Women. He was informed against by the matron on the farm and the fellow was arrested. Then he told of his experience and Grace was brought under the attention of the police. She says her home is in Louisville, Ky. and she declared that she came here to meet a friend who is on a government ship, though she is married and expects to again meet her husband.

Mrs. Ida Williams, formerly a resident of Pequot avenue, died late yesterday at Norwich State hospital, where she had been under treatment some time. Mrs. Williams is survived by a brother, John C. Dennis, of Bridgeport.

Fortunato Fella, of the American-Italian hotel and a resident at 46 Moore court, who was struck by a Connecticut company trolley car on Bank street, near Division street, last evening, was reported as resting comfortably at Lawrence hospital today. Fella's injuries are a fractured jaw and bad lacerations of the face and scalp.

Mrs. John Sweezy, of 50 Hempstead street; Mrs. Andrew Cavaglia, 87 Walbach street; Mrs. Jacob Linicus and infant son, Glenwood Park; John Leitkowsky, 23 Lincoln court, and Martin Rice, United States Coast Guard, local section base, No. 4, state pier, were patients discharged today at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriet Simons, widow of Stephen Simons, were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James Episcopal church, reading the service. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Charles Prentis took place this afternoon, a prayer service being conducted at 2 o'clock at Mr. Prentis' residence, 278 Huntington street, by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. At 2:30 o'clock public services were conducted at Brainard lodge, Masonic temple, by Worshipful Master Charles F. Potter and Chaplain J. Romeyn Danforth. The bearers were Edward Prentis, Jr., Carey Congdon, George R. Morris, Arthur B. Calkins, George E. Watters and Alfred H. Pollock. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of George S. Chappell, former car inspector in the employ of the New Haven railroad, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 9 Brooks street. The services were conducted by Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, and were attended by many mourners, among them a large representation of railroad employes and a delegation of members of the Loyal Order of Moose. Members of the order also acted as bearers. Interment was in Flanders cemetery.

The condition of Hugh McPartland, Jr., son of Hugh McPartland, Tilley street, ill with pneumonia at Lawrence hospital, is very slightly improved today. For during this forenoon the crisis occurred and barring unforeseen complications it is anticipated that the patient will recover.

John Neazy, formerly of New London, now located in Jersey City, N. J., is in this city and will remain over the holiday as the guest of relatives.

James Elliott, painter, of 16 Konomoc street, was seriously injured Saturday, being knocked from a ladder while painting a building of the New Haven railroad at the Fort Neck yard, when an automobile truck owned by David Tourtelotte, 338 Main street, collided with the ladder. He is reported this evening at Lawrence hospital as being considerably improved and it is believed that he will be permitted to leave the institution within a few days as he did not suffer a fractured skull, as was at first feared.

News has been received of the death at Indianapolis, Ind., of John Joseph Cuddy, 38, a former resident of New London.

Peter L. Akers, 79, Poquonoc road, Groton, was arrested late this afternoon by Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh charged with violation of the automobile laws, failure to have registration and failure to obey traffic signal at Bank and Howard street. Akers was allowed his liberty on his own recognizance for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

The body of William Osborne, a colored porter aboard the New London line steamer New Hampshire, who died suddenly of acute indigestion and heart trouble yesterday afternoon while aboard the steamer at the New London line pier, was forwarded to Washington today for the funeral service and burial.

Complaint is heard of the recklessness of automobilists in driving about the much travelled streets of the city. This evening on lower Bank street at a point wher there have been several accidents because half a dozen streets converge there, a driver came tearing along while a woman and child were crossing the highway. The motorist touted the horn, but he did not slow down the speed of his machine as he should have done. Policeman T. C. Sullivan witnessed the danger of the pedestrians and made an effort to ascertain who the autoist was, but the machine sped on too rapidly for him to take its number.

Building appears to have slackened materially in this city, now that the end of the year is at hand and cold weather is apt to set in any day. Last evening there were but two applications before the city council for permits to build. These were both granted, but the work is not of much consequence.

Merchants report the sale of toys to be larger this year than ordinarily and they say that the women are larger buyers than the men. That is to be expected since the Christmas holiday is a children's time of pleasure.

There is a very general feeling of regret in this city because of the death of Frank A. Munsey. He did as much as any one man to put New London in the forefront of New England cities, because of his erection of the Mohican hotel, a public house now known from one end of the country to the other. Mr. Munsey advertised it in his newspapers and he maintained it at efficiency that is not found in hotels generally. What change the death of Mr. Munsey will make in his New London properties no one can tell, but it is only natural that some and important changes should occur. Few men could handle such a vast realty proposition as Mr. Munsey handled what he owned here.

TWO RUM SCHOONERS SEIZED OFF BLOCK ISLAND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—Two rum-laden schooners were brought into port late this afternoon by the rum-chasers assigned to the local United States sectional base, coast guard, state pier. The boats were seized off Block Island and are laden with liquor, supposed to have been intended for distribution during Yuletide celebrations. Both craft were taken to the state pier and moored and the masters and members of the crews are scheduled to appear before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran at the customs house tomorrow, although it is a possibility that that the craft and their respective crews will be taken to New York for trial.

BACK TAX COLLECTION TO BE EFFECTED AT ONCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23—When the proposition of Alexander & White, to change the method of bookkeeping in the tax collector's office, a start will be made to collect back taxes. That will mean that a considerable sum will be added to the income of the city. There would seem to be no reason why property owners should not arrange to pay the city what is owed, as they do to pay what they owe to individuals, or to lodges and societies. Their property represents earnings for them either in rentals or in providing a place for them to live without paying rent. There is a considerable sum due to the city in back taxes and now the effort is to be made to collect this money.

WESTERLY WOMAN BURNED, PATIENT AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—Mrs. Maud Gutherie, 44, of Westerly, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, being in a critical condition as a result of burns suffered yesterday when her clothing became ignited at her home.

Mrs. Gutherie was attempting to start a fire in one of the stoves when the flames leaped to her dress, the flimsiness of which caused it to ignite rapidly and in an instant the woman was enveloped in burning clothing. Before the flames could be extinguished Mrs. Gutherie had suffered severe burns about the body, head and shoulders. She was given first aid treatment and then rushed to the New London institution where she is now on the danger list.

PETROLEUM INDUSTRY MIGHT PRODUCE RUBBER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 22.—(AP)—It costs the petroleum industry nine millions a year to get rid of chemicals which might be producing synthetic rubber worth $162,000,000 asserts E. P. Stevenson of Cambridge, Mass. He is to be one of the speakers before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, which meets here on December 29, and synopsis of his prepared address was made public today.

Synthetic production of rubber is a highly important industrial problem, Mr. Stevenson avower, since this nation consumes seventy per cent., of the world's production of rubber, all imported and exacting an annual tribute of close to a billion dollars. Synthetic rubber has not only been realized in the laboratories but was produced in Germany during the war.

"Synthetic rubber can be made from certain classes of hydro-carbons known as dioleifnes through a process known as 'polymerization,'" he said. "In order to remove these bodies, produced in every refinery in the United States the petroleum industry suffers a loss close to 9,000,000 and destroyes dioleifnes equivalent to 120,000,000 pounds of rubber."

Frequently an apt quotation is better than an original remark.

PLANNING AIRPLANE EXPEDITION TO NORTH POLE

DETROIT, Dec. 23—(AP)—Unexplored land in the region of the North Pole will be sought, and the North Pole may be crossed by an airplane expedition planned or next summer under the auspices of the Detroit Aviation society, it was announced here today. The expedition will start from Point Barrow, Alaska probably in March next year.

Under the direction of E. S. Evans, Detroit banker and adventurer, Captain George Hubert Wilkins, famous Australian explorer and aviator, with another man as yet unnamed, will hop off from Point Barrow in a Fokker three-engined monoplane in an effort to fly the 2,000 miles to Spitzbergen, the route going directly across the geographical North Pole.

If land is found between Point Barrow and the Pole as many explorers believe, the plane will return immediately and report the fact. Two planes will then be sent out to establish a landing place and to claim the territory for the United States.

All scientific data gathered by the participants will be turned over to the American Geographical society. At first it was planned to ask the army and navy to aid in the proposed expedition, but after other conferences, it was decided to make the Detroit Aviation society sole supporter of the venture.

William B. Mayor, chief engineer of the Ford Motor company is president of the society and this led to reports yesterday that Henry Ford was back of the expedition.

Members of the board of control working out details of the flight includes Dr. Isiah Bowman, president of the American Geographical society; Harold H. Emmons, former president of the Detroit Aviation society; Major L. H. Flokering of New York city and Vilhjalmur Steanson, Arctic explorer, as well as Mayo, Evans and Wilkins.

TO QUARANTINE DOGS IN STAFFORD AND SOUTHINGTON

HARTFORD, Dec. 23—(AP)—The dogs of two towns have been put under quarantine by Commissioner of Domestic Animals James M. Whittlesey and it is expected that a third town will be included in the ban tomorrow. In what is considered the most serious outbreak of rabies in Connecticut in several years. The quarantine was established in Stafford on Monday, an order for the same restrictive regulations was issued today for Southington, and if a report of a mad dog in Bristol is verified by the commissioner tomorrow that city will also be included in the quarantined areas.

In both Stafford and Southington serious situations have been developed because of single mad dogs which were at large for some time before being killed and are thought to have widely distributed the infection. Analysis in both cases proved positive cases of rabies.

One dog also has been the cause of the trouble in Bristol, having bitten several other dogs beore being killed. Commissioner Whittlesey is of the opinion that this case may be a development from the Southington epidemic.

The quarantine proclaims that "all dogs or other animals known to have been bitten by a rabid dog or other animal shall forthwith be mercifully killed, by the dog warden unless the dog so infected had previously ben given a vaccination treatment known as the anti-rabies vaccination."

TO CONFER ON GILPATRIC'S CONDUCT AS STATE TREASURER

HARTFORD, Dec. 22.—(AP)—John F. Carpenter, counsel for the directors of the First National Bank of Putnam, wrecked by the defalcation of former state treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric, will confer in a few days with Governor Trumbull with respect to recent developments bearing on Gilpatric's conduct as state treasurer.

Mr. Carpenter wrote Governor Trumbull requesting an interview and has been notified that the executive will give an interview to him at any time he desires.

The governor was in New York today for the New England dinner. His announcement follows a conference with Attorney General Wande H. Healy, and Deputy State Treasurer Thomas H. Judd. That the state was satisfied it had in the treasury only such property as belonged to it was taken to mean that the state will take no further recognition of claims that some of the funds it holds were bought by Gilpatric with funds stolen from the Putnam bank and from trust funds at his disposal as cashier of the bank.

Mr. Carpenter in addition to representing the bank directors, is also counsel for the Mary Gardner estate, which lost about $54,000 through Gilpatric's defalcation. It was Mr. Carpenter who originally engaged the auditors, Hadfield, Rothwell and Soule, of Hartford, to help untangle the maze of financial manipulations left by Gilpatric, and who made the request, through State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne, that Accountant Frank S. Soule be permitted to examine Liberty bond certificates in the state treasury in an effort to determine whether funds taken by Gilpatric from the Gardner estate were used to buy bonds which Gilpatric was required to deliver to the state treasury.

FRIEDA HEMPEL EXPECTS AGAIN TO APPEAR IN OPERA

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Frieda Hempel, concert and opera singer, returned on the White Star Liner Majestic today with the announcement that after a five years' vacation from opera she expects to appear in opera next year in Germany and with the statement that she would like to start "a big drive against women smoking."

Miss Hempel was met by her husband, William Kahn, New York banker. She denied the report of a separation.

GIFTS TO MAYOR OF NEW HAVEN AND HIS WIFE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 22.—(AP)—In the presence of hundreds of men and officers of the police department, Mayor David E. FitzGerald today was presented a handsome diamond ring and stickpin, tokens of esteem towards which every man in the department contributed. Mayor FitzGerald also accepted on behalf of his wife a three-diamond dinner ring, also a gift of members of the department.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Check up your Christmas list today!

One hundred and twenty years ago today was born Joseph Smith, the founder of the Mormon church.

Greetings to Oscar S. Straus, son of a Jewish immigrant who has risen to be one of America's foremost citizens, and who is 75 years old today.

Emiliano Figuerca-Larrain will be formally installed as president of Chile today in succession to Arturo Alessandri, who recently resigned.

A statue of Nathaniel Hawthorne will be unveiled today in Salem, Mass., with which place the famous author was intimately associated during his lifetime. The unveiling ceremony will be performed by Rosamond Mickelson, of Danbury, Conn., a granddaughter of Hawthorne.

Broadway Theatre.

The management of the Broadway theatre is going to make this a real Christmas by giving local theatregoers an astonishing and extraordinary show of B. F. Keith vaudeville. As an example as to what will be seen, one of the acts comes here direct from B. F. Keith's Hippodrome, New York city, Jean McCoy and Ralph Walton in "A Few Moments With the Spirit," is guaranteed to be a riot of laughs. Just watch for the other acts and a surprising announcement in this paper tomorrow.

Breed Theatre

Another scandal starring Lois Wilson, which heads a double feature program at the Breed Theatre today and Thursday, is a fine screen treatment of Cosmo Hamilton's great novel of the same name.

It is a story of marriage and brings out the fact that a girl may be a wife and a mother and still not have outgrown her "girl stuff"—and that the average man doesn't understand this a bit.

When Beatrix Pelham had a temperamental spree and sent her husband away from her, May Beamish stood waiting to take advantage of the rift in the lute. Any man would fall for May—providing that he was the "falling" kind, which is exactly what Pelham wasn't. Nevertheless, it took a good deal to squelch "our wee friend, May," and she very nearly succeeded in making an ideal marriage end in disaster.

The picture is an engrossing one because it is so human and is so excellently acted. Lois Wilson as the wife, Holmes Herbert as the husband, Ralph Bunker as his friend, and Flora de Breton as the little thing who has no success with her vamping, are perfect. Others who do good work are Hedda Hopper, Bigelow Cooper, Zoffie Tilbury, Ralph W. Chambers, Harry Grippo and Alan Simpson.

Credit should go to G. Marion Burton who made the screen adaptation, and E. H. Griffith, director, for so finely bringing out the thesis of Hamilton's book.

This is a domestic drama taken from a new angle, and a very interesting one. Be sure and include this on your film list this week.

Every patron of the picture play who loves clean, out door drama full of big scenes will enjoy seeing "The Demon," Blue Streak Western which is the second feature on this program at the Breed with Jack Hoxie as the star. According to previews it is a fast action story giving the popular western star every chance to display his ability both as an actor and horseman. Lois Todd, William Welsh, Jr., Austin and Georgia Grandee are in the cast. The picture was produced under the direction of Cliff Smith.

Palace Theatre.

Today is your last chance to see Recompense the daring sequel to Silton Call Peter, and an excellent bill of vaudeville. Recompense is all that was advertised and it has received very favorable comments from all the patrons of the Palace during the last three days. The management announces an exceptionally strong holiday programme of good cheer with the good luck star on the screen, Thomas Meighan in a picture that the critics all agree is the best Meighan picture of the season, Irish Luck. This is the picture that the famous Thomas went to Ireland to film and being very interesting shots of the Emerald Isle are shown including the famous lakes of Killarney and the Blarney stone. At the last showing of the picture last week in Boston and New York all the daily papers constantly ad Meighan on good luck getting back to the roles that he so aply portrays. Continuous shows on the holiday and Saturday, acting to 1.30 until 10.30. A big merchants' nite Thursday nite. Ten bank books will be started for the lucky ones in a Christmas club.

TO RESUME NEXT SPRING ATTEMPTS TO SALVAGE S-51

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Attempts to salvage the United States submarine S-51, sunk in a collision with the steamer City of Rome off Block Island last September, will be resumed next spring, it was indicated today by orders received at the naval station here from the navy department at Washington.

The orders, which came from the bureau of navigation, directed that all the personnel actively engaged in the previous efforts to raise the wrecked submarine be kept intact with the view to resuming the work as soon as weather permits. While the men will be assigned to various duties during the winter, they will pay particular attention to the study of problems concerned in the salvage work, the order directs.

NO TRACE OF AN EDWARD JOHNSON IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 22.—(AP)—There is no trace of an Edward Johnson having been in Bridgeport, police said tonight, when informed of the confession of a man who gave that name, to a murder which was committed in Newark, N. J., 14 years ago. It was suggested by local detectives that if Johnson had been in Bridgeport, he might have been a laborer with the circus, or engaged in one of the various excavation or construction projects in this vicinity.

BERNARD E. LYNCH TO BE EXTRADITION COMMISSIONER

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 22.—(AP)—"Bernard E. Lynch, extradition commissioner of the United States court for the district of Connecticut," will be the official title of Commissioner Lynch tomorrow when Judge Edwin S. Thomas makes the official announcement of the appointment. It is a long time since the state of Connecticut has had such an official.

The appointment is the result of a case in federal court in which the jurisdiction of Mr. Lynch was questioned it being contended that the matter should have come before an extradition commissioner. The case involved deportation and extradition action against Francisco Cimino wanted in Italy to serve out a sentence for murder.

SUICIDE OF DANIEL H. SUGRUE IN NEWTON, MASS.

NEWTON, Mass., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Daniel H. Sugrue, former private secretary to Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred Boston attorney, committed suicide by shooting today at his home here. He had been in ill health. He was a prominent figure in the proceedings which led to the disbarment of Coakley, Joseph C. Pelletier, William J. Corcoran and Nathan Tufts.

Sugrue was indicted with Coakley in 1924 for conspiracy to extort money from wealthy men. He defaulted and went to Canada, and when he returned Coakley and other defendants had been found not guilty by a Middlesex county jury.

STEAMER ABANDONED OFF COAST OF NEWFOUNDLAND

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 22.—(AP)—An unknown steamer tonight reported by radio that the steamer Marina had been abandoned off the coast of Newfoundland.

Sixteen men from one of the Marina's lifeboats were said to be aboard the steamer which sent out the radio. Another lifeboat containing 18 persons, was reported as not having been heard.

RADCLIFFE TO CONDUCT FOREIGN AFFAIRS SCHOOL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Radcliffe college will conduct a school of foreign affairs here next month in co-operation with the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, it was announced today. All citizens of this and other states are eligible for the sessions, which run from January 12 to January 15, inclusive.

HURT CHRISTMAS TRADE OF DERBY DEPARTMENT STORE

DERBY, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Howard and Barber department store, Main street, lost most of the night's Christmas trade and possibly part of its stock tonight when the store was deprived of its lights for more than three quarters of an hour, following the blowing out of the fuses in the rear of the store.

The blowing of the fuses, for which no cause has yet been discovered, occurred about 8:10 o'clock, when about 1,100 customers were crowding at the counters doing their shopping. The store management immediately notified the electric lighting company, but almost an hour elapsed before the current was restored.

In Loving Memory of SAMUEL JAMES AUSTIN
Dec. 23, 1918

Where the faded flower shall freshen,
Freshen never more to fade;
Where the shaded sky shall brighten
Brighten never more to shade;
Where the moon shall wake in gladness
And the moon the joy prolong;
Where the daylight dies in gladness
Mid the burst of holy song,
We shall meet on yonder shore
With the loved ones gone before.
